Rev. Father Minehan chose his text from the Epistle of the Mass for the fourth Sunday in Lent, from the Epistle of St. Paul to the Galations chapter 4, verse 31. "So then, brethren, we are not the children of the bondswoman, but of the free; by the freedom wherewith Christ has made us free." His preliminary remarks took the form of a compliment to the parishioners of the Sacred Heart, and to the Catholics of this city in general on their abstemiousness. He vouched for the generally recognized fact that Peterboro is known all over North America as possessing one of the most flourishing Total Abstinence Societies. He spoke of the wonderful work accomplished by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, D.D., and other valiant priests in the Peterboro diocese and hoped ere long to see local representatives in Toronto to attend a demonstration that would tend to show that Toronto was also doing something along that line.

Returning to the theme of his text, the reverend Speaker remarked how St. Paul assured the people of the world through his letter to the Galations that we were not children of bondage, but rather free in every sense of the word. Many individuals and bodies of the same are around crying for liberty but the man or societies of this nature never have liberty. The man who has liberty on his tongue never has liberty in his heart. The man who has liberty, the man who is free is the true sober Catholic man who proclaims his loyalty to God alone. There is, however, one deadly enemy, one deadly foe to freedom and that is the use of intoxicating liquors or rather intemperance. Although God Almighty has made us free some men will become a slave to strong drink, which disables him both physically and mentally.

That man is affected thus by the use of liquors was brought out by the directors of a large factory of Toronto some years ago when they were fighting the granting of a liquor license to a man who intended locating directly across the street from their factory. They claimed that one fourth of the efficiency of their employees would be taken away if they were addicted to the use of intoxicants. Their men would not be capable of doing an honest day's work and Father Minehan declared that the man who does this sort of thing is worse than a thief. He is a sneak thief. There are millions and millions of dollars stolen yearly in this manner, and is not this enough to show the evil of intemperance from an industrial standpoint.

In speaking of liberty, Rev. Father Minehan related how one evening when he was in Liverpool, Eng., he had occasion to visit the square in front of St. George's Hall. On the four corners of a large monument there were four orators, one speaking in favor of Socialism, another against it, one speaking in favor of Woman Suffrage, and the other against it. The crowd stood around and if anyone in the audience didn't like the views of one speaker he went on to the next. These orators were given all liberty to speak as long as they did not become offensive, and this left the reverend clergyman with an opinion of British fair play which he had never held before. On the outskirts of the crowd, and giving every one else the liberty they wanted, stood a reeling and staggering crowd of intoxicants. Some of them gave evidence of seeing better days, of once being of some standing in the world, yet they sacrificed their freedom and became slaves of strong drink and vice. More striking than ever before did the words of Lloyd George come to his mind, "England must kill the public house (saloon) or the public house will kill England."

Just One Drink.

Men will sigh for the liberty of taking one drink and leave it alone, in spite of the fact that last Christmas Eve in the city of Toronto so many were arrested for being drunk. Anxious children peered out into the darkness for the one who was to bring their Christmas cheer while he lay piled up among other of his class on the floors of the Police Stations. While people were singing "Glory to God on High, Peace on Earth, Good-will to men," the devil was laughing at them through these drunken wretches. These men did not become drunkards in a day. They had that so-called liberty of taking one drink and leaving it alone, and that was the result.

"Talk about British Liberty, talk of Canadian liberty, talk of any liberty in the face of such a spectacle," exclaimed Father Minehan, "let the man who says 'Oh, I want my liberty to take one glass and leave it alone, banish that thought from his mind, for if one could take it and leave it alone they all could." He added how that great American soldier, General Grant, often stated that he was not afraid of the mouth of a flaming cannon for a good cause, but he was afraid of strong drink.

"Oh, by dear brethren," concluded Father Minehan, "when drunkenness is so degrading, when it robs one of his physical and intellectual ability and when it robs him of his freedom, for which Christ died on the cross at Calvary, we should do all in our power to stop the use of intoxicating liquors. The one safe way for anyone is to put between him and that demon, a strong wall of total abstinence. It is the only safe way when we have to deal with that tyrant, that slave driver, known as intemperance."

BIG PLANT IS BURNED

FIRE IN WHITEWEAR FACTORY CAUSES DAMAGE OF $50,000

TORONTO, March 23.—Fire, probably caused by a defective heating plant, broke out on the top floor of the Allen building at Pearl and Simcoe streets on Saturday afternoon and did damage estimated at $50,000 to three firms occupying the building. This is Toronto's fifth big fire in the present year. The R. D. Fairbairn Whitewear Manufacturing Co., which occupied the two top floors, received damage estimated last night by Mr. Fairbairn at $40,000, principally to stock, of which a large part was water damage.

The east end of the top floor was gutted and will cost probably about $10,000 to rebuild, while the damage to the other firms in the building, the Allen Manufacturing Co. and the Swiss Laundry, will be trifling.

As the Fairbairn Company manufacture whitewear goods, the fumes played havoc with the fire department and several firemen were forced to come to the windows for air.

DISMISSED FROM ARMY

GERMAN OFFICER ALSO SENTENCED TO FORTRESS FOR THIRTY MONTHS

DUELLING HARD HIT

METZ, Germany, March 23.—Lieut. von La Valette Saint George of the 98th German Infantry Regiment was Saturday sentenced to thirty months' imprisonment in a fortress on a charge of killing Lieut. Haage in a duel on Feb. 26. He was also dismissed from the army. The court found the prisoner by his conduct had provoked the duel and had gravely wronged the honor of Lieut. Haage.

The severe sentence imposed upon Lieut. von La Valette Saint George is the first really severe blow delivered against duelling among army officers.

The court, by its judgment, has virtually given notice that officers who wrong the family honor of fellow-officers are not to be treated as gentlemen, and the fact that they vanquish their opponents will not rehabilitate their own honor.

The sentence is in line with the remarks made in the Imperial Parliament on March 18 by Lieut.-Gen. Erich Von Falkenhayne, Minister of War, who admitted that duelling was an offence under the laws both of God and man and was far evidence of physical rather than of moral courage.

If the precedent established yesterday is followed, courts of honor hereafter in cases similar to the present one will forbid a duel, on the ground that the offender is not fit to meet an honorable officer on the field. Heretofore a duel has been unavoidable in such cases.

RETURNS FROM PURCHASING TRIP FOR ROBERT FAIR

Mr. C. Harwood, manager of the carpet and furnishings department of Robert Fair, returned Saturday night after a seven weeks' buying trip to England, and Mr. Harwood reports a very successful trip.

He made some extensive purchases for his firm and these goods will reach Peterboro in the very near future.

Mr. Harwood had the honor of being appointed chairman for the concert held on the Ascania and Royal Edward, on which liners he made the trip. These concerts are held for the Seamen's Charities.

Bad weather was encountered but weather conditions were more severe on the return trip, when the Royal Edward received minor damages.

WHERE THE WOMEN WILL VOTE

THE REGISTRATION of women voters who will exercise the franchise at the elections to be held in April in Chicago, has been somewhat disappointing to the suffrage advocates, some 60,000 women having registered in March, whereas it was hoped over 100,000 women would take advantage of the act.

As a matter of fact the number who came out was, considering all things, remarkable. In February the number of women who registered was 158,524, which, added to the number who registered in March, brings the total to nearly 220,000. It is estimated that at least 400,000 women are entitled to register in the city, so that not much more than half that number have taken the trouble to qualify. The number of men on the polling lists is in the neighborhood of 445,000. The women are in a position to alter the complexion of things politically in Chicago if they so desire. A notable feature of the recent registration was the attitude of the women in the foreign sections. They made a good showing, though they did not come forward as numerously as in February. It is said they were greatly influenced by a letter issued by Bishop Rhode, which urged Catholic women to qualify themselves as electors. Many apparently took his advice. Probably the women voters will at the coming elections cast their ballots for candidates of their own sex, several of whom have announced their intention of seeking aldermanic, or alderwomanic, honors. Among them is a lady who is going to compete with the celebrated "Bathhouse John" Coughlin, a ward politician of the type that the citizens of many communities are trying to get rid of, with more or less success. If in Illinois, and particularly in its great city, there is not good government from now on, the women will not be justified in blaming the trouble wholly on the men, for the dressy sex now has an active voice in the matter of choosing the people's representatives.

The result of the elections in Chicago will be watched with a good deal of interest, not only by the advocates of woman suffrage, but by all classes of people.

A RAILWAY FOR ALASKA.

AN APPROPRIATION of $35,000,000 has just been made by the United States Government to build a railway in Alaska. The ostensible object is to tap the coal resources of that country. No one can estimate what a railway will do for that great territory, situated so far away in the north-western part of the continent. Alaska was purchased from Russia by the American Government, for $7,200,000, in 1867. For about three quarters of a century, previous to its purchase, Alaska belonged to a Russo-American fur company which received its charter from the Emperor Paul VII. of Russia.. Its commercial importance consisted of its seal fisheries, as a country it was considered of little value. Then one day in 1897 a prospector brought back the story of untold wealth contained in the golden sands of Alaskan rivers. At once, the Klondike was known all over the world, the great discoveries at Cape Nome and Cape York taking place in 1898. Men from all parts of the globe rushed to the new territory and began the search for gold. The commercial value of the country furnished a basis for a great boundary dispute between Canada and the United States. It gave the setting for the vigorous but somewhat mediocre verse of Robert Service. The discovery of gold, the inrush of gold seekers was productive of a large amount of data regarding that country. Now comes the announcement of a railway to utilize its stores of coal. Undoubtedly, if such an undertaking comes into existence other wealth, besides coal and gold will be discovered. When one remembers that wheat, oats, potatoes and other vegetables have been grown within the Arctic circle, that $22,000,000 in gold had been taken from Alaskan mines by 1906, that there are 25,000,000 acres of agricultural land and that the country is rich in some kinds of trees, galena, and silver alloy, the future alone will tell of the unknown development that will arise in the land of the Midnight Sun.

THE WAGES OF SIN

THE SUICIDE of James N. Gow in Hamilton was the climax of a logical series of events. Beginning with a slight lapse from the path of virtue, each step in the same downward direction was easier to take and a longer stride. From the prospects of the man, his business success, one could hardly credit his wayward conduct to facts beyond his control. We do not know to what degree he was personally responsible for the wretched course into which his life was cast. We do know that the drama proceeded to its logical conclusion and that it is reasonable to suppose there was a time when he came to a parting of the ways and willed to do as he did. The Hamilton Herald thus comments on the tragedy:

"In such careers the critical point is at the beginning, when there comes the temptation to 'daily with wrong that does no harm.' Gow may not have sunk far below this point. But when a man begins to give a loose rein to his sensual appetites, he starts in a path that is almost sure to lead sooner or later to dishonor, and is not unlikely to lead to premature death. Gradually the conscience grows calloused, self-respect is sapped, and decent respect for the good opinion of others gradually disappears. At last comes moral perversion, and if the victim of his own weakness lives long enough he is not unlikely to degenerate into a monster of vice—an abnormality that the world were well rid of.

In Hamilton are to be found men in all stages of this process of moral degeneracy. No appeal to those in the latter stages is likely to avail. The appeal must be made to those not far from the start. On many such, it is to be hoped, the dreadful fate of poor 'Jim' Gow will have an awakening effect."

May we add Peterborough and every other place where such a tragic lesson may be needed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

SHADE TREES are one of the finest beautifying agents any city can cultivate. They not only make streets look beautiful, but they are a protection against heat and wind. A good number of years are required to grow shade trees, yet very often they receive scant attention. As a result they die, become diseased or rotten, and consequently a danger to persons and property. Peterborough should see that its shade trees are protected and that scientific methods are used in pruning and that trees dangerous to passers-by or property are removed.

THE TORONTO STAR censures the Whitney Government for haste in passing the Bill of Indemnity and says it should have been discussed for a week. The Globe scores the Whitney Government for its slowness in passing legislation. That just shows how disunited and jealous those Grits are of each other. They ought to get over their childish ways.

FOR THE first time in years the Presbyterian Church has too many missionaries for the home field. The widespread influence of young men taking to the woods may have an elevating effect on the ministry in general.

The increase over the numer printed during the prior year was 1,237, or three and a third books for each day of the year. Books of fiction number 1,156, or 9.45 per cent. Second place is held by books upon economics and sociology, these numbering 944.

French Canadian Deputy Ministers.

L'Evenement, Montreal.

Coming on the feet of the nomination of Mr. J. U. Vincent as Deputy Minister of Inland Revenues, the appointment of Mr. Tache as King's Printer, demonstrates that the influence of the Province of Quebec, thanks to the French Canadian representation in the Cabinet and in the House, is on the ascendancy. And this ascendancy comes under the government of Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, just as the decadence came under the regime of Rt. Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier. This tends to prove that the Conservative party is the party of justice and equal rights, whilst the Liberal party is a party of compromises, of concessions and of humiliating deprivations.

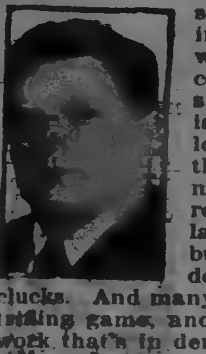
Red Tape Costs Money

London Free Press.

This red tape costs money. A member of Parliament told the electoral corruption committee that to unearth rascality, in his constituency it had cost him $6,000. Thus we see that where a whole constituency is taken from its rightful owner the owner himself must ferret out the men who took it from him. He must engage the detectives and the lawyers. If he fails to prove his case he must pay the court costs as well. What a premium to put upon dishonesty in elections! Is it a thing impossible that the system of justice that affords protection in everything but in this matter of politics should be extended also to the cleaning up of party politics?

THE CLUCKING HEN

By Walt Mason



The old gray hen has thirteen chicks, and round the yard she claws and picks, and toils the whole day long; I lean upon the garden fence, and watch that hen of little sense, whose intellect is wrong. She is the most important hen that ever in the haunts of men a waste of effort made; she thinks if she should cease her toil the whole blamed universe would spoil, its institutions fade. Yet vain and trifling is her task; she might as profitably bask and loaf throughout the year; one incubator from the store would bring forth better chicks and more than fifty hens could rear. She ought to rest her scratching legs, get down to tacks and lay some eggs, which bring the valued bucks; but, in her vain perverted way, she says, "I'm derned if I will lay," and hands out foolish clucks. And many men are just the same; they play some idle, trifling game, and think they're sawing wood; they hate the work that's in demand, the jobs that count they cannot stand, and all their toil's no good.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

BRAVE WOMEN

Editor Review:

Dear Sir:

It is not alone the suffragettes who show courage and resource. There are other brave women as we have lately seen. The other day a French Cabinet Minister's wife avenged a newspaper insult to her husband by entering the sanctum of the libelist editor and shooting him dead.

The other night it was reported, a woman saved her husband from robbery and perhaps fatal results, by her pluck and presence of mind.

When men seek shelter behind women's petticoats, it is time they saw the fairness of giving women the right to vote.

Only one man has shown himself equal in courage to women. Mr. Burnham had the courage to stand up in the House, before a gallery filled with fashionably undressed ladies and criticize the faults of the sex which are neither as scant or as short as their skirts. It took a good deal of moral courage for a man that takes the line of duty that dooms him to everlasting bachelorhood.

Yours truly,

A Woman.

Birthdays Note

MONDAY, MARCH TWENTY-THIRD

One of the best stories told about Sir Donald Mann, whose sixty-first birthday occurs to-day, relates to the time when he was acting as foreman of a gang of lumberjacks in the back woods. One day some of the men came running up to him and told him that the cook, a big Irishman, had gone insane as the result of excessive drinking and was terrorising the camp. The foreman was equal to the emergency and displayed wonderful resource in dealing with the frantic cook. Walking up to him, "Bill," said he, "I don't want to fight you, for two against one isn't fair, is it?" "No," replied the cook, "but you and I can fight all right." "Yes, but see here," said the foreman cooly, "I'm a Mann by name and I'm also a man by nature; that makes two men; and it wouldn't be fair for me to tackle you, who are only a single man." The big Irishman was quite confused and sat down to think it over and cool off, while the triumphant foreman walked away.

Repeal Fight Again Delayed.

WASHINGTON, March 23. — The opening of the legislative battle for repeal of the tolls exemption provision of the Panama Canal Act was delayed until next week by prolonged consideration in the House Saturday of the rivers and harbors appropriation bill. Renewed skirmishing in the Senate served to reveal, however, the intensity of feeling in the controversy.

Administration leaders had planned to call up the Sims repeal bill in the House Saturday and present a rule to limit general debate to fifteen hours. It is not likely now that the bill can be taken up before to-morrow or that a vote can be had until late in the week.

A Practically Perfect Preparation.

Years of experience have enabled Mr. Fletcher to make Castoria a practically perfect preparation. These years of labor: the amount of money required to introduce its merits to the public: the investment in its manufacture, including the most modern machinery, mean a vast amount of invested capital. It follows that the greatest care is exercised in the selection of each ingredient, and the greatest attention is paid to every detail of its preparation. The result: The practically perfect preparation in the finished product; Fletcher's Castoria.

Herein lies the guarantee of the absolute safety in the use of Fletcher's Castoria for the baby, and the warning against irresponsible makers of imitations and counterfeits. The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher that is printed in black on the wrapper and red on the bottle is the mother's safeguard.

Tarzan of the Apes

by Edgar Rice Burroughs

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A. Munsey company.

The answer to his life's riddle lay in these tiny marks.

With tense nerves he sat leaning forward in his chair.

Presently the police officer spoke.

"Gentlemen," he said.

Both turned toward him.

"There is evidently a great deal at stake which must hinge to a greater or lesser extent upon the absolute correctness of this comparison. I therefore ask that you leave the entire matter in my hands until our expert returns."

"I had hoped to know at once," said D'Arnot. "M. Tarzan sails for America tomorrow."

"I will promise that you can cable him a report within two weeks," replied the officer. "What it will be I dare not say. There are resemblances, yet—well, we had better leave it for M. Leblanc to solve."

* * * * * * *

A taxicab drew up before an old fashioned residence upon the outskirts of Baltimore.

A man of about forty, well built and with strong, regular features, stepped out and paying the chauffeur dismissed him.

A moment later the passenger was entering the library of the old home.

"Ah, Mr. Canler!" exclaimed an old man, rising to greet him.

"Good evening, my dear professor," cried the man, extending a cordial hand.

"I have come this evening to speak with you about Jane. You know my aspirations, and you have been generous enough to approve my suit."

Professor Archimedes Q. Porter fidgeted in his armchair. The subject always made him uncomfortable. He could not understand why. Canler was a splendid match.

"But Jane," continued Canler, "I cannot understand her. She puts me off first on one ground and then another. I always have the feeling that she breathes a sigh of relief every time I bid her goodby."

"Tut tut," said Professor Porter. "Tut tut, Mr. Canler. Jane is a most obedient daughter. She will do precisely as I tell her."

"Then I can still count on your support?" asked Canler, a tone of relief marking his voice.

"Certainly, sir, certainly," exclaimed Professor Porter. "How could you doubt it?"

"There is young Clayton, you know," suggested Canler. "He has been hanging about for months. I don't know that Jane cares for him. But besides his title they say he has inherited a very considerable estate from his father. It might not be strange if he finally won her unless"—

Canler paused.

"Tut, tut, Mr. Canler. Unless—what?"

"Unless you see fit to request that Jane and I be married at once," said Canler slowly and distinctly.

"I have already suggested to Jane that it would be desirable," said Professor Porter sadly, "for we can no longer afford to keep up this house and live as her associations demand."

"What was her reply?"

"She said she was not ready to marry any one yet," replied Professor Porter; "that we could go and live upon the farm in northern Wisconsin which her mother left her. It is a little more than self-supporting. The tenants have always made a living from it, and have been able to send Jane a trifle each year. She is planning our going up there the first of the week. Philander and Mr. Clayton have already gone to get things in readiness for us."

"Clayton has gone there!" exclaimed Canler, visibly chagrined. "Why was not I told? I would gladly have gone and seen that every comfort was provided."

"Jane feels that we are already too much in your debt, Mr. Canler," said Professor Porter.

Canler was about to reply when the sound of footsteps came from the hall without, and Jane Porter entered the room.

"Oh, I beg your pardon!" she exclaimed, pausing on the threshold. "I thought you were alone, papa."

"It is only I, Jane," said Canler, who had risen. "Won't you come in and join the group? We were just speaking of you."

"Thank you," said Jane, entering and taking the chair Canler placed for her. "I only wanted to tell papa that Tobey has come down from the college to pack his books."

"I must see him at once," cried the professor. "Excuse me just a moment."

And the old man hastened from the room.

As soon as he was out of earshot Canler turned to Jane Porter.

"See here, Jane," he said bluntly, "how long is this thing to go on like this? You haven't refused to marry me, but you haven't promised either.

"I want to get the license tomorrow so that we can be married quietly before you leave for Wisconsin. I don't care for any fuss or feathers, and I'm sure you don't either."

The girl turned cold, but she held her head bravely.

"Your father wishes it, you know," added Canler.

"Yes; I know."

She spoke scarcely above a whisper.

"Do you realize that you are buying me, Mr. Canler," she asked finally and in a cold, level voice—"buying me for a few paltry dollars? Of course you do. And the hope of just such a contingency was in your mind when you loaned papa the money for that harebrained escapade, which but for a most mysterious circumstance would have been successful.

"But you, Mr. Canler, would have been the most surprised. You had no idea that the venture would succeed. You knew that without security you had a greater hold on the honor of the Porters than with it. You knew the one best way to force me to marry you without seeming to force me.

"You have never mentioned the loan. In any other man I should have thought that the prompting of a magnanimous and noble character. But you are deep.

"I know you better than you think I know you. I shall certainly marry you if there is no other way, but let us understand each other once and for all."

"You surprise me, Jane," said Canler. "I thought you had more self control, more pride. Of course you are right. I am buying you, and I knew that you knew it. But I thought you would prefer to pretend that it was otherwise. But have it your own way," he added lightly. "I am going to have you, and that is all that interests me."

Without a word the girl turned and left the room.

But Jane Porter was not married before she left with her father and Esmeralda for her little Wisconsin farm. As she coldly bade Robert Canler goodby while the train pulled out he called to her that he would join them in a week or two.

At their destination they were met by Clayton and Mr. Philander in a huge touring car belonging to the former and quickly whirled away through the dense northern woods toward the little farm which the girl had not visited before since childhood.

The farmhouse, which stood on a little elevation some hundred yards from the tenants' house, had undergone a complete transformation during the three weeks that Clayton and Mr. Philander had been there.

The former had imported a small army of carpenters and plasterers, plumbers and painters from a distant city, and what had been but a dilapidated shell was now a cozy little two story house filled with every modern convenience procurable in so short a time.

"I couldn't think of your living in the hole we found here," said Clayton to Jane when they were alone.

"Oh, Cecil, I wish I might repay you as you deserve—as you would wish," said Jane.

"Why can't you, Jane?"

"Because I love some one else."

"Canler?"

"No."

"But you are going to marry him. He told me as much before I left Baltimore."

The girl winced.

"Is it because of the money, Jane?"

She nodded.

"Then am I so much less desirable than Canler? I have money enough," he said bitterly.

"I don't love you, Cecil," she said, "but I respect you. If I must disgrace myself by such a bargain with any man I prefer that it be one I already despise. I should loathe the man to whom I sold myself without love, whosoever he might be.

"You will be happier," she concluded, "alone, with my respect and friendship, than with me and my contempt."

He did not press the matter further, but if ever a man had murder in his heart it was William Cecil Clayton, Lord Greystoke, when, a week later, Robert Canler drew up before the farmhouse in his purring six cylinder.

A week passed—a tense though uneventful week for all.

Canler was insistent that Jane marry him at once.

At length she gave in from sheer loathing of the continued and hateful importuning.

Points for Mothers

Playing Outdoors.

This is the time of year when the children need a great deal of watching, for they are apt to be tempted by fine days to plays that were meant for the days when the earth was warmer and the ground less damp than at present. They come in chilled, and if the chill is neglected there may be more serious trouble. Remember that the mental condition of a child has a great deal to do with his susceptibility to disease, and to scold or perhaps anger him will only make matters worse. Don't send him to bed crying, and, on the other hand, do not take too seriously his little ailments. "Let mother kiss it and make it well," the mother says to the smallest child, and generally the cure is effected. If mothers would only continue this cure after the child is a little older it might be better. Don't hurt the child's feelings by ignoring his little troubles, but make him feel that they are certain to be cured, and sometimes a dose of sugar and water or a bread pill has been known to work wonders. In the meantime do everything to make the child warm and clean and comfortable, and then if he must be scolded for getting wet or dirty let it be tomorrow, when he is not wet and dirty and in a good condition to take cold, if his mother will insist on depressing his spirits, among other things.

Play Hours.

There are other hours besides those spent in a schoolroom, other times when a child must be busy in some way, playing or just romping in an ecstasy of pure joy of living. Of course when possible out of doors is so much the best, but if windows are thrown wide open, space made for pillow fights, games of all sorts, laughing races, shouts of delight—can anything on earth be so worth while for the mother of live girls and boys? While children are gregarious and love companionship, they sometimes like to have some innate taste gratified. One may wish to copy the brilliant coloring of butterfly or blossom. Give him a box of paints and brush and he is happy. And so on through the list of likes and longings in the childish heart that every mother should study to gratify.

Cheerful Children.

Preach the gospel of cheerfulness early and late and don't encourage the morbid or emotional. Study your child and learn how to deal with him. It does no good to be unsympathetic with a child that is in a hysterical condition. Give him all your sympathy and let him feel safe and loved and cared for in your arms and then try to divert his attention from himself. Such a condition is generally a long time in approaching a crisis, and it is in the early stages that the mother can take charge with sweet cheerfulness. If treated sanely children so inclined will outgrow their morbidness, but if you attempt physical force with such a child you will probably make him sullen as well as morbid, and thrust in upon himself he will nurse his troubles and magnify your seeming indifference.

Lunches in Boxes.

There are many varieties among the lunch boxes sold in the shops. One is a flat, square box with a compartment containing a bottle of hot or cold liquids and a big compartment for sandwiches and other tidbits usual in the school lunch. Another is in the form of a camera, collapsible, so that it may be closed flat when it is not in use. There is a lunch box which looks like a music roll for small girls or larger ones. All these are covered with imitation or real leather. Then there are brown paper boxes of various sizes and shapes, strong and cheap, so that they can be replaced by new ones when they begin to look soiled or worn.

Use For Baby's "Pen."

After the baby has outgrown the use of the baby "pen" it can be used to keep a small portable heater out of reach of the baby or any older children. An oil stove that is set in the middle of one of these pens is comparatively safe. For a stationary coal stove that is close to a wall, cut one side of the pen away and then the other three sides can be put around the stove when needed. The children cannot then get at the fire.

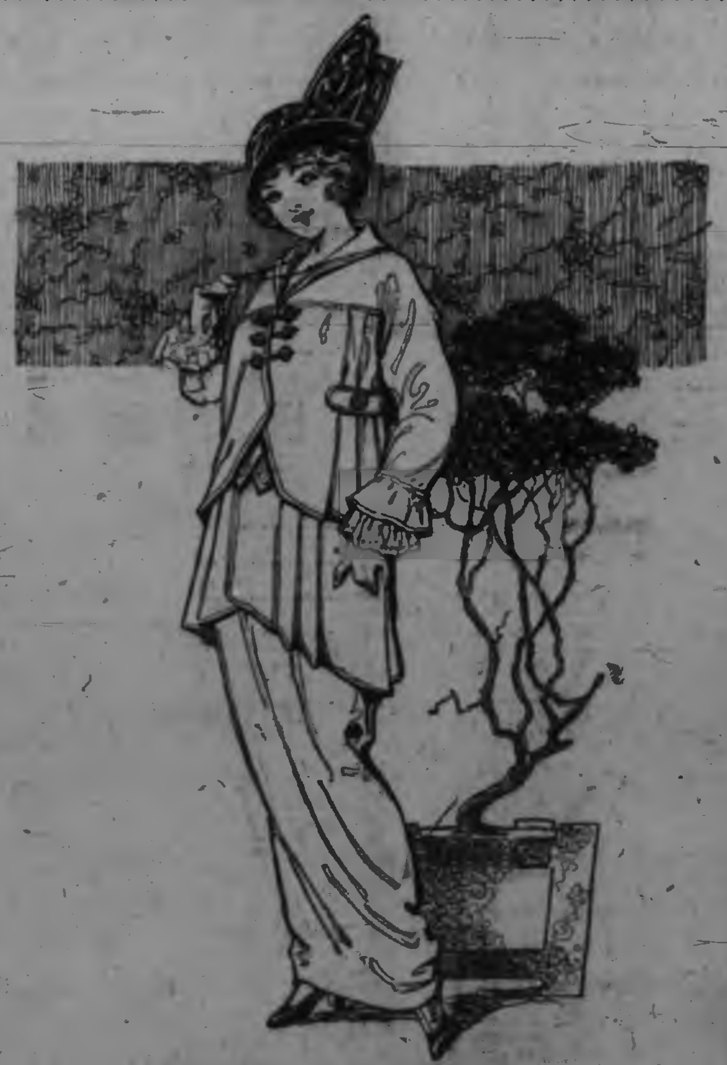
Skipping Rope Exercises.

Skipping with a rope as young girls use it is essentially a form of dancing and lays a useful foundation for later developments which generally eventuate in the acquisition of an elegant ballroom style. Skipping rope days give the little girl her first steps in elasticity and favor the acquisition of a sinuosity and grace of movement that are by no means the least of her attractions in later life.

Convenient Pencil Sharpeners.

Provide each child with a pencil sharpener for school use. The best are the kind that screw firmly to the edge of a table. Many schools are equipped with these. The individual sharpeners that can be carried about in the pocket or bag are not always satisfactory. They have a way of becoming dulled in a very short time and they are too cheap to be worth sharpening.

THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION



SLOPPINESS IN PROPER STYLE.

The newest modes are "sloppy" in effect, loose and suggesting a figure line only in the most uncorseted way. Hence the modishness of this afternoon suit of cactus green preeno, a mohair material so woven with wool that it has the desired softness and drapability. The smart high belt line emphasizes the flare of the coat and the skirt peplum; while in the high back and the low front of the collar and the long pointed vest there is ultra style.

JAPAN IS MISTRUSTED

New Zealand Premier Says Defence by Japs is Unsatisfactory

LONDON, March 23.—(C.A.P. Cable)—Winston Churchill's utterances regarding naval defence in the Pacific continues to excite attention. Speaking Saturday at Greymouth, Premier Massey of New Zealand said Churchill's statement that the Anglo-Japanese alliance had secured the safety of Australia and New Zealand did not appeal to him. He did not want to do Churchill an injustice, but if the latter meant that the people of Australia and New Zealand were to be satisfied with the protection of Japanese ships and sailors then he was very much mistaken.

Premier Massey said he did not for one moment believe that the Anglo-Japanese alliance had secured the safety either of Australia or New Zealand. The Government intended to ask Parliament at the earliest possible moment to authorize the building of a cruiser of the Bristol class to cost $2,000,000. He believed that the best policy for the Dominion was to prepare its own ships. New Zealand must look forward to the time when a British navy in the Pacific would be ready to cope with any foe that came along.

Victim of Vendetta.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 23.—Raffaelo Argo, a wealthy member of the foreign colony here, was found dead Saturday on the front verandah of his house, with two bullets in his back. The police say Argo was the second victim of the vendetta declared four years ago, when an Indian was killed in Argo's restaurant, the other having been Albert Dent, a banker, who was shot down in the street last summer.

Fatal Fire at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 23.—William Clemmings, 72 years of age, was burned to death and a dozen other lodgers barely escaped by jumping into firemen's nets Saturday when fire destroyed the Kansas City Mission. Mrs. Lizzie Kirck dropped her four-year-old son into a net, then jumped herself and escaped. Several men and women were carried down ladders, almost suffocated.

Imitated Eliza On the Ice.

KINGSTON, March 23. — Patrick O'Shay, aged 70, New York, arrested for vagrancy, was turned back by the immigration authorities at Alex Point, Alexandria, but with his wife, aged 55, he walked to Cape Vincent and then came over on the ice to Kingston in order to fool officials. The couple will be deported.

Kingston's New Fair Ground.

KINGSTON, March 23. — Ald. R. D. Sutherland has secured an option on the Kingston driving park and will propose that the city take up the option and convert the park into a fair ground and sell the present fair grounds to the highest bidder.

Provision For Lepers.

LONDON, March 23. — The late Lord Strathcona, by a codicil to his will, left $25,000 to John Burns, to provide a home for lepers in the United Kingdom.

CHINESE BANDITS ARE BUSY

ROBBERY, ARSON AND MASSACRE ARE FREQUENT IN INTERIOR

MANY OUTRAGES

PEKIN, March 23. — Outrages by brigands in Central China are assuming alarming proportions. Several bands associated with the noted outlaw White Wolf are robbing the people and burning their property. The latest exploit of the bandits was the massacre of 300 townsfolk, who were resisting their entrance into an important market town close to Siang Yang Fu, Province of Hupeh. Seven-tenths of the town was burned, and the population ruined financially. On the occasion of the recent sacking of King Tzek Wan, Province of Honan, the local troops made no effort to resist the brigands. The troops were commanded by a general, formerly a noted brigand chief, who was given his army appointment during the recent revolution.

The measures of the Government to deal with the situation are totally inadequate and there is every prospect of the development of brigandage to dimensions beyond its control.

Arrested For Auto Thefts.

TORONTO, March 23.—Three automobile thieves, ranging in years from 18 to 20, were arrested at midnight last evening, two by officer 194 and one by Acting Detective Nursey. The first two arrested confessed to having committed about a dozen of the recent motor car thefts perpetrated about the down-town theatres.

New Pacific Cable Director.

LONDON, March 23. — Sir Henry Babington Smith has been elected a member of the Pacific cable board in succession to Sir Henry Primrose, resigned.

Spreading Rail Wrecks Train.

TORONTO, March 23.—Traveling at a speed of 40 miles an hour the Canadian Northern Napanee train, No. 9, jumped the rails at a point between Cherry Wood Junction and Greenburg, about 25 miles east of Toronto, on Saturday night. The diner and one of the passenger coaches plunged down a 15-foot embankment to the north of the tracks, while the baggage car and the two other coaches which composed the train, were thrown from the rails south of the tracks. Several persons were slightly injured.

Fell Beneath Engine.

HAMILTON, March 23.—James H. Bottomley, 168 Rosslyn avenue, who is employed at the east end plant of the Steel Company of Canada, was instantly killed at 12.20 this morning, while working at the plant. It is thought that Bottomley slipped while turning the switch to allow an engine to go into the yards and fell under the wheels.

the Department will give a grant of not more than thirty dollars to any school in which agriculture is taught providing the trustees spend thirty dollars on agriculture material but in no case will the government give a larger grant than the trustees spend on that subject. If a school board spends $12 it will receive a grant of $12, if it spends $20 it will receive a grant of $20. Thus without the trustees spend more than $30 the study of agriculture will not cost them a cent.

There are cases on record where schools entitled to a grant of $30 only spent $4 and therefore only received a grant of $4.

How can teachers help in solving this problem? They can teach agriculture and thus arouse interest and keep the children on the farm.

First a teacher must find out what the people of school section are interested in. If they are interested in potatoes the teacher will start talking about the potato in school. Will get if possible one farmer in the section who is a good potato grower to come in the school and teach the children a lesson on how he grows potatoes. The teacher may teach the girls how to make potato salad and such dishes but all this is agriculture. When spring comes the teacher should send to a reliable Canadian seed company for a bushel of tested potatoes. Then give each child two or three pounds of these to plant and care for in the best way he knows of at home. The teacher should visit these potato plots to encourage the children and give advise when possible.

She will have the children describe their method of planting and caring for their plots for composition work.

When autumn comes and the potatoes are dug she will teach the children which potatoes are best. Calculate the number of pounds gained in the growing of the potatoes. Measure the plot on which they grew and find out the yield per acre and several other interesting and useful questions in arithmetic.

The pupils will save their best potatoes, not the biggest but the best shaped ones to plant next year.

The next year the people of the section will be interested and if the teacher is capable she should be able to have a school garden or a small plot to test the different varieties of potatoes grown in the section and find out which is the est for that locality and thus might be able to save the section hundreds or even thousands of dollars.

The potatoes which the pupils saved will be planted at home again one potato in each hill and each hill numbered. When they are dug they will be spread separately on the ground and the hills that have the greatest number of prize potatoes will be saved in separate bags and kept till the next year. By this process in a few years the children will have a variety of potato which is the best possible for that locality.

The same thing can be done with wheat, peas, beans or any other grain. Or the teacher can teach them how to grow mangel or carrot seed. There are hundreds of methods one can use to study agriculture.

Poultry offers a large range of study and many a boy has been kept on the farm through his interest in poultry. If a boy has hens he must feed them and must grow grain and if he grows grain he must know how to grow it and the best kinds of grain thus it widens out till he is a successful farmer.

Stock is another very interesting study in agriculture. The teacher can have anyone who is a stock breeder come to the school and give a lecture on the good points of his cows, how he feeds them and what he gains. If there is a stock farm near the school the teacher might take a half day and visit is and most breeders would take a pleasure in showing their barns and stables and explaining the uses of certain arrangements and how to keep their cattle healthy.

There is a great work to be done if we are to save Canada from herself. If the rural population continues she canont stand the strain and the greatest minds of the world say education is the only way to solve the problem. Denmark by her system of education has risen in fifty years from the poorest to the richest nation in Europe. And you as teachers can by teaching the people to play, get healthful and interesting recreation and agriculture can do much to turn the tide and save the country."

HAVELOCK

Havelock, March 23.—Coroner Dr. Kindred, of Havelock, informed The Review to-day that up to the present time no further developments had been reached in the supposed Bulgarian murder case in Havelock.

Dr. Kindred's opinion of the affair is that Bulgarian was the victim of foul play and that the body was deposited in the pond above the C. P. R. dam.

Suspicion points to the fellow-country man of the missing man, who, it is said, decamped with a large amount of money.

CLEVER PRESENTATION OF PLAY AT ENNISMORE

Kathleen Mavourneen is Seen by Crowded House and Will be Repeated

As is customary, the people of the little green isle, on the shore of Chemong Lake, celebrated the feast of their Patron Saint in a manner both befitting and honorable.

Two masses were celebrated, the first at 7 o'clock by the pastor, and the second at 9 o'clock by Rev. Father Cote, of the Cathedral staff. The last was a high mass, at the close of which Father Cote delivered a most eloquent, instructive and touching sermon on Ireland's Patron Saint, and the fidelity of Ireland's sons and daughters in their attachment to the See of Peter, their never failing love for the dear isle of the shamrock, their respect and reverence for God's annointed ministers and their world-renowned charity generosity and brotherly love. He dwelt at considerable length on the remarkable purity of our Irish girl in every quarter of the world, and closed an excellent discourse, to which the congregation listened with most rapt attention, by appealing to the people of Ennismore to lead lives of sobriety at all times, and to encourage their children to persevere in the noble work of Higher Education. At both masses, large numbers received Holy Communion At the close of the sermon, the total abstinence pledge was given to a large number o fthe men of the parish, after which the election of officers for the year 1914 took place

The election, which was keenl contested, resulted as follows:

President—Daniel Crough.
Vice-President—Jos. Killen.
Secretary—Peter Galvin.
Treasurer—John Gannon.
Committee—Eugene Murphy, Tho Flood, J. K. Galvin, P. J. Scollard W. J. Scollard, and Jas. Mahoney.

In the election for president, Daniel Crough and Jas. Killen wer ties, but as Mr. Crough held the position last year, rather than upse the government, Mr. Killen waive his claim to the president's chair The officers of this year, as in th past, are good, solid, reliable men end St. Martin's T. A. S. had neve better prospects for a successfu year.

In the afternoon Kathleen Mavourneen was presented by way o matinee in order that all the schoo children and any old people of the parish who would not care to be ou after nightfall, might have a chanc of hearing this beautiful Irish drama. That the children of the different schools had an intelligent understanding of the plot of incident of the play, was evidenced nex day, when the teachers asked thei third and fourth classes to give synopsis of the Irish drama as the had seen and heard it the day before. Many of these composition were truly remarkable, an showe how closely and carefully the different parts were followed, and hov appreciative these little childre are of those who took their part well.

A Popular Presentation.

In the evening the play was agai presented, but this time to an audience all too large for the spaciou hall. The surrounding country wa represented—and seats were out o the question. An hour before th curtain went up, not a seat was t be had, but all who came got in, an sat or stood where best they could Notwithstanding the immense crowd packed in as they were, the mos perfect order prevailed until the curtain went down for the last time a 10.30 p.m.

The story of the Irish drema ha already appeared in the columns o this journal, and need not be her repeated. The cast of character was as follows:

Bernard Cavanagh—Jas. Guiry.
David O'Connor—Ed. O'Donoghue.
Father O'Cassidy—P. J. Scollard.
Terence O'Moore—Peter Galvin.
Bill Button Cap—Fergus Crowley.
Captain Clearfield—Henry Murphy.
Black Rody—David Scollard.
Red Barney—Ronald Galvin.
Dosby Doyle—John Young.
Mr. McCubban—Eard Hickson.
Denis—Stafford Killen.
Turnkey—Ed. O'Donoghue.
Kathleen O'Connor—Agnes Scollard.
Meg Marslogh—Lyde Killen.
Kitty O'Laverty—Vivian Galvin.
Miss Dorothy Kavanagh—Mary C. Sullivan.

The orchestra for tho evening was under the management of Mr. J. K. Galvin, assisted by Messrs. John Flood, Joseph O'Connor, Clayton Telford, and Patrick Cadigan. Mrs. John P. Flood, Mary Ann Crough, presided at the piano. Mrs. Clayton Telford and Mrs. John O'Donoghue.

The following specialties were introduced between the acts, and Rev. P. J. Galvin, of Peterborough, acted as chairman.

Song—Ring me up in Heaven, please, Central. Sammie Killen.
Song—Daddy, Ethel Kennedy.
Song—The lass I loved in Killarney, Lottie O'Donoghue.
Song—They are proud of the Irish now, J. K. Galvin.
Song—A little bit of Green, Mrs. John O'Donoghue.
Song—Son of an Irishman, Harold Killen.
Quintet—Ship Ahoy, Clayton Telford, Will Telford, Jas. Conway, Fred Joppling, and Jas. Cullen.
Song—They have won every nation's battles but their own. Clayton Telford.
Quintet—Good-bye, boys, Tel- Bros., Fred Joppling: Jas. Conway, Jas. Cullen.
Song—They have won every nation's battles but their own. Clayton Telford.

Will be Repeated.

The play was a great success,—a success in every respect, and at the solicitation of many unavoidably absent, and many anxiously present, the actors, have kindly consented to reproduce the play Easter Monday night. The burden of the play fell on the shoulders of three, Agnes Scollard, as Kathleen Mavourneen, Peter Galvin, as Terence O'Moore, and Jas. Guiry, as Bernard Kavanagh, and it is needless to say that they proved themselves quite able for their work, and won golden opinions from all present. Agnes Scollard was a perfect Kathleen, the bright, cheerful Irish colleen, led to forsake her true lover, Terence, by flattery, false promises, and what most young girls sigh for, rich dresses and glittering jewels. She realizes her mistake when she finds herself married to a man who does not love her, and whom she has learned to hate. In the third act the whole machinery, which the hateful squire has called into action to rid himself of this accursed marriage, is placed ividly before us, the foul murderers, the lonely scene, the mountain rove, the villainous squire, and the roken-hearted girl, once bright and ovial. The scene is thrilling.

Gloomy gorges, fantastic peaks, nidnight shrieks, rise up before us, nd lend terror to the impending nurder. But Terence is on hand—nd amidst confusion worse conounded, slays the murderers, rescues Kathleen, sends the squire to is just reward—and is led off a risoner by the soldiers.

The audience is held spellbound nd the vociferous applause which erence receives as he gasps for reath at the feet of his fainting weetheart, shows what doubts and ears and anxieties alternately wayed the hearts and filled the ninds of the audience.

The prison scene in Act IV. is nost pathetic, and the painful separation between Terence and Kathleen, as the former is led away to le an infamous death upon the gibet, called into requisition numerous andkerchiefs, and half-subdued, tifled sobs, showed how finished as the work of the two clever acors. Both Agnes Scollard and eter Galvin deserve all kinds of raise for the excellent manner in hich they took their respective arts.

The difficult part of the villainous quire fell to the lot of James Juiry, and was handled in such lever style as to render him an object of intense hatred by the large udience.. In look, word and action e played the part, and played it aultlessly. His sister Dorothy's haracter, proud, stately and overearing, was well portrayed by the raceful acting of Mary C. Sullivan.

As Kathleen's father, Ed. O'Donghue the plain, honest farmer, called forth rounds of applause, and e was equally successful in Act II., as Captain of the Soldiers, and n Act IV. as the Turnkey. We hope o see more of Edward in future lays, as he has a true conception f what is required of him in any art.

The grave-diggers, led by Black Roddy, the prince of scoundrels, hough in daily life the most honest nd unassuming of young men, were ruly heartless and devoid of conscience. The mountain scene, formd one of the most picturesque and hrilling portions of the whole play, nd David Scollard, John Young, nd Ronald Galvin, though appearng on the stage for the first time, lid ample justice to their difficult nd rather repulsive parts.

Fergus Crowley as Bill Button and Vivian Galvin as Kitty, kept the audience in uproar for fully fifteen ninutes. Kitty as maid to Mrs. Bernard Kavanagh was perfect in very respect, and her English sweetheart, Bill Button, was properly sat upon, as his dirty face and ragged lothes richly deserved.

Lyde Killen made an excellent Meg Marslogh, a roving gipsy. Henry Murphy as Clearfield did some very lever acting. Earl Hickson, as gaoler, and Staff Killen as Kathleen's general servant, were quite qual to their tasks.

Last, but by no means least, P. J. Scollard, as Father O'Cassidy, was grace, ease and dignity combined. What a valuable acquisition was lost o the church the day P. J. decided o lead the life of a merchant. How racefully the red robes of a cardinal would lie on the expansive shoulders of our genial postmaster.

The whole entertainment was of a high order and thoroughly enjoyed. The Bridgenorth quintette were well received and Mrs. Clayton Telford had to return to the piano no less than four times to play encores for these highly entertaining young men. Mrs. Clayton Telford's songs were most appropriate and well sung. Between the acts the orchestra rendered most acceptably the popular Irish airs.

Little Sammie Killen, a child of 5 years, brought down the house when he sang in clear, dulcet tones, "Ring me up Heaven, please Central."

An important feature of the evening's performance were addresses delivered by the chairman, Rev. P. J. Galvin, and Rev. Fergus O'Brien, P.P. of Lakefield.

Both reverend gentlemen spoke most enthusiastically of their appreciation of the whole evening's entertainment, the clever acting, the beautiful singing, and the grand order that prevailed throughout. In the audience were noticed many from Peterborough, Emily, Bridgenorth, Young's Point and Lakefield.

The performance was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem by the actors.

Mr. Fred. L. Roy, Peterborough's popular photographer, had his man on the ground, and a flashlight was taken of the actors and members of the orchestra.

Laid at Rest

The funeral of thel ate Mr. Henry Head took place Saturday afternoon from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Petty, John Street, to the Little Lake Cemetery, and was very largely attended. Rev. Mr. Keith officiated.

CASTRO IN TRINIDAD.

Ex-Dictator of Venezuela is Discovered at Port of Spain.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, March 23.—Gen. Cipriano Castor, former dictator of Venezuela, whose whereabouts had been unknown for several months, was discovered here in the course of Saturday night.

A party of detectives late Friday evening raided an hotel inhabited almost solely by Venezuelans, and found there 40,000 rounds of ammunition and a few revolvers.

This discovery led to a further raid: The police proceeded to a house which had been occupied for several months by Gen. Carmelo Castro, a brother of the former President, and, armed with a search warrant, went over the place. Among the effects of the occupants they found one revolver and a few cartridges.

On entering one of the rooms, however, they made a much more important discovery, for they found it occupied by Gen. Cipriano Castro himself.

Earthquake Recorded.

CLEVELAND, O., March 23.—Earthquake shocks which continued from 12.26 a.m. until 7 a.m. were recorded by the seismograph at St. Ignatius College yesterday. Rev. Odenbach, the curator, said that the quake was the longest be has recorded in many years. The maximum wave, coming at 6.39 a.m., lasted 85 seconds, and was the longest in his experience. It was his opinion that the point of origin was in the far east, possibly China.

Realty Dealer Missing.

TORONTO, March 23.—A. J. Maclean, aged 23, a real estate dealer living in Manilla, Ont., has been missing from the King Edward Hotel since the day of the Woodbine Hotel fire, and it is now feared that he also may have lost his life.

According to the management of the King Edward, Maclean registered there on Monday evening; he has been a transient for a year or more, and has never been known to stay away from the hotel so long.

To Stop Training Aviators.

BERLIN, March 23.—The training of aviators was suspended Saturday by the executive of the National Aviation Subscription. It resolved that the funds could be better used in giving prizes for the encouragement of record-making, as Germany, in its opinion, already was adequately supplied with competent aviators.

Naughty Paris To Reform.

PARIS, March 23.—The Paris police yesterday began the introduction of a scheme of moral reform in the public resorts of the city. Celestin Hennion, the prefect of police, summoned the proprietors of all the music and dance halls and concert cafes to the prefecture where he informed them that exhibitions of undraped performers would in future not be tolerated. It is understood that this regulation will not apply to theatres on the ground that what might otherwise be regarded as indecency is counteracted by the artistic value of the productions.

CREPEAU ENTERS ACTION.

Montreal Civic Official Seeks $25,000 Damages For Libel.

MONTREAL, March 23.—A suit has been entered in the Superior Court at the instance of Jules Crepeau, second assistant city clerk of Montreal, who claims $25,000 for libel against D. Lorne McGibbon, Edward Beck, Louis Joseph Tarte and La Patrie Publication Company.

The plaintiff takes exception to an article which appeared in the first issue of Beck's Weekly, and which alleged that Crepeau had taken bribes.

In an interview Saturday Mr. Crepeau, speaking of the writ, said:

"These people set a fine trap for me, but it has sprung on themselves, and they will find it a strong trap—but for them, not for me. It will hold them tight. Look out for next week; you are going to see some fun."

"Some Invisible Hand."

ST. PETERSBURG, March 23.—The charges brought against the Jew Pashkoff and his assistant, Guthartz in connection with the alleged ritual murder case at Fastoff are evidently crumbling. The men have been released on bail to the amount of $2,500 and $500 respectively.

Notwithstanding the fact that all the evidence adduced hitherto tends to destroy the theory of ritual murder, the black hundred continues to fulminate against the Jews. A Kieff journal says: "To-day it is Yushinsky, to-morrow it will be Pashkoff. Some invisible hand is making our children tremble."

Hydro For Embro.

ST. MARY'S, March 23.—It has been ascertained that Embro can obtain 50 horsepower of Niagara power for $52.80 per horsepower, or 100 horsepower for $39.80, according to word received from the Hydro-Electric Commission. The council will hold a special session to deal with the matter.

Correcting Knockknee.

In cases of knockknee in young children there is weakness of the ligaments and muscles connected with the knee joint. To correct this give the child two baths a day, with sea salt in the water. After the baths massage the knees for ten minutes with a little cocoanut oil. He should take at least two pints of milk per day. Mix it in this way: Milk, twelve tablespoonfuls water, two tablespoonfuls; limewater, one tablespoonful; cream, one and a half teaspoonfuls; sugar of milk, one teaspoonful. This makes eight ounces. The limewater will strengthen the bone. Give the little boy as much fresh air, light and sunshine as he can possibly get.

"JOE" JEANNETTE

Paris, March 23.—Joe Jeannette, the American negro heavyweight pugilist, won the decision over Georges Carpentier, the French champion, on points in a fifteen-round bout Saturday night. The contest took place at Luna Park, which was crowded.

Jeannette had the advantage at the start of the contest, and in the early rounds, which were marked by continuous infighting. Carpentier put up a fine defence, and several rounds ended in his favor.

The American, who had a trifle more weight than his opponent, landed heavily a number of times, his blows staggering the Frenchman, and as it appeared that Jeannette had been the more aggressive the referee awarded him the decision.

PETERBORO WRESTLERS DID WELL IN BOUTS HELD AT TORONTO

Against Experienced Matmen, Local Boys Were Not thrown But Lost on Points to Men Who Won Out in Finals

The three Peterboro wrestlers, members of the Y.M.C.A. wrestling class, who went to Toronto on Saturday evening to compete in the Toronto City Championships brought back only one prize but distinguished themselves nevertheless. In spite of the fact that they were competing against experienced wrestlers, a number of whom had been wrestling for from five to ten years, and who have competed in a number of tournaments only recently, none of the Peterboro wrestlers were thrown, losing their outs on points in each case. In two cases the men who defeated them were the winners in the finals.

The Peterborough wrestlers were Harold Lees, who took part in the 115 lb. class, H. Hartikanen, who took part in the 125 lb. class and Will Scott, who competed in the 145 lb. class. Two weeks and a half ago the local Association received an invitation from the Central Y.M.C.A. to send competitors to compete in the Toronto championships. This gave the Peterboro men very little chance to get ready. None of them had had a chance to take part in any tournament and therefore they lacked experience, whereas there have been several tournaments lately in Toronto, with the result that the Toronto wrestlers were all experienced men and in the pink of condition.

In the 115 lb. class, Lees competed against W. Clay of the West End Y.M.C.A. Clay is almost perfectly developed physically, and has been wrestling for about ten years, during which time he has won many important bouts. On Saturday night he won the 105 lb. class and then took part in the 115 lb. class, where he met Lees. Lees was as quick and stronger than Clay, but was not in as good condition and lacked a little in science. In spite of this, Lees had Clay in difficulties on a couple of occasions, and once dropped him on his shoulders, but off the mat, so the fall was not allowed. Clay's science enabled him to get two or three chancery and cross buttock holds on Lees, none of which was he able to convert into a fall. At the end of 6 minutes of as good wrestling as was seen during the night, Clay got the decision on points, there being no fall. With a little more training and time to develop science, Lees should be able to defeat Clay in another bout. Clay got into the finals where he lost on points to R. Hood of the Centrals, whom he had defeated on previous occasions.

In the 125 lb. class Hartikanen met A. Durnan of the Centrals, the final winner. Durnan has been wrestling for years and was possibly the best scienced man who competed on Saturday night in any of the classes. He had a peculiar scissor hold from the rear which he got on Hartikanen near the start and which Hartikanen was unable to break away from. Durnan is expert with this hold, and won the final bout with it. Hartikanen made a splendid showing. He was not in serious danger of being thrown at any stage of the bout, but lost on points, because he was unable to shake off his man. The fact that he was able to stay the limit without being thrown in view of his lack of experience, was a most creditable showing.

In the 145 lb. class there were six entries, among them some of the best known wrestlers in Toronto. These included A. Gibson, of the Centrals, a previous city championship holder, and Adams, a crack wrestler from the West End Y.M.C.A., a winner of sevreal open turnaments. In his first bout Scott, from Peterborough, met Harpley, of the Centrals. Scott showed up awkwardly at first, but had the science, and when he came to grips was able to beat his man decisively on points. In the semi-finals he met Adams. Scott was the aggressor for a short period at the first of the bout, but Adams broke out and obtained a neck and arm hold which he should have quickly converted into a fall, but Scott held him off with a leg-lock, and lasted out the six minutes without a fall. The fact that Scott had never wrestled outside of the Peterborough Y. M. C. A. before, with very little training was able to hold off a crack wrestler like Adams for six minutes was a great credit to him. Scott won a medal for getting into the semi-finals. He lost to Adams on points. Adams later won the final. The showing made by the three Peterborough wrestlers was sufficiently creditable to ensure wrestling receiving quite a boom locally.

BASEBALL

The chances are that Manager Frank Shaughnessy will give Joe McManus another trial with the Senators. The big haymaker was popular with the maroons in 1912, and Shag thinks he could handle him successfully. The Durham club is anxious to send him north, and McManus claims he enjoys better health when up this way. He claims to have fully recovered from his typhoid fever, and is desirous of again playing for Ottawa. He would be a whirlwind with strict adherence to training rules.—Ottawa Citizen.

The champion Ottawas will wear natty white uniforms when at home this season. The suit will be decked by a dark stripe, and the socks and caps will be maroon as usual. The only additional decorations will be a diamond on the sleeve, in which will be the letter "O." Grey uniforms have been ordered for road use. New Mackinaws will also be purchased, and, as usual, the Senators will be the Breau Brumels of the Canadian.

Joe Lill writes that he is training steadily at Chicago. He has been doing indoor work all winter. Lill believes that he can make good. All he lacks is control. Give McManus the speed of Lill, and there would be no keeping him out of the majors.

It is doubtful if there will be more than one of the 1912 champions when Mayor McVelty pitches the first ball at Lansdowne Park this summer. The departure of Red Robertson and the probable disposal of Kubat leaves Frank Dolan as the only survivor. It was the survival of the fittest, and Dolan stuck. He is acting as chief lieutenant for Manager Shaughnessy in the annual round-up of players.

Much is expected from Petie Powers this summer. The Cleveland youngster was not in the best of health last season, but he showed great improvement toward the finish. He, too, is already training. Petie is one of Napoleon Lajoie's proteges and promises to be a sensation of the 1914 campaign.

Frank Bowerman, the old Giant catcher, who worked for a short time in the Canadian League, but who retired rather hurriedly to answer the call of "back to the land," has rented his 100 acres and is out seeking a berth as an umpire.

Hamilton is keen on Davey Rowan. It wouldn't at all surprise us to see him on their roster.

Jack White tore off something funny here one day last summer when he made a burlesque out of the last game of a Saturday afternoon double header. It has had it's result. You couldn't find him now with a telescope.

According to recent statements of certain big league moguls, John McGraw is the highest salaried manager and Tris Speaker, Johnny Evers, and Ed. Sweeney are the highest salaried players. If this is true, Ty Cobb must have to buy a ticket to get through the gate.

Larry Gilbert, the outfielder who is being given a trial by the Boston Braves, has a slight limp, caused by one leg being shorter than the other. Curiously enough, this doesn't seem to interfere with his work in the field.

It is said that Ray Caldwell, the Yankee twirler, is in bad with Manager Chance. Reports from Houston are to the effect that Ray fell off the wagon and was set back fifty bones on the way of a fine.

Now that he has signed Mike Doolan, Manager Otto Knabe, of the Baltimore Federals, would give his shirt to land Hans Lobert. All three played together with the Phillies for several years.

Larry Chappell, $18,000 outfielder of the Chicago White Sox, who is suffering from blood-poisoning, is really in a serious condition, Manager Callahan said to-day, after a visit to the hospital, and may lose his leg. Chappell broke in a new pair of shoes in San Francisco exhibition series and rubbed the skin off his left foot.

The champion Athletics will play in Brantford, Tuesday, August 11.

Garland ("Chief") Nevitt, the Delaware Indian catcher, who has just been sold to St. Thomas, in the Canadian League, promises to be a very active contender for a regular place on the team. He has been in constant athletic training throughout the winter in a physical education school operated in connection with the Battle Creek sanatorium. In this way he is enabled to begin the playing season in excellent physical condition.

Nevitt is 23 years old, is a full-blooded Delaware Indian, born in Oklahoma and educated at the Haskell Indian school, where he was a close friend of Jim Thorpe, the renowned Indian player now with the New York Giants.

Nevitt's first professional engagement was with Battle Creek, where he has played for three years, being the catching mainstay during the time.

He is nimble-witted, very quick, agile, holds runners close to the bags, and is cool in the crisis. He hits either right or left handed, and is rated as a god batsman at all times.

The Indian's chief claim to distinction is that he is the only vegetarian ball player under contract. Not only does he abstain from meats, but refuses coffee and all stimulants. He also forgoes tobacco in all its forms.

CURLING

The cold snap has allowed the curlers to play a little longer. The locals are playing several scratch matches, and are experimenting on a new form of schedule, which, if it proves a success, will be used next season.

LONDON TRADES CHUBBY COOSE

London March 24.—Manager Reisling of the London team h. traded Chubby Coose, the forme Brantford pitcher, who was traded to London for Rube Deneau, to the Saginaw club for Second Baseman Snyder. The deal was put through at the first of the week.

Snyder is looked upon as one of the best second basemen in the South Michigan and he will make Eddie Linneborne step for his job. A couple of other players may figure in the deal, although it has not been given out as yet.

FRANK CHANCE'S "DON'TS"

"To any boy who wants to become a better ball player, I want to say: DON'T:—

"Bat cross handed.

"Get the swelled head.

"Quit trying until the last man is out.

"Slide head first.

"Throw your hardest until you are warmed up and never throw your hardest unless you have to. It is just as well to throw a man out by three feet as to throw him out fifteen feet.

"Sulk and quarrel with the umpire.

"Forget that baseball, like anything else that is worth doing at all, is worth doing well."

BASKETBALL

The City Basketball League was inaugurated on Saturday evening in appropriate manner when the P. A. C. five defeated the "Y" Leaders 51 to 42 in a fast and clean game of basketball.

The teams were:

P.A.C.—Forwards, Long and Smith; centre, W. Flowers; defence, Bartlett and Darling.

Leaders—Forwards, Rew and A. Flowers; centre, Harper; defence, Cunningham and Brown.

Referee—Physical Director J. J. Thompson.

The opening game, which was preceded by the T.C.S. vs. P.C.I. battle, furnished some brilliant work, when the local P.C.I. won 31 to 27.

Both teams opened with a fast clip, but the locals showed more team work The work of Peever, the tall fast defence player for the winners, was prominent.

Disinterested Advice.

A hesitating lover in New York is seeking the spirit of his dead wife through a trusty medium to ask her advice about marrying again.

He has picked out a lady with money and some other charms who looks willing, but he doesn't care to tie himself up without getting the O. K. of an expert.

What is the chance for him to get disinterested advice?

If spirits were human she would tell him to go ahead if she thought the new wife would make him less happy than he was with his first wife. If she thought he would be happier she might hesitate and tell him to do some more looking around.

Frank About It.

"Do you know what I want?"

"No."

"Well, I want you to marry me."

"You do?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"Well, isn't your father a millionaire?"

Confirmed Liar.

"Does that fellow always lie?"

"Not always."

"When can you depend upon him?"

"Not at all. His truth telling is a mere matter of accident. It is said to happen occasionally, you know."

Matter of Time.

"The good die young."

"That is not the way to put it."

"Well, how?"

"The young die good."

VILLA WINS FIRST FIGHT IN THE SIEGE OF TORREON

Federal Loss in the Engagement is Reported at 106 Killed

CONSTITUTIONALIST HOSPITAL BASE, Bermejillo, Durango, Mexico, March 23.—The rebel net about Torreon and vicinity was drawn closer Saturday, and Gen. Herrara fought the most important engagement of the advance near Hacienda Santa Clara, 22 miles north of Torreon. In the engagement, 106 Federals were killed, according to report. The rebel loss is reported as slight, three killed and seven wounded.

The fight took place over possession of a spot on the banks of the big Tlahualilo irrigation ditch, where Herrera wished to throw a bridge and the construction of which he began immediately on retirement of the enemy, whose numbers he estimated at 400.

At other points the Federal advance guards retreated precipitately, burning and wrecking as they went. At Noe, the small railroad shops were burned.

Gen. Villa was elated beyond measure, and when he took possession of a telephone wire which was working into the city of Torreon, he lost no time in calling up the office of the Federal commander, Gen. Refugio Velasco. An officer of the latter's staff answered the call.

"I am coming to have supper with you," Gen. Villa began.

"Who are you," inquired the Federal officer politely.

"I am an hombre called Francisco Villa," replied the chieftain.

"Well, come whenever you are ready," came the answer.

Villa talked from this city which he took at a gallop without resistance. His scouts brought word that the Federal had made a poor job of wrecking the railroad tracks.

This camp, where Villa has an immense store of ammunition, is just outside the city, and was the scene of great activity Saturday, as cartridges and shell were being forwarded by rail and pack mules and burros to Herrera, Benavides, Contreras and other generals.

Federals Join Rebels.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, March 23.—Gen. Aguilar and his 500 Federals at Tuxpam have revolted and joined the rebels. This will compel the Government to abandon its plans to recapture Victoria for the present.

Nelson O'Shaughnessy and T. B. Hohler, respectively American and British charge d'affaires at Mexico City, arrived here yesterday. Mr. O'Shaughnessy went to the hotel with his wife and later conferred with Envoy Lind and the Consul of Canada at the United States consulate.

TAYLOR-HOWSON

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Howson, The Maples, Otonabee, on Wednesday, March 18th, at 5 p.m., when their second daughter, Miss Eva Gertrude, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Gordon Robert Taylor, also of Otonabee. The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the parlor to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus, played by her sister, Miss Pearl E. Howson, and stood beneath a large white bell suspended from an arch and tastefully decorated with white streamers and flowers, while the ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. K. Edminson, of the Methodist Church, Keene, in the presence of about fifty guests. The bride looked charming in a beautiful gown of white satin with shoulder drapings and overskirt of shadow lace tastefully caught up with clusters of seed pearls and satin rosettes and wore a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair. She carried a pretty shower boquet of white carnations and wore as her only ornament a handsome pearl sunburst and chain, the gift of the groom. The groom's gift to the pianist was a pretty pearl set crescent. After the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining room, which was also nicely decorated with white streamers, wedding bells and cut flowers, and partook of a sumptuous wedding supper, after which a very enjoyable evening was spent in singing and games. The presents received were numerous and costly. The happy couple left for their future home in Otonabee about midnight amidst congratulations and a shower of rice, the bride wearing a tailored blue suit, with tuscan colored hat and trimmings to match. They will be at home to their many friends after April the 8th.

Mr. Wm. Taylor of Cobourg is spending a few days in the city.

LENT 1914

Can'st thou not watch with Him one
little hour?
Wilt turn aside from pleasures'
empty toys,
Into that garden where perennial flower
The blossoms sweet, of love and strength and grace.

Guard well these hours, so shall thy soul grow pure,
Gain wisdom, love, faith, hope and charity;
Thou shalt be wise to battle and endure,
To love and work, to watch and wait
and pray.

The call to work comes to thee clear and strong
"Daughter arise! Thine hour of life is come!"
Hasten to service in earth's stress and throng,
Cast up an highway, for thy coming
King.

Full soon these Lenten hours will pass away,
The Easter call to work ring in thine
ear,
Wilt thou forsake Him now, to drift,
to play,
Can'st thou not watch with Him one
little Hour?

NEWFOUNDLAND WELL OFF.

Island Colony Sees Motor Boats Replace Old Fishing Craft.

An interesting statement of the affairs of Newfundland, Canada's little sister colony, for the past year has been compiled from privete information, furnished by its agents to the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Fishing, shipping, mining, railway construction, manufacturing, including the pulp and paper industry, and mercantile business all flourished, and the year closed with very satisfactory results.

As this is essentially a fishing colony, the fishing industry is much more important than all others. During the last two years prices have been high, and the fishermen have materially improved their financial position. On the other hand, considering the precarious nature of the fish export business, the exporter has been obliged to work on a very narrow margin of profit, and one that is apparently inadequate.

The fishermen are just beginning to realize the advantages of the use of motor-driven craft; probably 1,000 to 1,500 are now in use, and as there are over 50,000 men and 20,000 vessels engaged in the industry, a rapid annual increase may be expected, which in time should lead to a material increase in the catch.

The year compares very favorably in this respect with 1912, the estimated value of the products of the sea being about $12,500,000. Compared with the Maritime Provinces of Canada, and with Gloucester and Boston, the following statistics indicate that in the value of the annual catch Newfoundland takes first place: Newfoundland, $12,500,000; Nova Scotia, $9,400,000; New Brunswick, $4,900,000; Prince Edward Island, $650,000; Quebec, $1,800,000; Gloucester and Boston, $5,000,000.

The pulp and paper industry represents an investment of $12,000,000, the products of which are exported to Great Britain. For 1913 the approximate value of the exports of pulp is $350,000, and of paper $2,000,000. Mining has been active at Bell Island, where there is an iron deposit of about 3,500,000,000 tons. The estimated value of the exports of ore for the year is $1,400,000.

During the past two years the Government has expended about $5,000,000 on branch railways the cost being financed by the sale of bonds. At the end of this year the public debts is approximately $26,000,000. The revenue for the year is about $3 900,000; the expenditure including the cost of the administration of the colony and the interest on the public debt, is about $3,800,000, thus leaving a surplus of $100,000.

Imports increased $1,278,000, and amounted to $16,312,000, of which Canada contributed $5,200,000, the United States $5,500,000, and the United Kingdom $4,400,000. Exports were $14,458,000 an increase of $800,000. The investments and bank balances of the people, are now estimated at over $20,000,000, showing a moderate increase for the year.

Taking all things into consideration, the year 1913 was one of progress, and the people of Newfoundland look to the future with a spirit of optimism.

SPENT NIGHT ON ICE WITH INJURED KNEE

Belleville, March 23.—A resident of Trenton found Charles Roberts, of Murray Township, lying alive on the ice in the River Trent Saturday morning. It appears that Roberts on Friday night had been on a bridge and had fallen to the ice below. He fractured his knee in the fall and became unconscious. Exposure to the cold night air resulted in his feet and hands being badly frozen.

After temporary aid was rendered in Trenton he was brought to Belleville Hospital for treatment.

GEN. PAGET CONFRONTED BY GRAVE SITUATION

King George is on the Scene as Peace Maker---Lord Roberts is Summoned

LONDON, March 23.—The Government's military precautions to preserve order in Ulster have precipitated a crisis without parallel in the history of the British army. Rather than be placed in a position where they might be called upon to act against the Ulster covenanters numbers of officers have resigned their commissions.

The tension has been relieved somewhat, however, by the consent of the officers at Curragh to undertake "police duty" in Ulster.

The entrance of King George on the scene as peacemaker was the dramatic event of Saturday. He had long conferences with the Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, the Secretary of State for War, Col. Seely, and several high officers, and afterwards summoned Field Marshal Lord Roberts, who has been much criticized by the Liberals for utterances, which they construed as encouragement to the officers to refuse to obey orders.

In the meantime the movement of troops continued in Ireland. The centre of interest shifted to Curragh, 25 miles from Dublin, where the infantry brigade, under Col. Rolt are stationed. Gen. Sir Arthur Paget, commanding the forces in Ireland, spent the day in camp. He held a conference with fifty officers of the Curragh, Dublin, Kildare and Newbridge garrisons. It was said that orders had arrived for the despatch of the third brigade to Ulster, but that these could not be carried into execution because practically all the officers had resigned. Orders for the despatch of the Sixteenth Lancers also failed of execution by reason of the same wholesale retirement of officers.

The Government is embarrassed by the disaffection, which even exists among the officers who continue on duty for the army is officered from the aristocratic families and the great majority of the aristocratic class are Conservatives and sympathize with the covenanters.

What appears to be a reliable account of the defection of officers at Curragh comes in a Dublin despatch. On Friday morning the officers received notification from the War Office that unless they were prepared for active service in Ulster under certain contingencies they should send in their papers within twelve hours. As a result of this notification 70 out of 76 officers, including Lord Holmpatrick, resigned. Gen. Sir Arthur Paget then communicated with the War Office and subsequently had a conference with the Curragh officers.

Gen. Paget gave assurance that the movement of troops to Ulster was intended merely for the protection of Government property, and on this assurance the officers eventually agreed to proceed to Ulster for police duty, but resolutely refused to undertake hostilities against the Ulster loyalists.

There has been no diminution in the activity of the Ulster army. Yesterday the officers of the so-called headquarters staff on duty at Craigavon, now the centre of the Ulster movement, were busy taking the ranges of the various hills and other strategic points of Belfast Lough, which the estate overlooks. They had a rangefinder of the latest pattern.

A sufficient number of motor cars are available to enable the administration to transport at least 2,000 men with rifles and ammunition to any threatened point in Ulster, three hours from Belfast, independent of the railway.

Ulster awaits with curiosity the next move of the War Office and other authorities, pending which the situation remains unchanged. Absolute order prevails in the city. Eighty special service "minute men" on duty at Craigavon marched to the Presbyterian church at Belmont early yesterday morning, taking their hospital corps and ambulance men, even the surgeons, but leaving fifty men behind to guard the rifles and patrol the estate while the others prayed in the pews behind Sir Edward Carson and other leaders.

Gen. Gough Resigned.

LONDON, March 23.—The Sunday Observer asserts on high authority that Gen. Sir Arthur Paget visited Curragh on Friday and gave Gen. Gough of the third cavalry brigade the option of taking command at Ulster or retiring. Gen. Gough, who was allowed two hours for consideration, resigned immediately.

The Observer says that the Government has decided to issue two hundred warrants for the arrest of the leaders in Ulster.

Railway Given Orders.

ALDERSHOT, March 23. — The London and South eastern Railway received notice yesterday from the War Office to have rolling stock in readiness to move any number of troops up to 10,000 with horses, wagons and supplies at short notice.

Sealskin Sacques May Go Up.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 23.—The eastern sealing fleet of 15 ships is having the worst weather for many years and has not more than half the number of seals secured at the same date last year. Wireless messages from the eight ships agree that the severity of the storms and the immense thickness of the ice floes makes conditions extremely difficult and thousands of the seals killed and heaped on the ice fields to be picked up by steamers will never be recovered.

Physiognomy.

Physiognomy—the art or science of telling a man's character from the cut of his face—is very old. The first systematic treatise on the subject is that attributed to Aristotle. The first printed works on the subject came out in 1470, since which time innumerable books on physiognomy have appeared. As to the comparative merits of physiognomy and phrenology, it is perhaps not too much to say that, as a key to character, the former beats the latter "all hollow."

Art Defended.

They were in a picture gallery.

The man was from out of town and rather inclined to be critical. The girl was from the city and filled with civic pride.

They paused in front of a striking picture.

"Ah, that's an old master!" exclaimed the man.

"Maybe it is," defended the girl, "but you can see for yourself that the frame is perfectly new."

MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN OF FIVE DAYS FOR PETERBORO'S NEW BOARD OF TRADE

Young Men Will Hold the Reins—Mr. Basil D. Hall Elected President

With the presence of young blood and unbounded enthusiasm in evidence, the annual meeting of the Board of Trade held last evening was one of the best ever held by the local Board.

The new president made some valuable suggestions, all of which will be considered at a future date.

Mr. Pennefather spoke of galvanizing some life into the Board. They needed money and also support. He referred to association meeting in Toronto last week and the great work being accomplished by the other boards. In due course the suggestions made at a recent meeting will be voted on.

He also spoke of the need of a permanent secretary.. The slate was not formed regardless of anybody's opinion or ideas.

The minutes of the last meeting were then read by the secretary, T. Q. Quartermaine.

President's Report.

During the money stringency of 1913, very few concerns located anywhere, said Mr .Pennefather, in his opening remarks. He spoke of the success of getting the Toronto papers earlier to Peterborough. Mr. Pennefather was loud in his praise of Mr. J.R. Stratton, for his assistance.

Treasurer's Report.

The treasurer's report was submitted by Mr. Jas. Hamilton, and found satisfactory and encouraging.

The resignation of Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, secretary to the Board for over 16 years, was received with considerable regret.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the following being elected:

President—Basil Hall.
Vice-President—W. F. Ackerman.
Treasurer—James Hamilton.
Secretary—N. A. Allison.

Twenty members for the executive committee to be elected from the following:

J. W. Worth, J. J. John, F. L. Roy, R. M. Glover, H. P. Morgan, W. H. Munro, E. N. McWilliams, R. Denne, Gerald K. Rackham, G. O. Cameron, J. T. Braund, Mayor Buller, C. H. Pennefather, T. F. Matthews, W. O. Meyers, J. J. Turner, Jr., Dr. M. A. Morrison, Vincent Eastwood, W. H. Bradburn, G. A. Gillespie, Ald. Duffus, R. G. Sturgeon, Dr. Amys, W. Campbell, E. B. Boswell, W. R. Breyfoggle, John McNabb, W. H. Denham, Dr. Sutton, Frank Dawson, E. G. Patterson, E. A .Coulthard.

Mayor Buller.

Mayor Buller thought that there was no reason why the young men should not apply themselves to building up of the city.

There should be steady growth. The Council would be pleased to render assistance.

President's Suggestions.

President Basil Hall submitted the following propaganda for the year's work, which went to the Executive Council to report on—

We are here to resurrect the Board of Trade and to unite the forces of many men to advance the interests of business in this city. You have splendid organizations of business men, notable among which are the Retail Merchants, Manufacturers, Commercial Travellers and Trades and Labor Associations, to carry on particular branches of the work we hope to assist and encourage and develop. An active Board of Trade, and by active I mean one composed of busy, successful men, filled with enthusiasm for the work being done or to be done can accomplish much for a growing city such as ours. And it can be one of the chief factors in the development of the city. It can give a great deal of help to merchants, manufacturers and workmen and others, and indeed fill a long-felt want in providing a channel through which different bodies, organizations, and individuals can pull together.

At the annual meeting the Board may elect twelve members to form a Board of Arbitration, and any three of such members have power to arbitrate upon and make their award in any commercial case or difference voluntarily referred to them by the parties concerned; and have power to examine on oath any of the parties or witnesses. The award of the arbitration is binding on the parties according to the terms of the submission which they are required to make.

The Board may also appoint five persons as a board of examiners to examine applicants for the office of inspector of flour and meal or any other article subject to inspection.

The Council has power to license weighers in grain elevators in the municipalities. Those functions are seldom exercised.

The objects of the Board as stated in its by-laws are to promote just and equitable principles of trade, to correct abuses, and generally to protect the rights and advance the interests of the mercantile classes.

These general objects, as you will note, are wide, and under them may be reasonably included a number of ancillary and similar aims and objects which have occurred to me and which I will endeavor to tabulate and explain:

First—We should collect and keep recorded all kinds of information relating to the affairs of the municipality, familiarizing ourselves with the work and difficulties of the City Council and County Council; and being able to assist them when necessary and to advise them and also our government representatives of the needs of the citizens as a whole, or of organizations of citizens or individuals.

Secondly—To advise with and look after the needs of merchants, manufacturers or others, acting for them as an association of merchants, manufacturers, etc., as the case may be, met together for their common welfare. I would like to suggest in this connection that the retail merchants, manufacturers, commercial travellers, builders and labor associations become affiliated with the Board and nominate and elect representative members of their bodies to the Council with the idea of becoming branches of the Board and working through it to accomplish their objects. Or that the managers of all industries be made ex-officio members of the Council.

Advertise the City.

The third aim I have in mind is to adopt and carry out a scheme for advertising the advantages of the municipality. There is a great need for some organization to take up this work. The City Clerk has been very active in this respect, but to carry on the work as it should be done requires a great deal of time and perseverance—more than one man can possibly give. And besides this, a work in which every citizens is vitally interested, and which will be more successful the more people there are engaged in it. There is lots of room for us to work with Mr. Armstrong to help this matter along. I would suggest that as a start we undertake the publication of a booklet or pamphlet, containing a modern map of the city, together with information showing its growth, its low assessment, power advantages, business openings, rail and water facilities, manufacturing and residential advantages, its summer resorts, etc. And if the funds are available to advertise these advantages in some widely circulated advertising medium.

Fourth—To open an office where trade periodicals, architects' plans and other valuable information could be kept for use of the members of the Board and the public generally.

Fifth—To establish a fund for procuring new industries which by reason of their being already located in the Province cannot be bonused by the municipality and for beautifying and improving the city generally.

Playgrounds.

Sixth—To urge the establishment of parks and public play-grounds and to encourage and promote athletics and outdoor exercise. There are numbers of vacant lots in and around the city lying idle until they are required for building. If the owners of these lots would send to the secretary particulars of their size, location and condition of surface, with an expression of their willingness to let them be used for playground or ball fields until required for other purposes, the board could undertake to see that they were put to such uses by distributing the information to the parties interested.

Strength is Needed.

To accomplish these objects we require to have a numerically strong organization. It is only through force of numbers that we can carry sufficient weight to make the resolutions of our board the active agents we all wish them to be. It is proposed to have a campaign to enroll two thousand members for the Board of Trade this year. Surely there are two thousand business and professional men and property owners in this city of nearly twenty-five thousand people who have the interests of the city and their own interests sufficiently at heart to subscribe two dollars each for this work. With four thousand dollars in the treasury we can have on active, energetic, competent secretary and carry out a number of the objects we will set ourselves to accomplish. We can open an office and lay the foundation for a fund for acquiring new industries. I am informed that we have lost several very active industries owing to the fact that the city was unable to offer any financial aid to them in moving their plant from other Ontario cities where they have been located and are under disadvantaged which a move to Peterborough would have removed. These were good industries employing many men. Some of them went to towns whose Boards of Trade gave them the necessary help. Our board could do nothing; we had no money. Opportunities such as these will come again, and I'd like to see the Board of Trade in a position to take an active part for the advancement of the city when they do come.

Information.

I would like to see an office opened where plans of this city, information about the city's natural advantages, factory sites, power, transportation, labor and other items of interest to employers of labor would be readily accessible to any such men when they are in the city. Also it has been suggested, and wisely, that a committee should be formed to receive, entertain and escort these men on behalf of the Board while here. Personally, I heartily endorse this proposal, as I believe such a committee could be a great help to our already over-worked Industrial Commissioner, and would give a decided impression that Peterborough is a wide-awake enterprising city, where any manufacturer would be advancing his own interests in locating.

I should like to see a permanent secretary secured, who, on payment of a sufficient salary, could devote his whole time to the affairs of the Board; or if the city appoints an assistant Industrial Commissioner, would be able to perform the duties of secretary. I should like to see a first-class man appointed who could fill the two positions.

Ex-Mayor Bradburn said he was glad to see a revival of the Board of Trade taking place. Much could be done in assisting in the investigation of prospective concerns. This necessitated continuous work.

"Get some of the mechanics into the Board, they are men of ideas," remarked the speaker.

Mr. R. C. Braund said he had championed the cause of the city. Peterboro had facilities. "Keep them everlastingly before the general public and get busy," he urged.

Other speakers were Messrs. J. W. Greene, J. J. Turner, Jr., W. H. Denham, City Clerk Armstrong, Ald. Duffus, J. W. Worth, Vincent Eastwood, W. .H Dunsford and Dr. Sutton.

President Hall suggested that a five days' campaign for new members be held, and the meeting decided to take action along this line.

Mr. Quartermaine, the retiring secretary, was made a life member of the Board. The next meeting will be held Tuesday, March 31.

Trade Commission

The following communication speaks for itself:

"To the Members of the Board of Trade:

"Gentlemen, — Through correspondence with the Canadian Manufacturers Association, we have made application to have the Canadian Trade Commissioner, H. P. Pousette, call on us in regard to Canadian trade. There may be manufacturers in Peterborough not members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, who may find it to advantage to have Mr. Pousette's views on foreign trade. We understand that he is thoroughly familiar with the requirements of different foreign centres. He is coming to Peterborough in the near future and if the Board of Trade consider it advisable, doubtless any of the members who have any export business in view would benefit by conferring with Mr. Pousette with reference to these matters.

"Yours truly.
"B. F. ACKERMAN."

A vote of thanks was moved in behalf of the retiring President, Mr. C. H. Pennefather.

The Board will also meet once a month.

ACCIDENTS DECREASE WITH "SAFETY FIRST"

Fatalites Among G.T.R. Employes Show Decrease of 50 Per Cent

Circulars have been received by Mr. F. Sandy, local Grand Trunk Agent, in connection with "Safety First." One states that during the last four months of the year 1913, with Safety First in effect, that the death list for G. T. R. employees was cut down by 16, or a decrease of 50 per cent., and there were 120 fewer accidents or a decrease of 11.5 per cent., when compared with the last four months of the preceding year. This, the circular states, was not due to any decrease in traffic, for the traffic was heavier. The credit falls upon the Safety First idea.

The second circular takes the form of a caution to employees and points out how accidents in the past few months could have been avoided. Judging by the tone of these circulars, "Safety First" has been organized upon a solid foundation and is already bringing good results.

STURGEON LAKE WILL HAVE NEW SUMMER RESORT

Lindsay, March 24.—Greenhurst, the new summer resort next to Thurstonia, promises to be a popular spot this year. Four new cottages are already a certainty for the coming season. Mr. Thurston has erected a large boarding house, and cottages are also to be built by Mrs. Cathro, Mr. John Glass, and some Toronto people.

Sturgeon Point will also boast a numer of pretty new cottages, one of which will be built by Mr. W. McLennan. It is likely that a number of new cottages will be built on the pretty wooded lots at Graham's Landing at the north end of Sturgeon Point.

COUNCIL UPROAR

Mayor Calls in the Police to Eject Unruly Controller

TORONTO, March 24.—Pandemonium reigned in the Council chamber yesterday afternoon when Mayor Hocken called in the police to eject Controller Church, who persisted in disregarding the former's ruling on a point of order raised by Controller McCarthy, who objected to Controller Church's continued statement to the effect that he interfered with the officials of the Treasury Department. Controller Church finally subsided and the policeman retired to his post as doorkeeper again.

Cabinet Sterilizer Added to Equipment of A. A. Fowler

Particular people take every precaution in these days of keen competition and hustle, and recognizing this, Mr. A. A. Fowler, with the Nugent Drug Co., who is ever ready to meet the demands of his patrons, has added to his optical parlors a Cabinet Sterilizer, by which every article used by Mr. Fowler is sterilized, and thereby rendered perfectly safe for the important use to which they are put in the delicate treatment of eyesight.

The Superior Cabinet Sterilizer is a public safeguard. The possibility of the presence of germs is done away with by the treatment of every instrument with a formalde-byde solution.

ALDERMAN WANTS EDITOR BECK ARRESTED

Charge of Libel Grows Out of Statements Made in Beck's Paper

Montreal, March 24.—A warrant sworn out this morning by Alderman Tom O'Connell, the well-known Irish lacrosse and hockey enthusiast for the arrest of Edward Beck, editor of Beck's Weekly for libel.

When Beck's Weekly in its first issue last week, printed alleged dictaphone reports of conversations between Jules Crepeau, the assistant City Clerk and detectives, it stated that the assistant City Clerk has asserted that the Alderman would support him in certain things he proposed doing.

THE LABOR CONDITIONS

As Reported to Labor Gazette by the Local Correspondent

The Peterboro correspondent of the Labor Gazette reports labor conditions in this city as follows:

During February labor conditions were less satisfactory than at this time last year, and about the same as last month. Owing to the severity of the weather, outdoor work was at a standstill, and a large number of unskilled labourers and others were out of employment. The building trades give promise of being active as soon as the frost is out of the ground. A new Catholic church is to be built in the East City. The Charlotte Street Methodists will also build a new church. The Peterborough Planing Mill Company is making arrangements to build twenty-five new houses. The Peterborough Creamery Company has purchased more land and will enlarge its plant. A new Government dam is to be built near the city; the contract for this has been let. A new post office and customs house will also be built; these will probably be commenced this year. $50,000 was voted in the main estimates as a first instalment. This with the usual spring work gives promise for a busy summer. The waterworks department in its annual report shows a profit on the year's business of $4,432.99.

The first annual report of the Peterborough Co-operative Society shows they have done business to the amount of $21,434.58, and have made a clear profit of $201.18 on nine months' business. A remarkable feature is the fact that the returns show the society to have no outstanding accounts on either side of the ledger. Coal was selling at $8.50 per ton with prospects of it going higher. They took up this line of trade, lowered the price, and opened up competition. The result is the people of Peterborough are getting the best coal at $7.50 per ton, and other grades as low as $6.00.

The cutting and storing of the ice at this time of the year gives employment to those who are badly in need of it. The employees of the Canadian General Electric Company got a raise in wages last summer, and this month they got a ten per cent. cut. The Grand Trunk Railway despatchers and operators have received a new scale of wages, ranging from $50 to $125.00 a month. They will receive time and a half for overtime, and get two weeks' holidays with pay each year.

The farmers were busy marketing wood and hay, the former selling from $3.50 to $6.50 per load, and hay $17.00 to $18.00. There is a fairly good supply of meat, beef selling for twelve and thirteen cents per lb., and pork at fourteen cents by the quarter.

The local sawmills were busy getting their machinery in repair for the season's operations. The William English Canoe Company has built a new mill at Nogie's Creek and is installing the new machinery.

The lock works, which were shut down during the month of January, have started again and are working four days a week. The other factories are running short-handed, and some are working short hours.

HUNGRY TENANTS IN McFADDEN'S FLATS

A couple of the members of the theatrical company, "McFadden's Flats," were quite ill, as a result of their experience on a snow-bound train en route from Pembroke to Kingston. ENTERTAINED BY JUVENILE COURT

The Juvenile White Lily Court of the A. O. F. No. 86 held a very successful concert last night in the S. O. E. Hall. Mr. T. Martin, of Hamilton, was present, and spoke of the benefit of the Order and Ancient Forestry in general.

The following constituted a well received musical programme;

Vocal Solo—Mr. F. Pratt.
Vocal Solo—Mr. P. Nash.
Vocal Solo—Mr. R. Hendry.
Ventriloquist—Mr. Cole.
Banjo—Mr. F. Clark.
Vocal Solo—Mr. F. Flynn.
Mandolin and Banjo—Messrs. Mann and Parkins.

Wood's Orchestra supplied the music. After the programme refreshments were served, and a very delightful evening brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

ROSENTHAL'S MURDERERS APPEAL FOR THEIR LIVES

Their Last Effort to Escape the Electric Chair Next Month

ASK FAIR PLAY

NEW YORK, March 24.—Convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal and sentenced to die in the electric chair in the week beginning April 13, the four gunmen in the Sing Sing death house issued a statement "to the public" yesterday. Alleging that they were left to die unjustly, while former Lieut. Charles Becker obtained a new trial, they had their counsel, Charles G. Wahle, give out their appeal for "justice" and "fair play," which they had already prepared when he visited them Saturday. They reiterated their innocence, and charged Harry Vallon and "Bridgie" Webber with the Rosenthal murder.

"Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, 22, the youngest of the four, wrote the statement, and it was signed by the others through the heavy bars of their cells as the guard held it for them.

HEALTH FIRST IN TOWN PLANNING

Should Be Individual Houses in Preference to Apartments

That the town healthy, rather than the city beautiful, must be the first consideration in all town-planning projects, was especially emphasized at the first Housing and Town-planning Conference of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, held in Boston in November last. The expressions of opinion from citizens of the State representing all classes of the community were unanimously in favor of individual houses in preference to apartments in large buildings.

The people of Canada could well take example from Massachusetts and make an earnest effort to place upon our statute book laws making it possible to improve housing conditions and to call a halt in the further construction of the abominable apartment house—another name for the tenement—and make it possible for our people to live in the individual home. As for town planning, we cannot commence at too early a date. There is not a village or town in the whole Dominion which has not faults in its planning, the rectification of which means for the ratepayer unnecessary taxation without accompanying benefits.

That the business men of Boston and the State should have taken such an active interest in town-planning augurs well for an early improvement in the cities of Massachusetts and should be an incentive to Canadian business men to take a prominent part in this movement. The betterment of housing conditions and the regulation of town planning is of great concern to the employer of labor, while the matter of planning roads and of transportation to and from the centres of business is of moment to all—C. $600,000 HOUSE FOR H. C. COX

Toronto, March 24.—A new large house, which may cost in the neighborhood of $600,000 is reported to be planned by Mr. H. C. Cox, president of the Imperial Life Insurance Company. It is to be built on Mr. Cox's estate, almost a mile and a half east of Oakville on the lake shore road.

For some time past Mr. Cox has always felt as if he would like to have his permanent residence at Oakville, where he has at present a very fine summer home, but which is only occupied during a couple of months in the year. This home, which it is said cost around $50,000 or $60,000, is to be torn down and to be replaced by the new mansion. The present house is a very large frame house, but not suitable as a winter home.

Plans for the new building have been prepared by Toronto architects, and, in addition to the new house, it is stated that they include provision for large stables, having a track inside with dimensions 200 feet by 280 feet for exercising horses. An orangery of similar dimensions, 200 x 280, is also said to be included in the plans.

The grounds about the present summer home are around seventeen acres in area, and during the spring and summer months, the place is one of the most beautiful spots in Ontario with its luxuriant growth of flowers and trees. If it was not for the fact that some of the beautiful trees on the property would have to be destroyed an attempt would be made to move the building instead of tearing it down.

TAKE THE THROTTLE

The many friends of Mr. A. Lyons of this city and Messrs. C. Henley and S. Kelcher of Lindsay, will be pleased to learn that they have successfully passed the examinations held recently in Belleville by the Grand Trunk Railway for the promotion of firemen to engineers.

A GOOD WORD FOR J. H. BURNHAM

THE IMPORTANCE of social and moral questions is no less than that of political questions if one may judge by the attention being paid to them by all sorts of people. Two of these questions are the cigarette and reform in women's dress. Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P. expressed himself in the House of Commons concerning these two questions, and the Ottawa Evening Journal contains the following reference, which speaks for itself:

> "It was glorious to see the moral courage of one of our legislators who stood up in the Legislative chamber of the whole country and declared that these women who were so anxious to enact laws regarding the little things should themselves start the reform by displaying a good example in the matter of dress and modesty," declared Rev. Father Fitzgerald of St. Mary's Church, Bayswater, on Sunday last in the course of a sermon on 'Humility.' Rev. Father Fitzgerald referred to the action of J. H. Burnham, M.P., who recently, in the House of Commons, expressed the opinion that women should reform their style of dress before asking that cigarettes be banned from Canada. "What is the matter of cigarette smoking compared to the mad desire to out-fashion fashion among the women of to-day? Why do they do it? Does any woman who dresses thus outrageously think that thereby she gains the friendship of any man? Surely not. Instead, it is the meek and humble young woman who has moral courage enough to refuse to be stampeded by every new freak fashion who really gains both love and admiration.

The Catholic Record also has a most enthusiastic editorial lauding Mr. Burnham for his timely warning to the deputation that the moral nature of mankind is not so hopelessly sterile that its regulation should be abandoned to statute laws instead of moral principles and religious teaching.

REGULATING RAILWAYS.

The proposed new railway act of the Borden Government is intended to remedy many deficiencies in the control of our great transportation lines. The powers of the Railway Commission are to be increased, so that companies controlling lines operating under other than Dominion charters, will not be able to evade its decisions. Questions affecting telegraphs, telephones, power and electricity and traffic by water between ports in Canada when carried by railway companies will also be under its control.

One of the most important clauses is that relating to stock and bond issues. It is provided in the bill that hereafter the issue of stock, bonds and other securities by railway companies shall be subject to control. Leave must be obtained from the Board before any issue of stock, bonds or other securities payable more than a year after date, or issued otherwise than solely for money consideration, can be made. The Board is given power to impose terms and conditions respecting such issue and may refuse leave or may limit the amount to what it is satisfied is reasonable and proper. The Board is also given power to see that the proceeds of any such issue are properly applied and duly accounted for.

Changes are also being made with respect to the regulations governing location of railway lines and the cutting up of cities, towns and highways. It is now provided that the Board instead of the Minister shall pass upon location of railways.

Wider powers are given to prevent unnecessary and injurious duplication of railways and railway rights of way. The board may refuse permission to build a new railway where it will not be useful to the public or may compel different railways to run over one right of way by putting down extra tracks or getting running rights over existing tracks all on the one right of way. It is expected that this will help to solve the problem of the highway crossings in cities.

If the Act gets on the statute book as it is proposed and is carried out, the Borden administration will deserve the thanks of the Canadian people for a measure long needed.

TORONTO'S WAREHOUSE FOR CURIOS.

THE NEW MUSEUM on Bloor Street in Toronto is a fine place. We recently inspected it and can recommend it to all curious visitors. The building is large, substantial, and built in an appropriate and distinctive style of architecture. But it is deceiving as most museums are. It has more floors than it appears to have and contains things you never saw before and never expected to see.

A museum is a place where fanciers store up a lot of old junk and cast-off clothing that was a drug on the market several hundred years ago. As the second-hand dealer couldn't sell the stuff people buried it with the dead heads or left it kicking around old battlefields. Now-a-days, learned professors nose this stuff out and say the back yards and cemeteries of days gone by contain valuables, and hence Toronto's new storage house for second hand battle-axes and fifteenth century blunderbuses.

Near the entrance is a good collection of dry goods which is in a badly damaged condition. A fire sale wouldn't do much for it. Some of it is in glass cases and some hangs on the wall. There is also a fine assortment of old trunks, mostly of the Saratoga style — marriage chests they call them—the two most distinctive features being their capacity and intricate ornamentation. Most of them are pocket editions of box cars and must have given the Elizabethan baggage clerks hypodermic fits. We can understand now why the Romans called baggage impedimenta.

There is also a good showing of spring styles in the men's ready-to-wear section. Most of the suits are too small and tight for us. The purple velvet pants and embroidered vests must have made a great hit with the young swells once, but how could they afford them ?

Several Egyptian coffins with mummies in them are on exhibition and that reminds us that undertaking must have been a flourishing and profitable business in the days of the Pharaohs. Most spectators don't stay long with the mummies.

There is, howeved, another side to the thought such a museum suggests. Whereas in the fifteenth or sixteenth centuries a cunning craftsman toiled for years to inlay the ornamentation on a marriage chest, furniture more beautiful, though less substantial is turned out of modern factories in a thousand times greater quantities. The marriage chest was made for kings and nobles, today the dresser or bureau which is a descendant of the marriage chest is made for everybody. Roman and Egyption women delighted in jewels just as women do to-day. We see ornaments there twenty centuries old, that rival in workmanship the jewellers craft to-day.

The tapestries of ancient days were extremely beautiful, but adorned only the halls of the great. The soldiers' arms show how war has become less brutal, more scientific, and more costly than in former times. The paintings of Paul Kane reveal details of the Indian peoples that have disappeared with the coming of the white man's lodges. On all hands we see the evidence of the world's progress which is not so great as we sometimes imagine. We look through the empty wooden window frames of the Tudor house and see fine, substantial panelling, the heavy four post bed, the wrought-iron latch on the oaken door, the chimney place, the spinning wheel and one can almost see the housewife at the wheel or the maid at the window. There are thousands of homes to-day, not so well built, nor as comfortable as that relic two or three centuries old was in the days when it sheltered its master. For comparative values in progress, there is no place representing them so graphically as a museum. The appeal to the historical imagination is nowhere stronger than among the actual remains of the handicraft and art of a past age.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE GREAT MEETING in the Opera House next Monday evening, under the auspices of the West Riding Conservative Association, is likely to be one long to be remembered. The ministers, though strangers to Peterborough, are well known to all Canada. The executive did well to extend them an invitation to enjoy the Association's hospitality.

THE MONTREAL Herald asks what is Canadian Literature ? This is strange. Have they not seen On the Side, in the Toronto News, or The Globe editorials? Humor and fiction tragic and otherwise of an original sort is there exhibited.

AN every-body-at-Church-Sunday is to be tried out in St. Catharines on the 29th. We bestow on it our blessing. May the wicked and perverse city correct its evil ways.

Toronto to Get Lumber Via Panama.

Calgary Herald.

A Vancouver island lumber company has secured a contract for twenty-four million feet of timber, to be used in new dock work at Toronto, Ontario. The specially interesting feature of this deal is that the timber is to be shipped to Toronto via the Panama Canal route.

Canal Had 'Em All Beat.

Belleville Intelligencer.

Ottawa people are reported to be in trouble over a pure water supply, whereas the "laborers" on the Trent Canal never had any difficulty of that kind. They were supplied with the hard stuff, and you and I, brother, paid the bill.

Speaking of Exhibitions.

Belleville Intelligencer.

Canada is going to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of Confederation. An exhibition has been suggested but the belief seems to prevail that the Laurier Opposition is exhibition enough.

Another Great Liberal Gone.

Montreal Gazette.

Hon. William Paterson, whose death took place yesterday, was for nearly a generation one of the best known of Liberal campaigners in Ontario. Firm in his Liberal views, of good ability, and willing to do his share of campaigning, there were not many places of importance in his province that did not become acquainted with his ideas, sent forth with the force of a voice so thunderous in its tones that it is doubted if there was its equal in the land. Mr. Paterson was from 1896 till 1911 a member of the Laurier Government, and took an important part in some of its heaviest administrative work. He was a man who won many personal friends and his death at a good old age will evoke kindly thoughts everywhere.

Does Honesty Pay ?

Christian Guardian.

A good Presbyterian brother was in the office last week, and, talking upon business honesty, he told of a French-Canadian, a Roman Catholic, who had lost some sheep by dogs. The municipality agreed to pay the usual two-thirds of the value of the dead animals, and they were about to have a cheque made out for the amount when the man spoke up quickly. "Hold on," he said. "I forgot to deduct the wool." The wool was worth something, and he was too honest a man to cheat even a township council. Did it pay to be honest ? Well, if the wise man was correct when he said, "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches," we think he did. That French-Canadian lost the price of the wool, but he got instead a reputation for honest dealing that was worth more than a thousand sheep. The fact that a man will not lie nor deceive, nor stoop to dishonorable gain, is worth even more to the community. We pass laws, appoint judges, and send forth policemen and detectives to compel men to deal honorably, but the honesty of the nation depends mainly upon the men who do not need either laws or policemen.

THE SILVER LINING

By Walt Mason

Last summer, when the hot winds blew, and wilted things on every hand, and when the sun, in skies of blue, shone down and blistered all the land, we mortals raised a bitter wail, and cried, "In this there is no sense, for all our cherished crops will fail! Oh, drouth disastrous, get thee hence!" Had any moral highbrow guys attempted to convince us then that back of all was purpose wise, we should have jeered and jeered again. But now that theory is fulfilled, for we're informed ten thousand score Ben Davis appletrees were killed, by that fierce drouth, to bear no more. Ben Davis trees are standing dead throughout this glad and fertile land, and we regret the things we did not understand. So, let's be patient after this when trouble dogs us, close behind, for sorrow's but a cloak for bliss, and threat'ning clouds are silver-lined.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE BOARD OF TRADE

Editor Review:

Sir:—We all must feel keen interest in the resurrection of the Peterborough Board of Trade, you will find an active Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce in almost every live centre of the country, East or West, and such a Board commands the support of the whole people, who are all benefitted by the growth of prosperity of the city we live in.

To place the Board really in a position to help the city, it must have money, and I would suggest a plan worked successfully in some cities, to make two classes of members, honorary and active or as you may determine, and make the fees five dollars and two dollars respectively, surely very small for such an object in these days of the low value of money. Of course, the officers and council of twenty would be both honorary and active and would expect to be liable accordingly. In the West no business or professional man and very few mechanics (unless he were a tourist), would decline to become a member of the Board of Trade, and would take a live interest in their meetings also. The wide influence of the Press is fully taken advantage of, and I say you have as loyal and enterprising papers here as in any place of its size in Canada, and with committees under captains of enthusiasm, tact and executive ability, no one should be offended by being overlooked.

There are towns in America whose greatest asset is their ability to pull together and where a knocker is asked to get out of town. Peterboro has the advantages equal to any inland city in Canada and the first work of the new Board is to co-operate with the Mayor's scheme, or a union of Eastern Ontario's municipalities would be renewed, influence for the completion of the Canal, and if it were completed the immense expense of the Georgian Bay Canal would be saved the country.

Birthdays of Note

TUESDAY, MARCH TWENTY-FOURTH

The Hon. L. O. David, Montreal's city clerk, who is also a member of the Dominion Senate, was born seventy-five years ago to-day at Sault-au-Recollet. This interesting little French-Canadian has at least three titles to fame. First of all he is perhaps the most intimate friend of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and, if he survives his distinguished fellow countryman, will be his biographer. Next he was the originator of the feast of St. John the Baptist in Montreal, one of the great events in the life of the Church. Lastly he has written a long list of books dealing with the history of Lower Canada and is one of the most erudite French-Canadians of the day. He has been city clerk of Montreal for over twenty years and a member of the Senate for eleven years.

There are nearly six thousand professional foresters in Germany who are associated with various technical societies.

PICTURESQUE DAMASCUS.

A Garden City Whose Beauty Halted Mohammed at its Gates.

The hotel in Damascus in which we stay is called the Grand Victoria, but it is above a blacksmith shop and a saddle shop. The lower stories are mostly blank, bare walls. From the upper stories project balconies of latticed oriels, some of which extend so far over the street as to make it easy for the veiled damsel of the harem to leap across.

In contrast with these plain exteriors the interiors are often exquisitely beautiful, having an open court paved with marble and a fountain fed by the waters of the Abana, tinkling and splashing through the hot hours of the day, and wooing one to rest during the cool of the evening. Palms, orange trees and oleanders stand here and there. Within the house you discover rooms cold and formal to an American, but brilliant with oriental hangings, brasses and inlaid mother-of-pearl furnishings. Damascus is perhaps the second city in importance in the mind of the Mohammedans. It is a garden city made to be indeed an oasis in the desert by the Abana river, which, finding life in the snows of Hermon's breast, flows through this city with increasing volume as if it intended to regenerate the desert, into which it pours all its wealth, and does veritably make this section to "blossom as the rose." It is not to be wondered at that Mohammed drew rein outside the walls when first he saw the city and said, "Since man can enter paradise but once, I will not enter this earthly paradise lest I be shut out from the heavenly."—Christian Herald.

Old "Champion Eaters."

The champion stuffer of America, who had just thrown out a challenge to "out-eat" any two men, might have barred two of our own giants of the past, Nicholas Wood, of the Kentish Stomach, and Taylor, the Water Poet, were champions over all courses. To Wood a raw sheep, 30 dozens of pigeons, or four score and four rabbits were fair meals, but 60 pounds of cherries he dubbed but "wash-meat." Again, he once sat down, ate a whole hog, and followed it with a dessert of three pecks of damsons. Black pudding he tucked away by the yard. But here Poet Taylor claimed a hearing. He challenged Wood to eat at a sitting as much as would stretch across the Thames anywhere between London Bridge and Richmond. — London Daily Chronicle.

Tarzan of the Apes

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright by the Frank A. Munsey Co.

It was agreed that on the morrow Canler was to drive to town and bring back the license and a clergyman.

Clayton had wanted to leave as soon as the plan was announced, but the girl's tired, hopeless look kept him. He could not desert her.

Something might happen yet, he tried to console himself by thinking. In his heart he knew that it would require but a tiny spark to turn his hatred for Canler into the blood lust of the killer.

Early the next morning Canler set out for town.

In the east smoke could be seen lying low over the forest, for a fire had been raging for a week not far from them, but the wind still lay in the west and no danger threatened them.

About noon Jane Porter started off for a walk. She would not let Clayton accompany her. She wanted to be alone, she said, and he respected her wishes.

In the house Professor Porter and Mr. Philander were immersed in an absorbing discussion of some weighty scientific problem. Esmeralda dozed in the kitchen, and Clayton, heavy eyed after a sleepless night, threw himself down upon the couch in the living room and soon dropped into a fitful slumber.

To the east the black smoke clouds rose higher into the heaven. Suddenly they eddied and then commenced to drift rapidly toward the west.

On and on they came. The inmates of the tenant house were gone, for it was market day, and none there was to see the rapid approach of the fire.

Soon the flames had spanned the road to the south and cut off Canler's return. A little fluctuation of the wind now carried the path of the forest fire slightly to the north, then blew back, and the flames nearly stood still as though held in leash by some master hand.

CHAPTER XXI.

Out of the Fire.

SUDDENLY out of the northeast a great black car came careening down the road.

With a jolt it stopped before the cottage, and a black haired giant leaped out and ran up on to the porch. Without a pause he rushed into the house. On the couch lay Clayton. The man started in surprise, but with a bound was at the side of the sleeping man.

Shaking him roughly by the shoulder, he cried:

"Are you all mad here? Don't you know you are nearly surrounded by fire? Where is Miss Porter?"

Clayton sprang to his feet. He did not recognize the man, but he understood the words and was upon the veranda in a bound.

He cried out in consternation, then, dashing back into the house, called:

"Jane! Jane! Where are you?"

In an instant Esmeralda, Professor Porter and Mr. Philander had joined the two men.

"Where is Miss Jane?" demanded Clayton, seizing Esmeralda by the shoulders and shaking her roughly.

"Oh, Marse Clayton, she done gone for a walk."

"Hasn't she come back yet?"

And without waiting for a reply Clayton dashed out into the yard, followed by the others.

"Which way did she go?" cried the black haired giant to Esmeralda.

"Down dat road," cried the frightened black, pointing toward the south, where a mighty wall of roaring flames shut out the view.

"Put these people in the other car!" shouted the stranger to Clayton. "I saw one as I drove up. Get them out of here by the north road.

"Leave my car here. If I find Miss Porter we shall need it. If I don't no one will need it. Do as I say," as Clayton hesitated.

They saw the lithe figure bound away across the clearing toward the northwest, where the forest still stood, untouched by flame.

In each rose the unaccountable feeling that a great responsibility had been raised from their shoulders, a kind of implicit confidence in the power of the stranger to save the girl if she could be saved.

"Who was that?" asked Professor Porter.

"I don't know," replied Clayton. "He called me by name, and he knew Jane, for he asked for her, and he called Esmeralda by name."

"There was something most startlingly familiar about him," exclaimed Mr. Philander. "Yet, bless me, I know I never saw him before."

"Tut, tut!" cried Professor Porter. "Most remarkable! Who could it have been, and why do I feel that Jane is safe now that he has set out in search of her?"

"I can't tell you, professor," said Clayton soberly, "but I know I have the same uncanny feeling."

"But come," he cried; "we must get out of here ourselves or we shall be shut off." And the party hastened toward Clayton's machine.

When Jane Porter turned to retrace her steps homeward she was alarmed to note how near the smoke of the forest fire seemed, and as she hastened onward her alarm became almost a panic when she perceived that the rushing flames were rapidly forcing their way between herself and the cottage.

At length she was compelled to turn into the dense thicket and attempt to force her way to the west in an effort to circle around the flames and reach her home.

In a short time the futility of her attempt became apparent, and then her one hope lay in retracing her steps to the road and flying for her life to the south toward the town.

The twenty minutes that it took her to regain the road was all that had been needed to cut off her retreat as effectually as her advance had been cut off before. Jane Porter knew that it was useless to attempt to force her way again through the undergrowth. She had tried it once and failed. Now she realized that it would be but a matter of minutes ere the whole space between the enemy on the north and the enemy on the south would be a seething mass of flames.

Calmly the girl kneeled down in the dust of the roadway and prayed for strength to meet her fate bravely and to deliver her father and her friends from death. She did not think to pray for deliverance for herself; she knew there was no hope.

Suddenly she heard her name being called aloud through the forest:

"Jane! Jane Porter!" it rang strong and clear, but in a strange voice.

"Here!" she called in reply. "Here! In the roadway!"

Then through the branches of the trees she saw a figure swinging.

A veering of the wind blew a cloud of smoke about them, and she could no longer see the man who was speeding toward her, but suddenly she felt a great arm about her. Then she was lifted up, and she felt the rushing of the wind and the occasional brush of a branch as she was borne along.

She opened her eyes.

Far below her lay the undergrowth and the hard earth.

About her was the waving foliage of the forest.

From tree to tree swung the giant figure which bore her, and it seemed to Jane Porter that she was living over in a dream the experience that had been hers in that far African jungle.

She stole a sudden glance at the face close to hers, and then she gave a little frightened gasp. It was he.

"My man!" she murmured. "No; it is the delirium which precedes death."

SPRING HATS MUST FLARE.

No matter what it is made of this spring, Milan or hemp, taffeta of the figured pussy willow variety or plain black satin, the spring chapeau must flare away up high on one side, balanced on the other side with a wee speck of a brim that must, to be quite in the mode, tilt over the eye. Flaring above a bandeau like edge, the brim of this hat flaunts aloft a tall ribbon trimming that is quite the thing in millinery.

STRIKERS ATTACK TRAIN ONE KILLED, FOUR INJURED

Pitched Battle With Deputies Guarding New Men for Plant

BUFFALO, March 24.—Four men were shot, one fatally and several were injured yesterday in two clashes between rioters and special deputies guarding the plant of the Gould Coupler Works at Depew where a strike has been in progress for some weeks. Stanislaus Skolonski, claimed by his friends to be an innocent bystander, was shot in the head during the first and most serious trouble, early in the day, when a mob of 300 men held up a train bearing workmen to the plant and fought a half hour's pitched battle with the deputies. He died at the hospital yesterday.

The first outbreak occurred when a Lackawanna train of 11 coaches, bearing about 800 workmen was within a mile of the plant early in the day. A mob of about 300 threw obstructions on the rails and when the train came to a standstill poured a fusillade of revolver shots and stones into the windows of the cars.

Half a dozen special deputies returned the fire and it is claimed that several of the mob were hit and at once carried away by others in the crowd. The men in the train were ordered to lie flat on the floor and all who did so escaped injury. After 20 minutes of shooting a sheriff's posse arrived and charged the crowd, dispersing it.

The second exchange of shots occurred near the plant after dark last night. A party of special deputies patrolling the outskirts of the plant was made the target for a fusillade of shots from an unoccupied building nearby. Officer Fogarty was hit in the cheek, but not seriously injured.

U.S. TROOPS RETURN FIRE

AMERICANS AND MEXICAN FEDERALS HAVE A SHARP BRUSH

EAGLE PASS, Texas, March 24.—American soldiers and Federals engaged in a battle Sunday at McGee crossing, three miles above Del Rio, on the Rio Grande, in which several Federal soldiers are reported killed. A patrol from E Troop of the 14th Cavalry returned the fire of the Mexican across the Rio Grand, and for ten minutes the shooting continued. One of the Americans was injured.

Forty Constitutionalist soldiers had been cut off by the Federals on the river bank. After fighting for nearly half an hour, the Constitutionalists tried to cross the river and surrendered to the American troops. The Federals continued firing at the Constitutionalists in the water, and even after they had reached the American bank and surrendered.

The commander of the American cavalrymen signalled repeatedly for the Federals to cease firing, but his signals were disregarded. Finally he ordered his men to return the fire. A number of Federals were carried away after the firing ceased.

Approved at Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Frank approval of the action of the American troopers who returned the fire of Mexican Federals at Del Rio Sunday was expressed here yesterday in official circles. News of the incident was received at the War Department as an incident of border patrol work, and created no great stir. Army reports told of the exchange of shots, and announced that 29 Constitutionalists had been taken into custody after 15 had been killed as they fled across the Rio Grande from the Federals. There was no mention, however, of any Federals killed or Americans wounded.

A Fruit Candy.

For this take two cupfuls of light brown sugar, one cupful each of granulated sugar, milk and chopped dates, one tablespoonful of butter and vanilla flavoring. Mix sugar and milk together and let come to a boil. When it will form a soft ball in cold water, it is done. Take from fire and beat till creamy. Stir in dates, spread on buttered pan and cut into squares.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, etc.

CHICAGO, March 23.—Corn today jumped higher than at any time since Dec. 18. Transactions ran into millions of bushels, and brought severe punishment to speculators who had been aggressive in selling the market short. The outcome was a steady close at an advance of ⅛c to 1⅛c net. Wheat finished with a gain of ⅛c to ⅜c, oats up ⅛c to ¼c, and provisions the same as Saturday night to a rise of 5c.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, March 23.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 114 cars, comprising 1760 cattle, 128 hogs, 240 sheep and 75 calves.

Butchers.

Choice butchers sold at $8 to $8.25; good, $7.40 to $7.60; medium, $7 to $7.25; common, $6.50 to $6.75; choice cows, $6.75 to $7, good cows, $6.50 to $6.75; medium cows, $5.50 to $6; common cows, $5 to $5.50; canners and cutters, $3.75 to $4.50; bulls, choice, $7 to $7.50; good bulls, $6.50 to $7; medium, $6 to $6.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Stockers and feeders were none too plentiful. Prices of steers, 800 to 900 lbs., at $6.75 to $7; steers, 700 to 800 lbs., at $6.25 to $6.50, stockers sold at from $4.50 to $5.75.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were light and the demand also was light, and prices ranged from $45 to $85 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts of veal calves were light and prices very firm. Choice calves, $10 to $11; good, $9 to $10; common and medium, $5.75 to $8.

Sheep and Lambs.

The sheep and lamb market was firm. Sheep, light ewes, sold at $6.50 to $7; heavy ewes, $5.75 to $6.25, rams, $5.25 to $6.25, heavy lambs, $8 to $8.75; choice lambs, $9 to $9.75.

Hogs.

Hogs sold at $9.25, fed and watered, and $9.50, weighed off cars.

MONTDEAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 23.—Prices at the local stock yards scored a further advance of 25c to 50c per 100 pounds for choice cattle, owing to the small supply of such stock coming forwards. Lower grades were in good demand, butchers generally having allowed their stock to run down to a pretty low level; consequently trade was more active, but sales were principally in small lots to fill actual wants, owing to the near approach of the Easter trade. Some small lots of picked choice steers sold as high as $8.75, and good at $8.25, with a few full loads changing hands at $8 to $8.10, while medium grades brought $6.50 to $7 per 100 pounds. The prospects are that, if supplies continue small for the balance of the week and next week, drovers will realise good prices for choice stock at the Easter market.

The market for hogs was stronger and prices advanced 5c to 20c per 100 pounds for Ontario stock, there being no Manitobas on the market.

A feature of the small-meat trade was the increased supplies of calves coming forward, for which there is a good demand.

Butchers' cattle choice, $8.50 to $8.75; do., medium, $6.50 to $7.50; do., common, $5 to $6; canners, $4 to $4.50, butchers' cattle, choice cows, $7 to $7.25; do., medium, $6 to $6.50; do., bulls, $5.25 to $7.50; milkers, choice, each, $90 to $100; do., common and medium, each, $70 to $80; springers, $60 to $65.

Sheep, ewes, $6 to $6.50; bucks and culls, $5.50 to $5.75. Lambs, $8.50 to $9.

Hogs, f.o.b., $9.85 to $10; calves, $3 to $10.

CONFERENCE POSSIBLE.

Colonial Office Has Opened Negotiations for Naval Conclave.

LONDON, March 24.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A colonial conference of the Home Government and of those of the Dominions over seas on the question of naval defence of the Pacific, is now within the realm of possibility. This was made clear by Premier Asquith yesterday when in reply to Capt. Faber, he admitted that the Colonial Office had opened negotiations with the Governments of Australia and New Zealand regarding the holding of such a conference at an early date.

In view of the fact that Government refused quite recently to hold a conference which was to include Canadian participation, it is inferred the new turn of events are entirely due to pressure from the Antipodean Governments.

Toy For Baby.

Tumbling dolls in the shape of small baby heads of indestructible character, fastened in roly poly little balls of pink and white silk, are sold. They are ideal gifts for the small baby, for they can neither be destroyed nor inflict hurt of any sort, they are so soft and rounded. When they are knocked over they cheerfully right themselves, and so would bring comfort to both baby and nurse.

Baby's Food.

The following is recommended by one authority as a good way to prepare a six-months-old baby's food: Milk, seven tablespoonfuls; water, three tablespoonfuls; limewater, one tablespoonful; cream, one teaspoonful; sugar of milk, one and a half teaspoonfuls. This makes five and a half ounces and is sufficient for a meal. Baby should be fed every three hours.

Interesting Experience of Two Women—Their Statements Worth Reading.

White Oak, Ont.—"At Change of Life when doctors could do no more and I was given up by my friends, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to the front and did wonders for me. I had been having female troubles for years, my head troubled me severely at times, I had bearing down pains and backache and I was very anaemic from excessive flowing. BIG BLOCK IS BURNED

WINNIPEG OFFICE BUILDING DESTROYED WITH LOSS OF $115,000

WINNIPEG, March 24—Fire broke out at 4.15 yesterday afternoon in the Scott block, Main street, valued at $115,000, carrying insurance of $55,000. The whole interior of the building, which is a six-storey brick structure, divided into office suites, was destroyed, bringing the total estimated loss up to $250,000. Among the tenants were: Canadian Northern Railway special agents; the C. N. R. general claims department; Rembrant Co.; photographers; F. W. Scott; C. & J. Jones; Western Investment Co.; Western Woodenware Co.; Thomas Boyle, Irish railways and general contractors agency; L. P. Beaubien, barrister; J. N. Carter, contractor; Geo. H. Hess, Son & Co.; Winnipeg Scenic Co.; Sanitary Supply Co.; Benj. J. Curry, dentist; J. B. Duncan, contractor; C. N. R. telegraphers; Mackenzie & Mann Telegraph Construction Co.; Harvey Bros., manufacturers; C. H. Kenney & Co.; Gate City Brick Works; Manitoba Sunday School Association; Western Teachers' Bureau; North Empire Fire Insurance Co., and the J. D. Clark Co.

There were several narrow escapes owing to the fact that the elevator in the building collapsed at the first descent loaded with passengers, no one being injured in the collapse. Dr. Moffat, dentist, in the office of Dr. Curry, was badly injured in the back as the result of the strain caused by jumping 45 feet from the fourth storey into a life net. At midnight the fire was practically under control, and no casualties could be proven, although one or two had been reported missing. It was believed, in view of the fact that the firemen had not seen any bodies, that these persons may have remained in the crowd of spectators.

Bad Spelling Not Ignorance.

Robert Louis Stevenson might be cited in proof of the assertion that bad spelling does not necessarily imply ignorance. What writer ever displayed a fuller knowledge of the meaning of words or strung them together more musically, yet, says his biographer, "in every language he learned the grammar remained unknown to him, however correctly, he might use its idioms, and the spelling of his own tongue was dark to him to the very last." It was one of the tasks of Sir Sidney Colvin, to whom R. L. S. forwarded most of his manuscrips, to make the author's eccentric orthography conform to conventional standards before appearing in print.—London Daily Chronicle.

DEADLY ENEMIES MET AT HOTEL

Ugly Theory of Woodbine Tragedy Current in Ontario

TORONTO, March 24.—Although the origin of the Woodbine Hotel fire is still a profound mystery to the Toronto authorities, a story is circulating in several towns in eastern Ontario which may throw some light on the problem if thoroughly investigated by the police.

According to this story there were present in the hotel at the time of the fire two men who were deadly enemies. An encounter some months ago was the basis of this feud, the result of which was that one of them is said to have declared he would "get" the other.

When the two met under the same roof in the Woodbine Hotel it is said that the day of revenge was taken by the one to be at hand. At any rate, there was a fire, and there are five dead, the name of one of whom is connected with the feud and its threatened sequel.

Sectionmen May Strike.

MONTREAL, March 24.—The result of the recent conference between the officials of the Sectionmen's Union and the C.P.R., when it was decided to leave the demand of the men for an increase in pay until May 1, has been submitted to a vote and 85 per cent. of the 4,000 men interested have favored the taking of immediate action. At the C.P.R. head offices yesterday nothing was known of the decision of the sectionmen.

Valuable Papyrus Missing.

PARIS, March 24.—An Egyptian papyrus of great value is missing from the Louvre. It was presented to the museum in 1887 by Adolphe Cettang, a noted Egyptologist. He asked to see it recently. No one knew anything about it, nor could it be found. The papyrus is a magnificently illuminated example of "The Book of the Dead."

Japanese Cabinet Crisis.

TOKIO, March 24.—The Japanese Diet was prorogued yesterday by the Emperor of Japan, owing to the inability of the House of Peers and the House of Representatives to agree on the appropriations for the navy. It is believed that the Cabinet will resign.

Cost of Living In England.

Although 1913 was the third year of good employment and gradually rising wages in England, any gain that may have been made by the working class is counterbalanced by the steady rise in prices. This is shown by a review of "Employment, Wages, Prices and Disputes in 1913," published in the Board of Trade Labor Gazette.

The mean percentage of unemployment among the members of trade unions reporting was 2.1 in 1913, compared with 3.2 in 1912—the year of the coal strike—and 3 in 1911. This is the lowest percentage of unemployment since 1899.

There was a net increase in wages in fifteen groups of trades of $820,890 a week, but wholesale prices of forty-seven articles rose nearly 2 per cent. over 1912. The index number for 1913 was 116.5, compared with 100 for 1900, and was the highest since 1883. The greatest rise was in textiles, which were up 12.7 per cent., and meat, fish, and dairy produce were up 2.4 per cent.

CORRECTED BY A SENTRY.

The Incident Which Led to Coleridge Retiring From the Army.

In his young days the poet Coleridge had a little love affair which ended in disaster, for the lady refused him. In despair he enlisted in a cavalry regiment, which he hoped would be ordered on foreign service, that he might end his blighted career on the tented field. For family reasons he dropped his correct name, but from a feeling of sentiment retained the initials, so Samuel Taylor Coleridge became Private Silas Tompkins Camberhatch.

The regiment did not leave the country, and it was not long before his soul wearied of barrack life and its utter absence of romance. His military life ended in a curious fashion. One day while Coleridge was doing a weary sentry go two officers strolled past. One of them made use of a Greek quotation, which the other corrected. The first insisted on his correctness, while the other was just as positive he was wrong.

While they disputed, the sentry suddenly presented arms and respectfully informed them that they were both in error. He gave the exact quotation, name of the author and other circumstances. If his musket had spoken the bearers could not have been more astonished. The incident led to an inquiry, and the poet was restored to the bosom of his family.—Argonaut.

Another Lady Thinks "Fruit-a-tives" Greatest Tonic In The World.

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th. 1913.

I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" because they did me an awful lot of good. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollars' worth, but they did all that your advertising claims for them, and as I said before, I cannot speak too highly for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other medicines, that I am glad to say so and I trust that some other woman may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" for I know the results will be all that you claim".

WOULD HURRY REPEAL.

President Wilson Anxious To Get Panama Bill Passed.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—While President Wilson has no doubts about the passage of the administration bill to repeal the Panama tolls exemption, he is anxious that it be brought to a vote promptly. He has been advised that a vote probably will be taken as soon as the rivers and harbors bill has been disposed of.

The President said yesterday it looked to him as if there had been a filibuster on the rivers and harbors bill to delay the vote on the tolls question, but said that minorities always filibuster. He denied a charge made on the floor of the Senate that he had attempted to limit the tolls debate in the House. He said that while he had no part in suggesting a rule to limit debate, and he hoped there would be none.

In reply to questions as to whether he thought any improper influences were being brought bear against the repeal, the President declared that he had not sought to find any and did not suspect them.

FIRST OF OPPOSITION'S FLOCK OF BILLS IS UP

TAX REFORM BEFORE THE HOUSE

Hon. Mr. Hanna Replies to Fervid Oratory of Liberals That "Widespread Demand" Has Not Evidenced Itself Materially in Bye-Elections

TORONTO, March 24.—The first of the Opposition's perennial assessment reform bills was discussed in the Legislature yesterday, and the debate hinged on whether or not there was a real demand for a change. Hon. Mr. Hanna said that in none of the bye-elections had the Liberals tested their belief in the demand by making tax reform an issue. Mr. Rowell insisted that he had always advocated reform on the stumn, whereupon the Provincial Secretary observed that his oratory had not produced any noticeable effect. The debate continues to-day.

John McCormick (Lib., Lambton) moved the second reading of his bill, providing a form of local option in the method of assessment.

The pres age, he said, was one of improvements, and in Alberta and New Zealand, where the scheme outlined in the bill had been adopted, it had proven a great success. Was Ontario going to stand still and let all other places pass her? The Government was holding back progress, and whereas people were now being herded in large cities, taxation could provide a solution for the majority of their troubles. The rich farmer was benefiting at the expense of the poor one. In his own township the building of a silo brought $100 additional in assessment, and the same with any house addition. Municipalities with the power in their own hands could help the situation wonderfully.

The Provincial Secretary, in reply, said that although several bye-elections had occurred during the year he had not known of one in which the subject had been made an issue. If it had been mentioned it was only as a part of the old policy and had not been pressed. He believed that not a half dozen votes had been cast in opposition to the law as it stood.

There was further no demand in cities for a change and no complaint had reached his ears as to the law, and particularly the way it was being administered, said Mr. Hanna. If there was any doubt as to the way the law worked he would refer persons to the annual report of the city in which it was set forth as a criticism that the present act did not allow an assessment on buildings and lands at a higher rate.

The Minister summed up by saying that there had been no complaints during the year, and that the problem was by no means a live issue.

Mr. Rowell, who followed, expressed regret at the unsympathetic attitude of the Government and insisted that there was a real demand throughout the province for a change in assessment. The Government entirely misunderstood the attitude of the people if they thought that general satisfaction prevailed. The Government amendment of last session had increased rather than remedied the difficulties in the laws. The present act conferred upon them a limited further power of self-government which they were well capable of exercising in their own interest for the public good, and the Legislature would be doing useful public service in enlarging their powers.

In reply to Mr. Hanna's statement that there was no demand for a change, Mr. Rowell instanced the resolution of the Toronto Board of Trade, which had been confirmed by the Assembled Boards of Trade of the entire province, also the position taken by the Manufacturers' Association, which had suspended further action in the matter because the Government failed to give the matter the consideration it merited. Conservative papers, too, he said, had urged reform.

"My hon. friend has a good deal of courage to get up and say to this House that the public are satisfied with the existing law and that there is no demand for a change."

Allan Studholme followed and Col. Mayberry adjourned the debate.

JUDICIAL REMUNERATION DISCUSSED IN COMMONS

Hon. Col. Sam Hughes Sends Denial of Yorkshire Post Story—Hon. Mr. Doherty Assures Hon. Mr. Lemieux That No Radical Change in Privy Council Appeal Practice is Pending

OTTAWA, March 24.—The House spent practically all of yesterday's sitting in committee of supply. The salaries and pensions of judges were the principal items under investigation and elicited a prolonged discussion. From Quebec and Nova Scotia came a request for increase in judicial salaries. On the other hand Hon. H. R. Emmerson, speaking for New Brunswick, said that litigation had been continuously on the decrease for more than a quarter of a century past and yet nearly every year saw an increase in the number of judges.

There was some discussion as to the salaries of the Ontario county court judges, and Mr. Proulx of Prescott, declared that there should be no readjustment of judicial salaries until all fees were abolished. He said the county judge had a good many duties imposed upon him by the Legislature, but for all these he was paid in fees.

At the opening of the House G. W. Kyte (Richmond, N.S.) quoted again from The Yorkshire Post to the effect that Col. Sam Hughes had given assurance to the Ulster Orangemen that no obstacle would be thrown in the way of the thousand picked Canadians who are to join the Carson army in May.

The Prime Minister said that the Minister of Militia had been indisposed for some days, but would probably be in his seat to-morrow, and added: "I had occasion to send some message of sympathy to my colleague. In reply, he took occasion to say that the remarks attributed to him by The Yorkshire Post are entirely without foundation."

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, ex-Postmaster-General, took occasion to sound the Minister of Justice in the House yesterday as to his views regarding appeals to the Privy Council.

He asked Mr. Doherty if the Government had any intention of changing the present procedure of appeal to the Privy Council, and whether the Minister had intimated to Lord Haldane that Canada was in favor of having the Privy Council cases heard on this side of the ocean.

Mr. Doherty assured him that his fears had no foundation, and that the Government contemplated no change of procedure. Speaking as a lawyer he said, he was in favor of having certain Privy Council appeals heard in Canada, as there were often local conditions which could not be appreciated when heard in evidence thousands of miles away.

Hon. William Pugsley took his seat immediately after dinner, for the first time this session. He has lost considerable flesh, but his general appearance does not betoken ill-health. He was greeted by a great demonstration from the Liberal benches.

In answer to questions from the Liberal benches, the Acting Minister of Railways stated that the amount due Mr. George Howard Ferguson, M.P.P. for Grenville, for his services in connection with the Trent Valley Canal investigation was $985, of which $550 was for 37 days' service at $15 per day, $370 for expenses and disbursements, and $60 for preparing the official report to the Government. Mr. Ferguson, the Minister said, was appointed by order in council on Oct. 14, 1912, as a commissioner to investigate charges in regard to the purchase and use of explosives on the canal. On Nov. 28 another order in council was passed extending the scope of his commission to include investigation of all kinds of irregularities. Nothing has as yet been paid to Mr. Ferguson.

KEPHALDOL

"IS ABSOLUTELY MARVELLOUS AS A PAIN KILLER"

Mrs. Beatrice Cassey, of Swalecliff, England, knows what it means to be bed-ridden with pain. She also knows now how easily the tortures of Rheumatism and Lumbago may be overcome. She says, "My experience with KEPHALDOL as a painkiller is absolutely marvellous. I had a fearfully acute attack last year of Neuritis, Sciatica and Lumbago, and suffered in bed for many days. Finally, I heard of KEPHALDOL, which did wonders for me. I shall always feel most grateful for what it has done, and I am most happy to let others know of its wonderful effects as a pain destroyer."

KEPHALDOL is the only pain reliever that does not affect the heart. It acts directly on the nerve centers, easing and quieting the pain. KEPHALDOL is the favorite combination of nerve stimulants and tonics prescribed by the famous Doctor Stohr, of Vienna, the great nerve specialist.

KEPHALDOL is now sold in Canada by druggists in 50c tubes or may be had by sending 50c direct to Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

Red Cross Prolongs War.

Miss Edith Durham, whose despatches from the Balkans contained some of the most vivid descriptions of the horrors of the recent war, lecturing in London expressed her conviction that "no Red Cross aid ought to be sent out in a war. To heal men's wounds and send them back to the front as soon as possible is to prolong war indefinitely."

But for the Red Cross aid, she said, the war would have been ended much sooner than it was. If the bullet from a Mauser rifle does not hit a vital part, the wounded can return to the front in ten days. The one idea of the wounded, she said, was to get back for revenge and loot.

First Woman on Stage.

It was in January, 1661, that according to Peyps' Diary, women first appeared on the stage. Previously female parts had been played by young men and boys. This revolution seems to have been wrought by Charles II., who had been kept waiting because "the Queen was not shaved." The Merry Monarch enjoyed the joke, but arranged that in future tragic queens should need no razor.

Not Divided in Death.

BROCKVILLE, March 24.—James Dempsey and his wife, a couple aged about 65 years, residing in the Township of Kitley, where the former farmed successfully for many years, died within twenty-four hours of each other of pneumonia after less than one week's illness. Mrs. Dempsey passed away on Saturday and was followed early Sunday morning by her husband, who sank gradually after learning of the death of his wife.

Corn Growers Want Aid.

ESSEX, March 24.—Ontario Corn Growers' Association will take advantage of the big deputation to Ottawa this week on radial matters to interview Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, and make request for assistance in several matters. The need of an experimental station in Essex or Kent will be presented. The Department will be asked to move toward standardizing of the varieties of seed corn.

ONLY FOUR MORE DAYS BIG CONTEST NEARS END

YOUR EFFORT THIS WEEK YOUR REWARD

A Few More Ticks of the Hour Hands of Father Time and Your Future Will be a Reality—Only Four More Days —Your Choice, Success or Failure

Only four more days and the greatest of prize contests will be to an end. A great many candidates seem to confuse the closing of the contest with vote offers, they seem to think that the contest will run along just the same. But wake up, dreamers, before the end comes and bring in every subscription possible Saturday evening, also don't forget to have your votes in the ballot box.

About the Judges.

There will be three well-known business men as judges, whose names will be announced in a later issue of The Review, whose duty will be to count the votes and subscriptions. They or the Review will not be to blame if any candidates fail to have their votes in the ballot box by the closing hour. Don't think that you can mail your votes in and so they bear the post mark of 8 p.m., Mar. 28, that they will count, for they will not count unless they are in the ballot box by 8 p.m. March 28.

One Subscription May Do It.

In a contest of this kind the last is where it is the hardest for the candidates to secure votes. First the territory in a great many places has been pretty well canvassed, second every live energetic worker is out doing their best and it makes competition more keen, but this is the time where the worker will be very highly rewarded, the candidate who secures the largest amount of votes this week will be the one very likely who will be crowned with this great honor next Saturday evening. Better hit the high places this week if you expect to win. One sing[illegible]cription may do it.

BLOUNT'S NEW MEN FAVORABLY KNOWN; WHAT'S WHAT AROUND CANUCK CIRCUIT

"Mully" Miller, a Catcher Appears on Roster of the White Caps

Youngstown, O., March 24.—Curley Blount, manager of the Peterboro team of the Canadian League, which will do its spring training at Wright Field here, has signed a number of new players who have gained local fame.

"Mully" Miller, catcher last year for the Youngstown team, will be his mainstay in that position. Ray M. Croll, of Hubbard, catcher, has also been signed. Ambrose Zeliski, a pitcher from Hubbard, is on the list and looks good to Blount.

The players will report here on April 15 for practice.

St. Thomas, March 24.—Ray Clements, the big spitball artist, who is spending a few days in the city with Chas. Smith, is trying to get transferred to the New York State League. He has not yet signed his St. Thomas contract, but Midge Craven says as there is no chance for his transfer, he expects Ray will come to terms soon.

The London club will commence to train at Marietta on April 7th. Manager Dr. Reisling has been in London for the past few days making final arrangements with the directors for the training trip. The following is his complete roster:

Catchers — Jack Danford, Cy. Reidy, and Jack Snyder.

Pitchers—Bobby Heck, Ben Beebe Heinie Steiger, Carl Hammond, Al. Houseman, Jack Ryley, and Dr. Reisling.

First Basemen—Louis Baerbauer, and Jim Malley.

Second Basemen—Eddie Linneborn.

Shortstop—Roy Whitcraft.

Third Basemen—Mike Mullen and Emil Rychner.

Outfielders—Ed. Lamy, Jack Long, Joe Munn, Raymond Okey, Ellis Manning, and Williams.

Marlin, Tex., March 24.—Wilson, who has been working with the Dallas club for some time, was the only new man to join Kelley's squad here.

The players started taking baths yesterday, and had their first practice this morning. The weather is delightful and the squad are all anxious to start work. Kelley stayed over in Dallas with the Giants, and expects to complete the deal for Pitcher Hearne.

Jordan is in splendid shape, and will likely remain with the Giants until they take their final departure from here on Wednesday next. He will then join the Leafs. McGraw declares the big fellow has shaken off several of his years, and should this year play up to the form that made him such a valuable man to the Leafs a couple of years ago.

Toronto will work out on the old ball field three blocks from their hotel until Wednesday, when they take possession of the Giants' field, a half mile from present headquarters.

A game with New York is booked for Wednesday.

The probabilities are for continued fine weather.

Pick Not Well.

Pick is the only member of the Leafs who has not wintered well. He is still under the weather, but his indisposition is nothing that a few days here should not remedy. Tim Jordan, Wilson and Hearne are ready to go in at once. Fitzpatrick is well and O'Hara needs little more than outdoor work. The half dozen yet to report are expected to-day with Kelley from Dallas.

The programme calls for morning and afternoon practice, starting today.

The Giants' field is an ideal one, with a lovely infield and magnificent outer garden. There is no car service and the players must hoof the mile round trip. Uniforms were distributed yesterday. Kelley is still looking for a right-handed hitter to fill the gap in the outfield. The St. Louis semi-pro. has backed out. There is a chance that McGraw will leave one of his contingent behind.

Feds. have been flirting with Catcher Kelly again, but he has told them he will live up to the Toronto contract.

FLANIGAN AND KELLY

It doesn't make much difference now, how fares the Emerald Isle; if Carson flies the Orange flag or Redmond gets Home Rule. It doesn't even matter how the Giants stand this year, or whether Mac's new Maple Leafs are up or in the rear. The Feds can swipe all stars that shine on this or other lots, the baseball gents can heave us up or leave us where we are. The Irish fans around this burg will give an awful scream as Curley Blount the peerless one, has Irish on his team. You'll hear them when the ball games start, each out in song will burst, as Kelly works behind the bat with Flanigan at first.

Thrift at Any Cost.

"Holy mackerel!" roared Crabshaw up the dumbwaiter shaft. "Why do you play that one record over and over again without a change?"

"Because," Pennypincher angrily shouted down, "I hate the darn thing and I want to wear it out so I can throw it away."—Judge.

IS THE EARTH DRYING UP?

This Is a Question Upon Which Scientists Do Not Agree.

There is a wide difference of opinion among scientists as to whether or not the earth is regularly losing moisture The theory propounded by Dr. Gregory in his lecture before the Royal Geographical society that the earth is not drier than it was 1,000 or 2,000 years ago may be strictly true if loss and gain are balanced against each other all over the globe, but in many notable instances of special interest to mortals there seems to be no doubt as to the desiccation, says the London Standard.

The volume of water pouring over Victoria falls is nothing like what it was only thirty years ago, while 200 miles to the southwest of it Lake Ngami, a great sheet of water in Livingstone's day, is now but a mass of reeds.

In the western Sudan the climate has been artificially desiccated by the natives in burning down the trees to increase the cultivable area. It is true that Dr. Sven Hedin does not think that Persia has perceptibly dried up in the last 2,000 years.

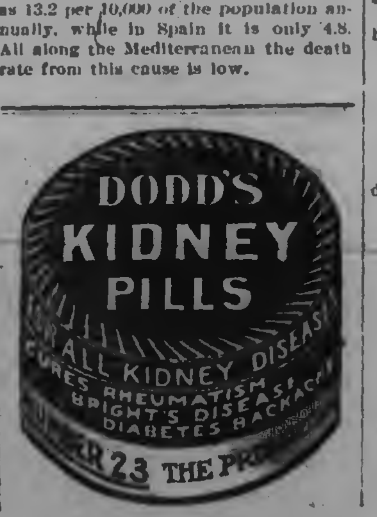
On the other hand, that other great Asiatic traveler, M. Aurel Stein, has stated that there is "incontrovertible evidence of the desiccation of eastern Turkestan in historical times," and American scientists who have studied the conditions in Palestine maintain that the Dead sea is seventy feet lower than it was in the time of Christ.

Even the Appian Way Is Not Spared.

Rome's venerable Appian way, with its countless associations of a magnificent past, will now be disfigured by the desecrating rails of a modern tramway. In the interior of the city streets are being torn up and ancient squares sacrificed to projected enlargements This road, the oldest and most famous of Roman roads, was begun in 312 B. C. and is from fourteen to eighteen feet wide, paved with large stone blocks.

Ravages of Cancer.

Some 75,000 persons die of cancer every year in the United States and half a million in the civilized world. A trifle over 3 per cent of all human beings die of that disease. In Europe the death rate from cancer is as high as 13.2 per 10,000 of the population annually, while in Spain it is only 4.8. All along the Mediterranean the death rate from this cause is low.



Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE HIGHER PLANE.

AT last the race is sprouting wings,
And in the upper air
Mankind is floating with the birds
And quite at home up there,
Cavorting in the ether blue
And sailing in the skies
As if he knew it all the time
That he was bound to rise.

For many, many weary years
Man traveled on the ground,
And in this time 'twas all that he Could do to get around,
For when he didn't have a pass
Upon a train or boat
'Twas up to him to walk or swim
Unless he pawned his coat.

But now at last he spurns the earth
And with a running start
Goes gliding moonward like a man
Who thought himself so smart,
Scoots on like one determined he
Both time and space would kill
And breaks a record, too, unless
He bumps into a hill.

The latest wonder of the age,
The conquest of the skies,
And isn't it, when all is said,
A mighty fine surprise?
To rise on light and airy wings
And sail away in style—
It sounds so good! Still, we will take
The street car for awhile.

TURNED TABLES ON DAN.

Dargavel Was Revenged and Ladies' Aid Waxed Rich.

Since Dan Derbyshire, the "Cheese King of Canada," was translated to the Senate a few years ago, he has not been much in the public eye, but when the Senator was an M.P. and used to address farmers' institutes and dairymens' meetings all over Eastern Ontario, there was no more genial or popular idol with the rural folk. They would flock in crowds to hear him, and he usually had a good story or two to narrate which never failed to catch on. He went out one night to a tea meeting in Leeds county, accompanied by J. R. Dargavel, then M.P.P. The good ladies of the church had prepared what was called a "birthday cake," and "Uncle Dan," as he is familiarly styled in and around Brockville, was asked to auction off the interesting object. Bidding was slow, and when a couple of dollars had been reached, the amateur auctioneer halted. "Two dollars, I am offered. Two dollars. Are you all done? Fair warning, last call. Last call, do you hear me? And sold to J. R. Dargavel for five dollars." The shout of laughter that went up at the expense of Mr. Derbyshire's friend and associate was enough to shake the building.

Mr. Dargavel accepted the situation good-naturedly, but there was a twinkle in his eye. His admirers thought he might be able to get even, but did not exactly know how. Mounting the platform Mr. Dargavel said: "I have just bought this birthday cake for five dollars," and he handed over the money.

"Now," he continued, "the property is mine, and it is the privilege of any owner to do just as he pleases with his own goods. I propose that we have another little sale for the benefit of the good ladies. Some of the men, catching an inkling of what was up, started the bidding in lively fashion, and the price of the cake ran up speedily. Then all of a sudden the bidding ceased, and quick as a flash Mr. Dargavel closed the sale with the words "and sold to Mr. Dan Derbyshire for the sum of ten dollars." The tall, heavyweight form of Uncle Dan rose slowly from a seat, but the smile was rather sheepish, as he remarked: "Occasionally a politician gets caught in his own trap." The coffer of the Ladies' Aid Society was, however, enriched by a ten-spot from a source that was totally unexpected.

RAISING HIS WRATH.

The Floorwalker Jots Down Another Aggravating Experience.

THERE are times when the ingenuity of even a floorwalker is taxed to the limit. The other day a man, evidently just over from the tight little isle, walked up to one.

"I beg your pardon," he said, "but where can I find the raisers?"

"The cutlery department is in the basement," replied the floorwalker and gave directions for finding the stairs.

"Oh, but I don't want the cutlery department! I want"—

"Well, come to think of it, the safety razors are in the men's furnishing department this week," said the floorwalker, who then told how to get to that department.

The Englishman was flustered. "I want to find the raisers."

"And I'm trying to tell you where to find them."

"But I mean raisers," insisted the Englishman.

"Exactly. I understand you. You want a razor."

"Not to shave with," said the customer, "but to go up in."

"Elevator?" asked the floorwalker.

The Englishman breathed easily. "Yes, that's it. I knew you didn't call them lifts, as we do, and I thought I'd made myself plain."

Then he received directions as to how to get to the elevator.—New York Times.

CHANGE IN THE BIBLE CLASS NAME

Men's Social Bible Class at George Street Church

The Men's Bible Class of the George Street Methodist Sunday School, formerly known as the "Inthon" Class, feeling that the name "Inthon" did not convey the real meaning of the workings of the class, decided that a change of name would be in the interests of the same.

Therefore it was resolved that in future the class should be known as "The Men's Social Bible Class." A hearty invitation is extended to all men of the city to meet with us in the Church Parlor at 3 p.m. Sunday, March 29th. C. E. WILEY, Class Secretary.

PEOPLE WHO ARE WITHOUT BACKBONE

Evangelist Pugsley Asks Who Pulls the Strings?

The interest in the Evangelistic Services at Park Street Baptist Church continues to grow. Last night a very large congregation greeted Evangelist Pugsley to hear his address on "Who pulls the string?" He remarked how life is made a wreck in majority of cases because men and women are not governed by their own best judgment, but are led about by others. To use a common phrase they have no backbone.

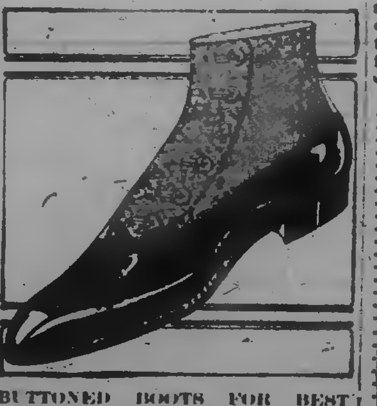
The sermon was packed full of practical illustrations taken from life. It was a strong appeal to Christians for more consistency in life and greater efficiency in service, and to the unsaved to embrace Christ as their only hope of salvation. At the close of the service seven confessed Christ. All were adults and several of them heads of families. Rev. Cunningham of the Free Methodist Church took part in the opening services. Last week's meetings were a grand success and this week's promises to even surpass them.

THE CHORAL SOCIETY.

The weekly rehearsal of the St. George's Choral Society will be held to-night as usual in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute, at 8 o'clock sharp. The committee urge that from now on that every member earnestly try to be present at every rehearsal, as there remain only a few more rehearsals until the performance of the Oratorio. There is still time for prospective members to gain the class.

ESTHER PRACTICE.

The George Street Methodist Choir, together with those who have kindly consented to assist in the work "Esther," are requested to meet for rehearsal in the schoolroom this (Tuesday) evening at 8 o'clock sharp.



BUTTONED BOOTS FOR BEST DRESSERS.

The sort of boot that is fashionable for dressy wear for men is here shown in patent leather, the most fashionable leather of the season, and in the buttoned effect that prevails in almost every type of boot. The upper is gray cloth with pearl gray buttons while the toe has the receding line that is so fashionable now for men and women's footwear.

To Assist Mackenzie.

TORONTO, March 24. — L. C. Fritch, chief engineer of the Chicago Great Western Railroad, has been appointed assistant to the president of the Canadian Northern Railway. Mr. Fritch will assume his new duties on April 1, with headquarters in Toronto. His duties will be to assist the president in all matters pertaining to the operation of the road and will not be confined to any particular department.

It is believed that the appointment of Mr. Fritch is the first step in the reorganization of the C.N.R., under the new financial deal to be made with the Government.

GOVERNMENT PUTS BLAME ON PAGET'S SHOULDERS

Unionists in Britain Believe That the Ministry Has Tried to Scare Covenanters and Has Been Thwarted By the Officers of the Army

LONDON, March 24. — The defection of the army officers who refused to serve in Ulster is now a closed incident, but its consequences are likely to prove far-reaching. Premier Asquith and Col. Seely, Secretary of State for War, made explanations before an excited and turbulent House yesterday that the whole affair was the result of a misunderstanding.

This misunderstanding, it was inferred, although they did not directly say so, was due to misconstruction of the Government's plans by the commanding general, Sir Arthur Paget, whereby he informed the officers in Ireland that they were to move on Ulster for a repressive campaign.

Gen. Paget and three senior officers from the Curragh camp — Gen. Gough, Col. McEwen and Col. Parker —were summoned to London for a conference. According to official statements the misunderstanding has been cleared away, and these officers returned to Ireland last night. Prior to their departure they said they were entirely satisfied with the results of their visit. The terms on which the officers remain at their posts were not disclosed, but the general belief is that they were assured that they would not be compelled to fight against the Ulstermen. This is considered a distinct surrender by the Government.

The Unionists firmly believe that the Government has participated in a fiasco. They think that the two most enterprising spirits of the Cabinet, David Lloyd George and Winston Spencer Churchill, were the chief movers in the plan and that the Government proposed a wholesale movement of troops in Ulster to overawe the covenanters by the display of superior force and the arrest of their leaders and that the plan was frustrated only by the opposition of the officers.

Liberal newspapers of high standing and influence, like The Daily Chronicle and The Daily News, print bitter denunciations of the officers as part of the Tory aristocracy which insists upon the prerogative of ruling the country against the will of the people and demand the democratization of the army and that the system of officering it from the sons of the rich be superseded by a system whereby officers may be promoted from the ranks.

The labor papers are equally bitter and demand to know why privates should not have the same privilege of refusing to fire upon workingmen when called upon to suppress strike riots.

Carson Is Impressed.

BELFAST, March 24.—Sir Edward Carson, commenting on the Parliamentary debate, said last night:

"Hour by hour I am becoming more impressed with the Government's message of peace to Ulster."

Sir Edward Carson is still at Craigavon, which is surrounded by sentries. He received yesterday a number of battalion commanders of his army and sent long despatches to his lieutenants in London. He says be will not leave Belfast until the crisis is over.

Volunteers patrolled the street yesterday, having first received explicit instructions from their commander to deal promptly with any of their own men acting in a disorderly manner, and to give the police immediate assistance in any such case. The city is absolutely quiet, but great interest was displayed in the Parliamentary statements by the crowds which remained around the bulletin boards of the newspapers most of the night.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Meat and Gout.

Butcher's meat contains a large proportion of fiber, which constitutes one of the most difficult forms of waste matter to get rid of. And the ill effects of this waste matter are more pronounced as people get older, for, however healthy they may be, their systems become less capable of eliminating it.

It is an excellent rule, therefore, for all persons approaching middle age, even for those who have got into the forties, to reduce their allowance of butcher's meat, especially beef, taking it no oftener than once a day and preferably at midday instead of in the evening. Digestion goes on very slowly, if at all, during the hours of sleep, and the habit of eating meat at late dinner or supper is one of the chief causes tending to gout and rheumatism of the gouty type.

Speech Following Fashions.

"While we are seeking for purity in the writing and speech of the English language, we seem to be going backward with the fashions," said Thomas Nelson Page, author, traveler and diplomat, "but it is inconsistent. Why must the women who wear diaphanous gowns and parade in the strong sunlight insist on a D and dash for a common word that is not a blasphemy and an H and dash to describe a place abundantly described in the Bible, and why must they avoid the expression 'naked truth' and call it the 'undraped actuality'?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Carveth Gets Two Years.

TORONTO, March 24. — William Carveth, one of the three young men who were arrested on Sunday night on a charge of automobile thefts, was sentenced to two years in the Kingston Penitentiary in the police court yesterday. The other two men who were arrested in connection with the thefts were discharged, as they had been merely riding in the stolen cars and had nothing to do with the actual theft. The mother of young Carveth fainted when sentence was imposed.

Alaska's Tin.

Tin of good quality is regarded as a nuisance in some parts of Alaska, where it is thrown aside by the gold miners. In the richest spots as much as half a pound of tin to the pan is reported, which at the present price of the ore would give the gravels a value, not allowing for costs of mining or transportation, of $18 to $20 a yard, according to assay.

Low Cost of Living.

Prairie chickens have gone up to $2 and quail to 75 cents a dozen, but you can get plenty of buffalo meat at 3 to 5 cents, antelope at 6 to 7 cents and venison at 6 to 8 cents a pound, as well as wild ducks at $1 to $1.50 a dozen and wild geese at 50 to 60 cents a dozen.—"Forty Years Ago Today" in Kansas City Times.

A Bath Without Water.

To have a bath without water is one of the latest novelties. A thick robe is entwined with wires, and when put on a current of electricity is passed through the wires. The wearer of the robe soon finds his body getting warmer until in a little while he perspires as freely as if he were in a Turkish bath. [illegible]

ANCIENT ARTIFICIAL LIMBS.

Iron and Wooden Hands and Legs and Plaster and Silver Noses.

There is in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, an artificial leg, made about 300 B. C., of bronze, wood and iron. Who has not heard of the famous "Iron Hand" made in Nuremberg, Germany, in 1504, for the German knight, Goetz von Berlichingen? Among the old time Indians ears, noses and lips of plaster were quite common, one of their ordinary punishments being to cut off these useful parts of the human anatomy. Greek and Roman veterans who had lost a leg or an arm in the wars used to replace them by substitutes and Plinius speaks of a Roman veteran soldier who—about 150 years B. C.—was famous for the wooden hand with which he was still able to fight as an able swordsman. In 1604 the Duke of Brunswick had to use an artificial hand.

Artificial limbs with movable joints were also largely made by the famous Ambroise Pare—1517 to 1590—the celebrated French surgeon known as "the father of French surgery." He was surgeon to Henry II.—1552—and also to Francis II., Charles IX. and Henry III. Later on Father Sebastian, a Carmelite monk, was renowned for the manufacture of movable arms and hands. About the middle of the seventeenth century Falcinelli, a Florentine surgeon, mentions artificial eyes of gold, silver and crystal painted in different colors. He also describes gold and silver ears which were either tied to the head with strings or else sewed on the skin of the scalp by the aid of gold and silver wire. Silver noses, too, are spoken of as having been in use for a long time.

GENERAL SUPPORT PROMISED FOR PEACE CELEBRATION IN THIS CITY NEXT YEAR

Committee is Appointed to Take up Question With Adjoining Municipalities

That Peterborough and the surrounding district will hold a big celebration sometime during the year 1915 in honor of the Hundred Years of Peace with the United States, was in brief the result of the public meeting held last night in the Council Chamber, at which Major C. F. Hamilton, hon. secretary of the Canadian Peace Centenary Association explained the movement which has met with such a favorable reception both here and in the United Staes.

One hundred years ago next twenty-fourth of December, the Treaty of Ghent was signed, whereby the war of 1812-13-14 between Canada and the United States was brought to a close. The war had no material effect save upou the national spirit of both countries. The Americans invaded Canada unsuccessfully, the British burned the public buildings at Washington, but met later with a terrible reverse at New Orleans. When hostilities were brought to a close by the treaty, no advantage was given to either side. Although the war was, some claim, fruitless, yet on one hand it taught Great Britain respect for the young republic, and on the other it confirmed the British possession of Canada. Both the Yanks and Canucks were ready to settle down and be at peace.

For one hundred happy years has this peace been unbroken, and is it not very becoming to celebrate it in a fitting manner? When the question was first brought out, it at once received the approval of both the Canadian and American Governments, and two associations were formed, one Canadian and the other American. The Canadian Association, according to Major Hamilton, has met with great success. It was deemed advisable to select centres, in which to hold the celebrations. Some of the centres where the idea has already been deeply planted are: Belleville, Orillia, Galt, Guelph, Niagara Falls, Port Arthur and others. Peterborough has been selected and the main purpose of last night's meeting was to decide whether the citizens would take upon themselves to celebrate the function in a suitable way.

Some of the features in connection with the national celebration will be immortal and will serve as a reminder, in future years.

Erect Monuments.

It is proposed to erect a large monument in London, Eng., and several smaller monuments at Canadian and American points. International auto roads will be established, one near the Atlantic, and the other near the Pacific, stretching perhaps from Los Angeles to Vancouver. All these will tend toward keeping up a friendly feeling.

The local celebration, Major Hamilton pointed out, could best be celebrated in the summer months. Although the treaty was signed on December 24 and ratified on the 17th of the following February, it would be unwise to hold it on either of these dates, because of our winter weather. A more appropriate time would be in the summer season when large out-door entertainments could be put on, and the people of this section of the province would be more willing to come and join us. A big militia field day or some attraction similar would add greatly to the day's programme. Previous to the celebration, the school children would be taught the significance of it, and could be depended upon to take a very active part.

The expenditure, which would be very slight, would have to be met locally, but the benefit it would be to Peterboro would amply repay any small cost and energy set forth.

His Worship Bayor Buller, who acted in the capacity of chairman, followed Major Hamilton's remarks by a few words, heartily endorsing the movement, and assuring those interested that the City Council would take an active part in the work. He read letters from Canon Davidson and Mr. G. C. Wainwright regretting they were unable to attend, but stating that they were in hearty sympathy with the movement. His Worship also vouched for Judge Huycke's interest and assistance.

The opinions of some of the ladies and gentlemen present were then requested. Rev. H. J. Keith stated that he was heartily in sympathy with the idea, and he felt confident that the churches would do everything in their power to make it a success. Mr. Walker remarked that the celebration could be made a grand success if enough energy be put into it. He favored the idea of holding it in the summer months in preference to December or February. Ex-Mayor Bradburn, Ex-Mayor Morrow, Col. Miller, Col. Clegg, J. J. John, Dr. Morrison, Alderman Duffus, Alderman Anderson and Mr. Basil Hall also endorsed the idea.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, in speaking of the movement, remarked how pleasing it was to see men who had taken part in active service, Major Hamilton, Col. Miller and Mr. W. R. Turner, interested in celebrating peace.

Mr. J. Smith assured the meeting that "Old Ashburnham" would do her part to make the affair a success.

Mr. F. H. Dobbin brought out an excellent suggestion when he mentioned inviting the Council of the City of Rochester to assist in the local celebration. In days of yore that body visited the city and no doubt would come again. He remarked how an out-of-town body of this nature would add dignity to the occasion and would serve as a better indcuenemtfl better inducement to the people in the surrounding towns.

Mrs. J. C. Davidson, who was among the ladies present, was called upon and assured the meeting that the Women's Council would lend every assistance possible.

To conclude the meeting, His Worship Mayor Buller added a few words to his first remarks, urging the citizens to go into the matter with an overflowing amount of energy. He was very pleased to find Peterboro one of the centres selected, and as Mayor of the City he was willing to do his share in the work.

The committee appointed was as follows: Mayor Buller, Col. Clegg and Mr. Basil Hall. This committee will communicate with the other towns and villages in this district, and a larger meeting will be held at a later date.

TA vote of thanks moved by Messrs. W. C. Ackerman and Jas. amilton, was extended to the speaker.

PETERBORO HEALTH ASSOCIATION

There is a certain romance about Christian and humane work when the scene is far away across oceans and under the blazing skies of distant and different countries. The word of Christ, however, was that the work of extending His Kingdom should "begin at Jerusalem" and the proverb which commends itself to all intelligent people is that "Charity should begin at home."

It would be a surprise to many in our own city if they would acquaint themselves with some conditions which exist within the city limits and the need of material and scientific help that presents itself at our very doors.

One of the nurses of the Health Association is now caring for a tubercular patient—a man of about thirty-five years of age, who, with his father, has been living in one room of a dilapidated building that has no indication of being a home. The father and son have been cooking, eating, and sleeping in this single room, the windows of which were nailed down. The father was the one whose work was necessary to provide an existence for himself and his afflicted son. The bed on which they slept was infested with vermin and the food provided entirely inadequate under the circumstances. Look at the change wrought since this case has received the ministry of the Association. The place has been cleaned, fresh air is now supplied. The old bed has gone up in smoke and a new, clean outfit has been loaned. Milk and eggs furnished as they are required and an atmosphere of hope has been inspired. Surely this is the work to which the Master directed his followers and surely it should have the heartiest support of all who love their fellowmen.

This is only one of many cases. Two others are in comfortable homes and require no material help, but are rejoicing in the scientific instruction that has been given them and that makes such a difference to the present comfort and hope of ultimate recovery of the patients.

Another case has been very interesting to the writer, where one of tender years has been supporting herself and helping to support others until smitten with this trouble. The directions of the nurse are being carried out and every effort is being made to bring about the recovery of the health of this brave girl.

No one in Peterborough need look far for a place to bestow gifts that will be handled carefully and will be a real benediction to those most needy.

London, March 26.—The resignations of Sir John French, Chief of the general staff, and Sir John Spencer Ewart, adjutant general, are expected in military circles as a consequence of their being associated with Col. Winston Churchill and Col. Seely also conferred with Premier Asquith.

London, March 26.—An evening newspaper says Sir John French has resigned as head of the general staff, and a news agency says Adjutant General Ewart has also handed in his papers. These statements are based on the reply made by Lloyd George to a question at the opening of the House to-day as to whether these officers resigned. The Chancellor said the Prime Minister would make an announcement on this point at the close of the sitting.

MARRIAGE WAS SUGGESTED DURING NEGOTIATIONS TO BUY STORE PROPERTY

So Mrs. Mary Pier Says of Evangelist Sarazen a Grocer

SHE ASKS $305.55

Claiming That Sarazen Signed an Agreement to Buy the Store

A claim for $304.55 was heard before Judge Huycke this morning at County Court. The plaintiff, Mrs. Mary Pier, claims the above amount due her from a transaction with Evangelist Sarazen, of Bethune St. arising out of a deal in a store and fixtures on Hunter Street West last fall.

Mr. G. N. Gordon is acting for the plaintiff, and Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., for the complainant.

Mrs. Pier gave evidence to the effect that she came here last summer and opened a restaurant on Hunter Street near the corner of Aylmer and Hunter. Shortly afterward she became acquainted with Sarazen. He called for his meals regularly and then offered to buy her out.

Suggested Marriage.

He had also become very friendly with her and suggested marriage. Mrs. Pier signed an agreement, selling the place to Sarazen for the stated amount. The agreement was drawn up on a Sunday but was dated one week back or so in order to show that the deal had not been consummated on Sunday.

Sarazen was to pay $50 down, and the rest as stipulated in the agreement. She never received a cent from him, however, and some time ago instituted proceedings against him. She had learned from him after the deal was through that he had a wife and family. He refused to marry her, saying that one was all he could look after, and that he could not do anything for her.

"What inducement did he offer you?" asked Mr. Gordon.

"His hand and also that he was a rich man," replied the witness, "who gave her age as 49. She has a son 30 years of age.

"You never received a cent on the goods?"

"No."

The son stated that he was present and had drawn up the agreement. Sarazen was to liquidate the few debts and pay $50 down.

Police Surveillance.

Mr. Dumble—"Did you know that your place was under police surveillance last year?"

"I did not," he replied.

The son explained that his mother slept at her rooms over O'Donnell's store.

"Did not bad characters frequent your place?" further questioned Magistrate Dumble.

"No."

Here Mr. Gordon entered a strenuous objection against this proceeding, but Mr. Dumble contended that he was questioning the witness's character. His Honor upheld Mr. Dumble.

"You swear that there was not anything out of the ordinary going on at your place?" was the next question submitted to the witness, who positively denied anything of this sort going on.

Mrs. Millie Grose, a cook at the restaurant, gave her version of the affair, which was similar to the other witness.

M. T. Butcher gave evidence to the value of the furniture and other effects.

The case is proceeding this afternoon.

MAYOR AND ALD. JOHNSTON GO TO THE CAPITAL

Deputation Will Ask Government to Deepen the St. Lawrence

HYDRO RADIALS

Mayor Buller and Ald. Johnston left last night for Ottawa to help swell the deputation to wait on the Government urging the necessity of immediately going on with the deepening of the St. Lawrence River to make an ocean waterway. The deputation will also urge that the projected 6,400 miles of Hydro radial lines in Ontario should receive the same Government subsidy that other railways in the country receive. The necessity for the development of more electric energy will also be put forward.

Purpose of Deputation

The deputation will set out that the Ontario Hydro-Electric power system has proven an unqualified success, but under present arrangements only 100,000 h.p. is available. According to a recent statement by the Hon. Adam Beck, 80 per cent. of this amount will be in use by the end of the year. Apart from an early arrangement for additional supplies, further extensions to municipalities end for farmers, services and Hydro-Electric railways will be impossible, and the municipalities at present supplied from Niagara will be forced largely to go back to steam, or to dual service.

DEPUTATION INSPECTS THE INCINERATOR

Lockport Visitors State Their City Will Have One

Messrs. John M. Horning, J. F. Frehser, Michael Mullaney, A. W. Rooney and J. McCoy, constituting a deputation from Lockport, N.Y. to examine the local incinerator, arrived in the city last night and were present at the big furnace a few minutes after seven o'clock this morning. Everything was working in first class order. The gentlemen were greatly pleased with its work, and stated that the city of Lockport will erect one of the same size (20 tons) but will have it in two units of ten tons each. One of these units could be working while the other was dead. The local officials may erect a brick wall in the centre of the local one and thus put an end to the trouble of not having enough garbage to keep the incinerator burning.

The deputation left on the G. T. R. 11.40 for Toronto.

A young son of Mrs. Burns gained entrance by means of a back window and opened the door for the others, who were horrified to find Mrs. Farnell dead in bed.

Dr. Mann was quickly summoned, and also Coroner Dr. Greer, who stated that she had been dead for over two days. Death was pronounced due to heart failure.

Two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Vass and Miss Mary Farnell, residing in this city, are left to mourn her demise.

Her husband is also a resident in this city, but has not been living with his wife for the past year owing to some estrangement and also from an order by Magistrate Dumble.

The late Mrs. Farnell is said to have left considerable property and money. She had resided on Rubidge Street for the past nine months or so.

WATCH MISSING FOR TWO YEARS

Judgment is Reserved by Magistrate Dumble

Judgment was reserved for one week in the Patrick Lavery theft case heard before Magistrate Dumble yesterday afternoon at a special sitting of the court.

Lavery pleaded not guilty to the charge of theft and was defended by Mr. V. J. McElerry. His story was to the effect that his son had found the watch. They watched all local papers for advertisements. The watch had been found two years ago. Evidence by Mr. and Mrs. Finnie, complainants, was to the effect that Mrs. Finnie had lost the watch about two years ago. She identified the watch as her property.

The case is a peculiar one in many respects, and His Worship reserved judgment.

STUBBORNNESS

Naaman the Most Stubborn Man in the Bible

An appreciative and attentive audience listened to one of the most practical sermons of the mission at Park Street last night, when Evangelist Pugsley depicted the delusions of a stubborn man fighting against God. The Evangelist claimed Naaman was the most stubborn fellow in the Bible, who was wo[illegible] God but was compelled to [illegible]own before he could be healed. His pride, prejudice and preconception were hindrances to his healing, but when he took a plunge, as requested, was healed and went home a well man. "A proud heart and lofty mountain are never fruitful."

Several requested prayer at the close of the meeting. Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor of Murray St. Church was present and offered the opening prayer, also Rev. Mr. Ireland, pastor of the Methodist Church, Bridgenorth, was present and took part. The male quartette rendered very appropriate music. All were delighted with the service. The special sermon Friday night on "Wobblers," is creating comment and a full house is sure to greet the evangelist. All welcome.

Yesterday at 12.30 a service was held at the factory of B. F. Ackerman & Son by the evangelist and Rev. Mr. Conners.

The afternoon meeting in the church was largely attended and the evangelist spoke on Two Resurrections. The mission will close Sunday night and on Monday night there will be a special service for converts.

GUELPH PASTOR MAY ACCEPT INVITATION TO CHARLOTTE STREET PULPIT

Guelph, March 26.—Rev. H. W. Avison, M.A., the popular pastor for the past three years of Paisley Memorial Methodist Church, has received a unanimous call to become pastor of Charlotte street Methodist Church, Peterborough. A few Sundays ago a delegation from the quarterly official board of the Peterborough church paid a visit to Guelph, and went to hear Mr. Avison in his own church. They were most favorably impressed with his ability as a preacher, and at the next meeting of the board decided to extend the call.

Rev. Mr. Avison has had a most successful pastorate in Paisley Memorial church, and had accepted an invitation to remain here for a fourth term when this call came from Peterborough. In order to become pastor of the church at Peterborough it will be necessary to transfer him to the Bay of Quinte Conference, and this cannot be done unless a minister from that Conference is transferred to the Hamilton Conference. The transfer committee will meet early next mouth at Toronto, when the matter will come before them. Should the transfer be possible the removal of Mr. Avison to Peterborough is likely.

WHERE CANADA GETS IT IN THE NECK

ONE OF THE most important discussions in the history of the Canadian House of Commons is taking place this week when the Gutelius-Staunton report is being considered. How the Liberal Party will justify the waste of forty million dollars remains to be seen. The facts are clearly stated in the report, yet the Liberal press, false to the highest purposes of party and the real ends of Government, have not, up to the present time, advocated a true statement of Grand Trunk Pacific affairs. If there has been waste no good will result either to the country or to the Liberal party by denying the facts, or by bolstering up the shortcomings of the Laurier Government by niggling criticism or twisted presentments of the case. Truth will filter through all the cavilling that may be invented. The Liberal party will not deserve the name of a great party unless it stands for a true statement of the Grand Trunk Pacific affairs.

In the first place, the estimates given in the House by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his ministers when they were saddling the country with the N.T.R., were unthinkably below the actual expenditure. As an example, Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the House of Commons, on July 30, 1903, stated that, "the sum total of the money to be paid by the Government for the construction of that line of railway from Moncton to the Pacific Ocean will be in the neighborhood of $12,000,000 or $13,000,000, and not a cent more." Mr. Fielding, then Minister of Finance, had even a more ridiculous set of figures to present. Following his leader on August 12, 1903, he declared that the 400 miles of road from Moncton to Quebec would cost $25,000 a mile or in all $10,000,000. The 1475 miles from Quebec to Winnipeg would cost $41,300,000 at $28,000 a mile, and finally brought his grand declamation of wanton inaccuracies to a superb climax with the statement that the total cost to the Government would be represented by an investment of $8,853,504! He should have made his comedy of incompetence complete by adding thirty cents to the figures When the Intercolonial Railway at that time had cost some $60,000 per mile to construct, thinking people wondered and protested at the Alladin-like proposal to set a new unheard of record for cheap railway construction, especially, when the route lay through the roughest part of New Brunswick and uninhabited wastes of Northern Ontario and Quebec. The Montreal Gazette says: "The construction of the railway will cost more than $100,000 a mile. The $8,853,504 chattered about by Mr. Fielding will not pay one year's interest on the final cost, and the country must pay interest for from seven to ten years, before any rental will become due under the contract."

Another most pernicious feature was that of "implementing" the bond issues. By this clause, the Government of Canada bound itself to secure for the Grand Trunk Pacific full face value for the bonds it issued, no matter what the price at which they were sold to thepublic might be. One payment required $4,994,916 from the public treasury, while the Government was further compelled to borrow in London at over 4 per cent. and lend to the N.T.R. at 3 per cent.

Supervision was conducted by inexperienced men, and the chief engineer, Mr. Gordon Grant, resigned rather than be responsible for the extravagance. The report shows that there was shady work in the matter of classification, by which the country paid the price of expensive rock cutting for cuts through clay and mixed materials. According to Mr. Grant, the actual cost of construction, exclusive of interest, will be $161,307,000, a hundred millions more than the highest estimate made by the Laurier Administration.

The report further states that if the road is completed by the end of 1914, the Grand Trunk will commence to pay rent at the beginning of 1922 on $161,300,000 with $18,700,000 interest added, making an annual rental of $5,400,000, or about $14,800 a day. Assuming that such will be the case, the road will have cost the country in principal and interest $234,651,521.

Western Canada has long complained of excessive freight rates, yet here is the record of the Government they have been largely supporting, whose policy has been one to establish exorbitant freight rates for many years from the interest charges alone. Western Canada has clamored for reciprocity to enable American roads to compete with Canadian railways, when at the very time the Government they supported were making rational freight charges and competition quite impossible by its abnormally expensive railway policy. But Western Canada is not alone in feeling the burden of so great an undertaking. The prosperity of the whole country is irretrevably bound up in the investments and prosperity of the railways, and reckless expenditure on railways makes for high prices, hard times, tight money, high interest and financial stringency. That is exactly what occurred.

The Canadian people will be glad to know how the Liberal Opposition in Ottawa will explain away the facts of the case and their responsibility for this extravagance and its far reaching consequences.

We Think So.

Montreal Mail.

Chicago women suffragists are using campaign perfume instead of cigars. The resulting odor should be an improvement at least.

WHY SOME MAIL GOES ASTRAY

A SECTION of the postal service report gives some important facts about mail matter. People often blame the post office for letters and articles lost, when the fault is with the sender. Letters and packages that are improperly addressed or those having their addresses illegibily written, will not likely reach their destination. Of all things about a letter or a mail package, the address should be plainly written. The dead letter branch during 1912 to 1913 handled in all 3,768,525 pieces of mail, varying from postal cards to valuable packages. The letters contained money to the amount of $33,529, cheques for sums amounting to $1,226,000, and debentures, coupons, drafts, money orders, to the amount of several hundred thousand dollars. Deeds and other legal and valuable documents figured in the total, while the miscellaneous articles included almost everything portable from accordeons and baby clothes to waistcoats and yarn. The officials managed to get most of the packages to their destined recipients; but in many cases they failed. There are address puzzles even too hard for their experienced intelligence, and they are not always made by illiterates. A characteristic scrawl may be an accomplishment, but it is a distinct disadvantage in securing the safe delivery of mail matter.

FORWARDS PETITION TO MINISTER

MR. PERRY ALEXANDER has forwarded to the Postmaster-general's department at Ottawa a petition said to be from a large number of residents along the mail route from Peterborough to Lakehurst, demanding that the service on this route be immediately resumed. The Government, until the Gannon's Narrows Bridge is made passable, is sending the mail round by Lakefield The courier, Mr. Scollard, refuses to cross the ice at Gannon's, which at this season of the year may be dangerous, especially as it is over running water. Why Reeve Shaw has not had the bridge put in safe and passable shape is not known.

INDIA SHIPS HIDES TO AMERICA

INDIA IS a country situated so far away that it seems to have little more relation to Canada than that of geographical position in the British Empire. Dun's Review gives an account of the growing demand for East India hides. This export of hides from East India which has dwindled in recent years, is again receiving more attention, and shipments to America are increasing. The raw material is only partly tanned by the native tanners of India, and the tanning process is completed in tanneries elsewhere. While the principal market is in London, the raw material is not used to any great extent in Britain, but is reshipped to continental Europe and America.

During the summer and autumn of 1913, there was a lull in the demand, but following this, buyers began to show more interest and the stocks were cleared out at fair prices. Usually they are disposed by auction in Mincing Lane, London.

The total exports of raw hides from Calcutta to all parts of the world during 1913 were 7,260,000 hides. Of this amount, 3,478,383, or almost half, went to Germany, 461,163 to France and Spain combined, 665,101 to Italy, 1,634,682 to Triest, Austria, and 1,021,208 to America and other countries not enumerated above.

It is evident that in India, as in about all of the other principal cattle producing countries supplies of cattle are decreasing, while the population, cultivation of land and price of cereals are increasing. It is also a fact that more shoes made entirely of leather and replacing wooden and partly leather sandals are being worn in India as well as in China, Japan and other far eastern sections, all of which naturally tends to advance the prices of hides and finished leather. The total shipments last year of raw hides from Calcutta of 7,260,000 showed quite a decrease, as the figures for 1912 were 8,653,000 and for 1911 8,488,000.

EDITORIAL NOTES

THE EARTHQUAKE shocks that are coming this way from the east must be due to the disturbance in Ulster.

OWING TO the vast import of political questions in Canada at the present time, the public meeting on March 30th., when they will be discussed, should be attended by all citizens.

No, It Would Not Be Ungallant.

Montreal Star.

Nature, as Wilde long ago said, is always imitating art; hence we may take the adoption of colored wigs by women as a compliment to the post-impressionists. Or, would it be ungallant to suggest that it is symptomatic of that return to barbarism, another phase of which is seen in the militant suffragette?

Quite Another Matter.

Hamilton Herald.

Rev. Professor Lang of Victoria College, Toronto (where theological students are trained for the Methodist ministry) ventures to declare in public that it is not necessary for a Christian to believe in the virgin birth of Christ. Surely the venerable Superintendent Dr. Carman will be heard from soon. He got rid of the heretical Professor Jackson, but to stamp out what Jackson stood for is quite another matter.

Optimism Under Difficulties.

Toronto Telegram

It might almost seem as if Sir Wilfrid had planned that each blunder of his transportation delirium should overshadow the preceding one. When one reviews the Yukon railway fiasco, the infamous Crow's Nest railway deal, the series of C.N.R. transactions, and, greatest of all, the colossal National Transcontinental tragedy, the most optimistic Canadian is apt to be depressed.

From a Candid Friend.

Simcoe Reformer (Lib.)

The Ontario club is a Liberal club, the headquarters in Toronto of those Ontario Liberals who patronize clubs at all. It is a Grit club the same as the Albany club is a Tory club. And its members are in absolute control of the situation as to the use of liquor within its walls. Liquor can be voted out in toto, if the members feel so disposed. They actually refused to do this. Tories cannot be blamed for making the most they can of the inconsistency. It was predicted that they would do so, and Ontario Liberalism will be in an indefensible position until, one way or the other, the inconsistency is terminated. No party has ever found it possible to run with the hares and hunt with the hounds and make a success of the effort. Ontario Liberalism should stop trying to do so.

OUTWARD SIGNS

By Walt Mason

A man may be a great physician, and have no hangdowns on his face, although for ages fool tradition kept smooth-faced doctors in disgrace. The sawbones had to wear long spinach when he prescribed for fussy cranks, or he would shortly see his finish, and go to join the has-been ranks. A man may be a noble poet, and have a haircut twice a year; though bards like hair, they need not grow it to advertise their business here. When minstrels sang in leafy arbors their pastorals, in olden times, they knew that visits to the barbers would knock them out of many dimes; but times have changed, and now the Milton may cut his hair and wear store duds, and prime himself for further liltin' by eating porterhouse and spuds. A man may be a mighty painter, and yet resemble Grocer Smith; he need not wear a necktie quainter than Farmer Brown is togged out with. And thus we see the world grows wiser, and men are judged by what they do; no more the grand stand advertiser can come and put his coarse work through.

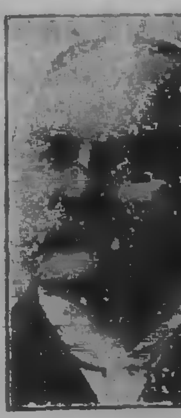
Birthdays of Note

THURSDAY, MARCH TWENTY-SIXTH



The career of the Hon. Nathaniel Curry, Dominion Senator, whose sixty-third birthday falls to-day, is one of the most interesting of any Canadian captain of industry. Born at Port William, N.S., he went as a youth to Boston where he obtained employment in a wood-working establishment. Here he fell in with a compatriot, the late Nelson A. Rhodes, and after some time the pair decided to return to Canada and start a small business of their own. This they did in Amherst. For a long time they had to struggle hard to make ends meet but eventually they won out. They bought out a defunct car works in St. John and started to make rolling stock for railways, the business out of which has grown the Canadian car and Foundry Co. Mr. Curry is now a millionaire, an ex-president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and a big figure in Canadian industry.

Tarzan of the Apes

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright by the Frank A. Munsey Co.

"Bless me!" said Mr. Philander, a shade of annoyance in his tone. "It is Mr. Canler. I had hoped—er—I had thought or—er—how very happy we should be that he was not caught in the fire," he ended lamely. "But who is the clerical looking gentleman with him?"

Jane Porter blanched.

Clayton moved uneasily in his chair.

Professor Porter moved his spectacles nervously and breathed upon them, but replaced them on his nose without wiping.

The ubiquitous Esmeralda grunted.

Only Tarzan did not comprehend.

Presently Robert Canler burst into the room.

"Thank heaven!" he cried. "I feared the worst until I saw your car, Clayton. I was cut off on the south road and had to go away back to town and then strike east to this road. I thought we'd never reach the cottage."

No one seemed very enthusiastic. Tarzan eyed Robert Canler as Sabor eyed his prey.

Jane Porter glanced at him and coughed nervously.

"Mr. Canler," she said, "this is M. Tarzan, an old friend."

Canler turned and extended his hand. Tarzan rose and bowed as only D'Arnot could have taught a gentleman to do it, but he did not seem to see Canler's hand.

Nor did Canler appear to notice the oversight.

"This is the Rev. Mr. Tousley, Jane," said Canler, turning to the clerical party behind him. "Mr. Tousley, Miss Porter."

Mr. Tousley bowed and beamed.

Canler introduced him to the others.

"We can have the ceremony at once, Jane," said Canler. "Then you and I can catch the midnight train in town."

The girl hesitated. The room was tense with the silence of taut nerves.

All eyes turned toward Jane Porter, awaiting her reply.

"Can't we wait a few days?" she asked. "I am all unstrung. I have been through so much today."

Canler felt the hostility that emanated from each member of the party. It made him angry.

"We have waited as long as I intend to wait," he said roughly. "You have promised to marry me. I shall be played with no longer. I have the license, and here is the clergyman.

"Come, Mr. Tousley; come, Jane. There are witnesses a-plenty—more than enough," he added with a disagreeable inflection, and, taking Jane by the arm, he started to lead her toward the waiting minister.

But scarcely had he taken a single step ere a heavy hand closed upon his arm with a grip of steel.

Another hand shot to his throat, and in a moment he was being shaken high above the floor as a cat might shake a mouse.

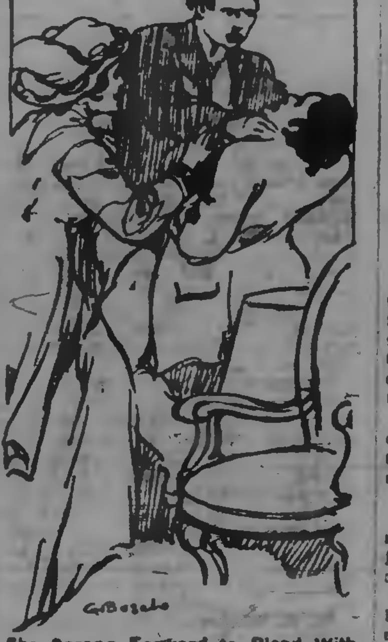
CHAPTER XXII.

Lord Apeman.

JANE PORTER turned in horrified surprise toward Tarzan.

And as she looked into his face she saw the crimson band upon his forehead that she had seen that other day in far distant Africa when Tarzan of the apes had closed in mortal combat with the great anthropoid, Terkoz.

She knew that murder lay in that savage heart, and with a little cry of horror she sprang forward to plead with the ape man. But her fears were more for Tarzan than for Canler. She realised the stern retribution which justice metes to the murderer. She laid a firm white hand upon Tarzan's wrist and looked up into his eyes.



She Sprang Forward to Plead With the Ape Man.

"For my sake," she said.

The grasp upon Canler's throat relaxed.

Tarzan looked into the face before him.

"Do you wish this to live?" he asked in surprise.

"I do not wish him to die at your hands, my friend," she replied. "I do not wish you to become a murderer."

Tarzan removed his hand from Canler's throat.

"Do you release her from her promise?" he asked. "It is the price of your life."

Canler, gasping for breath, nodded.

"Will you go away and never molest her further?"

Again the man nodded his head, his face distorted by fear of the death that had been so close.

Tarzan released him, and Canler staggered toward the door. In another moment he was gone and the terror stricken preacher with him.

Tarzan turned toward Jane Porter.

"May I speak with you for a moment alone?" he asked.

The girl nodded and started toward the door leading to the narrow veranda of the little hotel. She passed out to await Tarzan and so did not hear the conversation which followed.

"Wait!" cried Professor Porter as Tarzan was about to follow.

The professor had been stricken dumb with surprise by the rapid developments of the past few minutes.

"Before we go further, sir, I should like an explanation of the events which have just transpired.

"By what right, sir, did you interfere between my daughter and Mr. Canler? I had promised him her hand, sir, and regardless of our personal likes or dislikes, sir, that promise must be kept."

"I interfered, Professor Porter," replied Tarzan, "because your daughter does not love Mr. Canler. She does not wish to marry him. That is enough for me to know."

"You do not know what you have done," said Professor Porter. "Now he will doubtless refuse to marry her."

"He most certainly will," said Tarzan emphatically.

"And further," added Tarzan, "you need not fear that your pride will suffer, Professor Porter, for you will be able to pay Canler what you owe him the moment you reach home."

"Tut, tut, sir!" exclaimed Professor Porter. "What do you mean?"

"Your treasure has been found," said Tarzan.

"What—what is that you are saying?" cried the professor. "You are mad. It cannot be."

"It is, though. It was I who stole it, not knowing either its value or to whom it belonged. I saw the sailors bury it, and apelike I had to dig it up and bury it again elsewhere.

"When D'Arnot told me what it was and what it meant to you I returned to the jungle and recovered it. It had caused so much crime and suffering and sorrow that D'Arnot thought it best not to attempt to bring the treasure itself on here, as had been my intention, so I have brought a letter of credit instead.

"Here it is, Professor Porter." Tarzan drew an envelope from his pocket and handed it to the astonished professor. "Two hundred and forty-one thousand dollars."

"To the already great burden of the obligations we owe you, sir," said Professor Porter with trembling voice, "is now added this greatest of all services. You have given me the means to save my honor."

Clayton, who had left the room after Canler, now returned.

"Pardon me," he said. "I think we had better try to reach town before dark and take the first train out of this forest. A native just rode by from the north, who reports that the fire is moving slowly in this direction."

This announcement broke up further conversation, and the entire party went out to the waiting machines.

Clayton, with Jane Porter, the professor and Esmeralda, occupied Clayton's car, while Tarzan took Mr. Philander with him.

"Mr. Philander, do you recall the details of the finding and burying of three skeletons found in my cabin beside that African jungle?" asked Tarzan.

"Very distinctly, sir; very distinctly," replied Mr. Philander.

"Was there anything peculiar about any of those skeletons? It means a great deal to me to know," said Tarzan. "Your answer may clear up a mystery. It can do no worse, at any rate, than to leave it still a mystery. I have been entertaining a theory concerning those skeletons for the past two months, and I want you to answer my question to the best of your knowledge—were the three skeletons you buried all human skeletons?"

Mr. Philander eyed Tarzan narrowly.

"No," said he, "the smallest one, the one found in the crib, was the skeleton of an anthropoid ape."

"Thank you," said Tarzan.

In the car ahead Jane Porter was thinking fast and furiously. She had felt the purpose for which Tarzan had asked a few words with her, and she knew that she must be prepared to give him an answer in the very near future.

He was not the sort of person one could put off, and somehow that very thought made her wonder if she did not really fear him.

Could she love where she feared?

She realized the spell that had been upon her in the depths of that faroff jungle, but there was no spell of enchantment now in prosaic Wisconsin.

Nor did the immaculate young Frenchman appeal to the primal woman in her, as had the stalwart forest god.

Did she love him? She did not know—now.

She glanced at Clayton out of the corner of her eye. Was not here a man trained in the same school of environment in which she had been trained, with position and culture such as she had been taught to consider as the essentials to congenial association?

LONDON, March 25.—A silver salt cellar from the late Lord Ashburn's collection was sold for $28,000 at Christie's auction rooms yesterday.

The treasure, which rates from the period of Henry VII., is believed to be the earliest standing salt cellar in existence. Its height with the cover is 12 1-4 inches, but it weighs only 30 ounces.

A pair of Charles II. bottles fetched at the same sale $14,500.

Points for Mothers

Candy For the Children.

Every child likes an occasional sweet, and an occasional sweet in the way of dessert is not only not harmful, but good, for the little one. The sweet should be eaten immediately after the meal; hence it can best be served as a part of the dessert.

The teeth should be cleaned, of course, after every meal, and incidentally the child who once forms the habit of brushing its teeth regularly will be uncomfortable when it forgets to do so. The teeth should always be thoroughly washed after eating sweets of any kind.

Treats Between Meals.

If candy is indulged in between meals the mouth and teeth should be immediately washed. Of course candy should not often be indulged in between meals, but a little milk chocolate eaten at a specified time between meals is not so harmful when the teeth are washed as when they are not washed, for the sugar remaining in the mouth forms an acid which causes the enamel of the teeth to decay and so leads to serious cavities.

Chocolate Wholesome.

Milk chocolate is probably the most wholesome sweet for children. It possesses real nutritive value and so should be considered a part of the child's food; hence it should be given with meals to do the most good as a dessert.

Candied Fruit.

Candied fruit is wholesome. It can be made at home without much trouble, but it can be bought in good quality of any reliable dealer. Candied fruit peel—lemon, orange and grapefruit—is difficult of digestion and should not be confused with candied fruit when planning a treat for children.

Old Time Candy.

Barley sugar is not injurious. It possesses the disadvantage of molasses candy—it must be held a long time in the mouth in order to be dissolved. But if a stick of barley sugar flavored with some pure fruit juice be given after dessert no ill results will be produced.

Molasses Candy.

Molasses candy may be given to children as a part of dessert. It should never be given between meals. It is wholesome, to be sure, but it is necessary to keep it in the mouth for a long time, and during that time it causes the digestive juices to flow unnaturally; hence it should only be eaten at meal time.

What Was Needed.

"What I want," said the speaker, "is reform. I want police reform; I want social reform; I want temperance reform; I want—I want"—

"What you want," called out a listener at the back of the hall—"what you want is chloroform."—Successful Farming.

MURDER IS VERDICT.

Jury In Montreal Bandit Case Finds Against Prisoners.

MONTREAL, March 25. — A verdict of murder against Arthur Foucault and Joseph Beauchamp, two of the alleged bandits who shot a couple of policemen two weeks ago, was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday. Alphonse Foucault and Ismael Bourret, the other two riders in the death sleigh that figured in the shooting, are still at large, each with a price of $1,000 on his head.

Arthur Foucault and Beauchamp declined to make any statement at the inquest, but with the confessions they made on arrest, the police think they have enough evidence to secure conviction.

St. Thomas Man Acquitted.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., March 25.—In the assize court yesterday, J. Kettlewell, after a trial which lasted all the afternoon and until 11 o'clock last night, was acquitted by the jury of a serious charge preferred against him by a young girl.

Twenty years ago on the First of March next, a well-known resident of this city took out at age 28 a 10 pay 20 year endowment policy for $1,000, No. 43860, in the Sun Life of Canada.

The yearly premium he paid on the participating plan for 10 years only was . . . . $ 69.30
The yearly premium he would have paid on the non-participating plan for the 10 years is 62.25

Extra paid for profits yearly for ten years. $7.05

He received in cash at the end of 20 years, $1,279.25, that is, the $70.50 extra that he paid for profits yielded him $279.25, almost 400 per cent.

Would you not like something like that?

Or, he could draw out $736.45 in cash, which is $43.45 more than all he paid in, and receive a fully paid-up participating policy for life.

You can never obtain such results as these on the non-participating plan unless you die and die early, so that the price will not become too high.

For particulars in your case call or 'phone the Sun Life office, Crown Chambers Building.

ASQUITH CABINET REPUDIATE SEELY'S GUARANTEES TO OFFICERS

Assurance of Secretary For War That Soldiers Would Only Do Police Duty Was in Excess of His Powers, Says Asquith.

LONDON, March 26. — The Government published yesterday its promised statement of its dealings with the revolutionary officers of the third cavalry brigade, and the House of Commons held another heated and disorderly session. Between the documents presented and the various statements drawn from the Cabinet Ministers, the vital facts of the affair were made clear. They reveal a comedy or tragedy of errors perpetrated by Col. Seely, Secretary of War, and Sir Arthur Paget, commanding the troops in Ireland.

Col. Seely took all the blame upon his own shoulders. He frankly declared that he had made a great mistake. His written assurance to Gen. Hubert Gough that the Government "must retain its right to use all the forces of the crown in Ireland or elsewhere to maintain order and support the civil powers in the ordinary execution of their duty, but has no intention whatever of taking advantage of this right in order to crush political opposition to the policy or the principles of the Home Rule Bill," was given without the knowledge of the Cabinet, and contrary to its policy.

The War Secretary tendered his resignation to Mr. Asquith, but the Premier refused to accept it. The Government has withdrawn Col. Seely's guarantees, according to a statement made by Viscount Morley in the House of Lords, and Sir Edward Grey told the House of Commons that the Government's decision would be made known to Gen. Gough to-day. Thus the situation with respect to Gen. Gough and his 59 comrades who sent in their papers, is still in a state of suspense.

The most important revelations of the day were to the effect that the Government did not plan an important military and naval demonstration upon Ulster. Winston Churchill yesterday confirmed the reports that he had ordered the Third Battle Squadron and a torpedo flotilla to Irish waters, but explained that when the military arrangements had been successfully carried out he countermanded the orders by wireless, an explanation which the Unionists received with jeers.

The blunder Gen. Paget made appears to have been in giving a practical ultimatum to the officers of the cavalry brigade, to say whether they would take active service in Ulster or accept dismissal.

The Cabinet on Monday framed a general statement of the officers' position and duty under the law, and Col. Seely freely admitted his error in yielding to Gen. Gough's demand for a written assurance that the army would not be used to suppress the covenanters.

Premier Asquith's statement that the officers should return to duty unconditionally were made in good faith, since he learned of Col. Seely's amendments to the Cabinet memorandum only Tuesday afternoon. The Prime Minister made plain the Government's position regarding the army to the House of Commons, declaring that he would not assent to the claim of any body of men in the service of the crown to demand assurances of what they would be required to do in circumstances which had not yet arisen.

Sir Edward Grey spoke even more strongly. He said:

"The Government is prepared at any moment to use force to whatever extent is required to make the will of the country prevail. That is a contingency which cannot arise for a long time, and we still labor to avoid it."

Much of the oratory of the debate in the House of Commons last night consisted of fiery denunciations of the military aristocracy. The Government were placated by yesterday's revelations, but there remains a very strong and outspoken dissatisfaction with the whole affair among the Radicals and Laborites. Many think that the matter would have been allowed to rest except for the almost unanimous attacks by the Liberal press and boastings of the Conservative press over what they speak of as Gen. Gough's victory.

All talk of a compromise on the Home Rule Bill is for the time suspended. The Conservatives hold that recent events have shown that no compromise is possible, except on the unconditional exclusion of Ulster. The Liberals say that would not be compromise, but surrender.

Col. Seeley's transfer to another Cabinet post is predicted and the announcement and acceptance of the resigantions of Gen. Paget and Gen. Gough would be no surprise.

DANGER OF MIXED MARRIAGES STATED

Ottawa, March 25.—The Government has received from the Secretary of State, for the Colonies, the following despatch, pointing out the risk attendant upon the marriage of Christian women of the British nationality to Hindus, Moslems, etc.

The communication points out that in India polygamy is legal, and adds:

"In the case of a woman of British nationality professing the Christian faith who marries a Mohammedan who is not a British subject, but is a subject or citizen of a Mohammedan State, loses her British nationality on her marriage, and when the husband and wife land in any Mohammedan country (not being in the Dominions or under the Protectorate of His Britannic Majesty) they both become subject to the Mohammedan law. Further, the wife having lost her British nationality, would appear to have become disentitled to the protection or assistance of any British authority—consular or otherwise."

Wouldn't Pay Prince's Expenses.

BERLIN, March 26.—The trip to Africa which the Crown Prince had purposed undertaking this year has been definitely abandoned. One reason alleged is that the Imperial Parliament would refuse an appropriation to cover the expences of such a trip.

HIGH FREIGHT RATES ON N.T.R. ARE NOW PERMANENT BURDEN

W. P. Middleboro Replies to Hon. G. P. Graham by Pointing Out Grave Aspect of Extravagance in Building Line Whose Primary Object Was to Cut Charges —Ex-Minister Regrets Exposure.

OTTAWA, March 26.—Just before recess at six o'clock yesterday, Hon. G. P. Graham concluded the second section of his seven-hour defence of the share he took in the corruption revealed by the Lynch-Staunton-Gutelius report on the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway. He failed to develop any new plea beyond alleging that the investigators were biassed and that the standard of the road justified the lavish outlay, but he attacked the Government for bringing on the revelations at a time of financial stringency.

W. S. Middlebro, who replied for the Government was more to the point. He touched the real issue when he showed that the west might look to the vaunted "low freight rate" road in vain, because so enormous had been the cost that no reduction in tariffs was possible if the line was ever made to pay its way.

The debate was taken up by F. B. Carvell and promises to be a long one.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham, resuming his speech, said the commissioners had published to the world a solemn finding that "neither the National Transcontinental Commissioners nor the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co., nor anyone connected with the work appeared to think that economy was necessary or even desirable."

Mr. Graham said this startling indictment of hundreds of Canadian engineers and officials in the employ of the Government and the Grand Trunk Pacific was the most outrageous assault upon the good name of this country that could be conceived of.

Its effect had been to hurt Canadian credit and to absolutely cripple the Grand Trunk Pacific in its efforts to complete the great national highway. Every Canadian who went to England, to borrow money for legitimate purposes had this report thrown in his face. Its publication and endorsement by the Government at a time of financial stress like the present was an unspeakable outrage against which bankers and business men all over the country were vigorously protesting.

Dealing with the question of capitalization per mile Mr. Graham said it was not at all high considering its perfection and he had no hesitation considering the C.P.R.'s grants and subsidies, the N. T. R. was less heavily capitalized than the older line.

In conclusion, he urged the Government to stop degrading the standard of the National Transcontinental and moved a vote of censure on the Government for accepting the report of the N. T. R. commissioners.

W. S. Middlebro (Con., N. Grey) replied to Mr. Graham.

The object of building the National Transcontinental, he said, had been to create a corporation which would reduce and regulate freight rates. The Laurier Government had held out the lure that this road would be a real competitor to the Canadian Pacific. Naturally, if it was to be a real competitor the cost had to be kept down, so that the amount of fixed charges would not interfere with cheap and efficient operation.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier had told Parliament and the country that the road would not cost over $13,000,00. True, he explained this afterwards by saying that $13,000,000 would be the equivalent of the seven years' rent-free term to be granted to the Grand Trunk Pacific. In other words, the country was to borrow money to build the road at 3 per cent., and collect 3 per cent. per annum upon the amount so borrowed and invested from the Grand Trunk Pacific. Thus one hand would wash the other, except that for the first seven years the Grand Trunk Pacific would pay no rent, and the Government would be out the interest upon its investment during that period.

Mr. Middlebro proceeded to prove that, including interest, the road would actually cost the country before any rental could be collected, $328,000,000, or $11,000,000 more than the entire national debt. He then said that if the Grand Trunk Pacific ever undertook to operate the road it could not be called upon to pay more than $5,400,000 per year, or 1.62 per cent. for the money, which cost the Government of Canada 4 per cent.

Mr. Middlebro severely scored the contract made by the Laurier Government with the G. T. P. "We were dealing with a straw company, whose entire paid-up capital was less than $250,000," he said.

Mr. Middlebro said the westerners might as well make up their minds to pay excessive freight rates in perpetuity. How could the G.T.P. ever reduce rates when it was capitalized at $102,000 per mile? When the Canadian Pacific opened its transcontinental line in 1886, its capitalization was only $37,000 per mile.

F. B. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.) followed Mr. Middlebro. He said the commissioners had been selected as executioners, not as judges.

After discussing at some length questions of over-classification and over-break, Mr. Carvell demanded to know why the Government had not taken some steps to recoup itself against contractors who had profited by false and fraudulent classification. When the Government came into power they probably had in their hands $1,000,000 belonging to M. P. Davis. Why did they not hold on to this $740,000 and make Davis sue for it? Why did they not now bring suits against Davis and other wealthy men?

"The fact is," Mr. Carvell declared, "that the Government does not believe in the report of Lynch-Staunton and Gutelius, and Lynch-Staunton and Gutelius don't believe in it themselves."

H. B. Ames (St. Antoine, Montreal) moved the adjournment of the debate.

COMPENSATION MEASURE DISCUSSED IN COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Foy Introduces Measure Providing For Appointment of a Fire Marshal.

TORONTO, March 26.—In the progress of the Workmen's Compensation Bill through committee in the evening session, some light was directed on several of the more important clauses.

The delay of proclamation until Jan. 1, 1915, at the latest brought some comment from the Opposition. The Treasurer again explained that the organization was the cause. The Government named the board and they in turn appointed their officers. It was further stated that the labor delegates had approved the date settled.

Mr. Rowell moved that the date be set at Sept. 1st, but on a vote the motion was lost.

Mr. Rowell further urged that collective liability should be made more universal by putting all industries under schedue one, but this was also lost on vote.

Mr. Rowell also took the ground that the Government should see that medical men should have their services remunerated without any serious loss to the workingmen, and suggested something along that line.

The reply was that nothing was to be taken from the workingman, but that now he was assured of a certain and steady income. The board had power to make him act fairly and honestly with the doctor.

Dr. McQueen (Wentworth) said many countries set aside a specified sum and urged it here, but the clause was carried as it stood.

The clause allowing the commissioners to sit for ten years unless removed for "cause" created some discussion. It was urged that no good man from a high court bench would consider so short an appointment without a serious consideration.

Mr. Rowell wanted to do away with all costs in connection with the board, which, according to the act, was left at the tribunal's discretion. The clause was held over for further consideration.

Two assessment measures were discussed and a third was introduced yesterday afternoon. Of the two debated, that of R. J. McCormick was left over for further consideration, while that of R. R. Gamey (Con., Manitoulin) was withdrawn.

In support of Mr. McCormick's bill providing a lower assessment on improvements, T. Marshall (Monck) cited instances of assessors hearing of new bathrooms added to private homes and raising the yearly tax on that basis. The whole ser[illegible]on of the present system was that neglect of property meant a saving in taxes and ambition brought a penalty.

Wm. Proudfoot (Huron) claimed that the Government members were muzzled and that their position was indefensible.

J. C. Elliott said Toronto, Ottawa, and London had spoken strongly for local option privilege.

On mention of Henry Eilber (South Huron) the debate was adjourned.

Mr. Gamey's measure, in which during other things he advocated compelling every man to make a sworn statement of his resources under penalty of a fine, half of which was to be paid to persons who laid complaints, was explained at length, but at a suggestion from the Provincial Secretary, Mr. Gamey withdrew it. "with regret, in view of the position of the Government."

Mr. Mageau's new assessment bill aims to apply local option only in the newer parts of the province.

Acting Premier Foy introduced a bill for the appointment of a fire marshal for the Province of Ontario, whose duty it will be to investigate fires, especially those which appear to have been caused by carelessness or design.

The act provides that for the purpose of providing a fund for the remuneration of the fire marshal and other officers each insurance company shall pay an additional tax not exceeding one-third of one per cent. of the gross premiums received during the previous year.

INCREASE IN OUR BIRTH RATE SEEMS TO GO TO GRAVEYARD

London, March 25. Dr. Drysdale, who is famous for his advocacy that the nation's birthrate should be a matter of quality instead of quantity, spoke on the imperial aspect of the subject before the Royal Colonial Institute yesterday.

Referring to Canada, he said the increase of the birthrate in Ontario to 25 per thousand had been accompanied, not by a corresponding rise in natural increase, but by an increase of death rate to 14 per thousand. The additional births appear to have populated the graveyards rather than the country. Toronto was a striking example of this phenomenon.

"Canada will be able to support an immense population some day, but any attempt to crowd it rapidly with children or inefficient townbred immigrants will only raise the death rate," he said.

FEDERALS ARE HOLDING OUT

RUMORS OF CAPTURE OF TORREON PROVE TO HAVE BEEN PREMATURE

EL PASO, Texas, March 26.—Meagre advices from the front yesterday were mixed in character, but out of the medley, schooled observers here said they drew the conclusion that the rebels met at Torreon and Gomez Palacio an enemy in no wise inferior, and that their attack had been checked at the onset of the battle proper.

Rebel officers at Juarez, as well as refugees in this city, say they place more reliance on despatches from legitimate correspondents at the front than on so-called official despatches. One of the correspondents yesterday wired:—

"Villa says wires will be open when he reaches Torreon."

In the course of the day no other press despatch was received, but this one, it was said, plainly carried the inference that the attack on Torreon had only begun.

Rebel advices here yesterday were that Villa was attacking the outskirts of Torreon and that two-thirds of the rebel army, under the direct command of Gen. Benavides, were thus engaged.

Unconfirmed rumors had it that Villa had executed 200 Federal prisoners, and that in one assault 58 Federals were killed and 200 wounded.

The Constitutionalist sympathizers place a gloomy construction on the failure of detailed newspaper despatches to get through.

Bethel, March 27.—The unlooked for snow storm on Wednesday caused a little excitement Thursday morning, when one of our farmers from the north had to be shovelled out of the fourth line hill by the boys from the west. Poor fellows, it was before breakfast, too.

Our young people spent a very enjoyable time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Ruth on Tuesday evening. They all pronounce Mr. and Mrs. Ruth perfect entertainers.

The many friends of Mrs. Robert Casey are very sorry to learn of her illness. We hope she will soon be able to be around again.

ONE SUBSCRIPTION MAY MEAN THE TOURING CAR FOR YOU

CANDIDATES RUNNING NECK AND NECK

Closest Race For Fame and Fortune Ever Witnessed by Contest Department—The Winners of the Larger Prizes Will be Determined by the Effort of the Next Few Days—The Judges

The end of the great contest is almost at hand. The interest among the larger candidates is at the highest fever heat, every candidate is securing every possible subscription. It is rumored that some have been very successful this week. This is a very close race for fame and fortune and it is a great question just who the ones will be that are going to pick off the big prizes Saturday evening. One of the stronger candidates was in the office yesterday and gave the contest department to understand that some would have to go some if they won the grand prize. He said, "subscriptions are coming to him by the dozen," and he would take off his hat to the one who could beat him.

A Big Honor.

Look about you, candidates. Have you ever seen anything where such universal interest was taken? Everybody is talking about it, business men, farmers, factory people, boys and girls. In fact it is on everybody's tongue about the big contest that The Review is conducting and is closing in two more days. Since the very beginning everybody has been interested. Nearly everybody has been boosting for their favorite candidate. Now, candidates and readers, bear in mind that there is only one big prize of a Touring Car—only one out of many can win this small fortune. One single subscription may be the one that you need to be crowned with this honor. Make every moment count, candidates and friends, these last few days. Don't leave a stone unturned to secure subscriptions. If you fail, you have no one to blame but yourself.

The Judges.

The following is a list of the judges who will count the votes on Saturday evening, these are all important business men of the city and each candidate can rest assured that they will count every vote that they find in the ballot box. Now bear in mind, candidates, if you fail to have your votes in the ballot box by the closing hour that the judges nor The Review will be to blame for you not winning any of the valuable prizes. Here are the men who will mete out your reward for your efforts the past few weeks:

C. H. Pennefather, Manager of the Union Bank.

V. Eastwood, Manager of the Royal Bank.

His Worship, Mayor Buller.

NEVER TECHED 'EM.

Mexican General Says U. S. Soldiers' Fire Was Harmless.

EAGLE PASS, Texas, March 25.—Gen. Gujuardo, commanding the Mexican Federal garrison at Piedras Negras, denied yesterday that any of his soldiers were killed by the fire of the Americans in the fight with American soldiers at McKee's Crossing Sunday.

The Federals who fired on the American troops at Las Vecas, four miles from McKee's Crossing, and a force of several hundred Constitutionalists are encamped a few miles up the river.

Gen. Gujuardo yesterday returned one of the horses stolen from Clemente Vergera to Adjutant-General Hutchins of Texas, and promised that ten others will be delivered later

KEPHALDOL

Cures Colds and La Grippe in Half a Day.

Thank the famous Herr Doctor Stohr, of Vienna, Austria, for allowing his personal prescription for relieving pain, to be sold in Canada. The Doctor has used "Kephaldol" in thousands of his hospital clinics. He has proved to the delight of the medical profession, that attacks of La Grippe and Colds could be warded off and broken up in 12 hours, by using "Kephaldol" at the first sneeze or sudden chill. Two or three "Kephaldol" tablets at bedtime and two the first thing in the morning, will usually make a complete cure, although in very severe cases, it may be necessary to continue the treatment for a short time, taking one "Kephaldol" tablet every three hours. "Kephaldol" has the pleasant property of relieving all the distressing symptoms of a "bad cold"—clearing the head — stopping the throbbing headaches—easing the pain in the back and limbs—and enabling one to eat and sleep in comfort.

Keep "Kephaldol" in the house, ready to take at the first sign of a cold. If your druggist should not have the 50c. tubes of these tablets, write Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

Reduced Wheat Crop.

WASHINGTON, March 25. — A reduction of twelve per cent. in the combined wheat crop of Argentina, Australia and New Zealand from the previous year's crop was reported yesterday by the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome. The total estimated production of all wheat in these countries was placed at 250,133,333 bushels.

Chief Justice Meredith Ill.

KINGSTON, March 25.—Owing to illness, Chief Justice R. M. Meredith was unable to come to Kingston yesterday to open the spring assizes. The court was formally opened by Judge Price and then adjourned until to-day.

APSLEY

Apsley, March 26.—A number of our young people who intended taking in the ball in Clydesdale on March 17, were disappointed, it being postponed on account of the death of Mrs. Cleary, of that neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Windsor, of Peterboro, have returned home after visiting relatives here.

Mrs. W. Masters, of Faraday, visited friends here recently.

Mr. and Mrs. John McColl have returned to Peterboro, after spending the winter months here.

Miss Mildred Hales has returned to Peterboro after spending some time at her home here.

Quite a number of the farmers are laying in a supply of ice for summer use.

The Ladies' Aid Society held their last meeting at the home of Miss Edna McIlmoyle. Miss McIlmoyle, who leaves shortly for Southey, Sask., was presented with a handsome jewel case and illuminated address by the members of that society.

Messrs. Wellington and Albert Lean have returned from visiting friends at Roseneath.

Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Lean entertained their friends at an oyster supper recently. The evening was spent in music, games, etc.

There passed away on March 14, Philip, the twelve-year old son of Mr. Thomas Tanner. Deceased had been in delicate health for about a year. The funeral was held on March 16 to the Anglican Church, where service was conducted by Rev. C. Lord, and the remains were laid to rest in the Anglican Cemetery.

A meeting of the directors of the Cheese Factory was held on March 13. The factory will be in operation again this season. Owing to the scarcity of cattle in the neighborhood during the winter it was thought doubtful if sufficient milk could be got to keep the factory in operation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Gallon have moved into the house lately vacated by Mrs. Wm. Wilson.

Mrs. Wm. Tucker, Jr., and little daughter, are visiting relatives here.

TUMOR IN THE STOMACH

Completely Removed When She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

NEWBURY, ONT., April 4th. 1913.

"Some years ago, I was sick in bed, and thought I was going to die. I had a growth in my stomach, which the doctors said was a Tumor and they said that the only thing to do was to go to the hospital and have the tumor cut out. I dreaded an operation although both doctors said it was the only cure. I said I would die before being operated on.

At this time, my mother in Alvinston sent me some "Fruit-a-tives" and induced me to try them as she had heard of another woman who had been cured of a similar growth in the stomach by taking "Fruit-a-tives".

To please my mother, I began to take "Fruit-a-tives" with the happy result that they cured me. I have not been to see a doctor since and my health is first class.

I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" every time I get a chance and I will be glad to have you publish this letter as some other woman may now be a sufferer from the same trouble and "Fruit-a-tives" will cure her" MRS. A. McDONALD.

Indian River, March 26.—Miss May Fife is home from Toronto, where she has spent the past year.

The mayor of Indian River was out with his snow plow yesterday.

Mrs. Catherine O'Leary is ill at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterboro.

Our Indian River bachelors took advantage of the good sleighing last Sunday and were "making hay while the sun shone." Look out for a good crop of orange blossoms this summer.

BRANT FOR OTTAWA VIA FORT WAYNE CLUB ROUTE?

Former White Cap Will Likely be Seen With the Senators

Well, we got to hand it to Shaughnessy. At last he has "tore off something," and this time it robbed us of last year's peppery shortstop, Harry Brant, so it would appear. There has been no small amount of discussion around the circuit over the attempts of the big pilot of the Senators has been making in an effort to land a man to play the short field. Patiently have we waited for him to land a star and he has, or at least will in a few days.

Harry Brant was always a special [illegible] of Shag's admiration, and several times has he attempted to get him. Last year when he was purchased by Chattanooga some thought that it was a step toward the New York Giants. No such luck.

Fort Wayne has procured the speedy blacksmith, and he might as well have been procured by Ottawa for the Senators are used as a farm for the Indianna Club. All summed up, it seems like just a clever bit of strategy on the part of Shaughnessy, so no one wants to drop dead when the word comes that Brant has been sent to Ottawa. If we had a pull like Shag we'd be working for the Toronto Police Commissioners.

WASHINGTON SPEED MARVEL ALREADY IN GREAT FORM

Washington, March 26. — Walter Johnson took his daily work-out this morning. It was a fifteen-minute affair, during which he displayed such remarkable speed that even Clark Griffith was astounded. Ainsmith did the catching. Having had a day's rest, Johnson was at his best. Griffith, in speaking of his performance, said:

"Never before in my experience have I seen such an exhibition of pitching as Walter gave this morning. I did not think it was possible for any human being to put so much speed on the ball as he displayed. It was a marvelous performance, and proves to me that Walter is rounding into his best form early this season. I look for him to have the best season of his career. Walter has been taking these daily workouts, and his arm is already as strong as it will ever be, and by the time the season opens he will be ready to duplicate his performance of last season, when he pitched fifty-six innings without being scored on."

SWARTZ AND JOE BYRNE SUSPENDED

Bob Sterling is Satisfied With The New Terms and Will Sign

Curley Blount doesn't bat .110 when it comes to handing out any press dope, few and far between are his epistles to the local club. He broke into the journalistic world this week, however, with the result that the local management received a few lines to-day.

Miller, the catcher whom he signed up a few days ago, played with Blount last year for Youngstown, and he is a first-rater. He will be the club's first catcher, and as he is a well experienced man, he should bring good results from the young pitchers. Bob Sterling has not as yet been signed up, but will be in the course of a few days, as the club has consented to meet him at his price. Sterling is a valuable acquisition to the local club, and with Schettler, should be the big guns of the league.

Joe Byrne and Swartz have been suspended by the National Commission for failure to report, but Blount isn't losing any sleep over them. It is true they are both favorites with the local fans, but it is just a question if either could hold a place on the team this year. It was the middle of August last year before they started playing any kind of ball, and the men who will be there or thereabouts on May 7 are the men in demand.

Manager Blount has arranged for several exhibition games in Youngstown as soon as the team reports.

BASEBALL

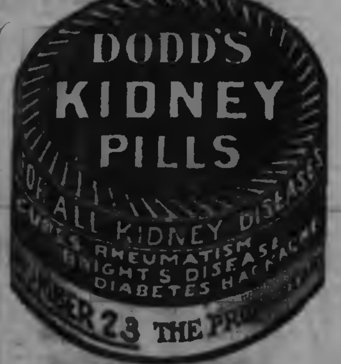
A Philadelphia expert wires his paper—"Out of the mass of unknown quantity that always litter up a training camp a young gentleman has popped into the limelight and has Connie guessing. This young gentleman is James McAvoy, a cather drafted by Connie from the Berlin (Ont.) club of the Canadian League. Mac appears to possess all the attributes of a big league catcher."

BASKETBALL

The Y.M.C.A. Basketball team are going to Peterborough Saturday night to play the Y.M.C.A. team of that city. The Peterborough team is very fast and a good game should result. The boys are asked to stay over until Monday and a good time has been promised them. Roy Moon, Willie Finkle, Jim Alexander, George Ketcheson, Elwood Robinson and Mr. Powers and possibly an extra player will make the trip. The Peterborough boys will play the return game in Belleville about the second week in April. — Belleville Intelligencer.

MERCANTILE LEAGUE MEETING TO-NIGHT

The meeting of the Mercantile Hockey League, to wind up the business of the season and receive the secretary's report, will be held to-night in the Y. M. C. A. at 7.30 sharp. Very important questions will undoubtedly be discussed as a result of the league decision as to the distributing of the proceeds, so every one interested will please be on hand.



CURLERS HAVE NO CAUSE TO COMPLAIN

After one of the best seasons in the history of the Curling Club, extending from New Year's Day until yesterday morning, the curling for this season has been brought to an end. Mr. Angus McIntosh, the genial caretaker of the rink, was given more or less to reviewing the previous season this morning. Twenty-five years ago when he first took charge, the curlers had a very lengthy season, commencing the first week in December, and ending the first week in April. The latest local curling on record was eight years ago when the season closed on April 19th. Mr. McIntosh states that there was more curling this season than ever before. One very pleasing feature he has noticed during his long connection with the game is that the young men are gradually taking interest in it. It is no longer what was generally thought, "an old man's game."

LACROSSE

Word has been received from Mr. F. Doyle, secretary of the O.L.A., to the effect that he will be in the city next Wednesday evening. The mass meeting will be held in the assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute, and every one, whether a lacrosse enthusiast or not, is cordially invited and requested to be present.

CRICKET

A general meeting of the Peterboro Cricket Club is called for the Y.M.C.A. Friday night at 8 o'clock.

A Pointed Clew.

The audience was rather tardy in gathering, and the lecturer and the chairman of the meeting were conversing comfortably on the platform about one thing and another.

"Well," remarked the speaker, "I am to have an intellectual audience. That was a schoolmaster who just took his place in the third row on the aisle."

"How do you know that?" inquired the chairman.

"Didn't you see him try his hand on the seat of the chair before he sat down?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Water Everywhere.

The man of whom the temperance advocate despaired was visibly exasperated.

"Even right alongside the bar," he said, "a gentleman cannot escape annoyance. Yesterday there was a fellow stood at my left elbow and drank a lemonade, and today it was a sailor had the place next to me.—New York Post.

Her Chance.

Patience—To fold letters and insert them in envelopes I see is the purpose of a simple hand operated machine patented by a Georgia man.

Patrice—But you never hear of any man patenting any device to remind 'em to mail 'em.—Yonkers Statesman.

Only Two Classes.

"And so she is married! What class husband did she get?"

"What do you mean?"

"Is he big enough to help her people, or do they have to help him?"—Kansas City Journal.

The New Requirements.

The Youth — Mr. Jones, I want to marry your daughter.

Mr. Jones—Can you run a car and buy gasoline in the manner to which she has been accustomed? — Omaha World-Herald.

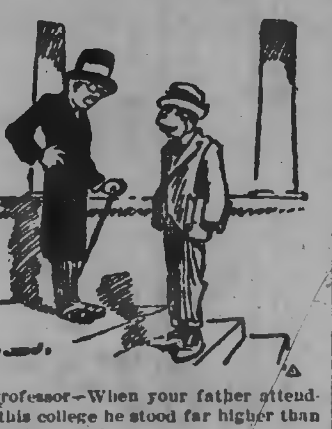
Book Bound In Pearls.

The most sumptuous copy of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" in existence has been sent from England to a purchaser abroad. The value of the book is between $5,000 and $7,500. It has been reproduced as an illuminated manuscript on vellum, and the volume is notable as being the entire work of one artist, Alberto Sangorski, who has been engaged upon it for eighteen months.

The superb binding of the book, which has been prepared by the bookbinders to the royal family, is in pink Levant morocco, with elaborate emblematic "tooling" in gold, in which entwined hearts, doves, cupids, and forget-me-nots all betoken theme of love. The title is spelt in pearls, set in gold, and the cover is further embellished with 214 rubies and 36 amethysts. Altogether 400 precious stones are embedded in the cover, each in a setting of gold. It is the largest manuscript work executed in modern times.

Explained.



Professor—When your father attended this college he stood far higher than the other scholars.

Couldn't Stand It.

Mistress—Why did you leave your last place?

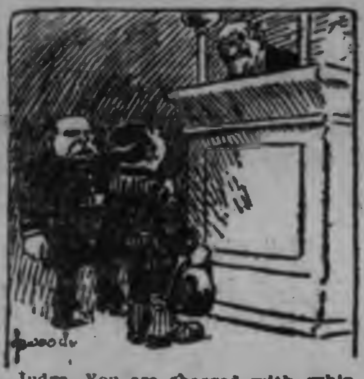
An Opportunist.



Judge—You are charged with whipping your wife. Why did you do it?

Prisoner—Why, judge, she's sick abed. I have to lick her when I can!"—Chicago News.

Both In and Out.

Mrs. Pankhurst, the English militant, said at a luncheon in Chicago:

"We are all jailbirds, all of us English militants. I called one afternoon at Mrs. Cobden Sanderson's.

"'Is Mrs. Cobden Sanderson in?' I asked the butler.

"'Yes, madam,' he answered gravely; 'in for seven months.'"—Washington Star.

Has His Supplies.

"My husband is very thoughtful."

"Never brings unexpected guests home to dinner?"

"Yes; sometimes he does that, but he always brings along a pound of bologna sausage and a can or two of soup."—Kansas City Journal.

"Yes, I do," replied the polite official. "I guess the last time they filled the air brakes they got a bad lot of air."—Yonkers Statesman.

"Isn't it awful about poor Mr. Jones' trouble?"

"I didn't hear about it."

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Bronchitis in Childhood.

During infancy bronchitis is frequently met with and is then predisposed to by rickets. Other well recognized causes are cold and exposure and overclothing, which produces sweating, with subsequent chilling of the skin surface. Nasal or laryngeal catarrh may lead eventually to bronchitis, while enlarged tonsils and adenoids have a similarly tendency to produce bronchitis.

Prophylactic measures consist in proper attention to diet, warm clothing (without overclothing the child), and the treatment of rickets. Exposure of infants to cold winds and wet weather is to be carefully avoided. At the onset of the attack a hot bath and a teaspoonful of castor oil may cut it short.

If the attack develops, the chest should be rubbed well over night and morning with camphorated oil and a jacket of cotton wool applied. Heavy poultices are best avoided altogether in the case of infants, as these impede the breathing by their weight. The air of the sick room should be kept moist and an equable temperature of about 65 degrees maintained day and night. Great care in feeding is always essential.

WEDDING BELLS

GOODWIN-HOPKINS.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at four o'clock in Knox Church, when Rev. H. J. Keith united in the bonds of holy matrimony Mr. John Alford Goodwin, of this city, formerly of Stratford, Essex, Eng., to Miss Martha Jane Hopkins, also of this city. They were attended by Mr. E. Humpage and Miss Ada Hopkins, a sister of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin will reside on Wolfe Street.

ROBINS-DAVIS.

Miss Grace Davis and Mr. John Edward Robins were united in marriage by Rev. R. J. McLaren, yesterday. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. John Portsmouth, near Selwyn. Mr. and Mrs. Portsmouth were the attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Robins will reside in Smith, near Selwyn.

PERSONAL

Mr. Walter Downs, 517 Sherbrooke Street, sailed for England yesterday, where he will accept a permanent position.

Mr. H. Noyes of Toronto is in the city for a few days.

Mrs. T. Barnecott, formerly of this city, but now of Aylmer, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. F. Sandy, Stewart Street.

Mr. Kenneth Routley, of Toronto, spent yesterday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Routley, Stewart Street.

When Peacock Was Regal Dish.

There was a time years ago in England when, next to the boar's head, the peacock was the most important dish. No little trouble was taken before Argus was pronounced fit for the table. The skin was first carefully stripped off, with the plumage adhering. The bird was then roasted, when done, and partially cooled, it was sewed up again in its feathers, its beak glided, and sent to table. It did not fall to common hands to serve the bird that even in death flaunted its plumage, but that privilege fell to the fair hands of lady guests distinguished by birth or beauty. At tournaments this dish was generally served in the form of a pie, at one end of which appeared the peacock's plumed crest above the crust, while his tail was unfolded in all its glory at the other end. The victor of the lists cut the pie, swearing to undertake any perilous enterprise that came his way, and succour lovely women in distress.

Relic of "Nell of Old Drury"?

A tiny brass-fronted safe which may, when opened, prove to contain treasure trove or something concerning Nell Gwynne, was discovered within a hundred yards of Trafalgar square, recently. It will be some days yet, possibly, before it is possible to get at the safe, so that it can be opened without damage. It is now located in a small cupboard-like compartment of a wall on the ground floor of some premises which are undergoing changes at Craig's-court. Craig's-court is a quiet, out of the way place situated near to the court of King Charles II., and was the site of one of the residences of Nell Gwynne, the Orange Girl who became the favorite of the Merry Monarch.

Regulating Diet.

To prevent the occasional little attacks of sickness which sometimes come to little folks with weak stomachs after meals train the child to sit still for ten minutes after each meal and half an hour before give him other as much bicarbonate of soda as you can hold on a dime in a spoonful of water. Care should be taken to regulate such a child's diet.

Deceased was born in Douro, and lived there for the greater portion of his life. He has been a resident of this city for about ten years. He was unmarried. One brother, Mr. M. O'Brien, of Douro, and four sisters, Mrs. E. Walsh, of Douro, Mrs. D. Guerin, of East City, and Misses Margaret and Julia, at home are left to mourn his loss.

NEW SWITCH SYSTEM

The Canadian Pacific has just installed at the Windsor Station, in Montreal, an elaborate electrical interlocking switch system, which not only does away with uncertain hand labor, but provides the maximum of safety, while at the same time guaranteeing rapid movement, each of which is absolutely inter-related and inter-dependent so that no separatist action could possibly be taken. All the signals and levers and the machinery are, as the name of the installation denotes, interlocking. The housing of the machinery is at the end of Mountain St., just outside the enclosed yards.

The man at the levers, of which there are 88, looks before him at an illuminated diagram on which he sees the whole trackage leading into the station and which are on each side of the main double track. The moment a train approaches, it is put out, by the lever, on the proper track; but the movement which does this is an inter-locking one. That is to say, it effects certain positions with respect to other movements in the yard. There is no isolated action. Every portion of the machine is related to every other portion. Action is quick and concentrated, but each individual movement has a corresponding relation to the tracks and switches over the vast system of criss-crossing which has made of the C. P. R. yards a wonder for the elaboration and vastness which mark them.

YOUTH GETS THE LIMIT

AT LEAST TWENTY YEARS FOR MURDERER OF TORONTONIAN

NEW YORK, March 26. — Harry Schaeffer, murderer of William Martin, of Toronto, was sentenced to Sing Sing yesterday by Justice Davis in Supreme Court.

The youth was convicted of murder in the second degree, for which he will serve from 20 years to life, with hard labor.

Despite his obstinacy in refusing to plead guilty to murder in the second degree on the pretext that he would rather go to the electric chair than spend twenty years in prison, Schaffer was elated when his life was saved, and smiled yesterday as sentence was pronounced.

In sentencing the prisoner, Justice Davis said: "Schaeffer, you are undoubtedly guilty of murder in the first degree, but I am glad to know that the jurors did not wish to send you to the death chair because of your youth. You are a fortunate young man."

DEPUTATION SEES CABINET

Delegates From Boards of Trade Submit Resolutions

TORONTO, March 26.—A deputation from the Associated Boards of Trade of Ontario, waited on Hon. Mr. Foy, acting Premier, and the members of the Cabinet yesterday, urging immediate attention to a series of resolutions passed at the recent convention. The deputation consisted of Messrs. F. G. Morley, secretary; E. B. Deacon, Belleville; A. J. Young, North Bay, and W. Walker, of Toronto.

The reforms asked for: Government control of fish export for Ontario's benefit. Uniform arrangement of public utility accounts. Appointment of approved fire marshal. New Ontario power development. Creation of a new fish and game preserve. The speedy construction of radial railways. Extension of T. & N. O. Railway to James Bay. Government investigation of municipal commission government. Application of town planning act to all municipalities.

BLACKEST DAY OVER?

London Liberal Papers Rejoice at the Passing of First Crisis.

LONDON, March 26. — The view of the Liberal morning papers in that though yesterday was the blackest day the Government had experienced in its whole existence, and, in the words of The Daily Chronicle, "It seemed as if its life was worth 48 hours' purchase," now the air has cleared and the Government is rehabilitated and in a stronger position than ever.

The Chronicle remarks that in the face of the common danger from the Tories and the army combining together, Labor is now making common cause with Liberalism, and whenever the general election occurs, instead of engaging in a fraticidal strife, Liberals and Laborites will stand shoulder to shoulder in the defence of civil authority and the rights of a free democracy.

The Morning Post, still insisting on the existence of a plot and urging the Unionists in Parliament to compel the Government to divulge the nature of the verbal instructions given to Gen. Paget, argues that Col. Seely's real motive and only reason for adding the two clauses to the guarantee given to Gen. Gough was to prevent the disclosure of the plot.

SENTENCED TO 30 YEARS

MONTREAL MONEY LENDER COMMITTED OFFENCES AGAINST HIS DAUGHTER

MONTREAL, March 26. — W. H. Tapley, usurer, found guilty on March 17, at the Assize Court, of incest and other unmentionable crimes was yesterday morning sentenced to thirty years in the penitentiary by Justice Lavergne. The evidence upon which Tapley was convicted was supplied by his 14-year-old daughter.

When he learned his fate the prisoner collapsed. As Tapley is nearly 50, the sentence means life imprisonment for him.

Tapley last Saturday attempted to commit suicide by biting through his arm in an attempt to sever an artery. Yesterday morning he pleaded that he was not strong enough to appear in court to receive sentence and it was necessary to use force to get him there.

Tapley's callous methods as a money lender were mainly responsible for the Ottawa Government passing the usury law some years ago making it a penal offence to charge more than twelve per cent. interest on loans. Tapley had been in the habit of exacting 300 per cent. from his clients.

Royal Visitors' Books.

The books in which royal visitors inscribe their names when calling at Buckingham Palace, London, have been coveted by collectors for years. Recently two new books were provided at Buckingham, and the old ones removed to the safe keeping of the Lord Chamberlain's department.

The value of these books to autograph hunters is almost impossible to estimate, and some sensation was caused about the court a few years ago when it was announced that one was missing. Fortunately a careful search revealed its whereabouts.

The books are bound in crimson leather, with an imperial crown stamped on the back, and are secured with a silver clasp. As a rule, each book lasts for about two years, but on the occasion of the death of King Edward over a hundred pages were taken up with signatures of callers. One of the books is kept at the ambassadors' entrance to the palace for the use of the diplomatic corps and official visitors, and the other is at the equerries' entrance, and is used by the general circle. Everyone entering or leaving the place is called on to sign one or other of these books.

EXIT HAMILTON CASE.

Senate Refuses To Restore Divorce Bill To Order Paper.

OTTAWA, March 26.—The Hamilton divorce case met another defeat in the Senate yesterday.

Senator Kirchhoffer, chairman of the divorce committee, moved to restore the Hamilton divorce case to the order paper, from which it was removed last week when a motion for the adoption of the report failed to carry.

Senator Davis said the Senate had defeated this divorce application for three successive years. The last defeat occurred only a few days ago, yet the chairman of the committee was not satisfied. He thought the application had been given ample consideration and moved the six months' hoist.

Senator Cloran supported Senator Davis' amendment, declaring that after having three times in three successive years been found guiltless, Mrs. Hamilton was still being hunted.

The motion for the six months' hoist was carried by 27 to 23.

Warning of Derelict.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Warning of a derelict in the steamship line between New York and Europe was sent broadcast yesterday by the wireless at Brooklyn navy yard. A message from the Kron Prinzessian Cecelie to the branch hydrographic office here said that Tuesday the liner passed, in latitude 40.12N., longitude 66.50W., a spar attached to a wreck. The position is a little to the south of the eastbound land, and the derelict was drifting to the northeast.

The Kilt as Regenerator.

Sir James Crichton-Browne has been deploring the fact that there are so few perfect children in these days, and he has declared that the first practical step in the direction of making Medici Venuses and Belvedere Apollos is to drag all the flaws to light, as he is convinced that many of these are capable of correction or cure. Dr. Cantlie, the well-known authority on child life, has promptly taken up the suggestion. He informs the public that the direct cause of very many of the imperfections of childhood and youth is improper clothing. Babies are adequately protected in this respect, and as a result "they are perfect reproductions in miniature of their race."

It is when the little boy is deprived of his swaddling clothes and is "breeched" that the deterioration begins, and this is all due to the fact that the garments in which he is by custom and fashion habited do not provide sufficient warmth and protection to that part of the body which most needs these things. And of all garments in which we array our youths none is more severely condemned by Dr. Cantlie than the Eton jacket, "which ceases just where warmth is wanted." With the case as stated there can be no hesitation in pointing to the remedy. It is the kilt —which supplies in every detail all the requirements Dr. Cantlie desires in order that our boys may grow up braw lads. In Scotland's national garb we have indeed the regenerator of the race. Let the Kilt Society sound the pibroch loud and high!—Dundee Advertiser.

Trapped.

His Wife—I met our maid Anna just now on the street, and she pretended not to see me.

Her Husband—You ought to point out to Anna the impropriety of such conduct.

His Wife—But how can I? You see, she had another girl with her, and it was quite evident she didn't want her friend to know she was working for a woman who wore a two dollar and a half hat.—New York Post.

HIS BILL COMMENDED.

Senato Choquette Says He Has Support From All Over Canada.

OTTAWA, March 26.—The debate in the Senate was resumed by Senator Choquette of Quebec on his bill to amend the criminal code by forbidding newspapers to reproduce portraits of persons charged with crime.

In reply to Senator Dennis of Halifax, who last week made a speech against the bill, saying the bill proposed to heap approbium on the heads of the publishers and booksellers of Canada, and said there was no demand for Senator Choquette's bill, Senator Choquette read a letter from the secretary of the Retailers' Association, written from Toronto. The letter said that the booksellers of Canada were in favor of the bill. Senator Choquette read a letter from a man "who had been on the Supreme Court bench of Nova Scotia for 24 years," and who approved his bill. From all other parts of the country he had received letters of commendation.

Senator Coffey adjourned the debate.

HE WASN'T QUITE SURE REGARDING THE COURTSHIP

Sarazen Admits He Made Bargain for Store but the Court Finds the Agreement Was Void Because it Was Made on Sunday

Judgment was reserved in the Prierer vs. Sarazen case heard before Judge Huycke yesterday. Mr. G. N. Gordon acted for the plaintiff, who sued the defendant Sarazen for $304.55 arising out of a business transaction. Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., acted for the defendant. The only feature of the afternoon's evidence was that Sarazen in giving his evidence astonished the Court by saying he did not remember whether he courted the woman or she courted him. When taking the oath he said that he did not have any particular religion.

"How did you make the deal?" asked Mr. Dumble.

"By talking."

"Did she make love to you?" "I don't remember."

"Did you make love to her?" "I don't remember."

"Did you make this bargain?" "Yes."

"Did you offer to marry her?" "No sir."

"Have you a wife?" "Yes."

"Are you not afraid of having to face a breach of promise case?" "No sir."

"Did you offer to return the goods?" "Yes sir."

Witness then stated that he had paid a considerable amount of the money. The agreement was drawn up on a Sunday according to the date. He was not, however, sure when it was drawn up.

The brief review of the evidence by Judge Huycke was to the effect that the contract as drawn was void owing to the fact that it was made on a Sunday. There was no element of fraud, His Honor found.

LINDSAY LODGE WERE WELCOMED

Visitors Entertained by Peterboro Lodge of Oddfellows

Last evening witnessed another successful attempt to develop the social side of Oddfellowship, instituted last fall by the officers of Peterboro Lodge No. 111.

Lindsay brethren numbering around the 70 mark, arrived on a special train, their number being augmented at the lodge room by a numerous attendance from the local lodges.

The First Degree was exemplified in a most elevating and instructive manner by the Lindsay brethren, Cole Blewett acting in the capacity of Degree Captain, the charges being rendered with unfaltering clearness by Jack Maclean, N.G. Four candidates from Lindsay Lodge with two from Otonabee (local) received the instruction of the Degree of Friendship.

After the ceremony the visiting brethren were entertained in the dining hall, with the indispensable Bro. Dr. R. F. Morrow acting as toastmaster. "The King," and "The Visiting Brethren" were the sole claimants of the toastmaster's notice. Bros. Annas, Kelcher, Sisson, McFadden, MacLean and Staples answering for the Lindsay brethren. Bros. MacLaren and Hamon responding for the local three-linkers.

Bro. Thos. Hooper catered.

THIRTIETH ANNUAL TRIP TO THIS CITY

George Buskin, agent and missionary of the Algoma and Northwest Evangelistic mission is making his 30th annual visit to Peterboro in behalf of the work. He has travelled in the work from ocean to ocean, and has been engaged in Christian work 60 years, and has distributed many thousands of copies of Bibles, scriptural books and tracts in many languages. The donations of Peterborough last year to the work were $24, which is gratefully acknowledged.

WOMAN SANITARY INSPECTOR WANTED

Women's Council Discuss Many Public Questions

Calgary, March 26.—The necessity of a woman sanitary inspector in the city was pointed out at a meeting of the executive of the local council of women yesterday afternoon. Resolutions were passed asking that church property (non revenue producing) be exempted from taxation; a move for the establishment of a home for mentally deficient children; the endorsation of the prohibition of white help in Chinese restaurants.

One member called attention to the fact that washing from homes where contagious diseases existed was thrown in with other clothing and even though they did go through chloride of lime they were not sufficiently disinfected to prevent contamination. She also called attention to the marking of the clothes by the laundry — beautiful pieces of linen are sometimes ruined by the markings of the laundry.

Curfew Needed

One member of the executive called attention to the fact that some of the children were allowed too much liberty by their parents in being on the streets at night, and thought that Calgary should have the curfew law enforced, giving the police power to look after them.

FAIR PLAY FOR MINORITIES

An Article on the Much Discussed Irish Question Written For the Review

By John Powell Laycock M. A.

There is a principle which Anglo-Saxons everywhere have considered peculiarly their own. In the United States a prominent president has aptly termed it "the Square Deal." In the United Kingdom it is commonly called "British Fair Play."

It is true that Britons like other peoples, have not always held to their truer insticts and nobler ideals. Great nations, even as great individuals, have their moments of weakness when they are led aside by their feet of clay. Drunk with militant mercantilism, for years the United Kingdom refused to allow the Scotch minority to participate properly in the commerce with the dependencies which North British bravery had helped to win, for decades she withheld from her builders of over-sea empire the trading privileges of old-world Saxons, for generations she drew chiefly from the illicit profits of the slave traffic, and even in our own time she has chained China to the baleful influences of the opium habit for a century. Still the growing characteristic of Great Britain is her love of justice. There is nothing so imposing, militant, menacing, as the awakened conscience of the United Kingdom. She realized her ill-treatment of the sons of Wallace and Bruce, and the Treaty of Union with Scotland was the result,—she gave birth to Cobden, Bright, Peel, and the old Colonial system died a natural death; she brought forth her Wilberforce, and world-wide slavery breathed its last; and in our own memory, in the legitimate struggle for exemption from the Slavic wave her wooden walls bore back the flood of European interference and proved the yellow race's true friend.

To-day the feet of clay are once more in operation. In dealing with her own, the mother of parliaments has neglected the justice she prodigally bestows on the stranger. To men in the western hemisphere, the old world, with its intrenched landlordism, its militant organizations, appears a distant hazy thing until some Lloyd George climbs higher than his Welsh mountains and the Parliament Bill appears on the horizon, or until the long gaunt form of a King Carson mounts the Irish mists and the exclusion of Ulster looms up. It is so often the child that misunderstands the parent, and the parent the child, that we in this far-away daughter-land hesitate to criticize the internal concerns of the mother country, forgetting that the time may arrive when such takes on the form of a domestic affair of the whole empire. We, who believe only in the aristocracy of democracy are apt to forget that the social structure of centuries takes years to alter, and to lean too much on what to us appears Liberalism, when such in England may be radicalism. We, who stand on the outposts of empire, may sicken of the failings of prophetic idealists to view the need of immediate defensive reconstruction of the imperial constitution. But still with all the faults of our position, it must appear to thoughtful Overseas Britons, that free from the local prejudices, they are capable of coming to an unbiased judgment.

What is the teaching of history on the Irish Question if not this, that the coercion of a minority by a majority stimulates rather than aleviates discontent? The suppression of the Nationalist Irish minority by the British majority through the latter's acquiescence to the landlords, drove the supporters of the defeated faction in hordes across the Atlantic to the colonies to weaken Imperialism or to an alienated land to delay the return of Anglo-Saxon unity. A partially depopulated Ireland is the climax to the dismal story. The lesson, however, still is unlearned in Gath; and straightway the mighty energetically prepare to drive the majority of the inhabitants of the part of the island least affected by the suicidal policy of the past into exile and hostility. Rest assured that the Ulstermen whose blood does not drench once more the plains of Londonderry or whose corpses do not ornament the streets of Belfast, irreconcilable in their pride, will like their antagonists of yore, seek in a disinherited land, the privilliges withheld in the home of their fathers. Verily, with tragic humor, England seems to adhere to the belief that the only settlement of the Irish question lies in accelerating the most progressive and wealthy of the Irish? Why entice Macaulay's New Zealander to visit the ruins of Belfast?

Madness! Madness! The present policy is not the counterfeit it is the thing itself. The truer plan would seem to be not the privilege of exemption for a limited time but for all time, not the appeal by local option to Ulster alone, but to all Ireland. There are sections of Ulster favorable to the supervision of a National Parliament, there may be sections of the rest of the island hostile to such domination; therefore let each county decide its inclusion or exclusion. Once grant the principle that minorities segregated in definite districts have the right to decide their form of government, and the ultimate settlement of the Irish question seems possible only along this line. Otherwise if Ulster is exempted, on the same principle would not the Catholic counties there have a right to be exempted from the exemption? And similarly in the case of Protestant counties in the south? The time might then be ripe for autonomy to Unionist Ireland as well, as one more step in the granting of provincial governments to the Kingdoms of the United Kingdom, a process which many statesmen have declared expedient for the more efficient government of Britain, and a natural accompaniment of the reconstruction of Greater Britain.

It is a curious fact that no sooner is the Redmondite party on the point of greater freedom from the domination of an antagonistic majority in the united parliament than it seeks to assert its right to control the minority in its homeland. That Nationalist Ireland may have been under the Unionist thumb in the past is no sanction for them to turn the tables on their hereditary foes. For generations, a minority in Great Britain, on account of its centralized population, it has petitioned and fought for a local government; for the same reason, a minority in Ireland, the Protestant counties, have the right to agitate and struggle for a separate parliament. The Irish Nationalists now claim that they do not desire an unwilling North to join them; if such be the case, the logical conclusion is accession to the northern wishes and resignation to the hope that the future may bring a better understanding and ultimately a United Ireland. Unionist Ireland has as much right as a minority in its own island, to decide what form of government they should have as Nationalist Ireland, a minority in Great Britain, to decide its administrative and legislative future.

Let the conscience of Great Britain awake.

SUBSTANTIAL INCREASES FOR POST OFFICE CLERKS

Also Affects the Clerks of the Railway Mail Service

OTTAWA, March 27.—Hon. L. P. Pelletier gave notice yesterday of resolutions upon which bills will be based providing for an increase in salaries to clerks in city postoffices, offices of postoffice inspectors, offices of superintendent of railway mail service, money order exchange offices, and of railway mail clerks.

For the clerks in the first four-named services the salaries are to be $600 to commence with, with an annual increase of $100 per year. No maximum is mentioned. Railway mail clerks, when appointed on probation, get $600 per year, and on confirmation $700 per year, with an annual increase of $100 until a maximum of $1,400 is reached. Temporary mail clerks are to get $600 a year and mileage allowance. A temporary mail clerk is eligible for the annual increase until his salary amounts to $1,000, but it is not eligible for an increase above $1,000 until he passes the qualifying examination. Salaries of all clerks who on April 1, 1914, are getting less than $600, will at that date be increased to that amount.

WHAT EXCHANGES HAVE TO REPORT

Saw Mill Burned.

Messrs. Lynch & Ryan's saw mill in Lake Township, Hastings County, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday of this week. The cause is unknown. The loss is partly covered by $700 insurance on the building and machinery.—Norwood Register.

Starting in Business

Mr. F. W. Burnham, of Peterboro, is visiting his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Burnham, this week. He has severed his connection with the C. G.E., and intends going into the wholesale confectionery business in Peterboro with his brother, Mr. Edgar Burnham. We wish them success.—Millbrook Reporter.

Latest Case.

A local merchant, who has recently commenced business, has decided to test the Transient Traders By-Law by refusing to pay the $50.00 license fee. Constable Post has entered an information in the case, which will probably be tried here this week before County Magistrate Edmison.—Havelock Standard.

Not This Time

Evangelist Pugsley is conducting a series of very successful evangelistic meetings in the Park Street Baptist Church, Peterborough.—Lakefield News. We wonder would it be slippery Bill in a new role?—Millbrook Reporter.

Making Recovery.

Mr. James Murphy, who was the victim of a terrible mishap at a saw mill at Centre Dummer some weeks ago, when he had his leg badly cut by being thrown on a revolving saw, is recovering nicely. The severed tendons and wounds, which were set and dressed by Dr. Sutton, are said to be knitting splendidly—Norwood Register.

Lindsay to Celebrate.

The next big day (holiday) will be Victoria Day, May 24th. The Foresters of Lindsay will hold a monster celebration on Monday 25th, and guarantee that the program for the day will be one of the best ever given in Lindsay. It is also expected that the best baseball tournament ever played in Lindsay will be on the program.—Lindsay Warder.

Walks in 'Caygeon.

A special meeting of council met Monday evening to take into consideration the bringing before the electors the by-law voting $10,000 for building sidewalks. The by-law will probably be brought before the regular meeting of council next week, with the probability that it will reach the electors about the 1st of May.—Bobcaygeon Correspondence.

Dr. Ford Celebrates.

On Tuesday of this week, our much esteemed and long resident citizen, Dr. S. P. Ford, celebrated his fiftieth aniversary of active practice in medicine. The Doctor graduated in the spring of 1864 and came to Norwood that fall, having been engaged here in his chosen calling ever since. This is a record which few, if any, can excel. So closely allied has the Doctor been with the business and social life of the community for the past half century that he is a veritable encyclopaedia on any matter pertaining to the district. Friends at a distance will be pleased to learn that he is still enjoying good health and is able to attend to his duties as a practitioner, having fully recovered from his illness of last year. All will join with The Register in extending congratulations.—Norwood Register.

HON. MR. MEIGHEN DEALS WITH GRAHAM'S REPLY TO RAILWAY REPORT

HIS DEFENCE IS RIDDLED

Fact Remains, Says Solicitor-General, That Road Is Now Merely Costly Ornament and Cannot Be Expected to Regulate Freight Charges.

OTTAWA, March 27. — With the galleries filled by the Ontario Hydro-radials and great waterways delegates the House of Commons resumed the debate on the National Transcontinental report yesterday and continued it until eleven o'clock when an adjournment was moved by J. E. Armstrong of East Lambton.

Col. Hughes was the centre of a stormy discussion at question time. While speaking to a question of privilege he took occasion to denounce the newspaper reports referred to in the House the other evening, which quoted him as having assured the Ulstermen that no obstacle would be thrown in the way of a thousand picked Canadians sailing from here to join the Carson army in May. The article, he said, had been concocted and sent out from the "Boozorium" or slanderbund operated by the Opposition.

This brought Mr. Fred Pardee to his feet. The article he had read to the House was taken from The Montreal Star. He insisted that the Minister of Militia withdraw the offensive statements, which he knew to be false.

For a few minutes the Opposition showed some of the spirit of the navy debate of last session, but Col. Hughes, at the request of Mr. Speaker, withdrew his remark.

The House reverted to the debate upon the Gutelius-Staunton report on the National Transcontinental, which was resumed by the Solicitor-General.

Mr. Meighen defended Mr. Gutelius from a charge of incompetency. He had been engaged in railway construction continuously from 1888 to 1903.

Mr. Meighen then discussed the N. T. R. entrance into Winnipeg, which he said went through St. Boniface on the top of an embankment 22 feet high, coming into Winnipeg on a sky line. No spur lines could be built up to this absurd embankment.

The Transcona shops, he said, had been built twice as large as they should have been. The shops at Quebec, although having to handle more work than the shops at Transcona should handle, had only cost $2,000,000, while the shops at Transcona had cost the enormous sum of $4,500,000.

It was childish to compare the capitalization with the capitalization of roads like the Pennsylvania or the New York Central. The N. T. R. ran through a wilderness and had no assets beyond its tracks and sleepers.

The Gutelius-Staunton report," said Mr. Meighen in closing, "stands undisturbed, unmolested, notwithstanding the vitriolic attacks made upon the commissioners by the ex-Minister of Railways and Canals. He has not scrupled to apply almost any term to these men which might throw discredit upon them, but he has been unable to point to a single finding in their report which was not sustained by the evidence."

William Manly German (Lib., Welland) replied. He said the National Transcontinental had cost a good deal of money, but the country had gotten value for it. It always cost more to get a first-class article. In building a railway it often happens that the promoters through lack of capital were compelled to build a second-class road, and then at an enormous expense practically rebuild it in order to make it first-class. He ventured to say that the Canadian Pacific west of Winnipeg had been virtually rebuilt.

In the end it would be found cheaper to build a first class road in the first place than to build a cheap road and then practically rebuild it from end to end. Mr. German reminded the House that President Chamberlain, of the Grand Trunk Pacific, had notified Major Leonard of the N. T. R. commission that the G. T. P. would not take over the National Transcontinental if the standard of construction was degraded by the introduction of velocity or momentum grades. That warning was still in effect and now, after many denials and subterfuges, the Solicitor-General of Canada had stated yesterday on the floor of the House that there were hundreds and hundreds of momentum grades between Superior Junction and Quebec. He had placed the strongest possible brief in the hands of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

NO CHANGE IN THE SITUATION

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, March 27.—A cabinet meeting this forenoon broke up without reaching a solution of the problem confronting the Government and it is announced another cabinet meeting will be held this afternoon before Asquith makes appearance in the House. The lobbies of the House are crowded and all kinds of rumors are in circulation.

London, March 27.—Sir John French was called to a meeting of cabinet ministers to-day which began at ten and was still sitting at half-past twelve, indicating that some difficulty is being found in filling up the positions of French and Ewart, who seem determined not to withdraw their resignations.

Asquith's statement is now fixed for five o'clock to-day.

FATAL ACCIDENT DURING FOG

Toronto, March 27.—While the fog was at its worst last night, Mrs. Albert Whale, 112 Haselton Avenue, was knocked down and almost instantly killed by a south-bound Dupont street car, near the corner of Avenue road and Bernard Avenue.

SEVENTEEN TRAPS WERE MISSING BUT MAGISTRATE DISMISSED FRANK LONGO

Frank Longo, charged with the theft of thirteen traps, was dismissed by Magistrate Dumble this morning.

L. Schanbault, owner of the traps, gave evidence to the effect that he had missed seventeen traps from his catches down the river. He investigated and found the traps had been stolen. He found four of the traps at L. Cohen's second hand store, Charlotte Street. Mr. Cohen, second hand dealer on Charlotte Sereet, stated he had purchased the traps produced in court, from Frank Longo, the defendant. He did not suspect Longo had stolen the traps. Harry Peters gave evidence of purchasing traps from Cohen. He did not know they had been stolen.

Frank Longo described how he got two traps from George Kent, six from Frank Beaver, three from Albert Roberts, and he bought two others from the Kingan Hardware Co. He admitted selling the traps in question to Cohen. He never took any of the complainant's traps.

DEVELOP CITY FOR TOURIST TRADE.

WITH THE summer drawing near, many citizens are interested in knowing what action the authorities propose taking in reference to the tourist traffic that arises around Peterboro. With the growth of the city, the improvement of parks and of the natural beauty spots in this district, something more should be done to develop the tourist trade than has been done in the past. One of the necessities for such trade is street car extension. There are many visitors who, when they come to Peterboro, desire to visit the largest lift locks in the world, yet there is no accommodation for taking visitors to the locks. On the same line is a large section, East City, without any transportation facilities. Owing to the fact that the bridge over the Otonabee is not strong enough for street car traffic, street-car extenion to East City or to the Locks, would require a new bridge in the first instance. As neither the company nor Peterboro feel disposed to undertake the expense of a new bridge at present, it has been suggested that a bus line to East City be inaugurated as a feeder for, or extension of, street car traffic. Certainly, the citizens of East City are entitled to consideration, and if such a plan is feasible, it would be a benefit to the citizens of the East Ward, as well as to the visitors going to the locks.

There are several parks in and around Peterboro that have been used for picnics and excursions. These should be developed, made easily accessible and advertised. There should be some concerted plan for developing the city's natural resources as a tourist centre. It would mean much to Peterboro in many ways, to follow some outlined plan of development of its attractions. There is a reception committee on the council, which is supposed to have some ideas or plans along this line. Last year practically nothing was done. We trust the committee this year will have some policy to lay before the council and citizens, that will be productive of improvement in Peterboro's facilities for handling and developing tourist trade.

POINTERS ABOUT HYDRO-ELECTRIC

THE PROGRESS of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission is detailed in the sixth annual report, a copy of which has arrived at The Review, and which serves to emphasize still further the activity of this wonderful movement.

During the fiscal year contracts were entered into with the municipalities of Windsor and Walkerville, resulting in the extension of the Niagara system and the construction of 105 miles of 110,000 volts transmission lines with the necessary transformer stations. Also owing to the rapid increase in the load in the Niagara district, increased capacity has been required at the Niagara, Dundas, London, St. Thomas and Toronto stations.

Early in the year contracts for power were entered into with the municipalities of the Beaverton-Cannington district. The most economical source of supply was found to be a development at Wasdell's Falls on the Severn River. This was a new departure on the part of the commission, but after authorization by the Government, contracts were awarded and work has progressed favorably.

A large amount of engineering work has also been done in connection with a number of municipal underground systems and eleven municipalities have placed the construction work of their systems under the supervision of the Commission.

In addition to the above a great deal of information has been collected during the year on the stream flow and storage possibilities of various rivers in the Province. The result of this work is shown by the Hydraulic report. This report is considerably larger than that of the previous year, and gives information in great detail.

Many demonstrations have also been given during the year in connection with the use of electrical energy on the farm, and considerable interest has been shown in this work.

The organization of electrical inspection departments has further engaged the active attention of the commission, and many municipalities have organized inspection departments and appointed inspectors.

During the year many municipalities have acted upon the authority vested in the commission and forwarded resolutions, requesting estimates and reports in relation to electric radial railways. A report has already been issued for the district north-east of Toronto.

The report deals with the progress of Hydro-Electric extension in Peterboro, stating that the by-law to authorize an issue of debentures for $120,000 to acquire the distribution and street lighting system was carried in January. It also speaks of the removal of poles and laying of underground wires in this city.

The report also contains reference to the bill passed in April, 1913, authorising the construction and operation of electric railways by groups of municipalities. Steam railways are for the most part taking care of the traffic requirements on the through routes in a fairly satisfactory manner, but the accommodation given on the branch lines, where there are no electric roads to assist, is not all that it should be. The lack of conveniences, the chief of which is railway service, has resulted in a decrease of population in rural districts, a decrease which will continue unless improvements are made. The steam railway is inherently handicapped in serving the rural population, as stations and stops are so far apart that passengers are forced to drive many miles to reach them. With such conditions existing, the rides per capita are few and the train service very infrequent. Short interurban electric lines would not be paying investments in many of these districts, as the population is not sufficiently dense to supply the necessary passenger service. It is first necessary to examine the local conditions of population and customs in the several districts for the purpose of comparing proposed lines with roads that have been operating for some years. Statistics and information from existing lines can be collected, and general standards selected for use in estimating the capital cost and operating expenses of a proposed line. Following Mayor Buller's suggestion, recently referred to by The Review, the citizens of Peterboro should be interested in comparative statistics as to whether radial lines can be built and operated with Peterboro as the centre. If such a scheme can be profitably carried out, this city is depriving itself of a great many benefits by not taking quick action in this regard.

PECK SUPPORTS GOOD MEASURE.

THE SECOND reading of the Workmen's Compensation Act took up the attention of the Ontario Legislature on Tuesday. It produced a general feeling of unanimity in the Assembly, Mr. Rowell actually congratulating the Government on making an honest effort to benefit humanity. The bill is expected to become operative on Jan. 1st, 1915.

Criticising one or two points in the bill, Mr. Rowell said that the bill had clearly departed from the original draft. However, it was an honest attempt to solve industrial problems. The working out of the bill, however, would depend largely upon the personnel of the commission. Unless big, broad-minded men composed that body the bill would be a calamity instead of a blessing.

Mr. A. E. Peck, Peterborough's active member, addressed the House pointedly concerning the benefits which would accrue from the act. He emphasized the absence of litigation, the speed with which the injured would be compensated, the advantage of receiving the compensation in small sums, and the security in recovering compensation. The employer would also benefit because he would be relieved of the heaviest end of the burden.

When Mr. Peck and Leader Rowell are in harmony over this bill, not to mention the tenor of the whole Assemly, Grit and Tory, the people of Ontario are assured that a sound and beneficial law will be added to the statute books.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

PEDESTRIANS on Yonge Street were brought up with a jerk yesterday on beholding the first lady who has appeared on the streets wearing one of the new colored wigs, which in this case was of a vivid green, matching her hosiery. The lady was Miss Reta Gould, the head-liner at one of the theatres this week. She was followed by an astonished looking crowd of men, women and boys, but appeared to be the most unconcerned of all.

THE HON. ARTHUR Meighen and the Hon Robert Rogers are to speak in Peterborough on March 30th. These men are among Canada's ablest speakers, are leaders in the Dominion Government and will address the citizens of this city on the questions that are taking up so much attention in the Federal Parliament at the present time. Every citizen should hear what two Cabinet Ministers will have to say in the Opera House on the night of March 30th.

WE NOTICE that the Lindsay Warder is making improvements in its printing plant. That means a better newspaper for Lindsay, and we have no doubt Lindsay people will appreciate the Warder's effort to do things well.

THE WAY those Ottawa newspapers roar about dope and water, makes one think a moral reformer is needed in their midst.

BY THE way, we have missed the wild March hare this year.

Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Philadelphia society is now being treated to an exhibition of the new "backless" gown. It is said that there is no real difference between that and the gownless back.

A Worthy Example of Sacrifice.

Hamilton Spectator.

Thirty-two years ago, Col. Fred. Burnaby crossed the English channel in a ballon from Dover to Dieppe. Three years later, this heroic Englishman, author of The Ride to Khiva, was blotted out by an Arab spear, in the Soudan campaign. Thus do Britain's bravest sacrifice their lives on the alter of their country.

Educating Girls.

St. Thomas Times.

If there seems to be more or less of an unrest in the air over the general subject of education, due to the fact that so many are expounding fads and faddism, it is not to be wondered at that the specific question of the education of girls and women should be coming in for a rather critical examination with pronunciamentos from various camps as to whether or not the kind of education any girl is getting fits her for her responsibilities. And by "responsibilities" is meant not only those of the home, but of the business life as well.

For instance, Mary L. Harkness in the current Atlantic Monthly, in discussing this subject of the education of girls, is convinced that the root of the trouble, so far as the alleged impracticality of the education of the girls goes, is due to the fact that girls are not made to understand, as is done early and continuously in the case of oys, that they are being educated for a life that lasts as long as life lasts. She notes a tendency in all grades to waste the time of girls through minor studies, which reaches an extreme of fussiness given over to trivial activities even in the higher schools.

All this, she feels, tends to dissipate the energy of girls, and what with certain superstitions as to their lack of health and lack of ability to endure hard studies, it brings it about that the girl trained under these conditions is often purposeless and is incapable of concentration of effort in the home or out of it. The remedy, of course, is more definiteness in women's education all along the line, with special training for those who reach the higher grades that will prepare them for what is to be a life work.

JOY ON THE FARM

By Walt Mason

I'd like to be a granger, when Spring is at the door, and fill the horse's manger with cheap excelsior. I'd gambol like the dickens, on fleet and tireless limb, I'd gladly feed the chickens, and teach the ducks to swim. I'd heed the shrieking porkers, and carry them their swill, the calves—and calves are corkers—would have of milk their fill. I'd work to beat the tinkers, without a sigh or groan; the mules—and mules are clinkers—I'd rub down till they shone. I'd toil while I was able to navigate my legs, and underneath the stable I'd crawl to get eggs. But we who live in cities no springtime pleasures know; it is a thousand pities, and yet, alas! 'tis so! For here we do no sowing, except in crowded lots; we do not see things growing, unless they grow in pots. We do not hear the cackle of hens upon the lawn; we do not have to tackle the milking job at dawn. We do not see the daybreak, refreshing, calm and cool; we do not see the jay break his club upon a mule. Among our weary neighbors, penned in by lofty walls, we do our round of labors, and rest in gloomy stalls.

Birthdays of Note

FRIDAY, MARCH TWENTY-SEVENTH

The Hon. R. M. Meredith, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas Division of the High Court of Justice of Ontario, who observes his sixty-seventh birthday to-day, is the fourth of the eight famous Meredith brothers of London. He followed in the footsteps of his brothers William Ralph, now Sir William Meredith, and Edmund, and took up the legal profession at an early age, practicing with the latter in London. His elevation to the Bench by Sir John A. Macdonald in 1890 came as a considerable surprise at the time, as he was only a junior practitioner, but the wisdom of Sir John's choice has been proved by Judge Meredith's subsequent career. He is regarded to-day as one of the ablest justices in Canada.

Only Religion.

The parson is not always a welcome figure in the slums, and often meets with a decidedly cool reception. Dr. Ingram, the Bishop of London, could testify to this. As a young clergyman he took up work at the Oxford House Settlement in the East End, and he has thus described his experiences when visiting: "After long hesitation the door will be opened about half a foot by a little girl; you will hear a distant voice from the washtub in the rear, 'Well, Sally, who is it?' Then Sally will answer at the top of her voice, 'Please, mother, it's religion'."

BLACK, GREEN or MIXED

Tarzan of the Apes

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright by the Frank A. Munsey Co.

Did not her best judgment point to this young English nobleman whose love she knew to be of the sort a civilized woman should crave as the logical mate for such as she?

Could she love Clayton? She could see no reason why she could not. She was not calculating by nature, but training, environment and heredity had all combined to teach her to reason even in matters of the heart.

That she had been carried off her feet by the strength of the young giant when his great arms were about her in the distant African forest and again today, in the Wisconsin woods, seemed to her only attributable to a temporary mental reversion to type on her part, to the appeal of the primeval man to the primeval woman in her nature.

If he should never touch her again, she reasoned, she would never feel attracted toward him. She had not loved him, then. It had been nothing more than a hallucination induced by excitement and by personal contact.

Excitement would not always mark their future relations should she marry him, and the power of personal contact would be dulled by familiarity.

Again she glanced at Clayton. He was very handsome and every inch a gentleman. She should be very proud of such a husband.

And then he spoke—a minute sooner or a minute later might have made all the difference in the world to three lives. But chance stepped in and pointed out to Clayton the psychological moment.

"You are free now, Jane," he said. "Won't you say 'Yes?' I will devote my life to making you very happy."

"Yes," she whispered.

That evening, in the little waiting room at the station, Tarzan caught Jane Porter alone for a moment.

"You are free now, Jane," he said, "and I have come across the ages out of the past from the lair of the primeval man to claim you. For your sake I have become civilized—for your sake I have crossed oceans and continents—for your sake I will be whatever you will me to be. I can make you happy, Jane, in the life you know and love best. Will you marry me?"

For the first time she realized the depths of the man's love—all that he had accomplished in so short a time solely for love of her.

Turning her head, she buried her face in her arms.

What had she done? Because she had been afraid she might succumb to the pleas of this giant she had burned her bridges behind her. In her groundless apprehension that she might make a terrible mistake she had made a worse one.

And then she told him the truth, word by word, without attempting to shield herself or condone her error.

"What can we do?" he asked. "You have admitted that you love me. You know that I love you, but I do not know the ethics of society by which you are governed. I shall leave the decision to you, for you know best what will be for your eventual welfare."

"I cannot tell him, Tarzan," she said. "He, too, loves me, and he is a good man. I could never face you nor any other honest person if I repudiated my promise.

"I shall have to keep it. And you must help me bear the burden, though we may not see each other again after tonight."

The others were entering the room, and Tarzan turned toward the little window. With the others came the station agent, who entered, asking if there was a gentleman of the name of Tarzan in the party.

"I am Tarzan," said the ape man.

"Here is a message for you, forwarded from Baltimore. It is a cablegram from Paris."

Tarzan took the envelope and tore it open. The message was from D'Arnot. It read:

> Finger prints prove you Greystoke. Congratulations. D'ARNOT.

As Tarzan finished reading Clayton entered and came toward him with extended hand.

Here was the man who had Tarzan's title and Tarzan's estates and was going to marry the woman whom Tarzan loved—the woman who loved Tarzan.

A single word would make a great difference in this man's life.

It would take away his title and his lands and his castles, and—it would take them away from Jane Porter also.

"I say, old man," cried Clayton, "I haven't had a chance to thank you for all you've done for us. It seems as though you had your hands full saving our lives in Africa and here.

"I'm awfully glad you came on. We must get better acquainted. I often thought about you, you know, and the remarkable circumstances of your environment. If it's any of my business, how did you ever get into that jungle?"

"I don't know," said Tarzan quietly. "I was born there. My mother was an ape, and, of course, she couldn't tell me anything about it. I never knew who my father was."

THE END.

Murdered by a Statue.

The death of Kenith, the half mythical king of Scotland, was one of the most curious and remarkable in history, if it may be called a historical fact. It seems that Kenith had slain Cruthlintus, a son, and Malcolm Duffus, the king and brother of Fennella. She to be revenged caused Wiltus, the most ingenious artist of the time, to fashion a statue filled with automatic springs and levers. Finished and set up this bronze image was an admirable work of art. In its right hand Wiltus placed a ewer and in the left an apple of pure gold finely set with diamonds and other precious stones. To touch this apple was to court death. It was so arranged that any one guilty of such vandalism would be immediately riddled with arrows shot from loopholes in the statue's body. Kenith was invited to see the wonder and, kinglike (and just as Fennella hoped), tried to pluck the imitation fruit. He was instantly riddled with poisoned arrows, dying where he fell.

Social Rivalry.

"I understand that there are two rival social sets in this town."

"Yes. One set is composed of people who have undergone operations for appendicitis, and the others have had the children's adenoids removed."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Terrible Revenge.

Whatever the poet may have to say about a woman scorned, there is at least one individual, a meat merchant in the north end of Montreal, who is willing to back the wrath of a small boy in its practical application against the fury of any scorned damsel on record.

The man of meat had taken exception to the noise-producing, stone-throwing and other abilities of a group of youngsters who used the vicinity of his shop as a playgound. With the idea of frightening them off, he had called a blue-coated minion of the law into service one morning after one of them had put a snowball through a window. The policeman took charge of a captured youth and escorted him solemnly to his home.

The following day, there were no children playing about, but about 11 o'clock, when the store was full of customers, a small boy suddenly appeared and, flinging a dead cat carelessly on the floor, remarked: "That's all I could find this morning, Mister Brown."

HATS FOR SPRING.

Special Features That Are Expected to Be Popular.

SMALL SHAPES ARE FEATURED

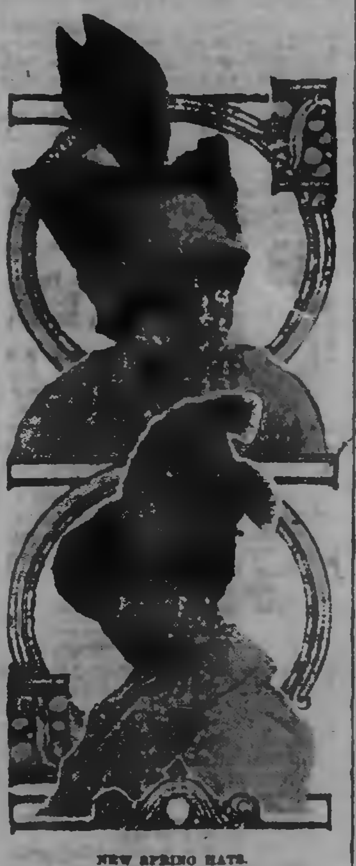
There Is a Decided Tendency to High Trimmings and Very Much Uptilted Brims—Moire Is a Popular Millinery Fabric.

For the spring wear milliners are making toques of watered silk which have crowns exactly like the well known dunce's cap. Other models have peaked crowns like those seen on Scotch caps, only very much higher.

White moire toques are in great demand for wear at southern resorts, and these look exceedingly smart when worn in conjunction with severely plain tailored suits of navy blue cloth or serge.

Another shape which promises to be popular is the small cavalier hat, which boasts a very high turned up brim at one side. To women of small and regular features these hats are extremely becoming. They are trimmed with curved mounds which jut out jauntily at either side, or with a single brush mount which stands erect directly in front.

Yet another new and striking hat is that which has an extremely narrow brim and a high crown like that of a man's tall hat. This shape is sometimes made in fine black silk beaver, and in that case it really looks like a man's hat. For trimming, such a model would have a fan shaped mount of black coque feathers at one side or a high tuft of ostrich tips mounted to resemble a baby palm tree.



NEW SPRING HATS.

Ostrich feathers have come back into favor. For some time the Parisian milliners opposed this revival. They are, one and all, devoted to ospreys and aigrets, but the movement in favor of humanity to birds, which was started by a group of American women, has influenced the whole of Europe.

Almost all the aigrets or ospreys now used on hats and toques are artificial and are composed of very fine specially prepared horse hair. Such mounts as these appear on many of the new models, but English and American women are showing a marked preference for long and graceful ostrich feathers. When the spring season really opens we shall find picture hats trimmed with sweeping feathers once more the height of the fashion.

The majority of new models are carried out in straw, satins and moires, while bottle green, black and tete de negre are among the favorite shades utilized.

One of these has a brim of very fine jet and an upstanding frill of black tulle, which is very high at the back. There is a jet ornament on either side that not only is decorative in appearance, but keeps the hat securely fastened to the head.

New hats are all small and close fitting. One made of brown faille silk has little bunches of paradise mounted on the brim. Another is made of black picot straw, with a huge fan of cross osprey standing round the front, which, fastened with a jet butterfly shaped ornament, is very effective. There are a number of colored straws trimmed with moire and long, sharp quills—quite a new feature.

The hats with trim outlines and close fitting frames are convenient shapes for the early days of spring when treacherous breezes work havoc with the hat of ample proportions. The fetching ribbon clasped with a bracelet of tiny rosebuds is a feature of the helmet shaped hat illustrated here. Moire, too, is much used in millinery. The close fitting hat with the sail shaped bow which is also pictured is carried out in gray straw. The crown and sail shaped bow are of gray moire. The pompon of deep pine green harmonizes delicately with the gray of the silk.

ABOUT THE HOUSE.

Sifted wood ashes put on a damp cloth will remove stains from tinware, agate or crockery.

If a pan in which milk is cooked is rinsed out in cold water the milk will not be so apt to stick.

Blankets after being washed and dried thoroughly should be well beaten with a carpet beater.

The wood of mission furniture may be safely washed with warm water. After it is thoroughly dry it should be polished with a good oil.

An apron made with a bib of table oilcloth is a greater saver to wear when washing dishes.

If grease is well rubbed on the stove before polishing the polish will not burn off so quickly.

Paint spattered window glass can be cleaned by dissolving soda in very hot water and washing the glass with it.

Use warm water to sprinkle starched clothes, and the effect will be twice as satisfactory.

A delicious winter salad is made with apples and oranges. Cut into small pieces one apple, two oranges, lettuce and ground nuts. Serve with lettuce leaves with salad dressing.

RARE CHINA.

Housewives Seldom Care to Allow Servants to Wash It.

Most china lovers wash their precious bits of porcelain themselves rather than trust them to fingers which have never been taught to use their tips—the secret of sure and delicate handling, and now become almost a mark of breeding, so surely do gentle women inherit it from generations of embroidering and fine sewing foremothers.

In houses where there is much china these periodical washings are heavy tasks, and they are sometimes made heavier by inexperience or lack of thought.

The simplest way is to clear a large table, cover it with a waterproof sheet, unless it be of plain deal, and place on it two large foot baths.

If there is room in the bathroom with its facilities for hot and cold water and for pouring away, so much the better. Having collected all the china to be washed and carefully put aside any that has been cracked or broken or mended, take the pieces one by one and wash them in the first foot bath in water at a temperature comfortable for the hands with ammonia and plenty of soap.

Use a stiff nailbrush, a soft mop and a fine cloth—on no account a swab, which may catch on projections. Then put the washed piece in the other foot bath, which has been filled with tepid water, also with a little ammonia or a few drops of vinegar in it.

Do not dry the pieces. Put them by an open window, if possible a sunny one, and when replacing them give them the lightest touch all over with a very fine duster. Change the water frequently.

A toothbrush or one of the small brushes like flue brushes meant for cleaning coffeepots will be useful for getting inside the curves of cup handles. The china may be rinsed in the bath, but washing it is tiring at the best, and stooping makes it doubly so.

This method insures its drying with a fine sheen and does away with the most dangerous of the operations.

RIBBONS ARE POPULAR.

They Are to Be Used Extensively In Spring Fashions.

Prominent among the favored ribbons are very thin, soft satin taffetas of very high luster, says the Dry Goods Economist. They appear chiefly in soft, delicate colors verging on the popular sweet pea shades.

A multitude of new designs are shown in velours. Among the more novel numbers are those in which field flower designs appear. Cornflowers and meadow daisies are much shown. By way of contrast there are some very handsome Chinese designs in Chinese colorings.

Among the effective velours novelties which will serve for display purposes are those in which bird designs appear. There are, for instance, bird of paradise and parrot designs.

Some of the foremost ribbon houses are making a strong feature of handsome light weight metal ribbons in rich and elaborate designs. These will sell, especially during the earlier part of the season, for vestings in elaborate costumes and dressy tailor mades and for girdles on evening dresses trimmed with metal laces.

Some very attractive Easter designs are shown in warp prints. Among these are chick and egg and swan designs.

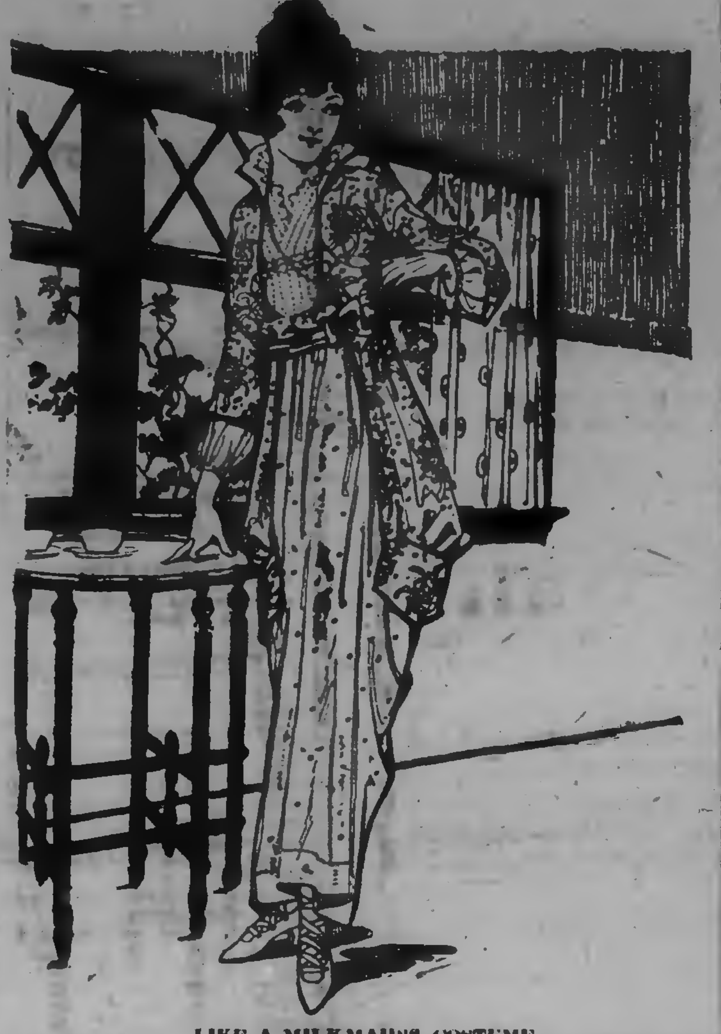
Puffs For the Purse.

Little crocheted powder puffs are the latest novelty for the purse. They can easily be made at home.

Crochet two circular pieces about the size of a silver dollar out of mercerized cotton of any shade desired. Carefully sew them together, leaving small openings through which to pour in the powder. Fill the bag full with the powder, so that it will sift through easily when patted gently on the face. Then make a pretty edge around the circular piece by crocheting a few rows of plain chain stitch, each added row to be caught into the middle of the preceding one, which gives a sort of ruffle effect. An opening can safely be made by cutting a stitch or two when it is necessary to refill the puff.

One cake of compressed yeast is equal to a cupful of liquid yeast.

THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION



LIKE A MILKMAID'S COSTUME.

Here is one type of the new polonaise effect that is oddly suggestive of the old fashioned milkmaid's costume in the thickness over the hip and the quaint upward lift to the lower line of the skirt. Following the fashion law that all blouses must be transparent at least in part, here is a frilly little vest of pink indestructible voile, the same material and color note found in the sleeves.

SPOTTED HYENAS.

Ferocious Animals That Actually Besiege Towns.

The spotted hyena is particularly dreaded in northern Africa and central Asia. They are extremely ferocious and powerful, prowling about at night, invading cities, houses and tents, stealing and attacking everything.

On one occasion these savage hunters actually besieged the town, making attacks upon it in organised packs and droves.

The inhabitants, to defend themselves, surrounded the entire village with a barricade consisting of the branches of the prickly tulip, thus presenting an array of spines six feet in height; but the animals, by mere force of numbers, broke down the barrier, and carried away two mules and a number of goats before the very eyes of their owners, who, perhaps, considered themselves fortunate in not forming a part of the meal.

In other large towns they were equally dreaded, and if a gate was accidently left open, they would dart in and carry off any animal that happened to be exposed to their attack.

Though cowardly in their natures, they seem at times utterly without fear.

In Abyssinia they are extremely numerous, living among the hills during the day, and prowling about the towns and villages at night, and believed by the superstitious natives to be evil spirits changed into this form by magic, so that they can prey upon human beings.

When Col. Bruce, the famous African traveler, was at Maitaha, he had some strange experiences with them.

One night he was called out of his tent for some reason, and, on returning, perceived a pair of fiery, gleaming eyes staring at him through the darkness. He called for the servants, who rushed in with a light, and there, standing over the head of the bed, was a huge hyena, with two pounds of wax candles in his mouth, ready to make off.

The colonel, seizing a pike, struck the brute that even then did not seem inclined to give up its booty; but a second blow sent the spear through it, the animal striving to reach its opponent, tearing up the tent and creating general devastation, finally slipping up the pole so far that the colonel was obliged to draw his pistol and shoot the animal.

Such adventures are of common occurrence, the animals being continually on the watch for prey, from candles to a good fat donkey.

Though so ferocious, they have been tamed.

According to Col. Sindham, the East Indian traveler, in some portions of India they are domesticated and utilized as we do dogs.

Won a Wife by His Skill.

Action was a Grecian painter of about the time of Alexander, and he won his wife by his great work. He painted a picture called "The Nuptials of Alexander and Roxane," which was exhibited at the Olympic games. It created such a stir that one of the judges cried in admiration, "I reserve crowns for the victorious athletes, but I give my daughter in marriage to the painter Action as a recompense for his picture." Action was one of the artists who excelled in the art of mixing colors. He could not go to the nearest store and purchase them, as artists do today.

The Clock Tower of Berne.

A tower in the city of Berne, Switzerland, is famous for its mechanical clock, which, at the striking hours, presents an interesting display. Three minutes before the hour a cock crows and flaps its wings, and several bears march round a seated figure of Time, which thereupon reverses an hourglass, raises its scepter and opens its mouth as often as the clock strikes, while the bear on the right bows its head. The cock once more crows and the pantomime is at an end. This famous clock tower was once a watchtower and stood at the extreme eastern end of the town. Now, however, it is in the center of the town.

DEPUTATION AT OTTAWA

Delegates Urge Aid for Ontario's Hydro and Waterways

BECK IS CHEERED

TORONTO, March 27.—The biggest deputation Ottawa has ever known waited upon Premier Borden and colleagues yesterday to press for Federal aid in carrying out the big projected scheme of Hydro radials and also in development of the "great waterways scheme," whereby ocean-going ships could be carried from Montreal to the upper lakes via the Welland Canal. There were about fifteen hundred delegates, largely from Western Ontario and the enthusiasm was marked. The reply given by Premier Borden in which he showed clear sympathy with the requests appeared to be regarded as entirely satisfactory to the gathering which left the Parliament Buildings in the best humor.

The deputation was introduced to Premier Borden by Mr. Weichel, member for North Waterloo and President Detweiler of the Great Waterways Union read the memorial. G. P. Hamilton, of Guelph, read the memorial regarding the extension of Hydro power lines, and he was followed by Thomas Hannigan, secretary of the Hydro-Electrical Radial Unions, who presented a memorial from that body urging aid for the system of publicly owned radials as a remedy for rural depopulation. The radials he said would act as feeders for the I. C. R.

A memorial from the Toronto harbor board, in support of the great waterways project was presented by Controller Church.

A reception was given to Hon. Adam Beck when he walked to the centre of the crowded House to speak. The cheering started on the floor and circled the crowded galleries and the hand-clapping was thunderous.

"We are tired of railways that are merely built on paper (applause). We have done our part in bonusing them as municipalities; we have done our part as municipalities in guaranteeing their bonds, and we as farmers have done our part in giving them rights of way. And now we want a railway of our own, not to act in competition with the steam roads, but to work in conjunction with them."

Given Pioneer's Picture.

At the annual meeting of the Goderich, Ont., public library board, recently, John Galt presented to the library a handsomely framed picture of his grandfather, John Galt, founder of Goderich and Guelph, also author of "The Annals of the Parish." Mr. Galt, the elder, was the owner of Ridgewood Park, now rumored to become the property of the Government for camp purposes.

Finis.

The last ironical touch has been given to the Quebec Legislature scandals by an item in the official bulletin of the Provincial Government. The Gazette notes that "in His Majesty's name, his honor the Lieutenant-Governor, is pleased to withhold his assent to the following bill: No. 158, an act to incorporate the Montreal Fair Association of Canada."

PROBLEM OF HANDLING SUSPECTED INSANE PERSONS IS SOLVED

Hon. Mr. Hanna Introduces Several Important Additions to Present Acts—McCormick Assessment Bill is Criticized by Henry Eilber and Finally Goes Down to Defeat.

TORONTO, March 27.—Important Legislation supplementing several of the advanced social reforms now being carried on by the Ontario Government was introduced in the Legislature yesterday. Incidentally, the bill sponsored by R. J. McCormick (E. Lambton) to alter assessment methods was disposed of after a telling speech by Henry Eilber (S. Huron). At the evening session bilingual schools made their appearance for a time, but Hon. Dr. Pyne assured the House that the problem was near solution.

The problem of handling persons suspected of insanity and who have heretofore been committed on occasion to jails is promised a solution in one of a series of bills which the Provincial Secretary laid upon the table for first reading. In short, provision is made that reception hospitals for the insane shall be established, and that while under Government control the municipality shall pay towards the maintenance of them such sums as the Government sees fit, these sums to supplement an appropriation from the Legislature.

A special fund, to be known as the "reception hospitals for the insane fund," is to be set aside and used for this purpose only. The scope of the act covers all cases where persons thought to be insane have been apprehended. They will be taken in charge in these places until their mentality is known, and if found to be not needing attention will be given back to the charge of those who asked the investigation.

To encourage co-operation in the establishment of industrial farms, a bill was introduced which will allow that where the Government appropriates land for that purpose the compensation will be based on the last assessment roll plus thirty per cent.

An amendment to the present act governing sanatoria for consumptive changes the rate paid for maintenance of indigent patients from seventy cents to one dollar per day.

Henry Eilber (Con., S. Huron) resuming the debate on the McCormick bill said the present law was not one to be lightly tampered with. It was vitally bound up with the whole municipal organization of the province and a slight change might throw the whole into chaos.

To remove the tax on buildings, he argued, would include also those of the merchant and hotelkeeper. Huron had a total assessment of $42,000,000. If the building tax were removed the sum of $76,000 would have to be made up in some way, and that would require an additional tax of 2.92 mills. It meant that if the tax on the towns and villages went down that on the farmers would have to go up.

W. E. N. Sinclair (Lib., Ontario) replied briefly. The assumption of the Government speaker was entirely wrong, he said, and Mr. Eilber notwithstanding he was sure that the organization of manufacturers and farmers were not so foolish as to be misled. The Government was apparently only willing to toy with the question.

The vote was then taken and the bill defeated by a vote of 95 to 15.

A bill introduced in the Legislature yesterday by Geo. H. Gooderham aims at the better prevention of ticket speculation.

This act aims to penalize any person being the holder of a ticket for any theatre, opera house, public hall, show, game, grand stand, race meeting or exhibition, who endeavors to sell the same for a price higher than he paid for it, or if he purchases or attempts to purchase tickets not intended for his own use or for free distribution.

Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, introduced his redistribution act in the Legislature yesterday afternoon. In doing so, he said that the Government would make changes only where there was strong reasons for doing so.

In reply to Mr. Rowell, Mr. Hanna said that the changes named in the bill were not great, but there would be a slight increase in the number of seats in the House.

"That will all be made plain when the committee goes into the matter," replied the Provincial Secretary.

The question of bilingualism was raised during the afternoon and from then until after midnight the French-Canadian members took occasion to air their grievances. Mr. Z. Mageau (Sturgeon Falls) moved for a return of all correspondence and documents relating to the operation of regulation 17. The debate which followed was participated in by Mr. Damase Racine (Russell), Mr. Napoleon Champagne (E. Ottawa) Dr. Forbes Godfrey (W. York), Mr. McCrae (Sudbury), Hon. J. O. Reaume and Mr. Rowell.

Dr. Pyne said: "The policy of the Government in regard to English-French schools in this province is to carry out and give effect to the resolution unanimously adopted by this House on the 22nd of March, 1911. Regulation No. 17 is looked upon, as fair and reasonable to all concerned, and the Government proposes to carry out the declared intention of this Legislature in regard to the use and efficient teaching of the English language in the public and separate schools of this province.

The return was granted.

Farmer Has Wireless.

The aerial is attached to Mr. Zuefelt's silo, and he frequently picks up messages and press despatches from Cape Cod to Florida.

The station is attracting much interest in the district.

TO PREVENT GRAFT.

Hon. W. H. Hearst Introduces Electoral Reform Measures.

TORONTO, March 27. — The Ontario Government yesterday presented its promised legislation to abolish political contributions by corporations, license holders and public contractors. The bill, introduced by Hon. W. H. Hearst, provides as follows: "Every corporation or director thereof, license holder or public contractor, who shall pay or contribute any sum of money or the equivalent of money, in order to aid, promote or prevent the nomination or election of any person to the Legislative Assembly, or to any public office, or in order to aid, promote, hinder or defeat any political party or to influence or affect the vote on any question submitted to the electors, shall be liable to a penalty."

A second Government measure also introduced by Hon. Mr. Hearst as an amendment to the Ontario Election Act makes it illegal for election candidates to give or receive money for expenses otherwise than through an official agent. It compels candidates to make a detailed statement of election contributions and expenses, to be forwarded by the official agent to the returning officer for publication.

Masons Honored Centenarian.

On attaining his 100th birthday, Francis McManus, who resides at Maitland, a small village east of Brockville, was waited upon recently by a delegation of St. James' Masonic Lodge and presented with a handsome chair.

Mr. McManus was the first candidate initiated in the lodge in 1854. In those days Maitland was a historic Masonic centre. Craftsmen journeyed thither from all parts of the United States and Eastern Canada to receive high degrees.

The veteran Mason, after reaching the century mark, retains all his faculties unimpaired and is strong and healthy physically. He relates many interesting stories of early days along the St. Lawrence, and of amusing Masonic experiences with the old-timers.

MONTREAL FIGHT ON.

Candidates for Civic Offices File Papers and Make Their Deposits.

MONTREAL, March 27.—Two candidates for one $12,000 job as mayor, sixteen for four $7,500 jobs as controllers and 75 for 31 $1,000 jobs as aldermen have filed their nomination papers and deposited each $200 for the civic elections which will be held Monday, April 6. The mayoralty aspirants are Major George W. Stephens, ex-chairman of the harbor board, and Ald. Mederic Martin, M.P.

The Citizens' Association, which fought hard for the adoption of the board of control system here, has made up a slate of Controller Ainey, Ald. Emard, D. M. McDonald and A. V. Roy for commissioners. Five aldermen go in by acclamation, leaving 26 seats to be contested. In centre ward six candidates will fight it out whilst four men appear in each of four other wards.

Queen To Visit States.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, March 27.—Queen Eleanore of Bulgaria, who had declared her intention of visiting America, yesterday announced that she would depart on her journey from the Bulgarian capital during the third week of May. Queen Eleanore, who will be the first reigning queen to visit America, intends to make a study of the institutions and of the people of America. King Ferdinand is expected to visit the United States later.

COBALT, March 27. — Two unknown young men defrauded the local branch of the Bank of Commerce and the New Liskeard branches of the Imperial and Union Banks, by means of three checks for $8 each, drawn on an account opened in the Sterling Bank at North Bay, and certified, and which were then raised to $80 each.

According to residents the ice in the St. Clair river this year is of a musical nature. Every morning strange sounds, as if a boilermaker's chorus, are heard. They are caused by thin layers of ice that rise and fall with the motion of the water.

ROUTED THE COUNCIL.

Suffragettes at Poplarborough Cleared Solons From Chamber.

LONDON, March 27. — An extraordinary suffragette disturbance occurred yesterday at a meeting of the Poplarborough Council, which had voted adversely to letting out council halls for suffragette meetings.

With shouts of "Cowards," and other offensive epithets, a large number of women invaded that section of the hall reserved for the councillors. Bombs containing evil-selling chemicals were exploded by the score; a bag containing similar substances was thrown from the gallery; bags of flour and stones were flung at the members. The councillors were soon struggling with the infuriated women, many of whom were armed with bludgeons and bottles.

The police were sent for, but for some reason refrained from interference.

Finally the council beat a retreat, leaving the women in possession of the hall.

Shoot To Create Scandal.

PARIS, March 27.—"Why did you buy a revolver" Henri Boucard, the examining magistrate yesterday asked Mme. Caillaux, who underwent examination for the fourth time, "if your object in calling on M. Calmette was to talk about letters which you feared would be published?"

"I prepared for eventualities," Mme. Caillaux replied. "If he did not give me satisfaction, I meant to shoot him to create a scandal."

A bore is a man who, when he has an hour to spare, goes and spends it with someone who hasn't.

TO ASK AID FOR THE BLIND

WIRELESS WILL CARRY KING'S MESSAGE TO OVER THE SEAS

LONDON, March 27.—The King's appeal on behalf of the National Institute for the Blind will be sent by wireless telegraphy Saturday night to every vessel in the world equipped with the Marconi installation. The undertaking, which is of a magnitude never before attempted, is made possible through the Marconi Company. C. Arthur Pearson, honorary treasurer of the Institute, will first forward the appeal over the land lines to the Marconi station at Poldhu, which transmits news and private messages to ships. The ships where an ocean newspaper is published, have a receiving range from Poldhu of 1,500 miles. At the same time the appeal is forwarded by the Marconi transatlantic to Cape Cod, which carries on a service similar to that at Poldhu, thus Poldhu and Cape Cod between them will cover the North Atlantic with the message. From these stations the appeal will be received by all ships adapted for receiving long-distance messages. It will be addressed to the captain of every ship, who will be asked to help organize a collection aboard, and in giving publication to the appeal in the ocean newspaper. The wireless operator will retransmit the appeal to every other ship he meets which is not adapted for receiving messages from Cape Cod or Poldhu. In this way every ship on the North Atlantic will receive the King's appeal.

Within a short time it will also have traveled over the Pacific, South Atlantic and Indian Oceans, thus there will be formed a world-wide wireless appeal for aid to the blind throughout the Empire.

Politics Unsettled.

WILDEMSTAD, Curacao, March 27.—The political situation in Caracas is reported to be extremely unsettled. Many prominent persons have been placed under arrest, including Col. Samuel McGill, instructor-general of the Venezuelan army, who however, was afterwards released. Gen. Manuel A. Natos, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, and two of his nephews, are said to have become fugitives.

ASQUITH GOVERNMENT FACES EXTREMELY DIFFICULT SITUATION

Probability Is That Seely Will Quit or be Transferred to Another Portfolio—Efforts to Hold Army Officials Have All Failed.

LONDON, March 27. — That the Government is still facing a situation of extreme difficulty is proved by the fact that Premier Asquith was not in a position last night to make his promised statement in Parliament, and it was consequently postponed until to-day.

The air is full of extravagant rumors, among the most credible being the report that Col. Seely is, after all, to quit the War Office, by an exchange of portfolios with Lewis Harcourt, Secretary for the Colonies.

The only new facts in the situation were to be found in the resignation of Field Marshal Sir John French Chief of the Imperial General Staff, and Sir John Spencer Ewart, adjutant-general, from the Army Council. The rumor persists that other members of the Army Council have resigned, but this cannot be confirmed.

Negotiations and conferences between Buckingham Palace, the War Office and Downing Street were carried on throughout the day, and it was shown that the strongest efforts were being made to induce Field Marshal French and Gen. Ewart to reconsider their action. The Prime Minister called a hurried meeting of the Cabinet at his residence after it was decided to postpone the statement to Parliament.

Later it was announced, with a show of authority, that both French and Ewart had at last consented to withdraw their resignations, but at midnight Gen. French said his resignation had neither been accepted nor withdrawn.

It is generally believed, however, that it will be found that Col. Seely has again resigned, and that his resignation has been accepted; that Lewis Harcourt has been selected to replace him, and that Lord Emmett, Under Secretary for the Colonies, will be promoted Colonial Secretary.

Another Cabinet Council will be held to-day before Parliament assembles, so it is quite possible that there will be other, perhaps unexpected, changes in the kaleidoscopic situation.

Much interest is being shown in the almost daily conferences between Chancellor Lloyd George and James Ramsay MacDonald, the Independent Labor member, which is interpreted in some quarters as meaning a new coalition between the Labor party and the extreme Radicals, who place the land question and social reform in the forefront of the battle.

In Ireland no change has occurred. Belfast remains quiet, and although it is asserted that the officers at the Curragh camp are determined to resign because of the repudiation of Col. Seely's guarantee by the Government, no actual resignations, so far as is known, have occurred.

Field Marshal Sir John French was one of the signatories of the memorandum of Brigadier-General Hubert Gough giving guarantees to the army officers that they would not be ordered to fight the Ulster Unionists, and regarded the repudiation of the document by the Government as a slight to himself.

CAN'T RELY ON JAPAN.

Australia Demands Better Treatment Says Premier.

LONDON, March 27. — Premier Cook of Australia delivered an important speech yesterday, in which he discussed Churchill's recent statement, and expounded the Australian attitude towards Imperial defence in the Pacific. "We are told by Imperial statesmen," he said, "that the Pacific is being made safe and secure, not by the might and majesty of the British fleet, but by the Anglo-Japanese treaty. I hope Australia will always be on friendly terms with Japan, but when Australia is asked to rely on the Japanese treaty for defence of the Pacific a very serious situation is created.

"Churchill has departed from the agreement by which the Imperial Government undertook to send to the Pacific ship for ship with Australia. Churchill has proclaimed that ships of inferior calibre will do for the Pacific. Australia is entitled to something more than that statement. She is entitled to free and full discussion of the subject of Imperial defence with every unit of the Empire."

Earthquake Causes Panic.

MESSINA, Sicily, March 27. — A shock of earthquake, accompanied by a violent storm, caused a panic yesterday among the inhabitants of this district, most of whom fled to the open country. When the storm subsided it was found that the damage had been insignificant and that nobody had been injured.

DEFEAT IS CONFIRMED.

Villa Suffered Severely In His Attack on Torreon.

MEXICO CITY, March 27.— Confirmation of the reported defeat of Gen. Villa's army at Torreon by Federal forces under Gen. Velasco, was given in a message received at the Mexican war office at noon yesterday.

The rebel losses are placed at 700 men killed.

The rebels are said to be retreating to Bermejillo, a town on the railroad 20 miles north of Torreon.

At the war office it was said that the message was sent from San Pedro de Las Colonias, a town 37 miles northeast of the battlefield, and was filed by a federal officer.

Dozen New Cardinals.

ROME, March 27.—It was tentatively decided yesterday by the Pope to hold a consistory either at the end of April or the beginning of May unless unforeseen circumstances should intervene. It is assumed that about a dozen cardinals will be appointed.

Herbert Spencer's Regret.

Mr. Tollemache in his reminiscences tells this story about Herbert Spencer:

Toward the close of his life Spencer frequented a boarding house, and, chancing to meet a lady who had often dined within earshot of him, I asked her if she could remember any wise sayings of his. After pondering for some time she answered: "I can remember one of his remarks. He said that 'making good melted butter is a lost art in England.'"

Convicted of Murder.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 27. — Edward Cook was found guilty of the murder of Charles Asaff, a Syrian pedlar, at Sheet Harbor early last December. The trial was opened on Monday and concluded Wednesday night, when the jury after nearly four hours' deliberation returned a verdict of guilty with a strong recommendation to mercy. Asaff was shot through the head and robbed and his body secreted under a pile of brush.

Cook was remanded for sentence.

Fifth Woodbine Body Identified.

TORONTO, March 27. — Positive identification of the fifth body taken from the Woodbine Hotel ruins was made at the morgue yesterday; it is that of Charles Thurston, of Brampton.

Albert Kee, a brother-in-law of Thurston, secured from Thurston's dentist a complete diagram of his teeth, and with this in his possession, identified the body at the morgue by the teeth, which were exactly as reproduced on the chart.

Suicide of Bigamist.

MONTREAL, March 27.—Mentally unbalanced by remorse, George Mentsel, a bigamist, Wednesday committed suicide, hoping thereby, as he explained in a note he left for his second wife, to wash out his trouble with blood. Mentsel left his first wife in Germany and was tried here in 1913. He blew out his brains.

SCHOOL CLOTHES.

Planning the Little One's Spring Wardrobe.

SIMPLE GARMENTS THE VOGUE

Thus the Average Mother Is Able to Compete With the Smart Shops In the Designing and Making of Pretty Frocks—Some Popular Fabrics.

For school dresses for little girls nothing is more serviceable than the galateas. They come in all the plain colors and in the striped effects. There are various grades of the material, but a very good quality sells at about 18 cents a yard. It is twenty-seven inches wide. The striped galatea makes effective pipings and bandings for dresses made of the plain material. The brown galatea makes a very nice, serviceable dress, and there's a stripe in two shades of tan which would combine with it very well.

GIRL'S DRESS.

Ginghams, particularly the plaids, make smart looking frocks, and there are some unusually attractive color effects to be had in the 35 and 40 cent ginghams. Percales have long been favored for the simple little morning dresses since they launder so well and are so easily kept trim and fresh looking.

A material which will make the very nicest sort of school dresses for little girls of from six to ten years is cotton ratine. It comes in such pretty, soft colorings and in the stylish "one tone" plaids which are the very latest thing in that line. The material is twenty-seven inches wide and sells at about 40 cents a yard. Cotton ratine, in light shades, makes effective collars and cuffs for the dresses of dark galatea.

For the simple little peasant smocks which so many small girls are wearing, either piquet or linen is a good fabric to employ. Piquet comes in various grades ranging in price from 15 to 75 cents a yard. It is twenty-seven inches wide and comes in all colors. The very fine twills are most used.

A corded novelty piquet which would make a very stylish little dress may be bought. Another fabric which somewhat resembles piquet is the mercerized cotton bengaline.

In the linens may be had unusually pretty shades of tan, rose, blue, gray and buff. They make up very attractively with no trimming other than the band embroidered scalloped edge done on tunic and shirt edge. The material comes in both the ramie and smooth French weaves. It varies in price from 45 cents to $2 a yard and in width from thirty-six to ninety inches.

This latter width is well liked by the woman who is an economical cutter. There is a brocaded linen which is very new and bids fair to be popular since there is a demand for the broche effects along all lines of dress materials.

The colored swisses are going to be used again this season, and very pretty they are with their quaint all over patterns in flowered effects. A French gray dotted with tiny pink roses is one of the daintiest of them, and this would make a very childish, summery looking costume. The swisses are yard wide and priced at 75 cents.

The little lady of eight or ten who has her dancing frocks made of the pretty new challis so much in vogue will look charming, for the texture, color and designs employed in the challis are beautiful. The bordered challis will make up particularly well. They are yard wide and priced at about 50, 55 and 60 cents a yard. A very pretty piece has a cream ground covered with tiny blue dots. In the blue and white border a touch of old rose has been effectively introduced. One very girlish pattern shows a pale pink ground dotted with small white marguerites.

Here is a charming new creation for the future belle. It is carried out in white cloth with bands of colored embroidery. The skirt is laid in wide plaits, and the little coat has the side closing, which is now the mode.

The handsome $400 Newcombe Piano, which will be awarded in The Review Contest, closing Saturday night of this week.

FISHING WITH AN AX.

Winter Sport In Which Tackle and Bait Are Not Needed.

When a man starts out in the dead of winter with only an ax under his arm and says he is going fishing one is inclined to smile and take his statement with a grain of salt. Nevertheless it is true that fish are "caught" with no other "tackle" than an ordinary ax.

Along the coves of fresh water lakes and ponds in the winter, especially when the first new ice has formed a transparent covering, it is possible to secure a number of good sized fish by means of an ax alone. These "fishermen" wear the heavy felt boots of the lumbermen, from which the rubber shoes are removed when they reach the ice. A bright sunshiny day is needed for this sort of fishing. In many of these coves and especially in such coves as are filled with rushes and water lilies in the summer pickerel, pike and other members of that fish family come to the surface of the water and rest within an inch or so of the ice. As far as known they do this to get in the sunlight, just as they sometimes float motionless near the surface of the water in the summer.

The ax fisherman in his noiseless felt boots walks slowly over the transparent ice looking for these fish. They seem to think that the ice affords a protection, and they are not usually frightened away. When the unsportsmanlike "fisherman" sees a fish near the surface he steals up and hits the ice a resounding whack with his ax. Nine times out of ten the fish will be seen to turn belly upward and lay motionless. The secret of this is that the impact of the ax on the ice has forced the water against the fish's head with sufficient pressure to stun him. The fisherman hastily chops a hole through the ice, reaches in and pulls out his fish.—Detroit Free Press.

Frank About It.

"Will you cash a check for me?"

"Yes, if it is good."

"Mighty accommodating, ain't you? Anybody would cash it if it were good."

Make Us Prove It

When We Say to You

in an advertisement that we can, and will, sell you better clothing for the money than you can get elsewhere, MAKE US PROVE IT. Make us "show you."

When any dealer claims to give better values than someone else, make him show you what he will give you for a given sum, then come here, and see the quality of the goods that we give you for the same amount.

We like to have you compare our goods with what you can get elsewhere. We say to you "Take this suit, match it in value if you can, and we'll buy it back from you." We expect every man of good sound judgment to buy his clothes where he can get the most actual value for the money that he pays.

If we can show you that our clothing, at our prices, is the best for you to buy, we expect to clothe you. On the other hand, if you can find anybody, anywhere, who will give you more actual value for your money, we expect you to get your clothes there.

We wish that we could show every critical, discriminating clothes buyer in Peterborough this spring the unusual values we have to offer. If we could, we'd do all the clothes business in town.

We're ready "to show you."

THE SPORTING WORLD

OPEN-AIR BATHING AT EIGHT BELOW ZERO.

Sid Parkinson, a Toronto man, employed as an etcher in an engraving establishment, goes for a swim every Sunday regardless of season. The picture shows him preparing to dress after a plunge amid the floating ice of Balmy Beach. After his swim he scrambles round the ice mounds, presumably to cool off after his exertions. Parkinson was a member of the Serpentine Open-air Bathers' Club of London, England, and is holder of several English water race medals. He has been in Canada for about five years, and his coldest dip was that on which this picture was taken, when the thermometer registered eight below zero.

DIVISION OF GATE RECEIPTS OF CLOSING LEAGUE GAMES REMAIN AS FIRST DECIDED

The final meeting of the Mercantile Hockey League which was held last night in the Y. M. C. A. took the form of a Donnybrook Fair. The trouble arising out of the manner in which the finances were divided was brought back and for a while it was thought that the meeting would have to adjourn to the gymnasium and an impromptu boxing tournament staged. The division of gate receipts as formerly decided will stand.

Mr. Peter Spratt, representing the De Laval, stated his side of the case very strongly and properly, but other gentlemen present allowed their great love for "British Fair Play" carry them away.

Mr. F. Russell stated that it was his intention to interview a lawyer if it cost him fifty dollars.

The financial statement presented by Secretary H. Walkey was accepted. The statement clearly demonstrated the fact that the Mercantile League has concluded a banner year. The handsome Meharry-Nelson trophy will be the property of the Tool Room club for the next twelve months.

BASEBALL

Dave Hilliard is cutting a big swath with Cleveland A. A., the former Toledo A. A. team.

He has been playing the left garden, and hitting the ball like a fiend. Against the Boston Braves recently, he made a double in two times at bat, and had a couple of put-outs. In another game against the same club he was sent in as a pinch hitter and came across with a nice single which brought in a run.

It is not likely that George Dunlap, the last year shortstop of the London team, will be retained by the Cleveland American League Club, to which club he was sold near the end of last season. According to some stray remarks let out by Manager Birmingham as to Dunlap's showing in practice games, he will not do for fast company just yet. In a game at Atlanta a week ago, Dunlap, who has been playing at short field in all the practice games since Chapman was hurt, made three errors out of six chances. He also failed to get a hit.

London, March, 27. — Knowing Frank Shaughnessy, manager of the Ottawa Canadian League club, twice champions, like the fans of the whole circuit do and cognizant of the fact that he can use a shortstop of the Brant calibre and a pitcher like Fred Bramble for the coming year, makes the Fort Wayne report appear like a long and round-about trip for both former Canadian players from Peterboro and Berlin to Ottawa by the time the fourth year of this league comes.

Only three of the Canadian League clubs will train at home this season, Hamilton, Brantford, and Erie having decided to stick to their own ball parks for the initial workouts.

"Home Run" Baker, is weakening fast. Five times at bat against the Baltimore Internationals Frank poled out only four hits, one of them a two-bagger.

George Leclair, the ex-Montreal pitcher, released by Guelph last season, is with the Pittsburgh Federals. Some league, that Federal.

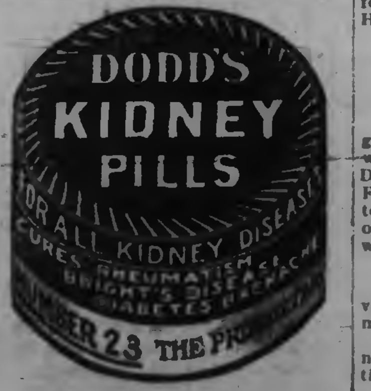
Friends of Lefty Rogers say he is cleaning up from $200 to $500 a week peddling paint in the middle west.

Manager Yates, of the Hamilton club, will not report in the Ambitious City until April 1. He will likely remain there until the beginning of the season. His players will report about April 3.

A despatch from Toronto's traning camp, reports:

"Catcher Kelly continues to improve, and will have no contention as a first string receiver. Snell and Trout will fight it out for the substitute position, with the chances favoring the former. Wilson is crowding Kroy for a position in the outfield, and will be a hard man to beat."

Graham is being closely watched by Kelley. The young Toronto pitcher is a spit-ball specialist. He has not shown his real goods, but if they are as good as the samples so far displayed they will have a hard time holding him off the club.



SKIP FINLAY WON UNION BANK CUP

Skips T. E. Finlay and H. W. Nicoll, of Norwood, played the final game for the Union Bank Cup, and Finlay won by one shot.

HOCKEY CLUB TO HOLD MEETING

The executive of the Peterboro Hockey Club met last night, and it was decided to hold the annual meeting in the near future, probably next week.

Secretary Bond will report a financial statement, that should be very satisfactory.

LACROSSE

Mr. Len Dobson has received a communication from the secretary of O. L. A. containing a proposition by which it will be possible for school boys up to twelve years of age, to purchase lacrosse sticks at 50 cents each.

Youths up to twenty years of age can get a lacrosse stick for$1. Trebilcock Bros. have undertaken the agency, by which they will receive the sticks and retail them at their store. It is not a money-making scheme, as they act merely as agents for the distribution of the sticks.

Samples of lacrosse sticks will be exhibited in the windows within the next few days.

Where an eight-team school league is formed, the Association will present the winning team with medals.

LETTER TO THE SPORTING EDITOR

Sporting Editor Review:

Sir:

A meeting of the Mercantile Hockey League took place last evening at the Y.M.C.A. to wind up the season's business. At a previous meeting it was decided by the six teams (when there were only four represented) to let the leading three teams divide the spoils of the last three games. Now the secretary did not have the minutes of the last meeting on hand last night when they were called for, but nevertheless, the meeting went on and everything was taken for granted, though the minutes were neither read nor adopted. Some of those present did not know what these minutes were. Someone wanted to move that the money be divided equally among the six teams, but the president refused to let him make the motion.

When things got hot, the president said he did not have all night to waste, and things were going to stand as they were, so he adjourned the meeting. Is not this a grand mess for the wind-up of the Mercantile Hockey League?

Yours truly,
HOCKEY PLAYER.

The girl that knows how to make a good pie out of the choice assortment of nothings in the pantry may be rated as a good cook.

There is plenty of food for thought lying about, but few there be who have appetite for it.

A real grievance is one just the size of the one now in your possession.

There are some people who get just what they want without ever even wanting it.

Annual Appeal.

"Help! Help!"
Calls
The crops
In most pathetic tones.
They can't think
Of anything
They need
Just at this moment
Quite so much
As saving.
It is
The psychological moment
For them.
They have been Working overtime
Growing up
And getting ripe,
And now
They want to be pushed along
In the direction
Of the thrashing machine
Before
All is lost.
It is
A most distressing sight
To see
A perfectly good
Crop
That could buy
The baby shoes,
Furnish
Skating lessons
To all the children
And lift the owner
Over
Into the automobile class
Going to waste
And doing no good
Just for the lack of Saving.
Come.
Ye disconsolate
And all others
Out of jobs.
And pitch in!

Many friends will learn with much regret of the removal from our city of Dr. McClelland, of Brock Street, his wife and family and Mrs. McClelland's mother Mrs. Denoon, to California, where they will reside in the future.

Mrs. Botzer, of Toronto, is in the city the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Routley, Stewart St.

Mrs. W. Routley, of Toronto, is in the city, the guest of her mother and sister, Mrs. Thompson and Nurse Thompson, of the Private Hospital, Brock Street.

The friends of Miss O'Keefe, who has been residing in Toronto for the winter months, will be pleased to learn that she is returning to her home and will reside at 786 Water Street.

Spring has come to stay this time, the robins are gaily warbling, and strawberries are ripe—in the windows.

The many friends of Mrs. Donald Menzies are glad to learn that she is progressing favorably toward recovery.

Yesterday afternoon the I. D. O. E. held their monthly meeting in their room at the Armouries. A feature of interest was a short address by a former commanding officer, Colonel Miller, who told of early history of the 57th Battalion, briefly, as his time, during business hours, was very limited.

The Private Hospital, Brock St., is likely to prove a boon to sufferers, and will fill a niche in Peterborough that has long been empty. The cosy, airy, home-like, wards and pleasant situation seem all that is needed to make it an ideal refuge in time of illness.

Mr. Robert Preston of Midland was with the Lindsay Lodge of Oddfellows who paid a fraternal visit to the Peterboro Lodge No. 111 last night.

Mr. Moss has been in the employ of the Union Bank of this city and has made many friends who will regret his departure. He will sail on the "Empress of Britain."

Superintendent Coyle and Trainmaster McMillan of the G.T.R. were in the city to-day.

Mr. J. H. Moss and family leave on Monday morning for their former home in England, where they will reside permanently.

FORMER LINDSAY PASTOR DEAD

Rev. Wesley Armstrong, Victor Emmanuel Pattyson, a former pastor of the Methodist Church, Lindsay, died at Galeton, Penn., on Wednesday night.

While in the ministry in Ontario he preached at Lindsay, Omemee, Welcome, Norwood, Penetanguishene and other places.

His mother, Mrs. (Rev.) W. M. Pattyson, and his sister, Miss Lillian Pattyson, reside in Lindsay.

DR. RAMSAY AT KNOX CHURCH

A Prominent Preacher for the Services on Sunday

The services in Knox Church Sunday morning and evening will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Ramsay, of Toronto, recently minister of Knox Church, Ottawa. Dr. Ramsay is one of the prominent leaders of the Presbyterian Church. Rev. Mr. Keith has been requested by the Presbytery to visit Omemee, Bethany and Mount Pleasant on Sunday next to learn their views in reference to the arrangement of those fields. Knox Sunday School will hold an open session Sunday afternoon in which all classes will join and to which friends are invited. Mr. Jas. M. Gerard, superintendent of Missions, has arranged a very attractive order of service, in which he will be assisted by Mr. Geo. Kenyon, choir leader, and the Songster's Orchestra of the Salvation Army.

ACCOUNT FOR EXTRAS

The firm of Foley and Gleeson, paving contractors, are having an argument with the Lindsay Council over an account for extras on two streets.

The "extras" done by the company were not included in the contract, but the work was done under instructions.

THE GREATEST OF AMERICAN SUCCESSES

Coming to "The Grand"

"The Old Homestead," the greatest of all American successes, guaranteed from coast to coast by press, public and managers for twenty-seven years, comes to "The Grand" next Thursday, April 2nd.

The perennial drawing power of "The Old Homestead" is indisputable, and its long success and continuous popularity are due in no inconsiderable measure to the fact that it is perfect transcript of nature holding the mirror up to nature as do few other plays of modern times. It was accounted a good play twenty-six years ago as far back as 1886, when it had its initial performance at the Boston Theatre, and made the most telling success ever scored by a new production in Boston. Year after year since then it has repeated that success, and it has even improved with age. It is old, yet ever new, and it is absolutely true to the New England country life which it represents.

The musical features are the same as of old, the double male quartette is just as good to-day, as it was in days when Chauncey Olcott, Richard J. Jose, Tom Lewis and others we might mention were members of the organization. The Grand Choir in the Grace Church scene includes twenty trained voices and is as impressive as heretofore. The original company and production will be seen here under the personal direction of Mr. Frank Thompson. Capacity houses will undoubtedly welcome the grand old play.

THEATRICAL

Kibble and Martin's big production of Uncle Tom's Cabin was greeted by a very large audience at the Grand Opera House last night.

This evergreen play was presented on a much more elaborate scale than is generally witnessed and the finale, which sees the transformation of Little Eva is a beautiful scene. The characters were faithfully portrayed.

The quintette sing a number of popular songs and are also responsible for some clever dancing novelties.

The show came from Guelph, but the company was held back through the failure of the regular fast train to pick up their cars. Quite a large number of people were disappointed when they found the matinee performance had been called off.

The company arrived here on the G. T. R. about six o'clock, the regular train having to use an extra engine.

STOP GIVING AWAY COUPONS

A number of grocers in the city have decided to discontinue the practice of giving coupons, in view of the agitation against the practice.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE MASTER'S WORK

Editor Review:—

Dear Sir:

Much is being said recently through the press of the great work of the Peterboro Health Association. This is a very clever and modest way of preparing public thought for an appeal to the public treasury. One writer, J. R. W., with a good degree of polish, says, "surely this is the work to which the Master directed," etc. If this is the work of the Master, then why not make it a part of the Christian church work, and support it from that source, and refrain from appealing to the public treasury.

If it is right and best to separate church and State, then the church should support itself without asking the aid of Government or Municipality. Thereby compelling the non-Christian and those who do not believe that this is the method of the great Teacher, to pay taxes for this purpose. Surely a society that is of God and following the Master should do its own financing, and not to covet the public funds, thereby adding more mills to the already burdened taxpayer.

Thanking you for space,

CONSISTENCY.

YOUTH AND AGE

As when a floating cloud obscures
The morning sun with sable pall;
And swift disrupting in soft floods
Fair summer's transient showers fall.

A moment's gloom enwraps the sky,
Then darksome shadows disappear;
Full soon with brighter beams on high
Shines forth the sun in radiance clear.

So from the careless heart of youth,
Earth's deepest sorrows soon decay;
And rankling wounds, all pain in sooth,
Are wept in welling tears away.

But age knows not the blessed balm
Of tears that bring a sweet relief,
Condemned to hide 'neath outward calm
The tortured souls corroding grief.

Tho swept by fortune's adverse blast
That lays life's hopes and prospects low;
Or pierced by slander's venomed shaft
Aye, copious tears soothe trifling woe.

Throughout youth's sunny thoughtless years;
In age, alas we only know
The bitter grief without the tears.

GOOD VAUDEVILLE ACT AND PICTURES

The attraction at the Royal Theatre for the remainder of this week is made up of one vaudeville act and several picture plays. The former act received great applause last night, which shows that the old favorite vaudeville of tumbling, hand to head balancing, etc., is still in demand. The feature film entitled "Misgotten Gains," depicts a very fine story of love and romance while Pathe's Gazette needs no introduction. In the last series Larkin's Dublin "strikers" are shown in full strength.

JOHN HASSALL, GENIUS OF THE POSTER ART

Celebrated English Artist Tells of His Life and His Studies—Acknowledged King of His Class.

John Hassall, the genius of the poster, was rapidly putting the finishing touches to a sketch when a reporter called at his studio.

"Just have a look round," he said, "and I shall be ready in a brace of shakes."

With curious eye the reporter scanned the workroom of the man who is generally conceded to be the King of Poster Artists.

Shelves and walls alike were littered with antiquities and curiosities gathered from the ends of the earth; an African idol—maybe some Ju-Ju fetish—a Mexican water-jug, quaint musical instruments, the horns of buffalo, moose, deer, and what not.

In the place of honor at one end hangs a striking pastel drawing in exquisite creams, madder browns, and rose tints. A haughty peacock, the vivid emeralds of its plumage in startling contrast with the soft and mysterious atmosphere of the background.

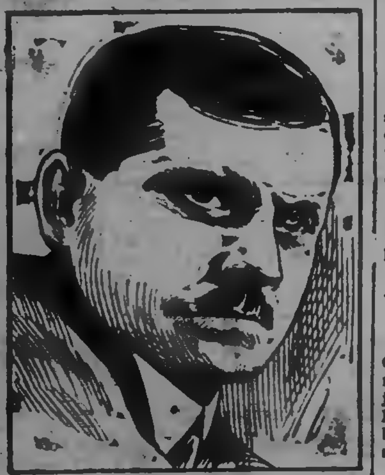
John Hassall is, above all, famous for his comic posters. These grin cheerfully at us from every hoarding.

Now, without exception, every artist who has made his reputation by humorous drawing professes that his own secret inclinations in art are towards the serious.

This is Hassall's own story of his life:

"My brother and I were educated at Heidelberg, and during the holidays we literally tramped Europe.

"Afterwards I went to Manitoba and spent the three most splendid years of my life. It was big, fine work, cutting roads, levelling timber, crushing grain, and the rest.



JOHN HASSALL.

"How my first drawing was published happened in this way. Some of the neighboring farmers' hands had been celebrating a jolly evening. I made a study of the gathering, and sent it to the The Daily Graphic.

"To my surprise they printed it, and I was still more astonished when The Montreal Star wrote me about this sketch.

"I began to think there must be something in drawing, and when a friend said to me, 'Hassall, why don't you go in for it as a profession?' I cheerfully replied, 'I will,' and I did the next day.

"I spent three years at the free classes at Antwerp and did nothing the whole time but charcoal drawings. Antwerp is a wonderful city of art. There are some three thousand students in the town — men of all classes down to the humble workmen. But the discipline maintained is very strict.

"After leaving Antwerp, I spent six months in Paris, and by the way I do not advise students to make their preliminary studies there. I know it is a traditional custom for English aspirants to go to Paris, but I think it is a mistake. It is beginning at the wrong end, for Parisian art is the art of the painter and colorist, and what the novice needs is line-work and composition. I certainly consider Antwerp much better for the aspiring student."

John Hassall's capacity for work is prodigious, and he is a wonderfully quick worker. The little sketch he drew specially for the reporter was finished in sixty-five seconds by the watch.

Before Hassall came into the field there were few posters worthy of the name in England. Now the Hassall figures, with their round, healthy complexion and staring eyes are a national feature.

A great and able school of poster artists has grown up of late years, but, other things apart, no man has been able to equal Hassall's peculiar mastery of flat wash of color.

Inventor of Logarithms.

By a congress to be held in Edinburgh in July it is proposed to celebrate a great event in the history of mathematics, the publication in 1614 of John Napier's "Logarithmorum Canonis Mirifici Descriptio." Known to fame as the inventor of logarithms Napier was a man of wide intellectual interests; but it was to mathematics that he devoted chiefly his leisure through life. He invented the present notation of decimal fractions.

Exaggeration.

"I'm the victim of financial exaggeration."

"I don't understand you."

"The bank has just informed me that I've overdrawn my account."

ON FAMOUS SITE.

Inns of Court Hotel, London, to Be Demolished.

Within a few weeks, or perhaps a little longer, if the present building trades dispute is protracted, the work of demolition will be begun on the Inns of Court Hotel, in Holborn, the site of which was recently purchased by the Government for a new and much needed telephone exchange. Thus will disappear a building which, aside from its associations with the law—Lincoln's Inn Fields being directly at its rear—has little historic interest but which for many years has stood on the site of one of the most famous hostelries in London. For the Inns of Court Hotel began life in quite another form as the Blue Boar of Plantagenet times, taking its name from the crest of the De Veres who owned most of the land thereabout. Later it added the title of "The George," when its chief rival the "George Inn," was demolished in Queen Anne's time.

It was at the old Blue Boar and George that Cromwell, disguised as a trooper, stopped and searched a man about to set out for Dover, and discovered in his saddle bag the letter which determined him on King Charles the First's execution.

The Blue Boar and George gained a notorious name as the inn at which the more noble of the highwaymen stopped on their way to execution from Newgate prison, situated on the site now covered by the New Old Bailey, to Tyburn tree, which stood in the middle of the road about where the Marble Arch now is. It was their custom to drink as much sherry as their purses permitted, and even more in many cases. As Swift wrote:

"As clever Tom Clinch when the rabble was bawling,
Rode stately through Holborn to die of his calling,
He stopt at the 'George' for a bottle of sack,
And promised to pay for it when he came back."

The charges of the Blue Boar and George were beyond the common malefactors of those days, and they journeyed a little further, to Seven Dials, before spending their last ha'pence on ale to stupefy themselves for the final ordeal.

Animals Disappearing.

Students of natural history have been declaring for a long time that the advance of civilization is threatening all animals with extinction, but lately this subject is arousing more than ordinary interest.

It is claimed that one more big war is needed to sound the practical death knell of the horse in England. The South African hostilities cost nearly 300,000 horses. For of all that were sent only a few hundreds came back. half that number being killed and the rest retained in South Africa in connection with the development of the country. Since that time there has been an alarming shortage in horses for the army.

Then, too, it is claimed, the pig is rapidly becoming extinct. For, with the growth of large towns and the facilities for keeping the animals under recognised regulations becoming less and less, the race of swine is being slowly wiped out.

Again, the advance of civilization is having a tendency to do away with fish. The powerful steam trawlers recently introduced, which are capable of capturing hundreds of thousands of fish in one catch, are robbing the sea of fish about twenty times as fast as they can breed.

Each year the seals in the Antarctic decrease thousands in numbers through indiscriminate killing.

Influence of Feminine Dress.

Few men realize the influence that dress has upon them. Man thinks that he is an unbiased being, open to conviction, to sound logic. Fond delusion! He is open to nothing except to the eloquence of a few yards of silk and to the persuasion of soft laces.—London Graphic.

Too Swift For Him.

"Do any of the good things you hope for come to pass?"

"They all come to pass, but they come and pass so bloomin' swift I can't grab 'em."—Saturday Journal.

Farm Laborer's Friend.

Lord Strachey, who has entered upon an active campaign in England on behalf of the betterment of the condition of the farm laboring classes, is a famous Whig squire property holder who, as Sir Edward Strachey, was for some years a conspicuous figure in English politics. He received the reward and a recognition of four years' hard political work in a triple capacity when he was made Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Agriculture, on the eve of the January, 1910, election. During the period from the formation of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's Ministry to Christmas, 1909, he not only acted as Treasurer of the Household and took his share of the Whip's duties in the Lobby, but he acted as the representative in the House of Commons of the Board of Agriculture.

THE ANIMAL DID NOT FIGHT BACK

A young Hindoo tells so amusing story of his first visit to London. His hostess, mindful of the great change in climate to which the traveler had been subjected, wished to make him as comfortable as possible. Accordingly, when she prepared his room for the night, she put into his bed a rubber hot water bottle, a contrivance quite unknown in India.

The young man retired, undressed and got into bed. As he did so his feet encountered a smooth, warm object which he supposed to be some kind of animal. In terror he leaped from the bed and groped about for the light. Unaccustomed to his surroundings, he was a long time in finding it, and at every step he trembled lest the unknown creature should attack him.

At length he found the light and looked about vainly for a weapon. He was on the point of calling for help when he thought of trying the closet. There he found several canes. He selected the stoutest of them and resolved to try conclusions with the intruder.

He approached the foot of the bed, where he was somewhat protected by the footboard, and raised his weapon for a speedy blow, while with his left hand he grasped the bedclothes and began cautiously to turn them down. Then, nerving himself for a final effort, he tore the clothes from the bed and struck viciously at the round black object that he had exposed.

One blow was enough to convince him that the "animal" was lifeless and always had been. His terror gave place to amusement, and after he had his laugh out he went back to bed and enjoyed undisturbed repose until morning.—Youth's Companion.

STYLE IN OLD ST. LOUIS.

Dress of the Men and Women There in Colonial Times.

Monette in his history of the valley of the Mississippi tells of the habit of dress which prevailed in St. Louis in colonial days. Here is what he has to say:

"The leggings were of coarse linen in summer and of deerskin in winter. The principal garment for the men in cold weather was generally a coarse blanket capote drawn over the shirt and long vest. The capote served the double purpose of cloak and hat, for the hood attached to the collar behind hung upon the back and shoulders as a cape, and when desired it served to cover the whole head, and especially among the boatmen, voyageurs and coureurs de bois the head was enveloped in a blue handkerchief, turban-like, as a protection from the solar heat and noxious insects.

"The same material, of lighter quality and fancy colors, wreathed with bright colored ribbons and sometimes flowers, formed the fancy headdress of the females on festive occasions. At other times they also used the handkerchief in the more patriarchal style.

"The dress of the matrons was simple and plain. The old fashioned short jacket and petticoat, varied to suit the diversities of taste, was the common overdress of the women. The feet in winter were protected by Indian moccasins or the more unwieldy clog shoe, but in summer and in dry weather the foot was left uncovered and free except on festive occasions and holidays, when it was adorned with the light moccasin, gorgeously ornamented with brilliants of porcupine quills, shells, beads or lace ingeniously wrought over the front instead of buckles and on the side flaps."—St. Louis Times.

England's Mother Church.

The oldest frequented church in England is probably St. Martin's, at Canterbury, and you may call it the mother church of England. Walk up from the outskirts of the city and you will pass the font which gave baptism to King Ethelbert 1,300 years ago. The font still stands, the worshipers still mount the slope, and one considers whether it was Augustine or Bertha who dragged the king and husband to that font.—London Answers.

Typhoid Fever.

Typhoid is usually disseminated by means of impure water, milk or food and sometimes by flies, but we must not forget that, as Koch said, "there is no other source of infection of typhoid than man." It is fellow creatures of ours who are responsible for its spread. Typhoid fever is a disease of dirt. Unclean habits cause typhoid fever. Be therefore clean and help others to be clean.

All Treatment Experimental.

All treatment, however carefully chosen, is in the nature of an experiment, writes Dr. F. M. Sandwith in the Clinical Journal, for none can know the exact effect of any treatment or drug on any individual patient until he has tried it. A drug may suit ninety nine persons but be injurious to the one hundredth because of some idiosyncrasy.

Mending China.

Valuable china may be mended with the following mixture. When dry it will bear hot water and ordinary usage. Mix well a teaspoonful of alum and a tablespoonful of water. Place in the hot oven till quite transparent. Wash the broken pieces of china in hot water, dry and while still warm coat the broken edges thinly and quickly, as it sticks instantly with this mixture.

SHORT COATS.

They Are Attractive Features of New Spring Suits.

NEW CRAPE SUIT.

Many coats for spring wear are cut on very abbreviated lines, like the one illustrated here. This chic little suit is of canton crape with a very wide hip sash in satin, which is shown in all its amplitude by the very brief coat. The little straw hat in the shape of a cap has a very high trimming of gathered satin ribbon at one side.

The real straws pointing which way the winds of fashion will blow are the fabrics which are seen upon the shop counters.

If displays of this kind of merchandise are any indication we are to enjoy a season of beautiful modes.

The colors most frequently displayed in the shops appear to include the lighter tints of green, rose, orange, purple and red.

Somehow they suggest the soft artistic colors of the Roman stripes seen to best advantage in ribbons, shawls and sashes which are imported from Italy.

The most exclusive dry goods shops are displaying taffeta and bengaline silks. When arranged close together, representing the order of colors usually to be found in a Roman striped sash, such an effect is unusually lovely and especially decisive when seen against a background, provided by draped lengths of brilliantly colored Egyptian crapes, printed to reproduce old China and Indian flower and conventionalized motifs in bouquet and other forms.

Without doubt the vogue for taffetas of the better quality will be the most prominent feature of early spring fashions. But poplins, crapes and Shanghai silks will be tremendously demanded.

Poplins especially, either in brocaded, plain colored or printed styles, will be in excellent style for the spring. Brocaded homespuns, ratines and gaberdines will also be in demand.

For afternoon frocks and for semi-dress purposes the Egyptian crapes, either printed or embroidered, are destined to receive important consideration.

WHAT'S IN STYLE.

Sash draperies are shown on dresses and jackets.

Some of the spring coats are little more than boleros.

Many of the new blouses have peplums and coattails.

The expanse of tunic at hips is repeated in some of the coats which have godets.

Novelty cottons, taffetas, crapes, failles, gaberdines and serges are the spring fabrics.

Long stoles, soft and pliable, are wound about the figure in various ways, and fur turbans are trimmed with weird fantasies of plumage.

The new bustle effects promise ill for our old clothes of last season. The shoulder still droops, the waist is of goodly expanse, and narrowness draws in the ankles.

In collars the Japanese will last well into the summer, both in blouses and gowns. There will be a few hood effects also. Some flat ones will be draped. Soft, loose girdles with sash ends will be prominent.

Wages In India.

Agricultural laborers in India are usually paid in kind, but in the canal colonies, where labor is scarce, as much as 32 cents a day is paid for hired labor — a high rate for that country.

SIR ROBERT BALL STUDIED STARS

At home himself amongst the stars, Sir Robert Ball, whose death occurred recently at Cambridge, was a master of the art of making plain to the lay mind the marvels of the heavens.

He was, perhaps, the most popular astronomer the British Empire has ever known, and certainly the most popular lecturer on his special subject.

Robert Stawell Ball was born in Dublin on July 1, 1840, and was the elder son of Dr. Robert Ball, an eminent naturalist.

After a brilliant school career, he became astronomer to Lord Rosse at Parsonstown. There he had great opportunities for practical work. The great Rosse telescope—six feet in aperture and 54 in length—was at his entire disposal. During the four years that Ball spent at Parsonstown, night after night he stood by the great instrument, a sentinel of science, in the service of man.

On Nov. 13, 1866, he was as usual engaged at this task when he heard an exclamation from the attendant which made him look away from the eyepiece of the instrument up to the sky itself.

There I was just in time to see a magnificent meteor streaming across the sky. This was shortly followed by another and then another. The Earl of Rosse came over to the observatory, and then seeing the magnificence of the spectacle, we ascended the top of the walls between which the strument was suspended, and for two hours we were spectators of a scene which can never fade from my memory. The shooting stars or meteors were each of them large enough to have elicited a shout of astonishment on any night, and there they were shot forth in their hundreds and thousands.

The last of the three great celestial phenomena of his lifetime Sir Robert attributed to the mighty eruption at Krakatoa in 1883. In the Straits of Sunda, 10,000 miles away, and on the adjacent shores, some 35,000 lives were lost, and there was vast destruction of property, but the remoter effects of the catastrophe were to vomit cubic miles of pumice dust into the atmosphere. In the course of a fortnight it was distributed over the whole globe, and those who remember the gorgeous sunsets at the end of 1883 will agree with Sir Robert in classing them as among the most remarkable sights of a lifetime. After his first appointment Sir Robert mounted the astronomical ladder two steps at a time. A mathematical professorship at Dublin was followed by his appointment as Astronomer Royal for Ireland. In 1892 he left his native city to become Lowndean Professor of Astronomy and Geometry at Cambridge. From that time he was largely occupied in organizing the astronomical research which was so successfully carried on at the university observatory.

Through Rhodesia On Wheel.

It is a well-known fact that wherever "John Bull" unfurls the Union Jack the people benefit from the just administration of the King's representatives, whether it be in India, South Africa, Egypt, Darkest Africa, or the other many dependencies of the crown. Our dark-skinned fellow-British subjects are taken from their filthy inhabitations, and taught cleanliness, made into law-abiding citizens, and still are allowed their freedom and to practice their religion.

The administrator of Northern Rhodesia, has undertaken a three-months' tour of the northeastern territory, and covered no less than 1,200 miles on a bicycle. He met every chief in the district, held large palavers at all the places he visited. He was greatly struck by the fact that most of the chiefs even in the wilder regions, made eager inquiries for education. They asked that the Government would send them teachers so that they might read and write.

The Government has already established a training school for native teachers at Lialui, and when ready they will be sent out to the villages to impart primary education.

To Prevent Explosions.

One method of preventing explosions of coal dust is to place stone dust where it collects, thus forming a mixture that is inflammable. This plan has been tried at the Altoft's collieries, and its working was lately explained in an address by Prof. Hummel of the University of Leeds.

The stone dust is applied about once in six months. It is covered over the haulage way, walls and dust-collecting projections, or, where the walls are smooth, is placed on boards at the sides of the roads, or suspended from the roof.

At one seam, where nearly 7,000 yards of haulage roads and junctions were dressed, the first cost was an eighth of a penny per ton of coal raised, the cost at the second and third dressings having been at less than half that rate.

The stone dust necessary varies with the kind of coal, but an amount equal to that of the coal dust usually gives perfect safety.

The Waning Honeymoon.

"Yes," pouted the wife, "you forgot to kiss me."

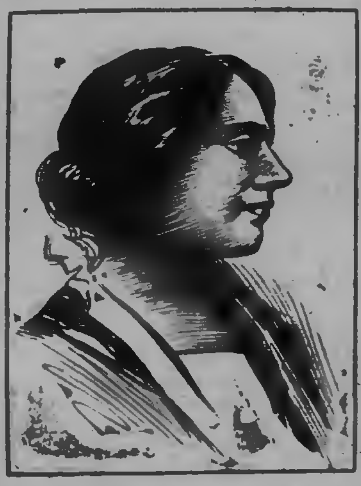
MARIE SUCLOFF WAS TWICE TRANSPORTED TO SIBERIA

Russian Revolutionist Has Made Her Way Out of the Czar's Ice-Bound Prison Country and is Now Determined to Evade Recapture.

The Russian Government recently announced that prison reform is to be carried out in the near future, and the lot of the unfortunates sent to that ice-bound prison, Siberia, made easier. The reformers are even considering the possibility of not sending criminals to Siberia at all.

But the Czar's Government still possesses a power similar to that of the Bourbons in old times, exercised by "letters de cachet," and its "executive decree" is sufficient to consign a political offender, and even a suspect, to prison without trial and without appeal.

Such has been the experience of Marie Sucloff who has come to Canada, and who says she is tracked by Russian spies. Every nook and corner of Russia was probed to capture, dead or alive, the frail, apparently helpless girl, who dared to pit her woman's strength and wit against the political system of her native land. She is one of the very few who have escaped from Siberia, and lived.



MARIE SUCLOFF.

But this girl, after escaping from the clutches of the police, had the courage to return and attempt the fight again within the enemy's ranks but five years' bitter experience has taught her she must henceforth fight from without the lines. While the spies dog her footsteps she is gathering anew her bodily strength and extending her influence against the time when she can once more rise up and share leadership in the movement which, she believes, must some day break up the despotism of Russia and free her oppressed countrymen.

"One day," she says, "I wrote a letter to a friend of mine and said I blamed the Government for making it so hard for us peasants. You see, I was sixteen and just beginning to think. My friend was 'suspected' by the officials, and when they ransacked the house my little letter was found. I was thrown into prison in Odessa and waited a year and a half for my trial. Yes, it was bad at Odessa," she replied to a query, "but after you've been in Siberia it seems not so bad. At the trial they called me a dangerous, revolutionary person and sentenced me for life in Siberia."

If only the women of this country knew what those Russian women suffer, I know some help would be sent! I do not mean that laws and customs could be changed at once. I know better. But it would mean so much to those women away in Siberia to know that other women are sorry for them.

"All the time I was there I was hoping, planning to escape," she said. "Friends of mine, husband and wife, in another village, were planning to escape, too. They had a three-year-old baby. I knew they would rather have their baby freed than to get free themselves. I got my chance to go, first, so I took their baby with me.

"Yes, the baby made it hard, but it was such a nice baby! Of course, it was a great care, too, but I managed. I got the baby to its grandparents in Russia," she explained, forgetting herself.

"We rode hundreds of miles in the slow carts of the Siberian farmers. Always the baby was in my arms. The roads were rough. We constantly feared arrest. Oh, but those friends were good, passing me on from place to place. Finally I reached Vilna. There I stopped at a great hotel."

She laughed gayly. Tragedy has not broken her mirthful spirit.

"I could not stay there, of course, nor go home at all. I went to Paris. There I remained six weeks.

"Well, at the end of six weeks I just had to go back to my own country to help the Liberalist party. I could not stay away. I went to Kiev, to Moscow, to St. Petersburg.

"Then, when I was almost captured, I slipped away from St. Petersburg, to Finland. That was good. My passport was helped me. At that time the revolutionist party was very hopeful in Russia. I returned from Finland so happy.

"I wasn't happy long. Soon I was arested. This time the sentence was prison for life at hard labor. After a while I got sick with appendicitis. I was sent to Irkutsk for an operation."

From that hospital she escaped in some mysterious way.

"I could not get far away because of the guards. Will I ever forget the day!" she fairly sang. "This time it was summer. I went into Manchuria and from there to Japan, then to China, then to Italy, then to Canada."

GRENFELL AS "CADI."

Little Known Office of Missionary Is a Difficult One.

All the world knows Grenfell as the fishermen's doctor and preacher; but few know that there is also another side to his varied life in the wild places o' the great white north. He is also the Chief Magistrate of Labrador. It is a side of his work, however, which does not much appeal to him. Yet he never shirks what his duty demands. But it is a pretty well-known fact that the doctor does not care much about his task of interpreting the law or "juricating" as the Newfoundlanders from the Tickles call it. Usually he simply collects the facts and the evidence, binding over the two parties to keep the peace, until the case is settled by the Minister of Justice of Newfoundland.

"Medicine and surgery are my particular business—if any one wants cutting up, I'll do it. I'm very fond of that." And as he tells you that the doctor's lean, tanned face wrinkles into a smile like the weathered old sea dog he is fast becoming.

To be exact, Dr. Grenfell's law jumbles are the jest of the Labrador, for as an old cod-fisherman put it:

"Doctor Grenfell is de finest man I know, and he has done a vast wonderful lot o' good for de fishermen of de Labrador—but he don't know much about de laws."

The cases he is called upon to judge are not serious affairs. Crime, as a rule, is almost unknown among the fishermen and traders of the Labrador. And when it does break out, there is the great lonely silent places to hide it in till the crack of doom. Thus generally the worst cases that come into Dr. Grenfell's movable court are squabbles between fishermen.

When the doctor's yacht, the "Strathcona," puts into a Labrador haven, on an errand of mercy to the sick, if a fisherman of the cove has had trouble with a neighbor, he seizes the opportunity to come to the judgment seat. For example, he lodges a complaint that his neighbor has a trap net within sixty fathoms of his own. But the law forbids traps being set closer than eighty fathoms. He further adds to this charge the statement that thus all the fish of the North Atlantic that should go into his own net are intercepted by his rival's.

Now in almost all of these "law-jumbles" Grenfell takes into his council the whole of his ship's crew from the skipper down to the hands. In consequence many laughable mix-ups result. First of all a constable is required to serve the summons on the offender. George Gosse, the Strathcona's burly engineer, since he is the largest man on board, and thus less liable to personal injury, is generally requisitioned. After having been formally sworn in as constable and after banking his fires, he is put ashore to serve the summons on the recalcitrant fisherman. Big with his mission and the befitting dignity of a constable he trudges off to the shack of the defendant, wholly unexpectant of a dread minion of the law in the person of an old personal friend.

The trial which follows the summons is a curious mix-up in which Grenfell and his crew sit "en banc" and finally after many errors the truth is sifted out and the case settled.

An Elephant's Appetite.

Since the elephant's digestive functions are very rapid it requires a large amount of fodder daily—about 000 pounds in most cases. In its wild state the elephant feeds heartily, but wastefully. It is careful in selecting the few forest trees that it likes for their bark or foliage, but it will tear down branches and leave half of them untouched. It will strip off the bark from other trees and throw away a large portion. As it is a nocturnal animal, it selects its trees by the senses of touch and smell. Its sense of smell is said to be so delicate that wild elephant can wind an enemy at a distance of a thousand yards, and the nerves of its trunk are so sensitive that the smallest substance can be discovered and picked up by its tiny proboscis.—Harper's Weekly.

Stern George Washington.

Etiquette at the White House has never been so severe as in the days of Washington. The first American president had a code of observances drawn up, with which all persons coming into contact with him were expected to make themselves acquainted. He exacted well nigh as much deference as royalty. At receptions he greeted all comers with a stately bow, but never deigned to shake hands, and nobody was allowed to address him until he took the initiative. The gentlemen ushers in attendance were expected to see these rules observed. Washington never visited a private house, and at his own dinner parties the protocol stipulated that "the president does not remain at the table drinking after the cloth is removed."—London Chronicle.

WHAT'S YOUR NUMBER? PERHAPS YOU AREN'T LISTED

Medo-Persian Rule Which Governs Presentation at Levees and Seating at Table in High Circles—Sir Wilfred Laurier is No. 18,113 while Mr. Borden is 18,337

It was noticed that at Their Royal Highnesses' drawing-room at Ottawa the other day, Lord and Lady Decies, who were present, made their respective bows to T. R. H. before any of the rest of the company—even before the Prime Minister of the Dominion. In the United Kingdom all such matters are carefully settled, and nothing is left to chance. In fact, each person who bears a title, or occupies a position entitling him to any precedence at all, has a number showing his exact position in the scale of relative precedence. This number is to be found against his name in the Guide to Relative Precedence which forms part of Burke's Peerage, Baronetage, and Knightage, the monumental work which social aspirants in the Old Country are said to value only less highly than the Bible and Shakespeare, and to read with more avidity than either.

According to that work, Lord Decies' number is 13,126, while Mr. Borden's number is 18,337—a good way lower down. As a matter of fact, however, the numbers prefixed to the various names, though indicating the relative position of those entitled to precedence, do not show the actual numerical position of each. Thus Lord Decies' number of 13,126 does not mean that there are 13,125 persons of higher rank than his. Nor does Mr. Borden's number of 18,337 signify that there are 18,336 persons of higher rank than his. What is signified is that they belong respectively to classes thirteen and eighteen—Lord Decies, as a baron, to class thirteen, and Mr. Borden, as a Privy Councillor, to class eighteen—in the scale of precedence, called, for convenience, 13,000 and 18,000 respectively, and that the honors from which they derive precedence are respectively 126th and 337th in order of seniority in their own degrees. The numbers prefixed to each name, in fact, combine two series.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's number is 18,113—224 higher up than that of the Prime Minister. For, though both are in the eighteenth class, as Privy Councillors — this class comprises Knights of the Garter, Knights of St. Patrick, and Privy Councillors — Sir Wilfrid Laurier's number is above Mr. Borden's for the reason that the former was created a Privy Councillor in 1897, and the latter not until 1912. And the Prime Minister of Canada does not, as such, figure in this scale of precedence at all. In fact, it is as members of "The Most Honorable Privy Council of Great Britain" that he and the leader of the Opposition find their places in the scale. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, it is true, as a G.C.M.G., or Knight Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George, is entitled to a place in the scale of precedence, but to one very much lower down than that which his Privy Councillorship affords him — one, in fact, with the number 27,060, instead of 18,113.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the only Canadian G.C.M.G. But there are quite a few K.C.M.G.'s, or Knight Commanders of St. Michael and St. George, whose order of knighthood entitles them to a place in the thirtieth class of the scale of precedence. Thus Sir Frederick Borden is number 30,294, Sir William Mulock is number 30,295, Sir Alan Aylesworth is number 30,416, Sir Joseph Pope is number 30,444, Sir J. M. Gibson is number 30,443, Sir Rodmond Roblin is number 30,450, Sir Richard McBride is number 30,451, and so on. Canadian knights bachelors are almost like the sands of the seashore for multitude.

Among other numbers are the following: Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, 33,572; Sir Henry Pellatt, 33,859; Sir William Mortimer Clark, 34,004, Sir Edmund Osler, 34,414; Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, 34,065; Sir Edmund Walker, 34,226; Sir Lyman Melvin-Jones, 34,311; Sir William Mackenzie, 34,268; and Sir Donald Mann two numbers below his brother railway magnate. It is a curious anomaly that, in the table of social precedence for ladies, who in general take the same rank as their husbands, there is no place for the wives of Privy Councillors. Thus Mrs. Borden's name does not appear in it at all. And though Lady Laurier's has place there, it is as the wife of a G.C.M.G., and not as a Privy Councillor. On the other hand, there are places for the wives of knights, and not only for their wives, but for their sons and daughters as well, and even for their son's wife, the wife of a younger son of a knight ranking in the sixty-seventh class, or among the sixty-seven thousands, which is some way down.

This curious anomaly that has been mentioned, with regard to the wives of Privy Councillors, is not wholly confined to them. The Archbishop of Canterbury ranks, by a statute of Edward I.'s reign, next to the royal family. But though Anglican bishops for hundreds of years have been allowed to marry the archbishop's wife is merely known as Mrs. Davidson, while her husband is "His Grace," and is not mentioned in the table of precedence.

Probably the person second highest in the social scale, according to Burke, in Canada to-day is Lord Edward Seymour, who, as the younger son of a marquis, is in the eleventh class, his number being 11,016.

Lord Hyde is in the tenth class; Lord Somers in the thirteenth; Lady Macdonald of Earnscliffe is in the fifteenth; Lord Strathcona's number was 13,307; and Lord Mount Stephen's 13,264.

A Strong Combination.

In the constituency of North Essex, in which the city of Windsor is located, there is a large number of colored people, and at election times their vote is carefully cultivated. Some little time ago Oliver Wilcox, who sits in Parliament for the riding, was invited to a church social by the colored people, who were anxious to raise funds for an addition to the building. Mr. Wilcox accepted, and on the night in question faced an audience entirely composed of negroes. At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Wilcox was appointed one of the stewards, and hold the plate at the side of the pulpit while the congregation walked up and deposited their offering. If any seemed to be chary of the collection plate it was the duty of the steward to exhort them, and so well did Mr. Wilcox perform his duty that a handsome sum for the extension of the building was obtained. The pastor was delighted, and as Mr. Wilcox was leaving he shook him warmly by the hand and said, "Brother Wilcox, the Lord and the colored people are with yer, sar." —Toronto Saturday Night.

Weighted With Coins.

When Constable Rees of East Toronto arrested Amos Barber, a shoelace peddler, who was drunk, recently, he found the man very heavy to support to the police station, just as if the man had his pockets weighted with flat irons. The constable examined the peddler's pockets, and this is what he found: 255 ten-cent pieces, 51 quarters, 43 five-cent pieces, 6 fifty-cent pieces, 70 coppers, and $50 in bills.

"This shoe-lace business looks good!" exclaimed Squire Ellis. "Keep quiet about it or we'll all be taking it up."

The man was let go, on promise to bank his money.

To Write Biography.

The preparation of the biography of Lord Strathcona has been entrusted by the trustees to Mr. Beckles Willson. The contract was completed by cable. Mr. Willson will go to Montreal to visit Sir William Van Horne on this subject and on March 10 proceeds to England. He will remain there some time and on returning to Canada will visit Labrador, where Lord Strathcona, then Donald A. Smith, was factor for the Hudson Bay Co. at Rigoulette and Mingan. The documents connected with the estate are of a most voluminous character, covering nearly three-quarters of a century of the history of British North America.

Baked Apple Pudding.

Grate six large pippins and add the yolks of four eggs, three tablespoonfuls of butter, a half cupful of sugar, juice and peel of one lemon. Beat sugar and butter to a cream, stir in the yolks and lemon with the grated apple. Pour into a deep pudding dish to bake. Grate nutmeg over the top. Eat cold with cream.

For the Children

Miss Louise Iselin Walking In the Park.

© by American Press Association.

February is usually the coldest month of the year in the northern portion of our land. Then the north wind blows its fiercest blasts, and Jack Frost gets busy making ice for young folks. Nobody else seems to appreciate his efforts in this line, but what good are a pair of skates and nowhere to use them? So it has happened this year that Mr. Frost has won a great many friends in New York city. He has provided good skating in Central park, and the roller skates so often seen on its concrete walks have been banished, and ice skates are the thing. Crowds of children have made the old trees shiver with their merry shouts, and of course King Winter is pleased. The little girl in the picture was on the way to the ice when the photographer snapped her the other day. She is Miss Louise Iselin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Iselin.

A Queer Expression.

As most of you know, wild geese when they fly away in the fall of the year form themselves into lines shaped much like the letter V, the leader flying at the point and the others following the two lines. In this way they sail far above the danger line, the danger line being the hunter's gun. In olden times, when the country folk realized the happiness of these birds in their safety (for their chorus of "honk, honk, honk" floated down to the cottagers and sounded joyous), they would look up and say, "Everything is lovely and the goose honks high." By and by it became natural, when two persons met each other under peculiarly favorable circumstances for this or that enterprise, for them to say, "Everything is lovely and the goose honks high," and the expression is still used. Now when you hear it you can tell your friends its origin.

Hopscotch In India.

In the bazaars and public places of all the big cities from Simla to Ceylon, the youthful Hindu and Mohammedan enter enthusiastically into the excitements of hop scotch. They call it "ekaria dukaria," which is certainly a more imposing title. The court is marked out into seven squares, each of which has a name, as follows: Ekaria, dukaria, tikaria, kachkolan, sustanawa, chotka and barka. A round piece of tile (khapolio) is thrown successively into each of these squares and kicked out by a player hopping on one foot. In passing the fifth and sixth squares (sustanawa and chotka), the player has to jump straight in and then straight out again from the chalkline without treading on any of the intervening squares. When the tile has been kicked out of the last square (barka) without any rules having been broken, the player scores a point.

QUAINT ITEMS OCCUR IN MOUNTED POLICE REPORTS

Blue Book Records at Ottawa Reveal Piquant Extracts From the Lives of "Riders of the Plains"—Hitting Caribou With Stick Drives Them Off for Seven Years—Cree Lake Indians Untidy.

Usually one does not seek touches of human interest in blue books, and department reports of the "dry as dust" variety. The compilers of public information seem to have one ambition; to dress their facts as scantily as possible, with the result that the average blue book is as uninteresting as it is unwieldly, says Sydney Roe in Toronto Saturday Night. Thus it is the annual report of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police comes as an oasis of entertainment in the dreary desert of official banality. And the volume which the Prime Minister presented to Parliament at the opening of the session is like its predecessors, filled with throbs and thrills.

The Riders of the Plains are a little world to themselves. Their duty is performed on the outskirts of Empire, and is recounted in the official reports with a pithiness which is admirable, and a modesty unusual. Take, for instance, the following excerpt from the report of Sergeant Mellor's patrol from Fort Chipewyan to Fond du Lac, a distance of 380 miles, the patrol being made up of Constable Wylie, Sergeant Mellor and one train of dogs. Sergeant Mellor says:

"Fond du Lac is considered the best meat post in the north, as the caribou are in the habit of coming there in great numbers. The Indians are consequently well off. This winter, however, the caribou are rather scarce. The Indians say, and apparently believe, that this is caused by a prospector hitting a caribou with a stick last winter. The Indian legend runs, that if these animals are killed or hit with anything not made of metal they will desert the country for seven years.

"There is," continues Sergeant Mellor, "another curious example of Indian legendary lore to be found at Fond du Lac. On the north shore of Lake Athabaska there is a large dome-shaped rock, which the Indians frequently use to make paint with. The legend says that in the early days of the earth the beavers were the ruling race, and that men were their slaves. Finally the slaves grew more intelligent, and revolted against the beaver domination, and one day attacked the king of the beavers and forced him to flee from the beaver lodge on Lake Athabaska, which was then his home, and to dive under the water, badly wounded, until he reached the opposite shore, where he died. In dying he lost so much blood that it stained all the rocks there a permanent red, which remains to this day. Moreover, from some of the blood the present race of Chipewyan Indians was brought into existence. To this day, before killing a beaver, they first apologize to the animal for the necessity of so doing, which," adds Sergeant Mellor naively, "I have no doubt considerably soothes the animal's feelings."

Sergeant Handcock, in the account of his patrol from Green Lake to Clear Lake and return, some 1,500 miles with dog team, proved to be something of a humorist. He went through the ice on Buffalo Lake, and in his own words, "spent an unpleasant half hour." He adds: "Luckily the man I had with me was behind. Outside of getting one foot frostbitten I was none the worst; in fact, the worst part was in getting up to the bush in clothes like a board, creaking like a Red River cart. However, a large fire enabled me to change."

Sergeant Handcock evidently does not think much of the Indians in that far northern district. He says: "The Indians are on Cree Lake the worst I have encountered yet, and indeed one's stomach has to be strong to partake of a satisfactory meal with them. Dirt reigns supreme. They live in tents all the time, four or five families living together. They are very kind, and do all they can for one, and give a stranger all the tit-bits in the eating line. It is fortunate that one is generally hungry when amongst them, or I am sure little would be eaten."

Inspector Betys, in his account of the patrol from Herschell Island to Fort Macpherson, had a somewhat uncomfortable experience of the intelligence of the squirrel. He says: "I found all the police shelter cabins in good condition, also the supplies, with the exception of the dried fish, which the mink and squirrels had got at. All the bundles had been left hanging from the rafters, but the squirrels had cut the yarn, and the fish were scattered all over the floor."

The reports under the heading "Crime" are invariably of the "pen picture" order. Here is a sample, and refers to the case of a woman who was arrested for murdering her husband:

"From the evidence it appears that the deceased husband was a regular drunkard, and frequently quarrelled with his wife and abused her. On the night of the crime in question he came home intoxicated, and started to abuse and attack her as usual, whereupon she belabored him with a hatchet and badly fractured his skull."

The phrase "belabored him with a hatchet" is a striking one.

One of the features of the report is the statement frequently made that excessive use of intoxicating liquor is the invariable cause of the large number of murderous assaults among the foreign element of the Great West.

NEW RIFLE PRIZE.

Dominion Trophy Promises to Arouse Great Interest.

The difference of opinion between the British War Office and the National Rifle Association concerning the aperture sight, which has been settled by the "backing down" of the British officials, but which threatened to exclude Canadians from participating in the greatest rifle meet of the Empire, has naturally caused a great deal of feeling among militiamen, past and present, throughout the country.

The Militia Council at Ottawa, however, with a view to the greater encouragement of rifle shooting among members of civilian rifle associations, has decided, according to a recent militia order, to offer an individual prize, to be known as "The Dominion of Canada Prize," to each gazetted and efficient civilian rifle association for competition during the season of 1914.

The special prize offered is a nickel silver ornamented salver, 10 inches in diameter, bearing the coat-of-arms of the Dominion of Canada, with an inscription that it is presented by the Government for skill in rifle shooting; the name of the association and winner will be engraved on the salver.

Competitors must be duly enrolled members of the association they represent, as shown by the last service roll on file at Headquarters in Ottawa.

To be eligible for this prize, it will be necessary for the association to hold four competitions during the season of 1914 in which at least 40 per cent. of the members must take part. Dates of these competitions must be fixed in advance at a general meeting of the association and communicated to the officer commanding the division or district before the first shoot for the salver.

The ranges at which these competitions are to take place will be 200, 500 and 600 yards, and the targets as specified in regulations for rifle associations — seven scoring shots at each range to count. The prize will be awarded to the competitor making the highest aggregate in the four competitions already mentioned.

Claims for this prize, duly certified by the captain and secretary of the association, must be forwarded to Headquarters through the officer commanding the division or district before December, 1914. Special attention is called to the fact that no claims for the salver will be considered which have not been forwarded in accordance therewith.

Competitors must use the arms and ammunition provided by the Government as free issue for the year; and no competitor who has won this prize in a previous year shall be again eligible for it. In the event of a previous winner making the highest score in the competition, the salver will be awarded to the member of the association making the next highest score who has not previously been awarded the salver.

From the interest taken in rifle shooting in both East and West there is likely to be keen competition for these Government prizes.

THE CONQUEST OF CUTLER

It Was a Freak of Girlish Willfulness

By LOUISE MERRIFIELD

Tennant saw her first when she rounded the hotel point and headed for the open bay. She was alone, but the little naphtha launch belonged to Cutler. There was no mistaking that. With its polished brass rails, its red morocco cushions and its trim, slender lines, it was the smartest bit of sailing craft on Lake Glenora.

And for over three weeks Muriel Arden had had the sole exclusive use of it and had exercised the privilege at every opportunity. To Tennant it was more than mere girlish willfulness. It was frankly flaunting in his face her conquest of Cutler and her defiance of himself and preference for things belonging to said Cutler.

He watched her as she neared the pier. If she saw the tall, moody figure in gray flannels, she made no sign. Hatless, the wind blowing her brown hair back from her tanned, clear cut face, she held her way steadily toward the open bay, one hand on the little brass tipped pilot wheel, and looked neither to the right nor to the left.

Phil Tennant muttered something under his breath and turned quickly on his heel toward the hotel. It was after 7. If he hurried, he could still catch the night boat for Chicago. Perhaps he could even get away before she returned. It was growing late. Up at the hotel they were lighting the colored Japanese lanterns around the verandas. There was to be a hop that night. He remembered Muriel had told him she was going to it with Cutler. He avoided the main entrance, with its palms and pretty girls, and slipped up to his own room to pack his suit cases. On the way upstairs he met Cutler, who looked anxious and annoyed.

"Did you see the little girl anywhere?"

Tennant turned on him hotly.

"Whom do you refer to?"

Cutler laughed easily, without malice, and ignored the resentment in the other's tone.

"There's a storm coming up, and I didn't want her to go out in my boat alone."

As he passed on downstairs leisurely Tennant paused and looked after him, his fists clinched tightly. He would have enjoyed flinging him down the whole flight for those words. "The little girl!" It was the easy proprietary familiarity that cut. That any man on earth should dare to use that tone in speaking of Muriel—his Muriel! Then like a flash came the memory of that straight, cold little figure in the launch as it had passed the pier, of the proud little face that would not turn his way, and he went on upstairs with a dogged, bitter sense of all things gone wrong. Perhaps she was Cutler's "little girl."

The Chicago boat was due at the Glenora at 8:30. At 8 the music of the Hungarian string orchestra came softly from the palm hidden ballroom. For a moment Tennant hesitated on the veranda listening to it. Muriel was in there, he thought. She had probably returned and was dancing, perhaps with Cutler, while he was going away from her forever. He had been a fool to come at all. It had been her half laughing challenge, that last night on the roof garden. They were with the Wilburton party. Cutler had been there also, but Muriel had sat next to Tennant, and he had fancied that last instant on the stairs that she had meant more than a mere flirtation when she had said she hoped he would be a member of the summer colony at Glenora.

He had taken her at her word and gone to Glenora, and what Miss Arden had begun on the roof garden she finished at Glenora. But Tennant was slow, slow to fall in love, slow to believe that he had the ghost of a chance with a girl like Muriel Arden, slower yet to risk that chance in one last throw. And while he had waited, sure of himself but doubtful of Muriel, Cutler had come down with his launch, his motorcar, his coach and all the other accessories of half a dozen million or so, and Muriel had seemed to waver.

The night air was still and heavy. Suddenly a sweep of cool, keen wind blew in freshly from the bay. It caught the frail Jap lanterns and tossed them like leaves to and fro. The bamboo curtains at the long French windows rustled and swung forward, and out on the lawn the palms and willows bent before it with a lithe, swift obeisance.

Tennant jammed his hat low over his eyes and started on a run for the pier. The rain splashed in his face, and a glare of dazzling light shot across the northwest heavens. He ran faster. If he could make the boathouse before the storm broke he could take the steamer. Just as the thunder burst in a low report from the gray edged black clouds he passed Cutler's boathouse, and as the next flare of quick lightning came he saw that it was empty. The Nixie was gone from its place.

The pier was deserted except for a sleepy boy at the baggage shed. Tennant called for a boat, for anything that could ride through the black, rolling waves that licked along the piling by the dock. Shaking the boy, gripping him until he squealed with pain, Tennant wrung from him somehow that the only boat to be had was Cutler's electric motorboat, a small, low affair that only carried one, and that in fair weather.

"You ain't going out on Michigan with her, are you?" asked the boy. Tennant smiled grimly and sprang into the boat as the next wave lifted it up. It was a mere sliver of a thing, built on the lines of a racing shell. He had owned one of his own and understood the mechanism. With the wind cutting sharply across his face he whipped cleanly out into the bay. Somewhere he would find her, he told himself, bending low over the little pilot wheel and holding his breath as the little boat took the water fairly. Cutler's boat! He laughed to himself. There was a certain fitness about the proceeding that pleased him.

Muriel had headed the Nixie due west, straight out through the narrow channel from little Lake Glenora into Lake Michigan. Two arms of land and rock stretched out to meet Michigan. On one, Rock point, stood the big summer resort hotel. The other was a long, barren waste of rocks that seemed endless when the lake was calm. One by one, overlapping each other, they lay from the beach far out into the bay like some gigantic necklace. The windstorm would catch the little launch before she could possibly reach the open channel, Tennant reasoned, and blow it over on the reef.

"Look out for the Chicago boat," shouted the dock boy after him. "She's coming down the lake now."

Tennant hardly heard him. The storm had broken in full force, and the tiny shell of a boat shivered and trembled like a frightened animal as he turned it into the channel. Straight for the reef he headed, but the waves were so high he could not even catch a glimpse of the chain of rocks, and suddenly a path of clear white light swung leisurely across the sky and flashed directly on the reef. It was the searchlight on the White City. Two things it showed Tennant in that single wave of light. Just ahead of him was Cutler's boat, riding the waves like a gull, dipping with every lurching swell and showing the next instant on the topmost crest. And it was directly in the course of the White City. And clinging to the little pilot wheel, striving to guide the launch back safely, was Muriel, her long dark hair loose and whipped by the wind across her face. Just for an instant he saw her, then the great arc of light had swept back to the far end of the little lake and all was blackness ahead.

Blindly Tennant drove the little motorboat forward, and suddenly side by side it crashed into the launch. For one instant the two touched, but in that instant Tennant had made the leap safely. Before he could recover his balance the motorboat had vanished like a leaf in a storm, and he was in the launch.

"Give me the wheel!" he said hoarsely. And as the White City swung by the Nixie rose on her swell, wave-swept and battered, but secure, with a strong hand on her little brass tipped pilot wheel.

"Phil, Phil, listen to me!" Down beside him in the boat knelt Muriel, white to her lips, but happy, happy in spite of the fact that they two had faced death together but an instant before. "Did we smash his old boat?"

"Absolutely." Tennant's arms tightened about her. The pilot wheel was very much in the way.

"I knew that you would come," she went on. "I saw you on the pier, but I thought you would come right away—that was why I went out alone."

And light dawned slowly on Tennant. It was his first lesson in the contradictions of Muriel.

"And I was going back on that boat tonight," he said.

Muriel laughed and pushed her wet hair back from her face.

"Mr. Cutler took that boat, Phil," she said.

New Firedamp Whistle.

An ingenious invention for warning miners of firedamp has been shown to the German kaiser. It is a whistle which the gas automatically affects. If there is 1 per cent of dangerous gas the whistle sounds broken and uneven notes, and when the gas reaches the danger point of 5 per cent there is a succession of rapid, throbbing notes, which are easily heard. Professor Haber is the inventor, and he has named the device the "firedamp whistle."

A few drops of lemon juice added to eggs when they are being scrambled improves the dish.

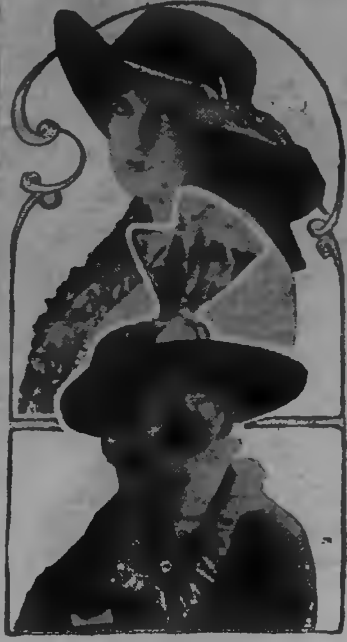
HATS FOR SPRING.

Designers Are Given a Good Deal of Latitude In Designing Them.



CHIC NEW HATS.

There seems so far to be a good deal of difference of opinion among authorities as to what will be the prevailing shape of spring hats. Most of the milliners agree that hats will be built high and that ribbon will be one of the most popular trimmings.

Illustrated here are two girlish looking new models. The upper hat is of black hemp trimmed with dark green velvet ribbon and trailing red poppies. The other hat is a neat looking affair, with the entire crown of the satin ribbon, which is knotted into a chic little bow at the back of the chapeau.

Charming is the little hat for the spring. Its bigness has gone, but its picturesqueness has been inherited by the tiny, piquant shape of the moment.

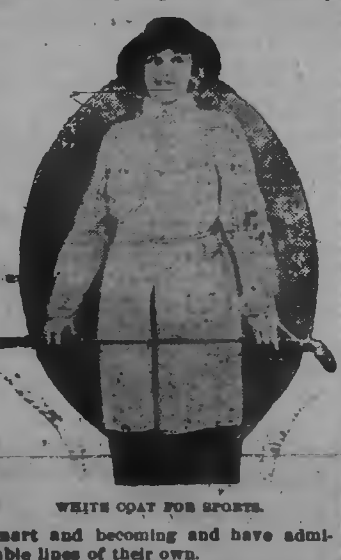
For instance, there is the little pomponned Pierrot affair. Can anything be more picturesque? Pompons of clipped ostrich are in quite "high style" at the moment.

Brims might be wide if they did not flare, but they do, for that is the fashion. Some of them ever and ever so high—on one side only—overtop the soft, close little crowns that outline the head in straw or fluff just a speck in velvet, satin or taffeta.

Smart New Outing Coats.

Whether for polo, hockey, tennis or golf, the sport coat illustrated here is a model of smartness. It is carried out in white, a favorite color for spring. It is brought over to the side and fastens with a buckle at the back.

For all their informality, the mid-season outing togs are immensely smart and becoming and have admirable lines of their own.



WHITE COAT FOR SPORTS.

The ideal tramping rig for enjoyment of invigorating walks along beautiful country roads, includes a knee length coat, loosely cut and built of all wool homespun, frieze or tweed—a big coat, double breasted, with a collar that may be turned up about the throat, and deep pockets into which cold hands may be thrust.

Under this coat, on specially bleak days, is buttoned a clinging sweater of angora wool, through which no reasonable amount of cold can penetrate. A short skirt of homespun or corduroy, flawlessly cut and with flat plaits cunningly inserted to give room for a wide step without destroying smart lines, swings just clear of the ankles, and with sturdy tramping boots of tan calf and a fur cap that may be drawn down over the ears one is delightfully equipped for an afternoon out of doors.

The dainty high heeled button boot which sets off the draped town costume is out of place on a rutty country road, and not far could its wearer walk in it. Buttoned or laced boots with broad, moderately low heels and plenty of room under the ball of the foot should be provided for tramping.

Popular Sleeve Lengths.

It is said that seven-eighths length sleeves are to be popular in the spring. These will probably be welcomed by the woman who has been spoiled for long sleeves by the long reign of the short sleeve—certainly the most comfortable sort to wear. The seven-eighths sleeves may seem a bit awkward in appearance until we get used to them. A full length sleeve or else one not much below the elbow is usually more becoming.

A SHORT COURSE IN BODY BUILDING FOR BUSINESS MEN

NEW LIFE FOR THE MUSCLES.

This System Is Simple, Gives Help Where Help Is Needed, Takes but Ten Minutes Night and Morning and Increases Strength and Vitality.

This is a synopsis of the preliminary setting up exercises used by the trainers of the various athletic teams, which I tested personally when captain of the Yale athletic team, and which were approved by the late Mike Murphy. I have adapted them for use by business men.
SAMUEL SCOVILLE, JR.

Get up! That's the hardest part. Then cross a pair of two pound dumbbells, holding them with both hands up over the head, and swing them down between the outspread legs, then up until they are shoulder high and swing straight out to one side as far as possible, holding the arms stretched out straight and stiff. Go back again down between the legs and up and out the other side. If you don't have the dumbbells clasp the hands and do it without.

This is the famous "liver squeeze," which Sandow once said helped more muscles than any other single exercise. Moreover, it helps the muscles that need help.

Even the most sedentary man exercises his arms and legs somewhat. Few after middle age ever exercise the great trunk muscles that cover the vital parts of the body. That is the reason so many men past forty are ruptured and suffer so easily from strained or rheumatic backs and sides. That is one reason, too, for dyspepsia. The blood is never flowed across the stomach and back as it should be. The liver squeeze stretches and strengthens the muscles of the lower and upper back and the great flat muscles across the breast and abdomen, and, as its name implies, stimulates and increases the blood supply of the digestive organs underneath these vital muscles.

Do this exercise every morning and night five times, if you are over forty, ten times if under, for a week. Then add one a day to the number until it reaches thirty. That is enough for the average man. In two weeks you will find that your stomach and back are hardening, that your appetite has increased and that your digestion is better.

After the liver squeeze and after each exercise take five long, slow breaths, holding for a moment and breathing out slowly. Breathe right down to the bottom of the lungs or, rather, right up to the little upper corners that are so seldom inflated in everyday life and where the fatal tuberculosis bug always gets its first foothold.

Then lie down flat on the bed with the legs hanging over the side and slowly raise them, without bending, straight up and down again. Put one hand on the stomach and see how the abdominal muscles come up in hard ridges. This is the "melter," so called because it melts the fat off the stomach. Five times every morning and night is enough for the first two weeks. Then add one a day until it, too, runs up to thirty. This is the great weight reducer and is used by all athletes to get into condition and take off "slush," as the trainers call the fat that gathers so quickly and insidiously over the stomach.

After this exercise and the five deep breaths stand with the stomach in, chest out and arms straight out at right angles to the body, shoulder high, and make each dumbbell describe a small circle, kneading the shoulders back. This is part of the military setting up exercises to insure a good carriage. The average man works over a desk all day and long before he is fifty stoops at the shoulders. Twenty times every morning and night is enough for the first two weeks. Then increase it slowly up to a hundred.

The last of the exercises is for the neck muscles, which never get any exercise and often let the head sag forward. Clasp the hands back of the head and bend the head until the chin touches the breast. Then push the head back against the pull of the hands, keeping the chin down. Do it the same number of times as the setting up exercise, and in a few weeks you will be looking the world in the face again.

All of these exercises should, of course, be done before an open window or on a sleeping porch. If possible do them stripped. This gives the skin an air bath and hardens it so that it can resist cold and colds.

After these exercises take a cold sponge or tub bath and drink one glass of cold water. Get up early enough to walk at least a mile on your way to work and again on your way home. On either walk don't think of business. Relax your mind, watch the people you meet or, better still, get some friend to walk in and out with you. This prescription is to be mixed with eight hours of sleep daily.

These exercises take less than ten minutes, and you can't use twenty of the daily 1,440 to better advantage. Try this system for three weeks and see what an increase of power and vitality there is and how much easier it is to think and work and play with a helping instead of a hindering body.—New York Tribune.

Anecdote With a Moral.

"I used to know twin brothers. They looked exactly alike in their youth, but one of them got rich, while the other remained poor. One developed a discontented expression; the other always looked happy."

"Well, you can't blame the poor brother for looking discontented."

"You have it twisted. It's the rich brother who looks discontented."—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Ventilation.

There can be no reasonable doubt that impure air is the cause of a great amount of sickness and disease. Impure air and an impoverished system go hand in hand. In the warm, balmy days, when windows and doors are open and outdoor recreation is sought, there is not so much danger for the want of fresh air; it is after cold weather sets in that pure air starvation takes place. This is the time when coughs, colds and a whole catalogue of diseases are rampant.

Careful attention at all times should be given to ventilation, so that there is always a plentiful supply of fresh air. The entire house should be thoroughly aired every day, and in the sleeping apartments the windows should be open at top and bottom. Sleeping in poorly ventilated rooms, breathing the same impure air over and over, poisons the whole system and makes the body susceptible to disease.

SIMPLY ROBBED THEM.

Mean Trick a Political Boss Played Upon His Ward Heelers.

A veteran politician when the subject of political graft and blackmail came up told of the experience of the boss of a certain city who was something in the way of a collector himself.

One day near the close of a hot campaign he managed to round up some $5,000. With a couple of his pals he had a bibulous celebration. About 2 in the morning he was clinging to a lamppost and trying to call a cab when two of his heelers hove in sight. He knew they would rob him if they suspected he had money. Bracing himself, he greeted them with:

"Hello, fellows; lucky you happened along. I'm dead broke and want a cab. Get one and take me to my hotel and I'll make good."

When they reached the hotel the drunken boss sleepily asked the clerk to give each of his companions a $5 bill. At the same time he drew from his trousers pocket a huge roll of bills and, throwing it at the clerk, told him to "keep that wad of stuff in a safe place until morning."

Disgustedly the heelers watched the safe door close on the young fortune that had escaped them, while the boss sank into a chair.

"Oh, you thief!" angrily shouted one of the heelers as he shook his fist under the nose of the boss. "That's the meanest double cross you ever gave a friend in your whole crooked career. You said you was broke and you had thousands in the wad. Confound you, there's no one a fellow can trust these days. That money belongs to us by rights and you've robbed us of it."—New York Sun.

Woman's Advantage.

A woman can take a plume and wear it on one side of her hat one day, on the other side another day, on the front of her hat another day and on the back another day. She can wear it curled round the rim, under the rim, across the crown or straight up in the air. But if a man happens to put his hat on with the rear end in front he looks like a durn fool.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

As She Caught It.

The use of the telephone frequently results in some very funny mistakes. Prior to a meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs in Chicago a young woman was asked over the telephone if she would take two delegates to the convention. She agreed to do so, and on the day appointed showed up at the hall with two jelly cakes.—Boston Transcript.

An Important Consideration.

"What reform will you advocate?" asked the friend.

"I don't know," answered the woman who had just returned from a trip around the world. "What reform is most fashionable at present?"—Washington Star.

Queer Connection.

"No system of physical exercises yet invented," says Oliver Onions, the novelist, "can compare for one moment with silk stockings for giving an erect carriage to the female head."

Logic Below Stairs.

A country gentleman recently had his house fitted with electric bells, and, giving instructions to his servant, he said, "Now, I want you to understand me clearly, Joseph, that when I ring once I want you, and when I ring twice I want Maggie, the housemaid." The bell rang. Joseph never moved. Presently it rang again, and Maggie hurried to her master, who was very angry. "Why didn't that rascal Joseph come when I rang for him?" demanded the gentleman. "Why, sir," answered Maggie, "Joseph was busy reading the paper when he heard the first ring, and he said to me, 'Now, Maggie, wait until master rings again, and then it will be you he wants.'"—Pall Mall Gazette.

She Made Her Point.

"Dearie," said the young married man, "I have to go to New York on business. It will only take a day or so, and I hope you won't miss me too much while I'm gone, but"—

"I won't," answered his young wife positively, "because I'm going with you."

"I wish you could, dear, but it won't be convenient this time. What would you want to go for anyhow? I'm going to be too busy to be with you, and"—

"I have to go. I need clothes."

"But, darling, you can get all the clothes you want right here on Euclid avenue."

"Thank you. That's all I wanted."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Twenty years ago on the First of March next, a well-known resident of this city took out at age 28 a 10 pay 20 year endowment policy for $1,000, No. 43860, in the Sun Life of Canada.

The yearly premium he paid on the participating plan for 10 years only was.. .. ..$ 69.30
The yearly premium he would have paid on the non-participating plan for the 10 years is.. .. 62.25

Extra paid for profits yearly for ten years. $7.05

He received in cash at the end of 20 years, $1,279.25, that is, the $70.50 extra that he paid for profits yielded him $279.25, almost 400 per cent.

Would you not like something like that?

Or, he could draw out $736.45 in cash, which is $43.45 more than all he paid in, and receive a fully paid-up participating policy for life.

You can never obtain such results as these on the non-participating plan unless you die and die early, so that the price will not become too high.

WHIRL OF THE WILLY WILLY

Fearful Force of the Miniature Cyclones of Australia.

Writing in Harper's Magazine, Norman Duncan tells of his first experience with the whirlwinds of the Australian desert:

"All at once a diminutive whirlwind took life under our very feet and went swishing and swirling to the east.

"'What's that?' cried the artist, astounded.

"It might have been a partridge whirring to new cover.

"'A little willy willy,' said the bushman.

"It was a singular phenomenon. Its force and activity were amazing, and the noise it made—the swish and hum and crackle of it—astonished us no less. We watched its erratic course. Its outline was definite. Its path no man could guess. And it moved swiftly, only occasionally stopping in indecision to spin like a top. It darted, it swerved, it circled. Had it returned upon its tracks—and there was no certainty that it would not immediately do so—we should have taken to our heels! It was so visible and small that, having short warning, we might have leaped aside and escaped. And a man would earnestly desire to elude it. It had a fearsome violence; it caught up the twigs; it scattered the pebbles; it tore at the scrub; it gathered a cloud of dust. When at last it vanished, a thick, red mist, high in the air, we laughed heartily at this comical little six foot cyclone, as we were disposed to regard it.

"Traveling subsequently in the midst of a host of these small winds, we had no laughter left.

"Precisely speaking, the willy willies are those destructive cyclones which originate in the ocean to the north of the continent and, blowing to the southwest, fall heavily on the northerly Western Australian coast from December to March. Off Ninety Mile beach, near Broome, the pearl fishers call them Cockeyed Bobs. Five years ago two visitations of the willy willies sent sixty luggers to the bottom and accounted for the disappearance of 300 men and more. It is now the custom of the pearlers to lie discreetly in harbor during the willy willy season. If, however, the great willy willy, instead of following the coast line in a southerly direction, deviates to the east, as sometimes happens, it crosses the continent to the great Australian bight, on the south coast, and its course is marked by torrential rains. A fall of as much as twenty-nine and one-half inches has been recorded. All the dry lands—where, too, we traveled—are in this way sometimes refreshed."

THE GREATEST OF PRIZE CONTESTS ENDS TOMORROW NIGHT

A GREAT EPOCH IN YOUR LIFE

Make Your Last Farewell Call Upon Your Friends for Their Help—Remember $1500 is Dangling in the Air For Somebody Tomorrow Night

The climax of your effort is at hand. To-morrow evening at eight o'clock the judges will start their work of counting the votes. Do you think you will have enough votes to win? Remember what the contest department has told you for the past few weeks that this is going to be a close race for the larger prizes. One subscription may be the means of your winning the grand prize. The candidate who expects to come under the wire to-morrow evening a winner must bestir himself up until the very last moment.

No Checks Taken.

The contest department will not take any checks on any bank tomorrow evening, candidates will have to have the money or else send in their subscriptions in bank draft or money order. This is done to protect each and every candidate, as well as The Review.

The Day of Days.

To-morrow will be an important epoch in the majority of the candidates' lives. Two futures confront you—success, failure. Which of these it will be will depend upon your efforts this last week. Like the ordinary foot race, the end is the most furious, and only the strong will come under the wire. Do your best, candidates, to-morrow evening. We would like to see you win.

The Judges.

The following is a list of the judges who will count the votes on Saturday evening, these are all important business men of the city and each candidate can rest assured that they will count every vote that they find in the ballot box. Now bear in mind, candidates, if you fail to have your votes in the ballot box by the closing hour that the judges nor The Review will be to blame for you not winning any of the valuable prizes. Here are the men who will mete out your reward for your efforts the past few weeks:

C. H. Pennefather, Manager of the Union Bank.

V. Eastwood, Manager of the Royal Bank.

His Worship, Mayor Buller.

When Burned.

An excellent home remedy for slight burns may be made as follows: Take half a pint of kerosene. Add half a pound of gum camphor in small quantities, shaking until dissolved. Add to this one-half its bulk of sweet oil. To use, saturate a soft cloth with the mixture, wrap the injured part in it and leave undisturbed for several days.

This is also a good remedy for sore throat. Swab the throat with it two or three times a day until relieved.

THE THRIFT OF GENIUS.

A Famous Violinist Who Was Keen on a Trade.

There is a certain famous violinist who frequently visits this country and who among his acquaintances is almost as noted for his parsimony as for his genius. Among this musician's admirers was a young woman who was determined, if possible, to procure some souvenir of the great man. Her opportunity came one rainy day when she chanced to encounter the musician on Broadway. He was provided with an old cotton umbrella, green with age, while the young woman carried a nice new silk one.

She stopped him for a moment, exclaiming:

"Oh, if you would only give me some slight remembrance of yourself—no matter how small!"

The great man surveyed her keenly and then gave a glance at the old cotton umbrella that covered him. This he thrust into her hands, saying:

"Certainly, my dear young lady. I shall be delighted. We will exchange umbrellas."—Lippincott's.

Making Ready For the Encounter.

She spent the entire morning in a beauty parlor. She paid a young woman $1 extra to do up her hair in the most becoming way. She had her lashes and her eyebrows penciled; she had her nails manicured; she reddened her lips and administered a dash of color to her cheeks.

It took her nearly three hours to get dressed. She put on the best clothes she possessed and borrowed a beautiful ring from her sister. When she was ready at last she stood for a long time before her mirror and subjected herself to a critical examination.

One might have supposed that she was about to be presented at court or at least to stand in the receiving line at a White House reception, but it was nothing like that.

She was merely going to meet a woman who had once been engaged to her husband.—Chicago Record-Herald.

PETERBORO WILL BE HONORED WITH A VISIT FROM HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS, THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, ON JUNE 1st

BOARD OF EDUCATION WILL BE ASKED TO HELP COUNCIL RETAIN RATE OF 25 MILLS

By Lowering Their Estimates by $3000—Police Commissioners Can Also Assist

Department Estimates of Council Would Suffer to the Extent of $7000

But This Arrangement Would Keep the Rate Where it Stood Last Year

Last night the committee of the whole council had a tussle with the yearly estimates, and from the total given by Ald. Anderson, chairman of the finance committee, blossomed forth a rate of 26 mills.

To bring about a rate of 25 mills, Ald. Anderson explained, $10,196 would have to be whittled from the estimates.

Ald. Gordon suggested that the Mayor and Ald. Anderson see the Board of Education and ask that body to pare down their estimate by $3,000, and also make a request to the Board of Police Commissioners to decrease their appropriation by at least $1,000. Then the Council could cut down their total by the remaining $7,000, and in this way the rate of 25 mills would come to pass.

Aldermen Stratton and Duffus moved a motion to this effect and it carried.

Then the meeting adjourned till the call of the Mayor.

The usual flare-up occurred when the estimates for the Fire Department were discussed. The appropriation last year was $16.500. This year the figures were reported at $17,250, which among others things provides for an extra fireman for six months.

Ald. Gordon moved, seconded by Ald. Stratton, that the increase for this year be $1,500 instead of only $750.

"The people who are paying the taxes feel that we are too extravagant now," said Mayor Buller.

Ald. Stratton argued that they were looking after the interests of the workingmen, in looking after the interests of the factories by increasing the efficiency of the department. A big fire would put a lot of men out of work.

Mayor Buller—We did not suffer one iota last year. If we had twenty-five more men we might have a fire that would wipe out a concern. If you have a big fire, there are plenty of men who would only be too glad to help. There is an understanding that the department can call for men.

Ald. Johnston—I can't see why the department cannot be run with the same amount as last year.

Ald. Anderson suggested that the discussion on this question be left over till the other figures had been given and this action was taken.

Removal of Snow.

When the estimate for the removof snow came up, Ald. Gordon was of the opinion that this expense could be done away with by making it compulsory for all citizens to clear their sidewalks at their own property. It would mean a saving of $2,000 and it woul give a lot of work to the men during the winter.

Mayor Buller pointed out that the ploughs would have to be used to clear the sidewalks for the early risers and the young girls going to the different factories.

Ald. Duncan said he had ordered the contractors to use the ploughs to remove the slush, but as the ploughs were not wide enough, a ridge of slush was left on either side and from it the water formed on the sidewalks. This was not very satisfactory.

This question was brought to a head by Ald. Duffus stating that at a later meeting he would move an amendment to the by-law calling for citizens to clear the remainder of the snow after the passing of the plough.

Street Watering.

Another vexious matter was street watering, but the aldermen had nothing new to offer.

The Mayor stated that the Street Railway Company wants to assess the city 33 cents per mile for watering the streets on the railway lines or only in the business section, as the case might be. This was 33 cents for every mile the car was operated, whether with a full supply coming up George Street or with an empty tank coming back. The charge for any short run, an emergency call for instance, would be $1.50. Added to this there would have to be an outlay of $4,000 for the car. This proposition was not satisfactory to the committee.

LIFE CONVICT IS RELEASED BY GRIM REAPER

Convicted Murderer Spent Thirty-five Years Behind Prison Walls

When Edward Thickpenny,, a "lifer" at the Portsmouth Penitentiary, passed away at the big penal institution on Wednesday morning, the oldest convict in that institution and, as far is is known, the oldest convict in Canada, closed his eyes in the last long slep, says the Kingston Standard.

Thickpenny passed thirty-five long years behind prison bars; going there in 1879 and since that time has never seen outside of the prison walls He had a chance to leave the institution some years ago, as he was granted a reprieve after he had been there over twenty years, but the life in the penitentiary was too much for him to stand and he had become crazy with the long confinement. When brought to the institution his sanity was in doubt, and after a few years he was placed in the insane ward, where he died on Wednesday morning.

Committed Murder.

The prisoner was serving a life term for murder. In 1878 he was sentenced in Toronto to be executed for a murder which he committed in Markham, near that city. The sentence, however, was commuted to life imprisonment, and in the spring of the year 1879 he was brought to the penitentiary. He was an Englishman, born in the Old Country, from which he emigrated when a young man. Of late years he had been of little trouble to the officials as he was of a melancholy disposition and would sit in his cell day in and day out without speaking a word.

His death came from old age and was a great relief from the long years of confinement. He was seventy-five years of age and as he had no friends nor relatives in this country he was buried from the penitentiary.

MR. MILLER TO TAKE POSITION; SALARY IS $700

He Will Investigate Cases Seeking Treatment at The Hospitals

Any Spare Time He Has Will Be Given to Sanitary Inspector

Aldermanic comment such as "he is a very efficient man," "I think he will earn his salary," and "we could't get a better man for the job," were heard last night when Ald. Langford reported the result of his interview with Mr. F. Miller in regard to his appointment as investigator of indigent patients before their entrance to the hospitals.

Mr. Miller will accept a salary of $700, and is willing to give any spare time to assist the Sanitary Inspector. He will have to give up the position of Immigration Agent.

Mr. Miller will share the office of the Inspector, and one officer will be available by telephone probably all of the day.

Mr. Miller will not be under the inspector, but he will give any time at his disposal. He will still be known as the Relief Officer.

Two samples of forms to be signed by patients, their relatives or friends, were accepted.

VESPER SERVICE.

The Vesper Service in the Y. W. C. A. to-morrow afternoon at five o'clock will be led by Rev. R. Pogue. Miss Bryce will sing.

ILLUMINATED SIGNS' BY-LAW TO BE AMENDED

Time Has Arrived When Provisions Should Be Extended

A change will be made in the by-law governing the erection of illuminated signs in front of business houses. In the opinion of Ald. Johnston and other aldermen the time has arrived for this city to get away from the present by-law.

Last night, the Mayor read a communication from Hourigan and MacLean, a new tailoring firm at 161 Hunter Street, which requested permission to erect a large but light, illuminated sign. This sign represents a man with arms outstretched, and makes in all, nine feet. There would be over 300 lights.

The by-law says that the sign must not extend more than 6 ft. 6 in.

"Don't you think the time has come when we might amend that by-law?" asked Ald. Johnston.

Ald. Gordon said a good illuminatded sign was an improvement to the street.

Ald. Duncan—We ought to ask the City Engineer for a report and consider it at the next meeting.

Ald. Duffus—There isn't any use having a by-law and going around it. We should amend the by-law so that a proper sign can be put up. In the past we have charged the merchants for inspection and they have assumed all responsibility. There are many merchants who would put up a sign if they could erect a good one.

It was decided to deal with the by-law at the next meeting.

THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT

To the members of the Council, the City Clerk read a communication last night from the private secretary to His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, stating that His Highness would be pleased to visit Peterboro on June 1st. The aldermen received this intelligence with pleasure, and the clerk was instructed to reply.

The vice-regal party will tour Ontario for one month.

FRATERNALLY YOURS

The Court Stanley Lodge of the Ancient Order of Foresters No. 7680 will hold a very important meeting on the second Tuesday in April. An endeavor will be made to form a degree team and the prospects will be thoroughly discussed. The Chief Ranger will give a short address on Bellemy's "Looking Back."

The quarterly district meeting of the Orange Lodges of this city will be held on Tuesday, April 7th. At this meeting final arrangements for the annual church parade will be made as well as preliminary arrangements for the annual celebration on July 12th.

Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, who will speak at the Public Meeting in the Opera House on Monday evening under the auspices of the W.P.C.A., is a very prominent member of the Knights of Pythias.

The Golden Link Lodge No. 81, Daughters of Rebekah, which meets every first and third Tuesday in the Oddfellows' Hall, is booming its membership. It's total membership is now 139, but if the present efforts meet with the success which they have in the first few months, the two hundred mark will soon be reached. At their first meeting in April, it is understood some five new members will be initiated.

The St. Peter's Court, No. 225, of the Catholic Order of Foresters, will attend St. Peter's Church in a body on Palm Sunday, a week from to-morrow at eight o'clock mass and will receive Holy Communion.

A voting contest is to be put on in the near future to decide the question as to whether the Catholic Mutual Benefit Society of this city, or the Catholic Order of Foresters of this city is the more popular. The idea is to have their members sell books of ten tickets, each ticket costing ten cents and which will be good for one vote. These votes will be cast for either one of the societies, and the total will decide as to which society is really the more popular.

The proceeds of the voting contest will go toward swelling the receipts of the annual Sacred Heart Social and it is anticipated that a large amount will be realized.

THE HEAVIEST FALL OF SNOW AND THE BIG FLOOD

Dates are best fixed in our memories by occurrences. Dates are troublesome things to remember, unless there is something to snub to. The older peoples recognized this inward fraility and reckoned by and from Olympiads and that sort of thing. Local events are marked back to "the time when Jimmy Stevenson was mayor," a very vague way of placing a fact. Times of domestic stress are punctuated and identified as "the second day after, Bob fell off Gibson's fence and broke his ankle." And so it goes.

A time to be remembered by those who experienced its rigors and its inconveniences was "the big snow." The heaviest and deepest snow within the memory of man in this district, certainly no snowfall since has equalled it. As a matter of fact we do not want to experience such a time. It is to strenuous.

The excuse for recalling the whole thing is that it came about forty-four years ago this month. There was nothing in the appearance or feeling as it is put, of the general weather to indicate that an abnormal time was at hand. The winter had been about an average one.

Snow and More Snow.

Snow began to fall on Sunday, March 13th, and fell continuously until Monday early in the afternoon. The fall commenced again on Tuesday morning the 15th, all day, all night, all day Wednesday and Wednesday night and Thursday all day. Thursday night was calm and clear. More than three feet in depth of snow covered the ground on a level. Then on Saturday, it started in to snow to show what laying down snow sprang from.

The fall was heavy and blinding. Little wind and large heavy flakes. Snow fell all day Saturday and Sunday and Sunday night. By this time people were getting alarmed. Every one had shovelled snow with double diligence and patience, all week. Here was everything to be done over again. Stock was taken of the situation, even the Mayor and Council appealed to, not to stop the snow but to get rid of it.

One Train Only.

The one train that reached town from Port Hope during the week was 16 hours making the distance. It got in on Friay morning and when the second fall began, the train crew said they'd be hanged if they would try to make a return trip. It was too much like work for the little engines and snowploughs, the latter only some sort of a scoop fastened on the cow catcher of the engine. So the town had to be content with one mail.

On Sunday all churches were deserted. On Monday all schools were closed. Business was at a standstill. Only a stray farmer or two reached town and those who did said they made most of the trip on top of the rails of the snake fences. Five feet of snow on the level was a good average, though there were citizens who proudly claimed a deeper depth in their back yards. George Street was a sight. When the sidewalks had been cleared those walking about could not see the other side of the street and the line of vision only took in the second storey windows.

Then Came the Flood.

In the centre of the streets and also on the cross streets effort was made to break a passage for teams by hauling the snow away to the river. It was slow and laborious work and only a narrow channel was dredged out. The balance stayed for gentle spring to deal with. Then followed the twin brother of the big snow—the big flood. It was what the boys called a corker. Water, well yes, and to spare. The mild weather followed the snow almost at once and an early spring settled the question as to getting rid of the snow. The streets were impassible for days.

As was to be expected when the melting in the back country filled the small lakes and ponds, the larger lakes received additional volume, very much beyond capacity to hold. The water poured down the river in unrestrained torrent. Six or seven power dams on the river were at once in jeopardy. The dam at Perry's Mill (at the old waterworks dam) was swept away bolus bolus. The debris pushed by the water tore away part of the dams at the Blythe Mills and Auburn. Martyn's dam (just below Inverlea Park) suffered a relapse. It had previously much infirmity. The last half of Dickson's dam the largest and highest on the river was torn from its foundations and swept, taking a part of the mill with it—into a tangled mass of timbers up against the Rogers dam. Roger's dam declined to take the responsibility and let go. Everything that could float, sailed down stream through the Little Lake and took such satisfaction as could be had out of the locks dam by wiping it out, leaving nothing except the stone lock on the western side. That had been planned by the Royal Engineers and such things as they had a hand in generally stood. The works of the Peterboro Gas Company had three feet of water on the working floor and all business was impossible about the plant. It was a novel experience to paddle in a canoe over the land now covered by the buildings of the C. G. E. Co. George Street was feet under water as far up as above Dalhousie Street. The Little Lake Cemetery and the section about the Brinton Carpet Company was an island for the flood water took a short cut flowing to the river below, over about the ground now covered by Lock Street. All down the river to the Rice Lake farms and fields were flooded well on to the summer.

There are times in history, when conditions hark back to such as were in existence, centuries before. Here was one now. The Indian River once more received into its channel a share of the water from Stoney Lake, so long denied it and in pure glee flooded farms in Dummer, Douro and Otonabee. The ancient bed of the stream now covered with forest—where it was not cleared farm lands and the flood of water was much obstructed.

One Life Lost.

It was during the height of the flood that Mr. S. Dickson, one of the most progressive and helpful citizens that Peterborough ever had, lost his life while directing the work of securing from further damage the dam at the mills at the foot of London Street.

PROSPECTS APPEAR TO BE IMPROVING

Brinton Carpet Company to Resume Fall Time on Thursday

That it has been a hard winter in this section of the globe is an undisputed fact, and opinions vary as to the possibilities of things picking up with the arrival of the summer. A short conversation with a few of the local manufacturers still leaves the question without a clear answer. The various canoe companies state that as a general rule business grows brisk as the sum becomes warm, and it is a little too early to surmise just how their business will be this year.

However, the Briton Carpet Co. will resume full time operations on Thursday of next week and that is good news.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., informs The Review that his factory is very busy. They have more orders in now than they have had at this season of any preceding year. His great difficulty is in obtaining skilled employes. When asked what effect the "hard times" during the winter had on the Grand Opera House, Mr. Turner left us to believe that it was a very bad season for shows. He has had several first class plays booked for local presentation, but they have been called in, or in other words have become financially embarrassed. He had the well known sequel to "Officer 666," known as "Stop Thief," billed for Good Friday, but the company is being taken off the road. "It is the mechanics who patronize the opera houses," stated Mr. Turner, "and when they are out of employment the shows cannot make any success."

With the opening of the Henry Hope Co., and re-opening of the mills, business should brighton. Exchanges state that the hard times are over, and that all the factories will soon be taking on hands. Roswell D. Tomkins, secretary of the United Board of Business Agents of the building trades of New York City, in a report made recently stated that between five and six weeks ago there were about seventy thousand. If precedents count for at present the number is about fifty thousand. If rpecedents count for anything, the cities in Canada should have the same story to relate in a few weeks.

A BANNER NIGHT FOR Y.M.C.A. BOYS

Three Hundred of the Younger Members Enjoy the Annual Banquet

ADDRESS ON TALENTS

Secretary of Department is Praised for His Successful Work

"With such phenomenal growth as we have experienced in the Boys' Department during the past year, and since Mr. G. Galley's regime, we will have to erect a new and more modern building sufficient to carry and keep up with the remarkable growth," said President J. H. Connal of the Y. M. C. A., at the Boys' Department annual banquet held last evening.

The occasion, as anticipated, was one of the most successful ever held. A crowd of some 300 boys sat down to a sumptuous repast provided by the Ladies' Auxiliary, and a delightful evening was spent.

Mr. Connal further complimented the Association on having such an efficient Boys' Secretary in Mr. Galley, who since taking hold of the boys' department had met with unqualified success.

Mr. P. N. McCarrell presided, and commented on the remarkable growth of the Boys' Department, and the general growth of the Association during the year. He briefly reviewed, as did Mr. Connal, the various lectures, and vocational talks of the past season, and the keen interest evinced by the boys. The speaker of the evening, Mr. L. G. Bell, Sales Manager for the Empire Cream Separator Company, of Toronto, made a hit with the members in his interesting address on Talents.

"You can make as much on one talent as two, but don't neglect that one talent," was a strong point brought out and one that drew interest and attention from the gathering. He further described the various talents and how to make use of them.

The toast, The Association, proposed by Fred Howard, and responded to by Harold Copp, was given full justice at their hands.

The toast The Ladies, proposed by Gerald McClelland, and responded to by George Logan, was a feature, and the speech-making displayed by the two boys was exceptionally good.

The various presentations of prizes were as follows:

J. M. Laing Shield, for all-round athletic championship, won by Bernard Mulhern.

Hall trophy for Senior School Boys, won by Stanley Anderson.

S. R. Hall Basketball Shield, won by Leaders, Maurice Pringle, captain.

J. I. Allin Basketball Shield, won by Indians, Clifton Carruthers, captain.

Y. M. C. A. Boys' Baseball trophy, Arthur Horsfield, captain.

Junior Church League Shield, presented by J. I. Allin, won by Charlotte Street Church, Hugh Austin, captain.

The evening, after a vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Bell, was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

Among the guests present were Messrs. Jas. Connal, P. N. McCarrell, Dr. Moir, A. A. Hainsworth, Rev. H. J. Keith, Rev. R. G. Peever, Police Chief Thompson, J. I. Allin, Adj. McElheney, Chas. Sission, H. B. Cowan, W. H. Collier, G. Galley, and J. J. Thompson.

AN INVITATION TO CAPITALISTS

The special series of sermons on Social Problems by the Rev. R. Pogue in St. Paul's Church is drawing to a close. His subject on Sunday evening will be "The Duty of Capital in the present Industrial Order." He extends a hearty invitation to all employers of labor who may not be worshipping at their own church to come and hear his message. He will preach a week from Sunday night on the "Duty of Labor," and has some pretty plain things to say to both Capitalists and Laborers on their mutual relations and duties. He would like to see a large attendance of all who employ labor in any way, at the service to-morrow evening.

RURAL HIGH SCHOOLS.

THE CANADIAN COURIER, commenting on Professor Robertson's Report on Industrial Training and Technical Education, points out that Agricultural Colleges do not produce an educated class of farmers, nor do universities produce a general educated class of people, however beneficial and efficient these institutions may be. It states that there should be rural high schools for farm boys and girls as the panacea for securing an educated class of farmers. It makes this statement on the argument that the high school gives the finishing educative touch to the majority of people particularly those of urban municipalities.

Publications of various kinds may say what should be done; if they also said how, and explained what they meant, their readers would have a basis for some opinion and thus begin a public sentiment. What is meant by rural high schools? Most people would be quite justified in thinking rural high schools merely the establishment of town high schools in the country. Then what is the significance of the word "rural?" Does it mean simply the country or does it specialize a high school designed to give a special training, different from town and city high school training to the youth of the country? If not, is the training of a collegiate suitable to rural population? The feasibleness of the proposal, whatever it is, is a most important point not considered and the difficulties in the way seem almost insurmountable.

In the first place education beyond a certain point must rest on individual initiative. When it is forced on persons beyond the point of desiring it, no good purpose is secured beyond the dissipation of a relatively small amount of money. Young people are shoved into upper schools and colleges with no perspective of what they are to do with the training actually thrown at them, resulting in superficially trained persons able to do many things badly, and nothing well enough to give them a definite place in life. True, our Canadian system of examinations performs a weeding out process in this regard, but not a complete process. To make a lawyer or a preacher out of a man better suited to farming is a great mistake. A student to be anything must desire to be so and willing to undergo sacrifices to attain the end in view.

Another point is the difficulty of securing teachers. Rural districts find great difficulty in securing teachers for the present standard; they would find it practically impossible to secure the more highly trained instructors we suppose would be necessary for rural high schools. In addition a great many rural districts kick at the salaries paid now as well as at the expense of the education given. They would hardly care to greatly enlarge the present expenditure for education. But even were expense not an obstacle, it is doubtful whether rural districts would seriously desire rural high schools. In certain districts today served by a small high school, the farmers prefer to send their children to city high schools because of the better training, equipment and attractions of the larger institution.

Most people agree that the system of education in Ontario needs reforming. It needs to be more efficient and advanced particularly in the common schools. The rise of technical schools and the proposal to establish rural high schools is, in essence, a criticism of the present system to the end that common or public schools are not filling the place they should in the life of the people. As to agricultural colleges and universities they never have and never will educate everybody in the country. But such colleges that are well equipped and efficient are filling the place they should in providing the advanced instruction for those desiring it. There is no use trying to bring this advanced training to the masses. The other end of the problem is the field for improvement—the common education of the common people.

MEDICAL AND DENTAL INSPECTION.

MEDICAL AND DENTAL inspection of school children, is a recent development in education in Ontario. At first, the movement was regarded more or less as a medical fad, or an imported Americanism that was entirely unnecessary. The knowledge of what the movement means, and the desire to secure the best education possible, is producing a public sentiment supporting the movement, provided that it is carried out along scientific lines, and not forced on the people with too much haste. As a matter of fact, medical and dental inspection of school children, merely emphasizes one side of the old proverb, that a sound mind requires a sound body. The physical side has been somewhat neglected in the past, a neglect that has not resulted in very serious consequences, because of the natural high degree of public health.

There are many people who cannot afford to have their children's teeth properly attended to, with the result that bad teeth, improper breathing, impaired health, defective throats and other disadvantages result in children. Then many parents are ignorant of, many common sense methods in caring for the health of their children. The movement for medical and dental inspection of school children, is intended to remedy such conditions. The Public Health Journal for March, contains a brief, historical review of dental inspection of school children in Toronto. Such inspection began in 1910, and has already been productive of many benefits. One of the first reports was as follows:—

Number of children examined....	894
	Per cent.
Physical condition below normal	29.5
Mouth breathers	27
Irregular teeth	43.5
Power of mastication impaired..	65.5
Enlarged glands	28
Unclean mouths	71.5
Number of cavities per child.....	7.19
Pus exuding into mouth....	30.5
Tooth aches	32
Children needing dental treatment	95.75

The object has been to take preventive measures to reduce the amount of tooth decay in children. The results are already beginning to show, many parents have for the first time, heard of the existence of the first permanent molar, and of its vital importance to the child. Many have also learned the importance to the child of the preservation of its temporary teeth, and of the effects of mouth breathing upon the position of the teeth and the contour of the face. As a result children are, at a more early age, being taken to the family dentist with the most beneficial results to the child.

Already the movement is in various stages of progress in twelve municipalities, which are mostly the cities of the province. The advocates of this movement, look to the passing of a provincial law, establishing medical and dental inspection of school children throughout the province. As yet, the movement is too young to advocate such a policy. In theory, it is quite sound, but time alone must tell whether its practice will be satisfactory or productive of the purpose in view. The successful working out of such a scheme, often depends on local conditions, and if these were unfavorable, a general law might result in unsatisfactory work or useless expenditure. With public sentiment generally in favor, a general law will have the support, necessary to secure the largest measure of success.

ADMIT A MISTAKEN POLICY.

A REPORT states that Sir William Mackenzie has frankly admitted that the policy of secrecy which the Canadian Northern magnates have followed has been a mistake. This admission is a serious criticism of the Laurier railway policy. It is tantamount to the regrets usually expressed by the penitent, but in this case, M. and M. have bled the country to a fine tune, and, seeing no prospect of further raids on the Federal Treasury are becoming sorrowful. It really sounds like comedy to hear Sir William Mackenzie admit his policy of secrecy has been a mistake after he has roped into the C.N.R. a vast quantity of public money and secured a private fortune for himself of extensive proportions. Mr. Borden is not going to pursue the unsound and extravagant policy of the late Liberal administration. We have every confidence the Canadian people will be informed of the railway situation as fully as the facts of the case will permit.

Loafers' Logic.

Ottawa Journal.

Some of us proclaim that this country is in no danger from anybody because even if Great Britain ceased to protect us, the United States would do it. Such people are right enough in their logic. So is many a loafer who lives on his wife's scrub-work when he asserts that he is not called upon to do anything for himself because his wife is sure to feed him.

An English paper tells Mr. Churchill that he ought not to lecture Canada. Why not? If Canada does not like it, Canada can get out of the empire. There's no compulsion. But so long as Canada sponges on British money, any Briton who pays ought to be allowed to at least talk.

Why Canada Needs Cruisers.

The Canadian Courier.

Just the other day, the British cruiser "Berwick" was ordered from St. Lucia in the West Indies to Brazil to protect British interests there. Any day, British cruisers may be ordered to Vera Cruz to protect British interests in Mexico. Indeed, there is probably a British cruiser in that port at present.

Canada has millions at steak in those two countries and many Canadian citizens in each. This wealth and these citizens will be protected by British cruisers. If Canadians are forced to flee from Mexico, they will go aboard British cruisers. This has been the custom in the past, and will be in the future. Canadians have always been considered by the British navy as equal in importance with other British subjects.

Yet here is a service which, so far as America is concerned, Canada should be performing for herself. It is absurd that an important country such as this has grown to be should be unable to send a single cruiser out upon the high seas to rescue citizens in distress. True, we may choose to rely upon the British cruisers—but in that case we should contribute a portion of the cost. We should at least be logical.

Cruisers along our own coast would also be useful in case of marine disaster. Our shipping has grown tremendously and Canadian vessels in distress must necessarily increase. The fast cruiser is a great relief boat, and the relief training is both dignified and useful work for a warship's officers and crew.

WISHES

By Walt Mason

If wishes were but horses, the beggar folk would ride, and there'd be free divorces for people badly tied. We'd all be packing monies till spavined in the knees, if wishes were but ponies, and roubles grew on trees. "I wish," says little Willie, "I wish I had a gun; I'd shoot till I was silly, and have all kinds of fun." And then he starts a-wishing he had a patent pole, so he could do some fishing down by the swimming hole. And he might have in plenty the things he wants so hard, if he would work like twenty young beavers in the yard. His father says, "There's many a chore, my lad, you shirk, and I'd pay you a penny for every day you work." Thus Willie might be raking in lots of dough, my dears; by saving all he's making for ten or 'leven years, he'd have his gun and tackle, from all incumbrance free; and he might sing and cackle in perfect ecstacy. 'Tis thus with every grownup, as 'tis with every boy; the truth we'd better own up, that work alone brings joy. We think we'd chirp like robins, and strangers be to pain, if wishes were but Dobbins, and money fell like rain; but grief would then enmesh us and haunt us through the years; for things are only precious that cost us toil and tears.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE MONAGHAN HALL.

Editor, Review:

Dear Sir,—The South Monaghan Agricultural Society met on January 19th to wind up their business for all time, as the Society has ceased to exist. The agricultural hall is all that is left, the remaining question was, what was to be done with the hall, as it was built by voluntary subscription and voluntary labor. There were thirteen of us that put our money and labor into the building. There was none of the Society's money used in the building of the hall. I am the only one living to-day in the township, of the thirteen that took an active part in the building of the Hall. I proposed at the meeting that we make a present of it to the township for a Town Hall, as the township never had a hall they could call their own. The township is paying, through the Council, $20 a year for the privilege of holding meetings in the Sabbath School of the Presbyterian Church. It is not a fit place to hold public meetings.

My proposal was acted upon, and J. Clark, James Jackson and Joseph B. Porter were appointed a deputation to wait on the Council and make a formal offer of the Hall to the township for a Town Hall. Surely the Council will accept this free gift on behalf of the township to hold their public meetings free of charge. It is a free-will offering from the Society, and the noble thirteen men who put their money and labor in it and other well wishers who gave us small amounts. The Council cannot let such an offer pass for the benefit of the ratepayers of the township of South Monaghan.

If the township society is ever organized again they would still have the privilege of holding their show in the Hall.

The Government does not claim the Hall as it was built by voluntary subscription and voluntary labor.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH CLARK.

Birthdays of Note

SATURDAY, MARCH TWENTY-EIGHTH

To-day Canada's one and only native nobleman, Major-General Sir Matthew Aylmer, Eighth Baron Aylmer, celebrates his natal day. This distinguished Canadian was born at the family residence, Melbourne, P.Q., on March 28, 1842, and was brought up like his forebears for the military profession. Joining the 7th Royal Fusiliers as an ensign, he saw active service in the Mediterranean and on the Canadian frontier during the Fenian invasion. He later joined the Canadian Militia and rose by regular promotion to be Inspector-General, the first native officer to hold the rank. He retired in 1907 and now lives in Kootenay, B.C., where he is engaged in fruit ranching. The original barony was conferred during the reign of James II., the first holder of the title being a distinguished naval officer, but the family have long resided in Canada.

SUNDAY, MARCH TWENTY-NINTH

Dr. George H. Locke, Toronto's public librarian and probably the greatest library authority of the time in Canada, was born forty-four years ago to-day in Beamsville, the son of a Methodist minister. He is a great believer in the necessity of applying business methods to library management. For instance he insists on keeping the books in the library actively in circulation and using them as long as they hold together. When they cease to be in demand he passes them on to the construction camps or the lonely rancher. This principle he illustrates by relating how he once visited a settler's shack on the prairie. Smelling chicken in the pot, he asked if it had been put on in his honor. "Oh, no," was the reply, "that old hen stopped laying. Anything or anybody that stops working in this place has to go. That's how you'll get chicken for supper."

To Have Carnegie Library.

GLENCOE, March 28.—Steps are being taken to secure a Carnegie library for Glencoe. The Carnegie Library Corporation has granted the town council's request for $5,000, provided the town makes a yearly expenditure of $500. A site for the library can be purchased. The entire matter will probably be submitted to the ratepayers to vote upon.

OTTAWA, March 28.—Rev. Chas. Casson, who was educated at Victoria College, Toronto, and after being assigned a Methodist church entered the Unitarian ministry, has accepted a call to the Roslindale, Massachusetts, Church. He was pastor of a Unitarian church here for a time, but resigned to become editor-in-chief of The Ottawa Citizen.

Militants Burn Fine Home.

BELFAST, Ireland, March 28. — A militant suffragette "arson squad" is believed to have been responsible for the destruction by fire early yesterday morning of Abbeylands, a splendid country seat on Belfast Lough.

Sir Lionel May Go To Brazil.

LONDON, March 28.— Sir Lionel Carden, British Minister to Mexico, yesterday cancelled his booking on board the Mauretania, on which he was to sail from Liverpool to-day for New York on his return to Mexico City. It is understood there is a possibility of Sir Lionel going direct to Rio de Janeiro to take up his post as Minister instead of returning to Mexico. Nothing has been definitely decided as to his future movements.

MARTHENA'S DUTY

It Did Not Prove to Be a Sacrifice

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Marthena Judd locked the schoolhouse door with a little sigh of relief and walked slowly down the village street toward home.

There came a clatter of hoofs on the road, and Lionel Forbes rode gallantly around the bend and pulled his big black horse to a standstill beside Marthena.

"How do you do, Miss Judd?" he asked, smiling down at her from his brown eyes.

Marthena's eyes were dazzled by Lionel Forbes and his too evident beauty. The sudden interest of Sharon's richest young man in the humble schoolteacher was flattering. Marthena Judd was pretty in a pale, delicate way, but one always thought that she gave promise of greater beauty when she could have a rest from teaching the robust youngsters of the village school.

While Marthena smiled and blushed under the bold glance of Lionel Forbes, Miss Myra Finney, who kept the postoffice, peered from an unobstructed corner of the window and made comments to her sister Susan.

"If I had a child in Marthena Judd's school I would put my foot down about one thing!" said Myra after Lionel and Marthena had walked slowly on.

"What's that?" asked Susan lazily.

"I'd put a stop to her flirtation with Lionel Forbes. It sets a very bad example to the children. Why, Susan, she's all took up with him so's she's forgotten to come for her mail, and here's a letter from her brother Henry way out in Wyoming. He don't write very often. I wonder if there is anything the matter."

"Marthena writes to him every Sunday," remarked Susan. "Let me see—Henry lost his wife, didn't he?"

* * * * * * *

Marthena blushed and then paled when she read her brother's letter.

Dear Marthena—I am wondering if you can't take pity on me and come out here and keep house for me. You needn't do any real hard work; Lee Sing, the Chinaman, does that, but it does need a woman's hand out here, and I'm plain lonesome for you. It was different when Ida was alive, but you know how it is. I'll pay you what you get for teaching the Sharon kids, and you'll have a horse to ride and anything else in reason that you want. Do come. Send me a telegram and I'll meet you at Bitter Tree whenever you say. Your loving brother, HENRY.

Marthena's face paled as she read the letter. It was so plainly her duty to go to poor Henry, but her dawning love for Lionel Forbes held her back. If she went away now his too fickle heart would seek another. Yet, knowing this, she yearned after him. He had opened the rosy doors of romance to Marthena Judd. He would forget her if she went. And yet it was her duty to go to her brother.

She would let Aunt Hepsey decide. Aunt Hepsey was a large, capable woman who ruled her family of grown sons and daughters with an iron hand. She had spared a small gabled room for Marthena Judd, her orphaned niece, and Marthena's board money paid for music lessons for the three girls.

Aunt Hepsey read the letter and then settled her gold framed spectacles on her nose.

"Marthena, it's your plain duty to go to Henry," she said. "He's doing splendidly out there on the ranch. He's getting rich, so Larry Barnes wrote to George. You know Larry went out there, and Henry gave him work on the ranch. Seems Larry's a foreman or something out there. I s'pose you've forgotten all about Larry Barnes now that Lionel Forbes is sweet on you; but, Marthena, you can't place any dependence on Lionel. He's a butterfly, always running after some pretty girl, and—now, don't get mad—you asked my advice and"—

Aunt Hepsey looked after Marthena's flying form with disapproval in her eyes.

"Don't it beat all," she asked of the empty air, "how folks will ask your advice and then fly all to pieces if it don't suit their ideas?"

It was a heavy hearted Marthena who packed her trunks and bade farewell to the little Maine village where she had lived all her days.

The train left Sharon and the old life far behind. While the ache of parting was still in Marthena's throat the novelty of travel interested and comforted her. Five days later Marthena entered upon the rolling prairie land that to her eastern eyes seemed like a dust colored sea bounded by the purple hills rising and melting away against the horizon as they sped on.

At Bitter Tree her trunks were dumped out on the platform, and the train went on into the golden glory of the sunset, while Marthena stood there feeling strangely small and forlorn until Henry's big voice and Henry's strong arms greeted her.

She looked at him with wondering eyes. Henry Judd had gone forth from Sharon village a tall, lanky New Englander dressed in ill fitting store clothes. The man before her was big and stout, and his cowboy hat and shirt and his corduroy trousers tucked into high heeled boots gave him the look of a stranger. But the old merry look was in his eyes as he put his little sister into the buckboard and took his seat beside her.

"Hold on to your hair, sis," he advised. "These bronchos are walking on their hind legs today."

Marthena Judd never forgot that wild ride across the prairie. The ponies actually pawed the air as they started forth, and then in a spirit of recklessness they galloped madly for miles and miles, while Marthena held her breath and Henry laughed as he put one arm around her and drove the ponies with the other hand.

"Home!" cried Henry as he turned in between two rail posts and with a last clatter of hoofs and scattering of sand and gravel the ponies stopped at the broad porch of a pleasant ranch house that overlooked the Bitter Tree valley with a glimpse of the shining river at the bottom and the everlasting hills beyond.

Henry made her go straight to bed, and he carried her supper to her in the little room that he had furnished for her with all of a man's clumsy tenderness.

"Larry Barnes went to Chico with me, and we picked out the stuff. Larry said he remembered that blue was your favorite color, so we got everything blue and white. Larry chose the pictures. He said the one of St. Cecelia there looked like you. Great fellow, Larry! Now, you close your eyes and go to sleep. Get up when you like and order what you want for breakfast from Lee Sing. Good night."

With Henry's kiss on her brow Marthena went to sleep with a little smile on her lips and awoke to the glory of a perfect morning.

After she had leisurely dressed she went down to the veranda, where Lee Sing, with many polite gestures, invited her to breakfast. While she sat there she heard the mad clatter of hoofs and saw a horse galloping around the yard. From the distant corral came a shout as one, two, three, more horses leaped the gate and followed the first untamed animal. Three cowboys mounted on horses pursued the runaways, with lusty shouts and lariats held ready for action.

Marthena wondered vaguely if Larry Barnes was one of these cowboys who rode so fearlessly and so gracefully.

She went to the edge of the veranda and waved her table napkin at the vicious black horse that pawed the steps, and he scuttered away to fall a victim to the lariat of the most graceful rider of them all, a bareheaded giant with blue-black hair and a skin bronzed like an Indian's.

Then Marthena, when it was all over and the horses had been driven back into the corral, realized that she had displayed unwonted enthusiasm. She had not only waved her napkin frantically at the victorious riders, but she had cheered them on to greater efforts, so that she went back to her seat with scarlet cheeks and shamed eyes.

A step sounded behind her and she looked up to see the graceful, brown cheeked rider who had flashed white teeth at her as he captured the black horse.

There was a strange familiarity about him that puzzled her.

"Don't remember me, Marthena?" he asked, holding out a big hand.

"Oh, Larry—Larry Barnes!" cried Marthena. "What have you done to yourself? I didn't recognize you."

"I hope the change is for the better," said Larry gravely.

"It is. Oh, it is!" cried Marthena, with such evident admiration in her tone that both of them suddenly laughed outright in the pure joy of youth and perhaps in the discovery of something that both of them had lost.

"Henry's gone to Chico," said Larry, sitting down on the railing of the veranda, "and he has delegated me to give you your first riding lesson. Cherry is the prettiest little pony you ever saw, Marthena, and Henry and I picked out the saddle the other day, and"—

"Thank you for helping Henry choose the things for my room," said Marthena gratefully. And she wondered why Larry blushed so furiously and changed the subject. She felt very kindly toward him.

"Well, sis," said Henry that night at supper, "you look as rosy as can be. How do you like the sagebrush?"

"It's heavenly!" cried Marthena so heartily that Henry laughed aloud, and Larry, who had been invited to supper, blushed deeply.

"Then you don't want to go back to Sharon?" teased Henry.

"Never!" exclaimed Marthena. "I'll tell you when I do, Henry."

"I'll wager that will be never," said Henry, but he said it to himself so that no one could hear. He had read the signs of reawakened interest in the betraying eyes of his sister and Larry Barnes, and he was very glad. Larry was a capital fellow, and Aunt Hepsey's letter about Lionel Forbes had been disquieting.

Three months afterward Marthena and Larry came in from a long ride with the glory of perfect happiness shining in their faces. Henry, standing on the veranda smoking his pipe, smiled tenderly as they came up the steps.

"Blessings, my children!" he said heartily, for he had read that day in a paper from Sharon that Lionel Forbes had married a girl from the city, and he knew that Marthena would receive the news with indifference.

Marthena, standing in her little bedroom that night amid all the pretty blue and white furniture chosen by the two men who loved her devotedly, smiled through her tears as she knelt down to say her prayers.

"It's wonderful!" she murmured. "It's marvelous how the path of duty leads one to love and happiness!"

Three Tricks.

If you hold your hands across your chest in a straight line with the tips of the forefingers pressed together it is impossible for any one else, however strong, to take hold by your arms and pull those finger tips apart.

It is quite safe to stand a person against a wall with his heels touching it, lay a coin on the floor a foot or two in front of him and say the coin is his if he can pick it up without moving his heels from the wall.

The Sheep.

The sheep is generous to man,
Who shears its body bare
That we may have the nice warm suits
Of woolen clothes to wear.

While snugly wrapped in woolen robes
We never seem to care
How many sheep are shivering
Out in the wintry air.

Mixed Metaphors.

James Ramsey MacDonald, Socialist M.P. in the British House of Commons, has added a gem to the collection of mixed metaphors for which political orators are famous. Referring to the Syndicalists, Mr. MacDonald said:

"No sooner do they get themselves into a hole than they put down a string so that we may pull them out of it. The Delilah of Syndicalism has endeavored to cut the locks of trade unionism, so that it becomes a mere piece of putty in the hands of the political authorities."

This is declared to be the most magnificent mixing of metaphors by an English public man since John Burns inveighed against the London County Council for "taking a white elephant under its wing."

NEW STRENGTH IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making New Health Giving Blood.

In the spring the system needs a tonic. To be healthy you must have new blood just as the trees must have new sap to renew their vitality. Nature demands it, and without this new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp, stabbing pains of neuralgia. Often there are disfiguring pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has lessened your vitality. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine to put you right, and in all the world of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills actually make new, rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring. This new blood drives out the seeds of disease and makes easily tired men, women and children bright, active and strong. Mrs. Geo. Burns, Albany, P.E.I., writes: "I was terribly run down and so weak that I could hardly drag myself around. I was so nervous that I was afraid to walk across the floor for fear that I would fall. Our family doctor treated me but without success and finally I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Gradually they brought me back to good health and now I am as well as ever I was and have every confidence in recommending these Pills to others sufferers."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or can be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BIRDS WHICH STAY.

Seventy-Seven Kinds Remain In Ontario During Winter.

People who complain that bird life is practically an unknown thing in Canada during the winter time will no doubt be surprised to know that Mr. Charles W. Nash, ornithologist of the Toronto Museum, has located about 77 different species in and around Toronto this winter. Many of these birds are denizens of the north who find their way south, either on account of exceedingly hard times in their natural haunts, or else because their normal conditions being existent here the boundary line of their peregrinations is extended. On the other hand the robin, flicker, meadow-lark, and numerous other summer birds never migrate entirely. Wherever there is some extra measure of shelter or some additional supply of food they remain. The service rendered by these birds is enormous. Red-polls and snow-birds in particular are invaluable as weed destroyers, if the snowfall has not been a particularly heavy one; the heads of the taller weeds stick above the snow and the birds feed on the seeds, thus preventing a spread of the plant. Many of these winter birds live on the berries left hanging on the trees, the mountain ash berry, or the berry of the Northwest maple, or bagberries being typical examples of the winter food of the common grosbeaks. Many birds formerly migratory are now no longer so. A notable instance of this is the common crow, and the reason he stays is that increased cultivation, and particularly the custom of farmers of manuring their land in the winter leaves large quantities of grain on which the birds can feed. There is also the fact that unthreshed corn is often stacked for the winter. The visits of northern birds are erratic and difficult to understand, sometimes one species appearing in great abundance and at other times some other species. Some six years ago the North of Canada jay, or Whiskey Jack, as it is called by the lumbermen, appeared here in large numbers. This was their first recorded appearance, in any quantity, since 1837, when the Hon. W. Allen observed a similar visitation.

The northern birds particularly prevalent this winter are the pine grosbeaks, evening grosbeaks, redpolls, and an unusually large number snow bunting or snow-birds as they are commonly called. It appears that the migration of birds is governed almost entirely by the quantity of available food, and if they are able to get a sufficient quantity, and also shelter such as that provided by evergreens, houses, or barns, the birds will remain. The goshawk is another bird present in considerable quantities this year, and although an inveterate foe of rats, mice, and other injurious rodents, he is also a poultry killer. Its particular prey being absent it turns to the farmyard for food, so that in the winter time particularly the presence of this bird of prey is rather a disadvantage than an advantage.

A WOMAN LORENZ.

Little Montreal Lady Is the Surgeon of the Athletic Fraternity.

Somewhere in the very centre of the uptown residence district of Montreal, near where there are a lot of churches of different creeds and denominations, and close to one of the biggest of these, there resides a wonderful little woman, says The Montreal Standard.

Slight, grey-haired, with all the appearance and the soft voice of the religieuse; and of middle age, she is reported to be a giant of strength and marvelously gifted in her own special way.

She has friends and admirers by the dozen amongst all classes of society, from the people who drive up in their carriages and motors, to the humble pedestrian, who does not even feel justified in wasting money on car fare, and amongst the people who know her best, it is said, are the heroes of the prize ring and wrestling mat, looked upon as big, burly brutes of men, who apparently could eat the little woman alive at one bite.

But these very mountains of flesh and bone and brawn, have cringed before her, when she once got them within the grip of her fingers, for it seems that she is somewhat of a Dr. Lorenz and Bonesetter Reece combined.

She seems to have been practicing her natural gifts for years, and all that time to have hid her light under a bushel.

Her clientele seems to have grown of itself in the same mysterious way in which she conducts her business. Those who have benefited by her gifts are only too ready to praise her, but at the same time apparently very reluctant to go into any details about her methods, her charges or her personal life, as if they were afraid to offend her.

In fact, there seems to be, in that respect, a sort of freemasonry amongst them. They appear to be quite willing to give information if they think that the enquirer is in need of her services, but when they find out that the questions are put out of mere curiosity, they shut up like a clam.

Simard, the big Montreal wrestler, recently in an unguarded outburst of praise, let out the name and address, so a reporter went to see for himself.

First, there was an outer door with a small name plate.

Then an inner door with a big brass plate, and after this opened, apparently of its own volition in response to a ring at the bell, a long stairway loomed in view, which after being mounted, led into a hall of similar length, which in its get up and furnishing resembled in a general way the entrance halls of ten out of a dozen convents in Quebec.

On the left of the hall were half a dozen or so of small rooms. On the right were other doors, which must have led to bigger rooms, and near the door of the stairway, was a shorter hall which led straight to the front of the house, where there was a window, with a couple of chairs in front of it.

Another stairway led to a flight above.

To these chairs, the lady of the house, "the wonder," led the way without speaking, motioned the visitor to sit down, and sat down herself.

She wore a house-dress, and did everything with a serious, half religious mien, that was not exactly forbidding, but might have been a little awe-inspiring to a timid person, especially one in not the best of physical condition.

She was of small build, of middle-age, grave of face, and grey of hair, and nothing in the appearance of her hands showed their marvellous strength or wonderful cunning.

Though French-Canadian, she appeared to understand English well, and spoke it plainly.

When told that the object of the visit was to write something about her. She was polite, but decisive. She did not wish any publicity and that was all there was to it. Pleading availed nothing and finally the reporter was bowed out. So except in athletic circles, the affair is still mystery.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Some repair work being done on the chimney of St. Peter's Cathedral has no doubt originated the rumor that the roof was falling in, the church not safe, etc. The Review learns to-day, however, that the rumor is not true, and that the trouble amounts to having a few stones placed in the chimney.

FRENCH AND EWART RESIST ASQUITH CABINET'S PERSUASION

British Prime Minister Announces a New Army Order, Which Forbids Officers to Seek Guarantees In Hypothetical Cases.

LONDON, March 28.—The resignations of Field Marshal Sir John French and Lieut.-Gen. Sir John S. Ewart have not yet been withdrawn, and Premier Asquith, after deferring his statement twice, was able only to announce in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon that the Government still was awaiting the reply of the army officers to the Cabinet's request that they remain in their posts.

Premier Asquith reached the House of Commons straight from the second Cabinet meeting held yesterday, both of which were attended by the Chief of the General Staff, Field Marshal Sir John French. The Premier said matters in the question involved grew complex and difficult, and seemed to the Government to require very full consideration. A partial or provisional statement would be unsatisfactory.

Sir John French and Lieut.-Gen. Sir John S. Ewart, the Adjutant-General of the Forces, had intimated a wish to be relieved of their duties, he said, not because of any differences between their views and those of the Government as to the conditions under which the army should serve or should be employed in the aid of civil power, but having issued the memorandum to Brig.-General Gough, they thought this course incumbent upon them. Premier Asquith then added:

"The Government has conveyed to them its wish that as there is no difference of opinion on any ground or policy they should not persist in their request, the carrying out of which the Government would regard as a serious misfortune to both the army and the state. We still are awaiting their final reply.

"These two gallant officers believe that in the circumstances they were justified in believing their action was in accordance with the instructions of the Cabinet, and that they were transmitting those directions to the officers concerned.

"It is clear to us and to them that there has been a misconception — a genuine misconception—in regard to the intention and purport of the proceedings in Ireland, out of which these difficulties have arisen.

"In view of these misconceptions and to obviate the possibility of their recurrence in the future the Army Council has—Field Marshal Sir John French and Lieut.-Gen. Sir John Ewart being present — unanimously determined to issue a new army order."

The Premier continued: "The new order to the army is headed 'Discipline.' It has three articles, which are as follows:—

"'(1) No officer or soldier shall in future be questioned by his superior officers as to what attitude he will adopt or as to his action in the event of his being required to obey orders dependent on future or hypothetical contingencies.

"'(2) An officer or soldier is forbidden in future to ask for assurances as to orders which he may be required to fulfill.

"'(3) It is the duty of every officer and soldier to obey all lawful commands given them through the proper channels, either for safeguarding public property or to support the civil power in the ordinary execution of its duty, or for the protection of the lives and property of the inhabitants in case of a disturbance of the peace.'"

Mr. Asquith continued: "That is an order issued by the Army Council to-day, which has now been approved, and which regulates the conduct and discipline of the army in future."

WILSON WINS HIS POINT

PRESIDENT TRIUMPHS IN CRUCIAL FIGHT FOR TOLL REPEAL

WASHINGTON, March 28.—President Wilson yesterday won the opening skirmish of the greatest legislative battle of his administration when the House, over bitter protests from the recognized Democratic leaders, and almost solid minority opposition, adopted a special rule for the consideration of the bill repealing the free tolls provision of the Panama Canal Act. Speaker Clark, Democratc Leader Underwood, Republican Leader Mann and Progressive Leader Murdock were at the head of those lined up against the administration, but the House responded to the President's personal appeal for prompt consideration of the repeal bill as a means of supporting his administration's foreign policy.

Two votes demonstrated the President's commanding influence with his party in Congress. On the first test, a motion to end debate and preclude amendment on the rule carried by a vote of 207 to 176; the rule itself was adopted 200 to 172.

Nothing to compare with the scenes yesterday had occurred in the House since the famous "Cannon rules fight" four years ago. In vain Representative Underwood took the floor of the House and urged his colleagues to vote against the rule. The rank and file Democrats, after listening to three hours of passionate argument, swung into the President's column, 195 of them voting to prevent the amendment of the special rule, while but 55 followed the leaders in joining with the minority in opposition.

When the debate closed and the droning voice of the clerk had called the roll in tense stillness, the Democratic House leaders had been repudiated, and the President's appeal answered.

To-day administration supporters consider the crucial point passed, and jubilantly predicted the passage of the repeal bill itself Tuesday or Wednesday by a majority of more than one hundred.

HIS DREAM LED TO AN ARREST

KINGSTON, March 28—Magistrate Farrell committed for trial Chas. Blucher, a batteryman, on a charge of assault on a girl under 14 years of age. Her mother is dead and her father is a batteryman. The father stated that he had dreamt that his daughter was being ill-treated, and this led to the discovery.

REPUBLICANISM BREWING?

London Writer Says Movement of Forty Years Ago Is Alive.

LONDON, March 28.—A correspondent of The Financial News states that city circles, which are usually well informed, believe that Premier Asquith's stern repudiation of republican manifestations in the House of Commons is not merely the official utterances of the Premier, but are profoundly and personally inspired. It is beginning to be surmised that there is on foot an effort to secure a recrudescence of the republicanism rife of forty years ago. The idea is that King George has not acquired supreme personal dominance of his grandmother, nor the unbounded personal power of his father. It is conjectured that while King George is comparatively young on the throne, there is a chance to effect a coup d'etat, placing at the head of affairs a president, whose identity well informed people can guess. He would be assisted by a vice-president, whose essential qualifications would be coarse language and coarser actions. The writer admits that these conjectures need not cause anxiety, though he thinks it is worth while to know the kind of joints that are cooking in the political pots.

BETTER WAIT AND LEARN

HON. MR. HANNA ADVISES PATIENCE REGARDING ANTI-TREATING SYSTEM

TORONTO, March 28.—The Opposition made an attempt yesterday afternoon to gain a direct answer from the Provincial Secretary, regarding the Government's plans for anti-treating legislation this session, but were advised to "wait and see."

Chas. Bowman (Lib., Bruce) proposed the question, and in reply Mr. Hanna claimed it out of order.

"If the honorable member will wait sufficiently long he will find out," said Mr. Hanna. "In the meantime it is not a proper question to appear on the order paper. It is never in order for the Government to be compelled to answer questions on matters of policy."

A statement of J. G. Anderson (Lib., Bruce) to the effect that all good fruit-growers, including the farm director, in Western Ontario, were ashamed of the Jordan Harbor experimental station, gave rise to remarks from the Minister of Agriculture. The Bruce member stated that although the cost had been $150,000 the farm had never justified its purchase and suggested poor management.

Hon. Mr. Duff justified the farm's existence by showing that all classes of fruits were getting attention, and that experiments had been carried out successfully. The new manager was an expert, and a trip which some of the Ministers had made to the grounds had convinced him of its bright possibilities.

Dr. Jessop (Lincoln) defended the farm and said that the work would be of great value to the growers ultimately.

Must Pay Postage.

OTTAWA, March 28. — A protest was lodged with the Postmaster-General yesterday against the Liberal party monthly magazine being franked and sent free through the mails. It was held that since it cost $1 a year and has regular subscribers it cannot be classed as campaign literature.

PUBLIC WORKS NEED NOT EXCEED ESTIMATES

Member For Lambton Points to Adam Beck's Record to Show That Graham's Theory of Government Construction Is Wrong.

OTTAWA, March 28.—The House occupied another sitting with the debate upon the National Transcontinental, and speeches were delivered by J. E. Armstrong (Con., E. Lambton), Mr. Kyte (Lib., Richmond, N.S.), Mr. Davidson (Con., Annapolis), and Mr. Turgeon (Lib., Gloucester, N.B.)

Mr. Armstrong repudiated the doctrine advanced by Mr. Graham that the cost of all public works exceeded the estimates. Only yesterday Hon. Adam Beck, speaking in behalf of the great Ontario Hydro-radial deputation, had told the Government that $22,000,000 had been expended in developing the Hydro-electric policy in Ontario, and every expenditure had been within and below the estimated cost. A Government could get work done as cheaply and as efficiently as a private corporation if it was the right kind of Government.

Mr. Kyte read an article which appeared some time ago in The Winnipeg Telegram in criticism of Major Leonard, the present chairman of the National Transcontinental Commission. If the Minister of Public Works, he said, allowed his newspaper thus savagely to attack the chairman how could the people of the country retain confidence in him?

Mr. Davidson suggested that the blockade of the naval bill at the last session was designed to force a general election in which the Liberals would have been financed by the N. T. R. contractors in the hope of heading off the report of Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton.

The debate will continue next week.

Final Brief In Thaw Case.

CONCORD, N.H., March 28. — The final brief on behalf of Harry K. Thaw, on his petition for a writ of habeas corpus and for admission to bail pending a decision on the matter of extradition, were filed in the U. S. District Court by counsel yesterday. The brief concludes:

"The purpose of the State of New York being to return Thaw to Matteawan, it is making a misuse of the extradition laws to accomplish its end. We confidently assert that upon the facts and authorities, Thaw should be discharged."

Sure It Was Krafchenko.

MORDEN, Man., March 28.—Practically the whole of yesterday's hearing of the case against John Krafchenko, charged with murder and robbery, was taken up by the cross-examination of William Dyck, the liveryman who said he drove Krafchenko. Dyck remained unshaken in the face of cross-examination and insisted that the passenger in question was Krafchenko.

Six Seamen Safe.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Six shipwrecked seamen, part of the crew of the American schooner Julia A. Trubee, abandoned at sea March 7, arrived here from Liverpool yesterday aboard the Lusitania. The Julia A. Trubee left Perth Amboy for Pointe a Pitre Feb. 27. After passing through a terrific storm she was abandoned.

Sale of Remedies for Headache!

There are more ZUTOO tablets for headache sold in this country than all other remedies combined. Think how good these tablets must be to have such an immense sale.

Dealers could not sell them nor would people buy ZUTOO tablets in such large quantities, were they not what all users say they are, that is, a perfectly harmless and reliable cure for headache.

Do YOU use these tablets which so many people have chosen as best? If you do not, it is your next move. 25c at dealers

Hindu Out on Bail.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Har Dyal, the Hindu radical, who was arrested Wednesday night by immigration officials as an undesirable alien, was released yesterday on $1,000 bonds. Over two hundred Hindus accompanied Dyal to the pier, where he boarded the Government tug for the Angel Island immigration station. Dyal's arrest is said to have followed a countrywide investigation into the actions of Hindus in the United States who are suspected of fomenting sedition against the British Government in India.

THIS GERMAN IS CHAMPION DAD

Has Nineteen Sons and Seven Daughters

BERLIN, March 28. — Ferdinand Eglinski, aged 53, a tailor in the village of Ahlbeck on the Baltic, claims to be Germany's champion father. Yesterday's Tageblatt, publishing the story of his life, relates that his successive marriages with two sisters resulted in the birth of thirty-five children, twenty-six of whom are still living, nineteen boys and seven girls. Last year six of Eglinski's sons were serving simultaneously in the army.

On the occasion of the entry of the sixth son into the army in 1913 Eglinski received a private audience with the Kaiser, who ordered him to be entertained in Berlin at His Majesty's expense for a week. After pressing a fifty-mark note in Eglinski's hand, the Kaiser clapped him on the shoulder and said: "Just keep up the good work, Eglinski." Crackling his heels, standing at salute, the principal check on Germany's declining birth rate replied: "At your service, your Majesty."

HARDER MAN NEEDED.

Seely Is Object of Bitter Attack by Liberal Paper.

TORONTO, March 28.—The Weekly Nation, which may be regarded as the organ of Chancellor David Lloyd George's section of the Cabinet, in its issue yesterday attacks Col. Seely with great bitterness. It declares that when he left the Unionist ranks he took his old mental furniture with him and never really became a Liberal. It adds that it was a great mistake to put him into the War Office.

The Nation suggests that a man of harder muscle — like John Burns, President of the Board of Agriculture —is needed to cope with the present situation in the army. The newspaper declares that a wave of determination to put the army in its place and restore the threatened authority of Parliament has swept through the country, and adds: "If the Government will lead, well and good; if not, other champions will arise."

The proposition is then advanced by The Nation that the Liberal party should strike a bargain by ensuring the Labor party a hundred seats in the next Parliament. The Liberal leaders heretofore always have declined to bind themselves to the Labor party in this manner, but if The Nation's suggestion is adopted as an outcome of the cry of the army versus Parliament it is not improbable, as the Radical newspapers claim, that the new coalition would sweep the country.

It is said that a large section of the Unionist party realise this danger and therefore are anxious to reach a settlement of the Home Rule question by consent.

A FAREWELL TO MR. AND MRS. SAMUEL DEYELL

Highly Esteemed Residents of Otonabee are Removing To This City

A PRESENTATION

Although the roads were in an almost impassible condition, a goodly number of friends and neighbors met at the Old Deyell homestead on Friday evening, March 27th, to express a formal farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Deyell, on the eve of their departure for their new home in Peterboro.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Deyell were presented with an address expressing the esteem and affection of the neighborhood, accompanied by a tangible token in the form of two handsome walnut chairs.

Mr. Sandy Matchett, who read the address, added a few personal reminiscences of younger days, which made a very fitting introduction. The chairs were presented by Mrs. Deyell's nephews, George and Will Hanbidge.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Deyell were quite taken by surprise. Mr. Deyell, in a suitable reply, expressed regret at leaving the old home and the dear friends and neighbors, who had not only on this occasion, but during a whole lifetime, shown to him and to his family such kindness and affection.

The remainder of the evening was spent in a sociable fashion; enlivened by much music and singing of old songs.

The following is the address read to Mr. and Mrs. Deyell:

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Deyell:

Your friends and neighbors in this section of Otonabee learn with deepest regret that by your removal to reside in Peterboro we are to lose the pleasure and profit of your presence in this vicinity.

You have not only been life-long residents of the township but you are both of the second generation of your respective families. Your fathers and mothers were pioneers of this township, and during their residence here left the influence and impress of noble and useful lives upon the community. You have followed their footsteps as prominent members of the neighborhood; the best of neighbors and citizens, foremost in all relating to the best interests and welfare of the church and community, and have improved the example set by your forefathers. Therefore it is with deepest regret that we regard your removal from us and in token of our esteem, we are met together to testify to our appreciation of you as fellow residents and our sorrow at your departure.

In evidence of our esteem and good wishes, and as a momento of our old friendships and affection and respect for you, we ask your acceptance of these two chairs, which we trust and pray, you will be long spared to occupy and enjoy in the reclining days of your lives.

In conclusion, we again express our regret at your leaving us, and with it our prayers that you may have a happy life in your new home, and pleasant memories of the home and home friends you leave behind in Old Otonabee.

Signed on behalf of the community:

SCREAMED WITH PAIN

Nearly Died With Kidney Trouble Until "Fruit-a-tives" Gave Welcome Relief and Completely Cured The Disease.

CHARLES CALVEART, Esq.

St. Thomas, Ont., April 1st., 1913

"In 1911, I was laid up with Kidney Trouble and not able to get out of my chair. The pain was excruciating and my screams could be heard in the street. I tried many different remedies without any results and I was steadily growing weaker. One day, a friend from Ottawa came in to see me and when he found me in such poor health, said he would send me a sample of "Fruit-a-tives," which he did and I commenced taking them. They did me good from the start and in a very short time I was up and around. "Fruit-a-tives" completely cured me and I have enjoyed the best of health ever since.

I would not have any other remedy for Kidney Trouble and would strongly advise anyone suffering from this trouble to cure themselves with "Fruit-a-tives." CHARLES CALVEART

It is simply wonderful, the relief that "Fruit-a-tives" gives in Kidney and Bladder Troubles. In the great majority of cases of "acid urine," pain in the back, "kidney cramps" and Rheumatism, the kidneys are not actually diseased. They are merely overworked. That is, they are doing more than their share of the work of ridding the system of waste matter. In most cases of Kidney and Bladder Trouble, there is also Constipation and faulty Skin Action. "Fruit-a-tives" relieves the Kidney Trouble by correcting the action of the Bowels and Skin. This marvellous fruit medicine acts directly on the liver kidneys and skin, and is the only medicine in the world that does act on all three of these great eliminating organs. "Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Kidney Trouble when caused by poor skin action, constipation and acid indigestion. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c., at all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

WANTED A DRILLMASTER.

Barrie Officer Refused to Train Orange Lodge For Service.

BARRIE, March 28.—An incident illustrating the interest some of the country Orange lodges are taking in the Ulster affair occurred in the north end of Simcoe county recently. One of the smaller country lodges made a proposal to an officer of the 35th Regiment that he should come out and train the Orangemen of that lodge so many nights a week, offering to pay him whatever price he asked for the work. The officer, however, promptly declined to interfere in a matter of this kind.

Link With Dickens.

There is living in Melbourne an old man named Woolcott, who when a boy was a "copy-holder" at Messrs. Chapman and Hall's when "The Pickwick Papers" were published as a serial story in monthly parts.

Woolcott, who emigrated in 1851, says he carried Dickens' manuscript about a dozen times, and sometimes returned it for correction. "It was wrapped in brown paper, loosely tied with string. I remember on one occasion that I dared to untie the string and read the story. It was at that glorious scene between Sam Weller and his father, when Sam reads out his valentine."

The Haunted Man.

Again that ringing in his ears. It was the warning he had dreaded. He knew his time had come. Yet, although he had started at the sound, he seemed half dazed and wholly careless of the consequences.

But still the ringing in his ears!

"Drat it!" he finally said, and, springing from bed, the careworn commuter shut off the alarm clock and proceeded to dress for the 7:10 train.—Puck.

Getting All Ready.

Little Daughter—I heard papa say he was going to shave, so I thought I'd get things all ready for him.

Mother—And did you?

Little Daughter—Yes. I got out his razor and mug and shavin' brush and some court plaster. — Philadelphia Ledger.

GOMEZ PALACIO IS AGAIN TAKEN BY REBEL GENERAL

Terrific Battle In Suburb of Torreon Results In Re-establishment of Constitutionalists in Town Commanding City—Villa Leads in Person and Soldiers Fight in a Delirium Despite Wounds.

GOMEZ PALACIO, Mexico, March 28.—Four days of fighting, including three desperate assaults by rebels, were crowned yesterday when Gen. Francisco Villa moved into the city and established his headquarters on that side of the town looking toward Torreon and within three miles of that great goal of the campaign.

The final and deciding assault was delivered Thursday. It was preceded by a bombardment, after which the infantry and cavalry dashed into the streets.

Rifles, machetes, pistols and hand grenades were used in a hundred different encounters in the narrow thoroughfares. The grenades of home manufacture, were lighted with the cigarettes which are an unofficial part of the equipment of every Mexican soldier.

Gen. Villa does not yet know his own loss, except that it was heavy. The wounded suffered terribly from thirst, and many died for the lack of water and surgical attention.

The dead of both sides were mingled in the streets or found huddled under the piles of earth which had once been adobe houses or corrals, wrecked by rebel shells.

Veterans say that no more furious battle ever was fought in Mexico. It was a delirium. Gen. Villa did not stop to mourn his losses, but with characteristic energy, began preparations to move on Torreon. He expects to co-operate with four thousand men under Gen. Herrera, who is under orders to attack the town from the east.

Villa's first assault in force took place four days ago. There was comparatively a small number of Federals in the city and premature reports of victory were sent out. Soon, however, the Federals received reinforcements and in the desperate fighting which followed, the rebels had rather the worst of it, and Gen. Villa withdrew.

The next day (Wednesday) Gen. Angeles, the artillery commander, shelled the city all day and part of the night. Villa had learned that the Federal commander, Gen. Velasco was concentrated in force in the town and was himself in the trenches inspiring his men to do their duty and the rebel leaders under cover of the bombardment concentrated every available man for a fresh assault.

This was delivered Wednesday night, but it was not decisive, although the rebels held the stone roundhouse and a few other natural defences in the outskirts of the city.

Thursday night the third and final assault was delivered. Gen. Villa grimy with dust and sweat, a red bandana handkerchief about his neck, participated. He rode up and down the lines, swearing and cheering, cursing and calling on the saints. At times he apparently was calm and again furious. Through it all he urged his men forward and all seemed to realize that the attack was the last one. Human flesh could stand no more of the heat, the thirst and hunger and the cruel scenes which followed one another until the whole picture was a confused blur of blood and fire, where men in their dying agonies whined for water or cried out uncanny vivas, petitions to Our Lady of Guadalupe, and other jargon of delirium.

On the way into the city from El Verjel yesterday morning and particularly in the streets of the town itself Gen. Villa was constantly called on to return to the salutes of the wounded.

Some of these were limping, not to the rear, but to the front to catch up with their comrades. Some of them already placed on hospital trains, escaped and returned to their commands.

Others regaining consciousness, as they were being borne away in litters, promptly cursed their would-be rescuers and tumbled out, joining the scattered procession following in the train of the general.

There was more than patriotism to inspire the rebel assaults, for behind them lay the most cruel desert in Mexico, and ahead the possession of the enemy, food and shelter, and the cooling streams of the irrigation ditches.

In the course of the battle there were instances of detachments, all of whose officers had been lost, running wildly about calling for new officers to lead them, or joining other commands, which were not leaderless.

Other detachments, in the excitement of the fight, failed to hear, or deliberately disregarded orders to fall back, to seek some shelter observed by their calmer officers. They dashed unheedingly into barbed wire entanglements [illegible] the enemy's trenches, and were mowed down in heaps by Federal rapid-fire guns.

Peeresses In Own Right.

Lady Mount Royal and Strathcona, as the daughter of the late Lord Strathcona, will be styled by virtue of the second creation under which she succeeded as the seventeenth peeress of the United Kingdom in her own right, in addition to three lady holders of Scottish titles. Strangely enough, two of the seventeen Imperial peerages are of Canadian origin. The other is Lady Macdonald of Earnscliffe, one of the oldest members of the group. Lady Macdonald is the holder of the only new creation since the death of Viscount Hambledon. She is the widow of Sir John Macdonald, who was Prime Minister of the Dominion at the time of his death. The title was a posthumous honor for the Canadian statesman, Queen Victoria conferring the barony upon his widow in recognition of his services, in the same way that Mr. W. H. Smith was "rewarded" after his death. Three of the peeresses are minors — Lady Furnivall, in whose favor the abeyance in an ancient barony was recently terminated; Lady Clifton, who succeeded on her birth in 1900; and Baroness Beaumont, who will come of age next year.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Catarrh.

Warm houses and foul air are often the cause of catarrh, and there is only one protection against them, and that is the gods of the fields and the woods, the west wind and the sunshine. Spend as much of your time as possible out of doors, and that ought always to be two-thirds of it in childhood, and resolutely bring the outdoors indoors at every hour of your working and sleeping day.

UNCASHED CHECKS FOUND.

Strathcona's Heirs Ask Payment Which Commissioner Refused.

MONTREAL, March 28.— During his lifetime, Lord Strathcona made two boasts: one that he never lost a paper once it got into his hands, the other that he never received payment for his services to the Canadian Pacific Railway.

His executors, in going through his papers, found on file uncashed checks from the Canadian Pacific Railway from the inception of the company until the time of his death, and they have now made claim on the company for the payment of these. The Canadian Pacific Railway announced yesterday it would honor every check, so that the heirs to the estate will receive a considerably augmented sum.

In the same way Lord Strathcona did not draw his salary as High Commissioner, and the added windfall of the heirs will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Letter-Carriers See P. M. G.

OTTAWA, March 28.—The executive of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers of Canada, met the Postmaster-General, Hon. Mr. Pelletier, and Mr. Hector Verrett, the first deputy, yesterday, laying before them the requests as decided upon at the letter carriers' convention.

Among the most important features advanced were the asking for increased salaries, also one-half day per week holiday during the three hot summer months—June, July and August.

The question of a properly fitting uniform was advanced.

The executive stated that the interview was satisfactory in results.

Well-Known Priest Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.—Rev. Luke A. Grace, 60, missionary of the Roman Catholic Church, died yesterday at the rectory of St. Vincent de Paul, Germantown, after a long illness. He was born in Brooklyn. Father Grace for twenty-six years was a professor of English and theology at Niagara University.

Sailors Drowned In Wreck.

LONDON, March 28.—Eighteen of the crew of the French steamer Saint Paul were drowned yesterday when she struck a rock and sank while entering the port of Brisbane, Australia. She was built in 1912 and commanded by Captain Coree. She was the property of the Oceanic Navigation Co. of Bordeaux, France.

PAYS 2,500 PER CENT.

This Diamond Company Holds What Is Probably the World's Record.

BERLIN, March 28.—The Colonial Diamond Mining Co. of German Southwest Africa is possibly the world's biggest dividend payer. It has "reduced" its 1913 dividend by 1,300 to 2,500 per cent., having paid 3,800 for 1912. In 1910 2,400 per cent. was paid, and 2,500 in 1911.

The company's capital is only $2,500. Its managing director and chief shareholder was once an humble railway official named Satuch. He will soon be made chairman of the German Imperial Diamond Administration.

Hosiery Economy.

Blue stockings, especially a very delicately tinted kind, which have faded, can have the color restored by dipping them in hot water in which common bluing has been poured and some lumps of alum dissolved, or they can, together with white stockings, be recolored and so continue to do a great deal of service. To the alum add dye instead of bluing and so revive the faded pinks and blues and tan colored hosiery which have collected

ONTARIO'S MUSEUM.

Dr. Orr and C. W. Nash Are Collectors of Wide Experience.

Thousands of Canadians have visited the big museums of the States and Great Britain and Europe. Very few, however, know much of the museum on Gould street, Toronto, although it's all their own.

The director is Dr. R. B. Orr. When Dr. Orr was in politics, he was known as the "black doctor." Not that his deeds were necessarily dark, but to distinguish him from his brother, Dr. J. O. Orr, the "red doctor." Dr. R. B. has not been interested in votes for some time, except in an abstract way. In fact, he has devoted more time to men without votes, Indians, long gone to the happy hunting grounds.

He was born near Kleinberg, York county, and has dug almost everywhere in the district. He isn't a navvy in the ordinary sense, but was an archaeologist at a very early age. Of late years, scientists of the old world have listened very earnestly to Dr. Orr's thrilling addresses on the noble red man and kindred subjects.

A valuable associate of the director is Mr. C. W. Nash, a naturalist of long standing. He was born in Sussex, England, but has been a Canadian for forty-five years. It is hinted that he knows more about the snakes and the birds and the animals of Ontario than any other mortal. He knows so much that, when he says a thing is so, nobody has the nerve to say that it isn't so—whatever the fact may be. In the language of the street, that's some reputation.

Mr. Nash has lectured in Ontario and elsewhere for twenty years on the whole wide field of biology as applied to practical farming.

He tells the farmer the true character of the meadow mouse, a pest, and pleads for the owl and the hawk. When the owl and the hawk pounces upon an unwary chicken, the Ontario farmer may feel inclined to question Mr. Nash's high opinion of the bird of prey, but Mr. Nash points out, that the offender more than pays for his depredations in the hen yard. Not only that, but the biologist differentiates between owls and owls, etc.

One variety may be less desirable than another. In short, Mr. Nash has gained the confidence of the agriculturist, and the naturalist's hobby is of practical value to the soil-tiller. Of course, his sphere of activity goes far beyond the meadow mouse problem, as he deals with such subjects as stock breeding, plant breeding, chemistry of the soil, etc. Why, he has discovered a devourer of the busy potato bug.

The Archaeological Department of the Museum is of long standing, dating back to the early days of the Canadian Institute and York Pioneers' Historical Society, and to the untiring efforts of the late Dr. David Boyle the people of Ontario are indebted for one of the largest Indian archaeological collections in the world. For years his life work was to place in the Ontario Provincial Museum, Toronto, a collection of Indian antiques so that the future generations in the province would have some knowledge of the manners and customs which prevailed in olden times. The dress of the Indians is illustrated by models which Dr. Orr is increasing, and there are stone implements, axes, adzes, gouges, spades, and various ornaments.

"When you consider that we have over thirty thousand specimens of their handiwork," says the director, "you can readily understand what an educational storehouse it is for those interested in this work."

He also was one of the leaders of the Bar in New Brunswick, was created Q.C., has been a director of the St. John Law Society and a senator of New Brunswick University for many years. A Conservative in politics, he sat in the Provincial Legislature in that interest for St. John City for five years, and held office as Attorney-General in the Hannington Administration. He was returned at the general election of 1891, and sat in the House of Commons for St. John throughout the seventh Parliament from 1891 until 1896, when he was appointed to the bench. Judge McLeod is a member of the Free Baptist Church, and is unmarried.—Chesterfield in The Family Herald and Weekly Star.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

OCCASIONALLY the adhesive qualities of one's friends increase directly with the amount of money one is able to disburse.

Not every one you see who is done brown has been to a summer resort. Some are married men who have been out o' nights, and others are also unfortunate individuals who have met up with the suave confidence gentleman.

It is better that a husband should know how to wash dishes occasionally than that he should be able to umpire a baseball game.

Making all kinds of mistakes isn't the way most of us do it. We are inclined to be content with a specialty.

Theories are often quite innocuous if you never try to translate them into practice.

Take Your Choice.

If just a bit particular
And you can stand the price
The doctor man will hand you
Your favorite advice,
And if he does not give it
By searching you may land
Without a bit of trouble
Your own and special brand.

'Tis passed into a proverb
That two cannot agree
Except as to the statement
That none of it is free.
So it is like potatoes
Or shoes or building stone—
You purchase what you fancy
And let the rest alone.

As to the kind of ailment
To have when you are sick
Consult a dozen doctors
And calmly take your pick.
It may be mumps or measles
Or chicken pox or rash
Or plain appendicitis—
It's all the same for cash.

To find the proper ailment,
The one you think will fit,
May take a little trouble
And chasing round a bit.
But do not be discouraged,
The field with care explore,
And you will if persistent
Get what you're paying for.

And Happy.

"Man is generally full of trouble."

"Generally?"

"Yes."

"And when he isn't?"

"He is just full."

The Sweet Thing.

"You are so distressingly honest and conscientious, my dear, that I don't understand how you can bring yourself to buy these bargains when the salesmen assure you that they are losing money on them."

"Don't you?"

"No."

"But did you hear him say that it is such a pleasure to sell to me?"

A Suspicious Man.

Patience—You say their engagement is broken off?

Patrice—Yes.

"What was the trouble?"

"Oh, he got suspicious. You see, she was indiscreet enough to induce him to attend a broom drill in which she took part."

It Has Come to This.

"Are you fond of country life?"

"I never saw any."

"What?"

"Fact."

"But I thought you were going to spend your vacation in the country."

"So I did, but I found there only a bad imitation of city life."

An Inducement.

"He says he would make a great ball player."

"Yes; that is one of his weaknesses."

"Thinks he would be good on home runs."

"Yes; he would if they would ring the dinner bell at the home plate when he was on second base."

Cultivation to Burn.

"Is there much culture in this town?"

"Culture?"

"Yes."

"You bet! The boys all insist on havin' their own special designs on their bandannas, and the girls won't chaw nothin' but tutti frutti."

Natural Exclamation.

"What did you get your wife for her birthday?"

"A pair of fine gloves."

"And what did she say?"

"Oh, you kid!"

Needs a Check Book.

Although the auto runs on air,
You very quickly find
You cannot make it go on that
Nor run the thing on wind.

Her Reason.

Cholly—What makes you think he's homely?

Ethel—His face.

But Not on the Square.

"He is level headed, anyway."

"Well, that is the only level thing bout him."

Too Bad!

"He is terribly thick skulled."

"Is he?"

"Yes."

"What makes you think so?"

"Spent an hour yesterday trying to make him see how easy it would be for me to pay him back an X if he were to lend it to me."

Down Country.

How nice it is to see the men
Out in the country work,
To see them wrestle now and then
With tasks to kill a Turk!

They cultivate the shining corn,
And stack the sheaves of wheat,
And labor on from early morn—
And make enough to eat.

They milk the cows and feed the hogs
And plow the earthy field.
In rain and shine and mists and fogs
They make Dame Nature yield.

But still I much prefer the town
To wrestling with the shock.
I'd rather pull my dollars down
By selling mining stock.

Got a Come Back.

"I called the turn on him all right."

"You did?"

"I did."

"What did he do?"

"Well, he returned the call, and I saw stars."

The Silvery Lining.

"Tommy, you have done it now."

"Done what?"

"Put the cook in a pretty pickle."

"Well, then you should have no difficulty in keeping her."

Might Not Follow.

"Any fever and ague around here?"

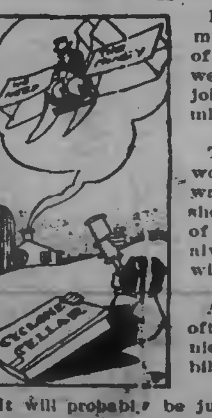
"You bet."

"Is quinine cheap?"

"It ought to be; it is a drug on the market."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

A beautiful complexion is sometimes a certificate of health and at other times a tribute to its possessor's artistic skill.



If we had a mind like that of some people we would gladly join the absent-minded class.

The reason a woman has her way is because she is a creature of foresight and always takes it with her.

A sharp tongue often accompanies dull sensibilities.

It will probably be just as hard to dodge bill collectors when airships are running nicely as it is now.

The bread of independence sounds romantic, but a three dollar meal ticket is quite prosaic and just as hard to get.

The coat of tan acquired at a summer resort is often as expensive as a whole suit from your tailor.

"32" H. P. Touring Car or Roadster, $1230 f. o. b., Detroit
With Electrical Starter, Oversize Tires, and Other Optional Equipment $1385 f. o. b. Detroit

We want you to inspect this car in the most critical "show me"— fashion. We know that when you do so, you will agree with us that it is the best car of its class in the world

Regular Equipment

The new touring car and roadster models have as regular equipment electric horn, rain vision ventilating windshield, silk mohair top with envelope, Hupmobile Jiffy curtains, speedometer, cocoa mat in tonneau, rear shock absorber, Prest-O-Lite tank, gas headlights, oil side and tail lamps, tools. WHEN YOU WAKE UP.

COMING back from dreamland
Gives you such a jar—
From the place of plenty
To things as they are,
From the fields of clover,
Where the fates are kind,
To existence humdrum
Of the daily grind.

All the splendid castles,
With their gardens fair
And the scent of perfume
On the morning air,
All the faithful servants
And the silver plate
Vanish when the whistle
Keeps its morning date.

Honors that are easy
In the halls of state,
Offices producing
Profits by the crate,
Merry crowds proclaiming
You the favored one,
Skip into the nowhere
With the morning sun.

Eyes for you that sparkle,
Lips for you that smile,
Friends with cheerful stories,
Moments to beguile,
Are but baubles gaudy
And of little worth
When the bell for breakfast
Calls you back to earth.

Much Used.

A minister of one of the leading congregations of this city was recently making a call on one of the prominent members of his flock and was greeted at the door by the five-year-old daughter of the house, who was doing the honors as hostess in the absence of her mother. Spying a well worn family Bible near at hand, the minister commented on the fact that there must be a good father in the house which contained proof of having used the Bible to so great an extent.

"Oh, yes," said the child, "papa has us on the Bible three times a day."

"Indeed!" replied the parson. "How edifying! And, pray, at what times does your good father call upon this grand volume?"

"Always at mealtimes," answered the radiant daughter. "You know, we never had a baby chair in the house, so pa just sits the Bible on a dining room chair, and that makes it just high enough for us children. My baby brother Jim sat on it this morning. We all had our turn at it."

WEDDING—PERSONAL

WHITAKER-MOORE.

The residence of Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., London Street, was the scene of a charming, but quiet wedding this afternoon, when his daughter Miss Bertha Frances, was united in bonds of holy matrimony to Mr. Guy E. Whitaker, of Calgary, son of Mr. W. C. Whitaker, of London, by the Rev. F. J. Sawers, rector of St. Luke's Church.

After an extended honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker will reside in Calgary.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. W. C. Whitaker and Miss Whitaker, of London.

Mr. W. C. Whitaker and Miss M. Whitaker, of London, are in the city to-day attending the Moore-Whitaker nuptials.

Mr. Paul W. Wolght, of Pittsburgh, is a guest at the Oriental.

Mrs. J. E. Nelson, of Glasgow, is in the city.

Mr. George Proctor and Miss Proctor, of Beaverton, are registered at the Oriental.

Mr. C. H. Knight, of Detroit, is in the city.

Miss Bessie Ray, Water Street, left yesterday for Carthage, N.Y., and also New York, where she will spend the summer.

The executive of the Women's Council will meet in the Board Room of the Library, Thursday, April 2, at 4 p.m. It is hoped that all executive members will be present as important business in connection with one of the commitees is to be discussed.

Miss Gertrude McClellan, of Baltimore, has been called to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. J. Harris McClellan, who is seriously ill.

His Honor Judge Huycke will give an interesting lecture under the auspices of the Women's Art Association in their studio in the Public Library on Thursday evening, April 2nd, at eight o'clock. His subject will be "an old poem made new." Members and their friends are cordially invited.

Rev. Dr. Ramsay, of Toronto, will be the guest at the Knox Church Manse during his stay in the city.

Dr. Johnston's many friends will be pleased to learn he is recovering from his illness.

On invitation received some time ago, Canon Davidson goes to Toronto next week to give addresses at the Noon-day Services at St. James Cathedral from Monday until Friday. These services are widely known and largely attended, and last only 20 minutes. They are connected with the name of Bishop Du Moulin, who began them. Canon Davidson conducted similar services in a theatre in St. Louis, Mo., some years ago, and more recently in Buffalo, N.Y. The choice of one of our citizens for this responsibility will be appreciated by Peterboro people.

The item in Friday's issue of The Review in regard to Dr. McClelland of Brock Street, removing with his family to California, was reported incorrectly. The doctor will remain in the city. Mrs. McClelland and her mother, Mrs. Denoon, are taking the trip.

The C.W.A. of St. John's Church held their regular meeting in the Parlor of the Sunday School yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, when arrangements were made to give an entertainment after Easter.

Mr. M. Mowry and Miss Cora Mowry, went to Belleville today to visit friends over Sunday.

Rev. Canon Morley of Toronto will preach at St. Luke's Church Sunday morning.

Rev. H. B. Kenny, who will take the anniversary services at St. James' Church to-morrow, will be a guest at the parsonage.

ST. PAUL'S CHOIR

The choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church have arranged to hold their annual anniversary Concert on Tuesday, 12th May, and have engaged Mr. Redferne Hollinshead, the well known tenor soloist of Bloor Street Presbyterian Church, Toronto, also that most popular of concert baritones, Mr. Ruthven McDonald of Toronto, to assist them on that occasion

These two gentlemen along with Miss Dorothy Allan, the soprano soloist of St. Paul's, will be the soloists of the evening.

The choir under its leader, Mr. John Allan, is busy rehearsing some splendid items, and a concert of a very high calibre may be looked for.

The At Home at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moore, London Street, yesterday afternoon, was attended by a large number of ladies, who took the opportunity of saying good-bye to Miss Bertha Moore, who was married this afternoon and will reside in Calgary.

W. C. T. U. MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. A. E. Micks, Stewart Street, Friday afternoon, about thirty-five women being present.

Mrs. Lewis read the scripture lesson. Reports of the Dominion Alliance Convention were given by Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Knapman.

Mrs. Armstrong thanked the Society for their kindness in sending her as a delegate to that convention. She said the Women's Christian Temperance Union and Dominion Alliance are both working for the suppression of the liquor traffic. A resolution was passed favoring votes for women and endorsing the action of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the Dominion in seeking legislation against the manufacturing and consuming of cigarettes in Canada and the support of the Alliance was pledged. Rev. Mr. Halpenny, B.A., secretary of the Sunday School Association said that Temperance should be taught faithfully in Sunday Schools. A motion was carried that the executive of the Dominion Alliance, with the Women's Christian Temperance Union and Sunday Schools, should do something toward a pledge signing campaign.

Mrs. Knapman also said a few words about the convention. She regretted that all the members were not able to be there. She said one of the brightest speakers of the convention was Rev. R. J. Patterson, of Belfast, Ireland, founder of the "Catch-my-Pal" movement. The "Catch-my-Pal" movement is very aggressive. All pledges are signed in public and if a members falls off the platform into the gutter again all the members seek to lift him up. In six weeks over six hundred men had signed the pledge and promised to bring another. In Ireland alone, one hundred and fifty thousand men and women signed the pledge.

A vote of thanks was tendered to both Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Knapman for their excellent reports. Beautiful solos were rendered by Mrs. Davidson and Miss Armstrong, also a piano duet by Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Micks. Refreshments were served and Mrs. Micks was thanked very earnestly for her hospitality.

MAJOR HAY TO SPEAK AT TEMPLE

He is Connected With Social Work Department at Montreal.

Major Hay, of the Salvation Army Montreal, who is in the city to-day and will conduct the meetings of the local corps to-morrow, is perhaps best known for his connection with the social work of the Army in Montreal. Major Hay to-day gave a brief outline of the work, of which he is superintendent.

The Social Work Department has two institutions, one the industrial department, and the other the lodging department. When a man is found to be down and out, he is given permanent employment with other factories and parties through the medium of the free employment agency which is operated in conjunction with the industrial department. Six rigs canvass the city for old clothes, shoes, paper and other waste material and the seventy men in the department bale the paper, repair old coats and shoes and likewise fix old furniture. These are then sold for merely nothing or given to the poor.

The other department is the lodging room, where a man is taken in and allowed to wash up and is given a night's lodging. The next day he is taken to the industrial department and put to work. If he is willing to work he is given a good job. The employement agency is bringing very good results, and last year there were 5528 men given work.

ALDERMEN ARE DELIGHTED WITH THE SOUVENIR

Which Temple Band Will Distribute in England

It is quite possible that the Temple Band will receive assistance from the City Council, in view of their trip to England to attend the Salvation Army Congress an also because of their efforts towards giving Peterboro a very fine souvenir, in the form of a 40-page illustrated booklet.

The band will take 10,000 copies to England and distribute them in every city they will visit. Also they will place the souvenirs in the hands of other responsible Salvationists for distribution, and thus a very wide circulation will be the result.

"We believe the interests of the city will be served to a very great extent," said Adjutant McElheney, when he addressed the committee of the whole Council last night. He said the band would be given every consideration and a place of prominence at the Congress. The souvenir contained photographs of the parks, public buildings, manufacturing concerns, and would give useful information relative to the factories, as to the number of employees, wages paid, etc. In getting out the souvenir, they had not asked for a cent. Some of the cuts had been provided them but the great majority were purchased. There was no advertisement matter.

Mayor Buller replied that the Council appreciated what the Adjutant had done, and that he had given much of his valuable time. The committee would take the matter up and deal with it as well as possible. The dummy of the souvenir which the Adjutant presented for the inspection of the aldermen, was greatly admired.

The band received last year a grant of $225 for their concerts in the park.

Ald. Johnston suggested that the amount be increased to $500, with the understanding that the grant would include the annual amount for the concerts.

Further action was deferred till the estimates are dealt with again.

THE CALEDONIAN CLUB CELEBRATE

Their Anniversary Was Celebrated With an Entertainment in the W.O.W. Hall

THE CALEDONIANS

The anniversary of the Caledonian Club was fittingly and appropriately celebrated last evening by the Scotchmen of Peterboro, when they gathered together in the W. O. W. Hall for the function, which was a most delightful one.

President Bobby Burns presided, and accorded the guests a hearty welcome.

Among the numbers on the programme and no doubt one of the best, and one that brought back old and almost forgotten times, was a song, "Be kind to Auld Grannie," by W. C. Patterson. He was encored and responded with "The Irish Emigrant." The big, genial policeman's singing reveals more than considerable talent as a vocalist, and his singing last evening was warmly applauded.

The trio, "Willie Brewed a Peck o' Mault," by Messrs. Anderson, Elliott and Dickson, received a fine reception. Others who ably assisted in making the evening an enjoyable one were Misses Hinchcliffe, Pedou, Messrs. Smith, Paterson, Wilson, Dickson, Sinclair, Irwin, and others.

Mr. T. Hopper catered in his usual satisfactory manner.

The evening was brought to a close with a delightful dance programme.

Mrs. Moore and Mr. Haddock presided at the piano.

"I'll teach you to spoon with my daughter!"
Cried pa, who was puffed up with pelf.
"No, thanks," said the suitor who'd caught her.
"She's already taught me herself."

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Little People Making the Most of King Winter's Reign.

SKATING TRIPLETS ON ICE.

Central Park, New York, Presents a Lively Scene When the Lakes Freeze Over—Puzzles and Games That Will Interest and Amuse.

Since the north wind came down from its arctic home and covered the surface of the lakes in Central park, New York, with a firm and smooth floor there have been lively times there under the bright winter sky. Children of high and low degree have buckled or clamped on their skates in such numbers that after school one can hardly see the ice for skaters. Among the many children of society that have disported on the big lake none have attracted more attention than have the three Herzig boys. They are triplets, handsome little fellows, dressed alike, and make a very pretty picture as they glide along with hands on each other's shoulders. Their names are Harry, Edwin and Richard, but lack of space prevents showing more than the first two named.

TWO OF THE SKATING TRIO.

An Amusing Game.

Any number of persons may play the game called "Who is it?" One is selected to stand or sit in front of the others, who have arranged themselves in a half circle. The one selected sits with his back to the rest, then one of those in the half circle touches the chosen one on the back and all together they ask, "Who is it?" The one in the center then turns around and tells the name of the one he thinks touched him. The one named asks, "Where shall I go?" The chosen one designates a place at some distance, so that while the person named is going to the place and back, the rest will have a good chance to hide. If the person named did touch the one in the center he must go, but if he was not the one who touched the leader then he says to the leader, "Go yourself," and the latter is the one to go. The last person caught stands in front as the chosen one in the next game.

Singing Crickets of Japan.

Did you ever hear of the wonderful singing crickets of Japan? They are kept in tiny bamboo cages, much as we keep our bright, chirping canary birds in wire ones, and are sold in the streets at an average of about 5 cents apiece. The Japanese, especially the children, are very fond of their singing.

Each year, some time in September, the collectors gather the mother crickets and papa crickets in the fields and put them into glass jars. Then, about March, the eggs the females have laid in the jars, which have been kept in a very warm room all those months, hatch out. The mother cricket dies, and, strange to say, it is only the little boy crickets that can sing. After a while the songsters are taken out of the jars, put in cages and sold. But, alas, they live only about six weeks!

Preliminaries.

A local attorney who seldom, if ever, touches any intoxicating beverage tells us that he was talking to a group of friends in a downtown cafe the other day when one of the men was moved to purchase refreshments for the crowd. When the bartender approached the attorney he said quietly:

"Just bring me a glass of water."

"Yes, sir," answered the bartender doubtfully. "What kind of water?"

"Just plain water."

"Anything else?"

"Nothing else. I want a glass of water."

"Charged or"—

"No; hydrant water, Lake Erie water, the sort you use for chasers!"

The bartender started slowly away. Then he came back.

"Hot or cold?" he asked.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Lesson XIII.—First Quarter, For March 29, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. vii, 21-29. Comprehensive Quarterly Review Golden Text, Mic. vi, 8—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Lesson I.—Jesus and the Children, Mark ix, 30-37; x, 13-16. Golden Text, I Pet. v, 5, "Be clothed with humility, for God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble." In the first part of our lesson the contrast is between the desire for greatness on the part of the disciples and the humility of a little child. In the second part it is the contrast between the fullness of the rich young ruler and the emptiness of the blessed children.

Lesson II.—The Mission of the Seventy, Luke x, 1-16. Golden Text, Matt. x, 20, "It is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father that speaketh in you." Prayer that the Lord would send forth laborers to be honest prayer must be from hearts willing to be sent forth, as lambs among wolves. We are to preach peace by Jesus Christ and to have no anxiety about our recompense. When the kingdom comes there will be no sick folks (Isa. xxxiii, 24).

Lesson III.—The Good Samaritan, Luke x, 25-37. Golden Text, Mark xii, 31, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." When our Lord called any one's attention to the law it was that they might be convinced of sin and led to Himself as the Saviour of sinners (Rom. iii, 19, 20; x, 4; Gal. iii, 21-24). We are as helpless to do anything to save ourselves or obtain eternal life as was the man who fell among thieves. He was half dead, but we are wholly dead (Eph. ii, 5).

Lesson IV.—Serving Jesus, Luke viii, 1-3; ix, 57-62; x, 38-42. Golden Text, Matt. xxv, 40, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, My brethren, ye have done it unto Me." In the first and last sections of this lesson we see women ministering onto Him, and Mary of Bethany, having done her part, found time to listen to His teaching. In the second section we learn that serving Him means none of self and no looking back.

Lesson V.—The Unfriendly Neighbor, Luke xi, 1-13. Golden Text, Luke xi, 9, "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." A better title for this lesson would be "The Father who giveth all," according to Rom viii, 32. If we honor Him, as in the first three petitions of the prayer (verses 2-4), we may count upon Him to make good all the rest and verse 13 also.

Lesson VI.—Darkness and Light, Luke xi, 14-26; xxxiii, 36. Golden Text, Luke xi, 35, "Take heed, therefore, that the light which is in thee be not darkness." These religious people were so blinded by their own self righteousness, which was really darkness and not light, that they could not distinguish between God and the devil.

Lesson VII.—Christ's Hatred of Shams, Luke xi, 37-54. Golden Text, Gal. vi, 7, "Be not deceived; God is not mocked." There is always a loving welcome from the Lord Jesus for all who penitently turn to Him, but for hypocrites, such as these Pharisees and lawyers, He has the most severe words—a welcome for sinners, but a woe for the self righteous.

Lesson VIII.—Faith Destroying Fear, Luke xii, 1-12. Golden Text, Luke xii, 8, "Whosoever shall confess Me before men him shall the Son of Man also confess before the angels of God." The hatred of the truly righteous by the self righteous resulted in expulsion from the synagogue and even in death (John xvi, 2), but the separation of soul and body was given to the believer and not a thing to be feared (Phil. i, 21-23).

Lesson IX.—Trusting In Riches and Trusting In God, Luke xii, 13-34. Golden Text, Luke xii, 34, "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." It is still manifestly true that, as a rule, men are more interested in earthly things than in heavenly things and act as foolishly as did the man in this lesson. He who gives us life may require it of us at any time.

Lesson X.—Watchfulness, Luke xii, 35-48. Golden Text, Luke xii, 37, "Blessed are those servants whom the Lord when He cometh shall find watching." In verse 43 there is also a blessing upon the one found doing. When saved we are put in trust with pounds and talents, and the Holy Spirit is given to us to dwell in us, work in us and teach us, and our commission is "Occupy till I come" (Luke xix, 13).

Lesson XI.—The Lawful Use of the Sabbath, Luke xiii, 10-17; xiv, 1-6. Golden Text, Mark ii, 27, "The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath." Their greatest accusations of Christ were that He made Himself equal with God and, in their estimation, dishonered their Sabbath (John x, 33-30; ix, 14; v, 18). They were so blinded by their own doings that they could not see their need of what He came to give them.

Lesson XII.—Lessons by the Way, Luke xiii, 18-30. Golden Text, Matt. vii, 21, "Not every one that saith * * * but he that doeth." There is much false teaching, and there are many deceived people, and the only safety is by the Truth, which is in Christ Jesus, who is Himself the Truth. In Him is Life and nowhere else (I John v, 12), and until we have Life by truly receiving Him we can do nothing to please Him.

Suggestion Unheeded.

"Last spring," said Mrs. Crosslots, "that next door neighbor of ours planted large quantities of sweet corn and peas and potatoes that nobody has seen since."

"Perhaps," replied her husband, "but I'm too busy a man to follow up any of these tips about buried treasure."—Washington Star.

Breaking It Gently.

"Halloa! Sit down. I believe you have come to ask me"—

"You have been misinformed. I haven't come to ask you anything."

"Why, I understand you"—

"I came merely because I wished to be first to tell you a bit of good news. I am going to marry your daughter."—Short Stories.

PLACE FAVORS.

Inexpensive and Easily Made Table Decorations.

Hostesses are always on the lookout for original place favors. The latest idea in this line is in the edible table decoration.

Oranges selected carefully for their perfect appearance can be formed into baskets by cutting one in half, with the exception of a narrow strip at the top which is used as a handle. All the inside of the orange is, of course, removed. The baskets thus formed are then crystallized in the following manner:

Put them in cold water to soak for about two hours, drain carefully and replace in fresh water and boil for one hour. Drain again and boil for another half hour. After pouring off this water add one cupful of granulated sugar and boil, stirring constantly until it candies—about five minutes. Place the baskets on plates and shower them with sugar. Put away to harden thoroughly. Small candies that harmonize with the deep yellow of the orange are used as filling.

Crystallized grapefruit is a delicious homemade confection. After removing all the pulp cut the skins into narrow strips and put them into enough water to cover them, leaving them to soak over night. In the morning drain off the water. Cover again with cold water and put over the fire to boil for an hour. Drain once more and place in boiling water, allowing the skins to cook for fully another hour. Pour off this water and add a cupful of sugar and stir constantly until it candies. Turn out and roll each piece in granulated sugar and place on a platter to dry.

Cut bright red apples in half. Carefully scoop out the meat, but leave enough to form a white lining for the shining skin. Make a thick sirup of sugar, and when slightly cooled immerse the half apples and set them aside to harden. Place them on small paper doilies after filling them with selected nut meats.

GOD SAVE THE KING

Surgery In Ancient Egypt.

At a lecture delivered in London recently Dr. F. M. Sandwith, consulting surgeon to the Khedive of Egypt, is reported as saying that the first surgeon of whom be could find any record lived at the time of the fifth Egyptian dynasty, and must have been court doctor to the Pharaoh some 4,000 years before the Christian era.

All the knots were true reef knots and the wrappings showed how the strips of palm fibre cloth were set just as a good surgeon would set them nowadays, so as to use the full strength of the fabric.

In other cases, bodies were found with compound fractures, where the broken ends of the bones had broken through the skin. Death seemed to have come very quickly after an accident of this kind, for no trace of healing of the bones was to be found.

The first surgical instruments of which anything was known, said Dr. Sandwith, were splints found in the Nubian Desert. In one place a graveyard was found, and here were remains of bodies with fractured limbs that had been set with bark splints. One was a right thigh bone that had been broken, and was still held in position by a workmanlike splint and bandages.

The McLaughlin-Buick "Service" is Dominion-wide

THE "Service" you get with the car you select, is quite as important as the car itself.

We make important claims for the 1914 McLaughlin-Buick line, and stand ready to substantiate them with any one of our seven models.

But these claims mean all the more when backed by an organization that extends from Halifax to Vancouver, and the aim of which is

"Complete Satisfaction to Every McLaughlin-Buick Owner"

Certainty of "service" is everything to the motorist—there's real comfort in the thought that the firm that made the car can and will take care of every car it makes.

You get that certainty when you get a McLaughlin-Buick. It's part and parcel of every car we sell, no matter what the model.

And you get added certainty of satisfaction because of the proof we are ready to offer you to back our claim of great power and low fuel consumption. Ask us for this proof—we'll gladly furnish it.

Mountain Ranching in Canada

Fascinating stories have been told of the hunting of wild horses in Western America, and until recently ranching simply teemed in the Canadian West. It was the advent of the wheat growers and the mixed farmers which caused the decline of the ranches in Western Canada, owing to their greater money-making proclivities. Horses ran wild in Canada and the hunting of them is somewhat interesting. So it is on the great ranches, where there are hundreds and thousands of horses allowed to run wild among the great prairies and the mountainous country of the Canadian West. The days of allowing horses to go unbranded are past, and it is now one of the duties of the cowboys to round up the horses and brand them, which is not altogether a pleasant duty to perform; but then the boys of the West are hardened to every kind of work. Some of these animals do not acknowledge the authority of man. They are an instance of the survival of the fittest, the last of the historic line that dates back to the first landing of the Spaniards in Mexico.

What concerns this story most is the fact that the pictures here reproduced represent scenes on the largest ranch in the Canadian Rockies, which belongs to Mr. James Brewster, who is one of the most typical of ranchers born and bred in the Canadian Rocky Mountains. Brewster was east a few weeks ago and told the story of his ranching in the most beautiful country of North America, so well known as the Switzerland of Canada. His delightful ranch is situated sixty miles to the north of Banff along the line of the Canadian Pacific. The situation is one of the most beautiful that can be imagined, right at the head of the Red Deer river, which is one of the largest tributaries of the Saskatchewan. The valley is four miles long and fifteen miles broad and roaming about he has six thousand horses and two hundred head of cattle. The latter are used principally for supplying the hands of the ranch with meat. The ranch hands, or cowboys, as they are better known, have practically little to do except to enjoy themselves and brand the animals when necessary. This is the only place in Canada where it is unnecessary to provide artificial feed for the horses throughout the whole of the year. It is owing to the presence of the Chinook winds which keeps the valley clear of snow during the entire winter months.

The horse was a necessity to the westerner, it made him master over the cow world, made cattle raising an established institution. And still further into the historic dimness, if we care to retrospect for a moment, the horse had transformed man from the hunter, the warrior, to the stockman. The Sanskrit for king, we are told, means chief of cowboys, or ranch-foreman. Historians tell of the time when the Indians of the Northwest had no horses, when they used dogs for beasts of burden. The Indians of the Southwest had horses as early as 1700. From there we follow the horse trail still farther south to the point where the greedy old first Spaniards landed when they came to gather in the good of the New World. Tradition says the Spaniards deliberately "shooed" some of their horses up toward the semi-arid south west, but it may be that they escaped and drifted, or were scattered through trading and horse thievery. By the time the horse of the Spaniards got to the Northwest he must have been a rather scrawny looking brute. Fortunately, the mountain ponies which are to be found on Brewster's ranch are of the better quality class and are believed to have been imported, as mentioned previously, from Mexico and contain some of the old Spanish blood.

An International Bond.

The Marfleet Foundation, under the provisions of which Prof. William Howard Taft, ex-President of the United States, will deliver three lectures to the students of Toronto University next year, had its origin in this way: Three years ago Mrs. Marfleet came from her home in Illinois to Toronto to consult President Falconer as to a gift of $5,000 which she proposed to make to the university as a memorial of her late husband. She explained that a number of years ago she and her husband spent a winter in Toronto. They were shown considerable courtesy by citizens, and their intellectual interests were stimulated by such opportunities as the university offered to visitors. As a mark of their appreciation of these kindnesses this gift of $5,000 was offered, with the suggestion that with it a lectureship be founded, a course of three lectures to be delivered once every three years, the subject of each course to be of public interest in the life or history of the United States and Canada, and the lecturers to be chosen from among men of distinction in public affairs or academic circles in either country.

"A woman never realizes how disagreeable a malady the grip is until her husband gets it."

Nickel may be kept bright by being rubbed with wool saturated with ammonia.

A few shreds of candied orange peel will give a delicious flavor to a bread pudding.

Black lead mixed with vinegar will be found to give specially good polish to the kitchen stove.

Alcohol and whiting makes a good silver polish, excellent also for polishing plate glass mirrors.

Do You Suffer From Nervous Headache?

If so you know the distress of it, the despondency it breeds, the incapacity for any real enjoyment, not to say for the strenuous work of life. Why suffer longer?

Of all the known remedies Dr. Stohr's KEPHALDOL is the safest, the quickest, and in results the most permanent. It cures and leaves no injurious after-effects. Even where the heart is weak KEPHALDOL may be taken with confidence. Can that be said of other remedies? This absence of cardiac depression after the use of Kephaldol explains above all else the enthusiastic endorsement by medical men in all countries.

KEPHALDOL, discovered and introduced by Dr. Stohr of Vienna, not only takes the place of dangerous Headache powders, but is equally valuable in all Nerve Pains, Neuralgia, Neuritis, also in Gout, Rheumatism, etc. KEPHALDOL is the pain-reliever that NEVER FAILS.

Dr. Stohr's KEPHALDOL does not cause intestinal irritation and is far preferable to Quinine, Phenacetin and the like. Many thousands of letters from medical men testify to the immense usefulness of this natural remedy. Pain cannot resist it. Its effect is immediate, safe, positive and permanent.

No one who uses KEPHALDOL fails to praise it.

MISS R. MOSS, Cambria Cottage, Ruardean, Eng., says: "I have suffered from Headache for many years, and find the KEPHALDOL Tablets give greater relief than any other remedy. I used to be utterly prostrated when I had an attack, but am now able to continue my ordinary duties."

"I find KEPHALDOL Tablets all you say. Each time they have cleared my headache off in a few minutes. I shall always keep them by me." MRS. J. WHITE, 21 Prince of Wales Ave., Reading.

622 Lafontaine St., Maisonneuve
Montreal, Sept. 5th, 1913.

"I have suffered from Neuralgic Headache 8 or 9 years and have spent over seventy dollars for doctors' bills and drugs and got no relief. I saw an advertisement in an English paper for KEPHALDOL, and sent to my sister and had a small bottle sent out, and I am pleased with the results. It is the only remedy that has given me any relief."

REAL PATERNALISM.

How Quebec Was Governed In the Early Days.

Some of the ordinances of the early Governor and Council of Quebec in the days of the French regime, show to what extent the Government was paternal. For instance, the Intendant Raudot came to the conclusion that the people in and about Montreal raised too many horses, which prevented them from raising cattle and sheep. He, therefore, commanded that no inhabitant should own more than two horses or mares, and one foal. The people were given a time within which to dispose of their surplus horses, after which animals in excess of the specified number would be killed.

Another remarkable ordinance was that of the Intendant Bigot, the "arch-grafter" of later years of the old regime. With a view of promoting agriculture and protecting the morals of the farmers by saving them from the temptations of the cities, he proclaimed to them: "We prohibit and forbid you to remove to this town (Quebec) under any pretext whatever without our permission in writing, on pain of being expelled and sent back to your farms, your furniture and goods confiscated, and a fine of fifty livres laid on you for the benefit of the hospitals; and furthermore, we forbid all inhabitants of the city to let houses or rooms to persons coming from the country on pain of a fine of one hundred livres, also applicable to the hospitals."

One of the problems of the economists of to-day is how to check the movement cityward of the rural population—how to keep the people on the land. The problem is still unsolved, but, pressing as it is, it is quite certain that our Government would not dare adopt Intendant Bigot's drastic policy, which is only possible under an autocratic rule backed by adequate power to enforce it without regard to the will of the people. That such an ordinance was possible shows what was the condition of public affairs in Canada during the days of the old regime.

"The spirit of absolutism," writes Parkman, "is everywhere apparent. In regard to this very matter," writes the Intendant Meules. "It is of very great consequence that the people should not be left at liberty to speak their minds."

One further instance of the point of view of the Government that ruled Canada during those now long-ago years. In 1671 a resident of Quebec named Paul Dupuy was heard to say that there is nothing like righting one's self, and that when the people of England cut off the head of King Charles I., they did a good thing. This was twenty-two years after the execution of Charles at the close of war against Parliament.

Dupuy was arrested and taken before the Sovereign Council. That body cared little about England's kings and had no reason for caring, but it held Dupuy guilty of speaking ill of royalty in the person of the King of England, and condemned him to be led in a shirt, with a rope about his neck, and a torch in his hadn, to the gate of the Governor's palace and there to beg pardon for his words. From there he was to be taken to the pillory in the Lower Town to be branded on the cheek, and set in the stocks for half an hour; then to be led back to prison, and put in irons "till the information against him shall be completed."

Tale of a Tub.

In "A Motor Tour Through Canada" the author tells this story, as it was told him at the club in Regina, of a man who had been caught by a cyclone while taking a bath.

His bathroom was instantaneously demolished, and before he could scramble out of his tub he found himself sailing over the city on the breeze at a fifty knot clip. He was always a man of quick resources and ready expediency. That's why, no doubt, the cyclone picked him out of the crowd. Anyhow, he never once lost his presence of mind in spite of his Lady Godiva appearance, but he seized hold of the "hot and cold" taps with both hands and started steering his craft. Would you believe it, he found it answered the helm like a catboat, and he at once turned it a point or two so as to bring him to the waterworks. There he descended, filled the tub again and calmly finished his interrupted bath!

Loyalty That Failed Not.

Tom Wallace, of Woodbridge, the heaviest man in the House of Commons, says that in the recent bye-election in South Bruce one old-timer from a little hamlet walked up to the polling booth and demanded a ballot, loudly declaring his intention of voting for John A. Macdonald.

"But," said the returning officer, "you can't vote for Sir John A. Macdonald—he's dead long ago."

"Well," retorted the native, "I want to say that he's a better man dead than either Truax or Cargill alive."

So he went in and spoiled his ballot.—Toronto Saturday Night.

Canada Holds Record.

Recently the State of New Jersey, U.S.A., gave an acting governor a check for two cents, the smallest check by the state, but this record is beaten in Ottawa. Miss Ostrom of Ottawa had a savings account in a branch of the Postoffice Savings Department. She closed her account a short time ago, and it was found that she was credited with the sum of one cent., for which the Department sent her a check.

Nine Cents a Day.

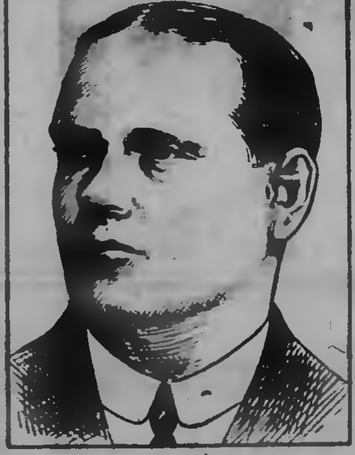
Huron County, Ont., claims the honor of having the best and most economically run House of Refuge in the province. The institution is situated just outside the town of Clinton and has 96 inmates. The cost of feeding these patients, by scientific management, has been reduced to 9.2 cents per day each.

W. W. CORY BUSY PEOPLING "THE LAST BEST WEST"

Deputy Minister of the Interior Is a Physical Giant as Well as a Man of Immense Mental Powers—His Family Went West When He Was Five, and He Can Tell Strange Pioneering Tales.

A big, breezy Westerner—the son of one of the pioneers of the oldest prairie province—it is eminently fitting that William Wallace Cory, C.M.G., should be head of the department which is charged with the peopling of "the last best west." He is one of the biggest men in the service—in more ways than one, says Francis C. Carman in Toronto Star Weekly. Six feet and broad in proportion, but not too broad, his bulk gives him an imposing appearance, but fair and wavy hair and a sunny smile predispose one to expect a pleasant reception from the start. Nor is this first impression belied on further acquaintance. His voice is rich and mellow, and he is courtesy itself. Anything which he can do for you within the limits of his duty, that he will do. But behind all it does not take long to recognize, there is the keen administrator, who knows his work and knows his own mind also. It is easy to understand what it is which has made him the chief of one of the two or three largest departments in the Dominion Government.

The Deputy Minister of the Interior began at an early age to study the country which he was later to administer. In fact, he began to study it long before he or anyone else had dreamed of what that country had in store. It was in 1871 that he, a boy of five, started with his father to carve out a homstead on the plains of Manitoba—a territory which was not then yet a part of the Dominion. The Corys were one of the many Ontario families which helped to lay the foundations of our Western Provinces. Strathroy in West Ontario, was the native town of young Cory, and there he was born on June 16, 1865.



MR. W. CORY, C.M.G.

At the time when the elder Cory set out for the fertile, but little known, plains of Prince Rupert's Land, the journey to the West was no light matter. From their home the little family of pioneers went first to Sarnia and then across Lake Huron and Lake Michigan, and so over American railways to St. Paul. There, however, resort had to be taken to horse and cart overland to the waters of the Red River and so down its flood to Fort Garry. The journey to Fort Garry was long and hard, but it was only the beginning. From that then outpost of civilization Cory senior plunged southwest into the country about Gladstone. There were then no roads and no surveys. The settler simply went and picked out his lands where he thought best and squatted on them.

Pioneering was pioneering in those days in the West. The man who now looks after the interests of three hundred thousand settlers a year remembers hardships of which they have no idea. He was through the grasshopper years of the later seventies and the wet years of the early eighties.

"I remember," he said, "the coming of the first of the plague. The first to arrive had hardly alighted in the farmyard before he was pounced upon by a hen, and eaten up. But soon the hens did not know what to make of it. Those grasshoppers did not leave one green thing above the ground. That year we lived on jack rabbit for breakfast, dinner, and supper. We hadn't even bread to eat with it. The next year the young grasshoppers kept everything eaten down to the ground, and it was the same story over again; but the third year the parasite arrived, and they soon disappeared.

"Then in the wet years," he went on, "there was no dry ground anywhere. Across the prairies you walked in water anywhere from your boots up to your neck. It became a customary thing to cut a hole in the toe of your boots to let the water run out. In that way, when you got on a tolerably dry piece of land, your feet got comfortable."

Under these conditions and with markets beyond reach, the future Dominion public servant found that farming did not pay, and went into the city. One year his father had to throw out hundreds of bushels of wheat just to make room for the new crop. After some dozen years on his father's farm, young Cory went to Winnipeg, and entered upon the study of law. He took his articles in the office of the Attorney-General, and called to the Bar in 1889. For a dozen years more he practiced law in Winnipeg, and then went to Ottawa as a clerk in the land patent office, where he had to deal with the patents of railway lands.

Went 560 Miles In Saddle.

The Hon. F. L. Carter-Cotton, the mention of whose name in connection with politics has brought him into the public eye once more, was a member of the B. C. Cabinet up to 1910 when he resigned, somewhat to the surprise of everyone as he was considered one of the most capable of Sir Richard McBride's lieutenants. He is a capable politician and diplomat; but is perhaps best known as a journalist, being editor of The Vancouver "News Advertiser," which he established. He has sat in the Legislature of British Columbia almost uninterruptedly since 1890. He was Minister of Finance in the Semlin Administration, and was later Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works and President of the Council in the McBride Administration. He is a great horseman, and performed the feat of traveling 1,100 miles, from Vancouver to Cariboo, 560 miles of which were done on horseback, in an incredibly short time.

Diocese Includes North Pole.

An interview with Bishop Lucas of Mackenzie river, whose diocese covers six hundred thousand miles, appeared in The London Evening News recently.

"The diocese includes the North Pole. I don't think we shall put a mission station there just yet," remarks the bishop. He has sailed for Canada, and will straightway start on a thousand-mile journey among the Blonde Esquimaux.

LIPTON'S NEW SHAMROCK.

The Yacht With Which He Will Again Try to "Lift That Cup."

Shamrock IV., whose keel was recently cast, will be the first yacht ever built in England under the American rule of measurement. With this sea bird Sir Thomas Lipton will make a final effort to win the America's cup. Charles Nicholson, the designer of the Shamrock IV., has been most successful under the European rules. His yachts in the fifteen meter class, the Istria, the Pamela and the Paula III., are exemplifications of this, but these craft are sometimes called freaks. Nevertheless they win races. Consequently one has to look for a so called freak in the Shamrock IV.

All the previous Shamrock cup challengers were ninety footers. The new yacht will be a seventy-five footer, and yet when she makes her appearance under canvas next spring she will undoubtedly be regarded with a feeling of wonderment by many seasoned yachtsmen. The Britannia, one of the most successful of English ninety footers, carried a little over 10,000 feet of canvas. Since the Britannia's palmy days something has been learned of how to crowd sail onto a craft; hence there is much curiosity as to the amount the Shamrock IV. will hoist.

Apart from the design, interest centers in the fact that the Shamrock IV. will be sailed by an amateur, N. P. Burton, who has for many years been recognised as one of the cleverest helmsmen in England.—Argonaut.

Here is an afternoon coat of figured Egyptian crepe showing how loose, how flaring and how jaunty these perty little spring wraps have become. Sometimes they are cut in one piece, gathered and draped into the required shape. A flaring Japanese collar matches the low sleeve line frills and is complemented in the suggestion of the kimono sleeves.

Full Cargo of Herring.

The largest cargo of frozen herring ever taken from a Newfoundland port left Bonne Bay, the other day, in the steamship Portia. The herring will be largely used as bait by the West Coast. Never in the history of the coastal steam service has a steamer taken a full cargo of frozen herring from any one port until now. Owing to a great southerly drift of floating ice it was feared that the Portia would not be able to enter the bay or to leave, which would have meant a great loss to Bonne Bay, as there would have been left about 4,000 barrels of fresh herring undisposed of.

TO REPLACE "HUSKIES"

Everybody in Far North Watching Experiments With Reindeers.

At the lone Hudson Bay Company post at Cartwright there is a little youngster, Stuart Swaffield by name, son of the "factor," or company agent at the post, whose story gives the reason, in a nutshell, why the reindeer were brought to Labrador.

When Stuart was a child, five or six years of age, his mother sent him out to play while she attended to her household duties. By and by she heard a great commotion among the Eskimo dogs, of whom the post maintains quite a pack for drawing the sledges in the winter time. At first she thought nothing of it, for the dogs often fight among themselves. Wilder and wilder, however, grew the snarls and yelps (for the Eskimo dog, being really a wolf and not a dog, does not bark) until curiosity got the better of her and she went to the window to see the cause. To her consternation, the entire pack of dogs had set upon the child, who had perhaps stumbled up among them in his play, while her own dog, "Bouncer," brought from the homeland, was alone attempting to defend him. It was with the utmost difficulty that the pack was at last driven off, and when the child was rescued the clothes fairly clung to the skin, so numerous were his wounds. He could only whisper: "The dogs bit me," and then fainted away.

In a lone cemetery out on the wind-swept cape at Rigolet there is a monument to two trappers, father and son. The two had come in to trade their pelts and left the post in high spirits. That was the last that was seen of them. Later in the spring the dogs were found gnawing their bones on the beaches.

The very first piece of advice a native of Labrador will give you, is not to pet the dogs, and, above all, not to stumble or fall among them; for at that instant the pack will fall upon you.

In the summer the dogs forage for themselves, feeding largely on the fish that come close in to shore or on the offal of the fishing settlements. They are great, beautiful creatures, snowy white or mottled slightly with brown. In winter, however, their voracious appetites know no bounds. At the post food is cooked for them and served hot, but it seems this never suffices.

Harnessed up and driven along the snow trails of the northern wilds, it is only fear of the driver's whip that keeps them down. Let one dog turn upon him and he shoots to kill; otherwise the pack is on him at once. Many, indeed, are the men in the lone wilderness of the northland who have been devoured by their dogs.

Hence the need of bringing in the reindeer to take the place of the dogs.

Dr. Grenfell, however, has one difficulty to meet in trying to replace the dogs with the deer, for the people are used to the dogs and claim to know just how to handle them, while they do not know how to use the reindeer.

Moreover, no reindeer can be put into use in a settlement until all the dogs thereabouts are gone, for the dogs will smell a deer miles away and the pack will "go" for it at once. What, then, can the people do between the time the deer are brought in and are being broken to use and the necessary killing or sending away of the dogs?

What, too, shall be done with the dogs? At present, when a dog bites anyone he is shot; the skin is dressed and sold for about $3. But many of the dogs are gentle, some are thoroughly tame and reliable and the people are loath to part with them. Only a stern law can make them do this—and to get such a law passed and enforced needs influence and determination.

One wonders what the post would seem like when, instead of the beautiful dogs coming down the path to the dock, stopping to throw out their forefeet and lean out to yawn, or lick one's shoe, running as soon as one lifts a hand for fear of the probable stone, the reindeer will browse in the corrals.

Reindeer moss abounds in Labrador and on it the deer feed, even through the snow. Up at St. Anthony's, where Dr. Grenfell's mission has a hospital, the 300 deer that he has brought there are now flourishing. It is there the important experiment will be tried of substituting the deer for the dog. The world awaits the result with interest.

New Brunswick Judge.

The Hon. Ward Chipman Hazen Grimmer, who has been appointed a judge of the Appeal Division of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, and also named as a judge of the Chancery Division of the same court, is one of the best known men of New Brunswick, having been for some years mayor of St. Stephen, one of the principal cities of the province down by the sea. For ten years also, he was a member of the Provincial Legislature, and for several years a member of the Provincial Government. He is a close personal friend of the present Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Hon. Mr. Hazen, who considers him one of the most straightforward men and most capable lawyers in Canada. The new judge is 56 years of age, and is a native of St. Stephen.—Family Herald and Weekly Star.

THE LOVER'S MISTAKE.

To him she seemed, indeed, to be
The fairest of the fair,
And when she scorned his earnest plea
He left her sadly, helplessly
To pine in dark despair.

"The sun," he wailed, "has lost its light,
The world the charms it had!
I walk within an endless night.
All that was good has taken flight,
No more to make me glad."

While fretting o'er his dismal case
And wishing he could die
He met a girl whose pretty face
And look of cheer and faultless grace
In some way caught his eye.

He ceased at once to mourn his lot.
The sun was bright again.
The newer, later love he sought
And for a little while forgot,
But it was all in vain.

His sorrow soon returned. His glee,
Alas, too quickly fled!
He won the second girl, you see.
Therefore the first was still to be
The one he wished instead.

STRATHCONA'S WASH.

The Unusual Sight Almost Gave Rise To a Scandal.

From the time he emigrated to Canada, at the age of eighteen, until he was forty-eight, the late Lord Strathcona spent all his time at various posts of the Hudson Bay Co., newly located on the Labrador.

In all those thirty years among the northern Indians and the Eskimos, Donald Smith, as he then was, held himself strictly to the niceties of life; so that when, as a man of middle age, he returned to civilized life and the highest office in the gift of the Hudson Bay Co., there were no rough edges of either speech or manner to be overcome.

Nothing shows this better than a story told on the Labrador while he was governor of the company. It is a rule of the Hudson Bay Co. that no woman shall be allowed passage on its boats. One day, as a steamer of the company neared one of the northernmost ports, a string of white garments was seen stretched across the deck. The watchers were amazed; for to them the washline suggested only the presence of a woman aboard the boat. Comment was freely made of the scandal that would ensue and the shake-up that would follow. When the boat docked, the line of washing had disappeared—still another proof of the scandal. Later, one of the landsmen said to the captain:—

"How did it happen that you carried a woman passenger this trip?"

"There was never a woman on board the whole voyage," was the indignant answer.

"If there was no woman on board, where did all that white wash come from?" was the next query.

The captain looked puzzled for a moment, and then he laughed.

"Oh," he said, "and didn't we have the governor himself along with us on the trip? And every day doesn't he insist on having his clean white shirt, no matter how far north we are? That's the white wash you saw strung along deck. And what's more, doesn't his lordship insist upon having his London 'Times' laid beside his plate every morning, no matter if it is a year old?"

To Hunt For Gold.

A tale rivalling that of J. Rider Haggard's "King Solomon Mines" has been unfolded by Captain Henry T. Mann of Brandon, Man., who has gone to complete preparations in London for an expedition in search of gold in Baffin Land.

Captain Mann has organized his searching party. Offices are established at No. 166 Piccadilly, London, W., where he will confer, he says, with Lord Lascelles and Sir Bryan Leighton before starting on the voyage.

"I go in a whaler, taking thirty men with me, and expect to land at Ponds Inlet, Baffin Land, within a few months," said Captain Mann. "I have sailed the Arctic seas and searched for gold in the Klondike and South Africa, and I feel certain that I will strike it rich this trip.

"I am guided in my quest by information obtained through a friend. He knew an old seaman in St. John's, Newfoundland, who died fifteen years ago. On his death bed this aged man confided to his friend that fifteen years previous he had obtained two pieces of mineral in Baffin Land. He had sold these to a jeweler in Dundee, Scotland, for a sovereign each.

"The dying sailor realized, after he made the sale, that he was possessed of information that should make him immensely wealthy. He drew a map of the locality where his discovery was made, but never could go there again. As he died he pressed into the hand of his friend the map of this new gold field.

"Two years ago I learned of this map. I fitted up an expedition, but my vessel was crushed in the ice. I will try again now, as I have ample capital back of me."

Are Venuses Immoral?

A grand jury in Montreal is to be called upon to decide whether statues of naked Venuses and other mythological ladies who despised clothing are to be allowed to be exhibited for sale in Montreal stores in the future. A test case upon which the grand jury will sit in judgment is that of David Rubin, an art dealer, with a store on St. Catherine street, who is being prosecuted at the instance of Captain Robert of the police force, for having exposed for sale a miniature of a celebrated statue of a nude Venus. The case was heard before Judge Lanctot recently.

Counsel for defence said that several city clergymen had invested in the Venus statue and that copies of it had been ordered and were being prepared for the Montreal Art Gallery.

Judge Lanctot in sending Rubin for trial remarked:

"The question must be definitely decided. We must know at once and for all whether merchants can legally be allowed to exhibit and offer these and like statues for sale. It should be left to a jury to decide on this point once and for all. It is a fit question for a test case. Since creation, after the fall of man, it was decided that all should dress."

"The only lacrosse stick factory in the world is located at Cornwall, Ont. The game originated in this region, and the Indians have special skill in whittling the handles of the sticks. The factory employs ten Indians besides several white men. Three-fourths of the product is consumed in Canada, the rest going to the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand, except one per cent., which is sent to the United States, principally to the Carlyle Indian school and Ithaca, N.Y. About $2,000 worth of hickory wood, of which the sticks are made, is annually imported from the United States, while the gut comes from England.

NIGHTMARE TERROR.

In Young Children It Causes a Shock That Requires Soothing.

A nightmare is a very vivid and disagreeable dream, in which the sleeper finds himself in various terrifying situations from which there is no escape. When a sufferer's fright reaches a climax he awakens suddenly; sometimes he is aroused by his own efforts to scream for help. A bad form of nightmare occurs in young children. It is called "night terror." The child awakes suddenly from a deep sleep, panting, wide eyed, screaming but inarticulate and clings frantically to any one who goes to the bedside. Such attacks are most common in children between four and eight years old, but they may occur at any age.

When grownup people have nightmare it is generally owing to indiscretions in diet, such as mince pie or lobster eaten late at night. Many persons have to be very careful about what they eat for supper, and can never safely go to sleep lying flat on the back.

One characteristic of nightmare is the startling reality of it. It lacks the misty vagueness of pleasant dreams and has, while it lasts, all the sharp outline of an actual occurrence. Therefore it is important that young children should be wisely and gently handled when they suffer from night terrors. Do not scold them or laugh at them or argue with them. They have suffered a real shock, with consequent loss of nervous force. Until the paroxysm has spent itself, do not leave a child who has suffered in this way alone.

Sometimes, in older children, nightmare accompanies overpressure at school, and the tendency to it disappears in the holidays. In such cases lighten the pressure of work as much as possible, make the evening meal light and digestible and keep the child from excitement during the few hours before bedtime.—Youth's Companion

SPECIAL CORNER FOR AFTER DINNER READERS

THE PATRIOT SPY

How General Washinton Secured Information.

By R. A. MITCHEL.

There is still standing in Morristown, N. J., a house which General Washington while maneuvering against the British army at New York occupied as his headquarters. It is kept in excellent repair by an association organized for the purpose and contains a great many relics connected with the Father of His Country. In the kitchen is the same enormous fireplace, with cooking paraphernalia, as was used in Revolutionary times. To some the most interesting room is one on the ground floor, in the rear of the building, that was used by Washington as a private office.

One spring morning in the year 1777 a young man wearing the uniform of a lieutenant of cavalry in the Continental army passed the sentry before Washington's headquarters at Morristown, returned the man's salute and entered the main hall. There he was met by the general's orderly, whom he told to announce Lieutenant John Woodville. In a few moments the officer was standing in Washington's presence.

"Be seated," said the commander, turning from his desk. "I have sent for you to do a more important work than any with which I have yet intrusted you. I wish you to go to New York and if possible learn the intentions of General Howe. I suspect that he is intending to move against Philadelphia. If so he must either march across New Jersey, where he will have to fight us, or go by sea. If he goes by land I desire to be advised of the time he moves, that I may be prepared to intercept his passage. My main object is to so threaten him that he will not be able to send any more troops to assist Burgoyne. I deem it essential that you should understand the situation in order that you may act intelligently. How soon can you leave?"

"As soon as I can secure a disguise."

"Very well. Go, and remember that our cause may depend upon your success."

Lieutenant Woodville left his commander and within an hour, in the garb of a young countryman, rode out of Morristown down the road leading to Orange, where he stopped at the tavern—the building is still standing—for dinner, thence to Newark, where he turned south toward Elizabethtown. He was now in territory within reach of the British at New York, and it behooved him to keep a sharp lookout not only to conceal his mission, but for indications of the movements of the enemy.

Woodville pretended to be a Tory to Tory sympathisers and found those of that persuasion jubilant at the prospect of ending the war and re-establishing the authority of the king. They told him that the troops from Canada were to be met near the mouth of the Mohawk river by troops from the south and the line of communication by way of the Hudson and Lake Champlain would soon be open to the British, cutting the confederated colonies in two parts. But he also heard from "patriots" that Burgoyne was marching through a wild country, in which it was difficult to feed his army, and unless he were successful in forming a junction with the force moving from the south he would be in a critical position.

This indicated to the young lieutenant that what Howe did in the way of sending troops to support Burgoyne was of great importance to the cause, and it was especially essential that General Washington should know, so far as possible, just what Howe was doing in the matter. But Woodville was not near enough to the British headquarters to learn much about the matter, so he determined to move on to the west bank of the Hudson, where Jersey City now stands. A family of patriots of the name of Curtiss lived there, to whom he was known and on whom he could rely. On his way he passed the King's Arms, a tavern kept by a Tory named Smithson, who had a pretty daughter, Jennie, upon whom the young soldier looked with loving eyes. He desired to pay her a visit in passing, but dare not do so, because if recognized by her father he would be betrayed to the British and hanged as a spy, so he went on to the Curtisses, where he was taken in and given a lodging.

Woodville noticed a number of ships lying at anchor in the river and that the boats going to them usually carried what appeared to be supplies. It looked as if they were preparing for a voyage, but to what point did not appear. The spy was near the ferry and noticed soon after his arrival a British soldier disembark, mount his horse and ride westward. A soldier becomes used to the ways of soldiers, and there was something in the man's movements that indicated to Woodville that he was going somewhere with an object. The most likely object he could have was carrying a message.

The spy ran to the barn, got out his horse and, mounting, started to follow the soldier. Catching sight of him ascending the heights back of the river, he slowed his pace, riding only near enough to him to keep him in sight. The Britisher took the road to Elizabethtown. It was drawing near the close of the day, and, passing the King's Arms tavern, he stopped, dismounted and entered.

Woodville drew rein and considered the situation. He saw a negro take the soldier's horse to the barn and argued that the latter would stay to supper and possibly all night. The American wished that he could catch sight of Jennie Smithson without her father seeing him. He waited till it was dark; then, tying his horse to a tree, stole up to the house to reconnoiter.

Looking through a window, he saw the soldier standing before the bar, while the landlord was behind it in the act of serving a mug of flip. Woodville went around to the kitchen and saw Jennie superintending a negro cook, who was cooking the supper. He managed to attract Jennie's attention and, putting his fingers to his lips, signaled her to come out to him. Jennie joined him, and the two retreated into the darkness.

Jennie did not sympathise with the Tories, for she had been born in America and, being very much in love with Woodville, was ready to do anything he asked of her. He inquired if the trooper was to remain all night, and she replied that she did not know. She thought that, having eaten his supper, he would go on to either Newark or Elizabethtown. Woodville told her he suspected the man was a messenger, and if so he desired to get possession of any document he might have on his person. He begged her to find out if possible what was the man's errand and if he were carrying a message to try to get it away from him.

Jennie promised to do all she could in the matter and, returning to the house, brought out something for Woodville to eat and put him in the smokehouse. Later she returned and said that she had talked with the soldier and learned that he was on his way to Princeton, where a British commissary of subsistence was stationed for the purpose of gathering supplies for General Howe's army at New York. She would detain him if possible.

Woodville was puzzled. Having seen the British ships loading with supplies off Manhattan Island, he had got the idea that the force would be transported by sea. Was this commissary to be directed to have supplies ready for the British on a march through Princeton, or was he to be ordered to send them to New York that they might be loaded on the ships? This uncertainty rendered it important that Jennie should secure further information on the subject. Woodville paced back and forth before the smokehouse impatiently awaiting her return.

An hour passed, and Woodville concluded to reconnoiter. Leaving the smokehouse, he went to the front of the house and saw the soldier talking to Jennie, who seemed to be doing her best to entertain him, every now and again rising, going to the bar and returning with a mug of flip for the guest. Satisfied that all was going well, the spy returned to the smokehouse. About 10 o'clock Jennie came to him and told him that the soldier had gone to bed well filled with liquor. As soon as she was assured that he was sound asleep she would go into his room and capture anything he might have in his possession.

Woodville had been deprived of sleep for several nights and while waiting fell into a slumber. He was awakened by Jennie, who thrust a sealed paper into his hands. She had taken the precaution to bring also a flint and steel and a candle and struck a light. Woodville rubbed his eyes and read the superscription on the paper. It was to Captain George Doncaster, commissary of subsistence, Princeton, N. J. Breaking the seal, he read:

> Captain—You are hereby ordered to send all the supplies in your possession to a point on the coast directly east of Princeton and deposit them on the beach at the nearest inlet, where they can be taken off in boats. You will also direct any officer in charge of a supply station south of you to transport his supplies to the coast at a convenient point for shipment. Signal by fire on the dunes. The fleet will be near you on the —th.
> By order of Major General Howe.

When Woodville had read this he threw his arms about Jennie and gave her a dozen kisses.

"What does it mean?" she asked.

"It means that General Howe is going to attack Philadelphia, and he dare not try to force his way through New Jersey, liable to be pounced upon by General Washington from Morristown. I must be off with the document at once."

Giving Jennie a farewell kiss, Woodville went to the point where he had left his horse and, mounting, rode away. Passing through Newark and Orange, he ascended the rise west of the latter place, and early in the morning rode up to Washington's headquarters at Morristown. Throwing himself from his horse, he asked to see the general. Washington, who had risen early to begin the work of the day, hearing that Woodville had returned, directed that he be shown to his bedroom. On entering the young man held out to him the paper he had secured through Jennie Smithson.

"Ah!" exclaimed the general. "He goes by sea to Philadelphia. Now we know just where and when to meet him."

Washington was not able to prevent the ultimate capture of Philadelphia, but he caused Howe so much trouble that he was prevented from sending more troops to help Burgoyne out of the difficult position into which he had fallen, and the British disaster at Saratoga soon followed.

Jennie Smithson was suspected of having stolen the paper from the British trooper, but the act could never be proved against her. After independence was secured she met her reward in the husband she desired.

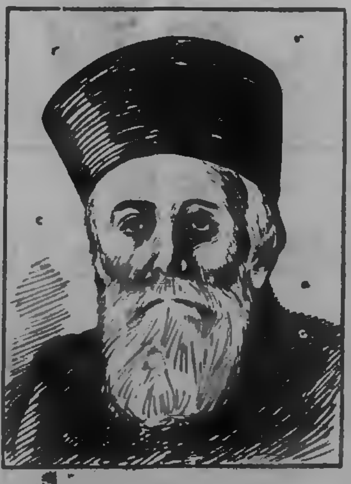
IN THE EVENING OF LIFE

GRAND OLD MAN OF INDIA BELOVED BY ALL ABOUT HIM.

Mr. Dadabhoy Naoboji, Now In His Eighty-Ninth Year, Has Passed Through an Active Career as British M.P. For Central Finsbury, and as Worker For Indian National Congress Movement.

By abdicating his rule at the age of sixty-one to devote himself to religious meditation, the Raja of Cochin is about to become a "sunnyasi." The "Grand Old Man of India," Mr. Dadabhoy Naoroji, is one by right of age, for he is in his eighty-ninth year, and at eighty-four the Hindus regard a man as a saint, quite irrespective of his character or career. But Mr. Dadabhoy Naoroji has every claim to canonization apart from that of longevity. His descent from an uninterrupted line of the Zoroastrian priesthood in Persia is marked by a Grecian classicness of feature and fairness of skin which gave peculiar inappropriateness to the late Lord Salisbury's "blazing indiscretion" in describing him as a "black man." The great simplicity and purity of his life have been recognised and admired by all who have come into contact with him.



MR. DADABHOY NAOROJI.

Mr. Dadabhoy Naoroji has spent no inconsiderate portion of his active life in England, being a member of the first Indian firm established in London, now nearly sixty years ago, and working incessantly by speech and pen and organization for the political causes associated with the Indian National Congress movement, of which he was a founder. He was the first Indian to enter the British House of Commons, being elected to the 1892-5 Parliament for Central Finsbury, but was unsuccessful in subsequent endeavors to secure a seat. He continued his active public career until he was an octogenarian, presiding at the Indian National Congress at Calcutta in 1906.

During the last seven years he has lived in quiet retirement at a seaside suburb some fifteen miles from Bombay, enjoying the warm affection of his countrymen without distinction of party, and the esteem of the heads of the Indian Administration. When the King and Queen went out to India for the Durbar they exchanged greetings with the distinguished veteran, and recently he was visited by the new governor of Bombay, Lord Willingdon, at his retreat where the evening light falls so gently upon him.

Salt Refining In Ireland.

A new industry has been established in Ireland by the perfection of a process for refining salt by fire. The process makes it possible to convert rock salt from the mine into salt for table use or commercial purposes within two hours. Two salt mines at Carrickfergus have been acquired by a company, the mining rights extending over eight acres. The plant which has been installed is capable of producing 25,000 tons of salt a year under the Tee process. Since the time of the Romans salt has been refined by evaporation; the new system consists of melting the rock salt in a patent furnace, cold air passing through the furnace when it is at a certain temperature and driving all the impurities of the salt to the bottom. The salt itself runs out of the furnace into rotary pans in the form of a pinkish liquid, and is immediately crystallized, the size of the crystals depending on the speed at which the pans revolve. The salt is packed hot and is suitable for table, dairy, curing, and other purposes. One advantage which is claimed for the new system over the old is that one ton of coal is sufficient for the production of twelve tons of salt. One ton of coal produces only two tons of salt by the pumping and evaporating process.

Wireless Foils Natives.

Inhabitants of Darkest Africa who delighted in decking themselves out in bracelets of wire proved a constant menace to the proper operation of the telegraph because they simply could not let the wires alone. They repeatedly cut down the lines and carried away the wire to make ornaments of various kinds for their persons. Several large mining concerns have been obliged to install "wireless telegraph communication between the railroad stations and their mines for this reason.

Indian Cradles.

Many of the tribes of North-Western Canada make cradles of birch bark, bending it into the form of a trough, adorning it with porcupine quills, and lining it with soft fur. The Sioux and other tribes of the Northern plains region formerly made their cradles of buffalo hide, with the hair left on, bending the hide into the shape of a trough, much as the tribes farther north do with birch bark. Dugout cradles are made by the Indians of the North Pacific coast, and basket-work cradles by many tribes in Southern B. C.

More probably the cradles used by all these tribes and peoples, inhabiting widely separated regions, were devised to suit climatic conditions, or because of the needs created by the nomadic habits of the people. That the cradles of the tribes of Russia and Siberia resemble those of the tribes of Western Canada is doubtless due to the fact that all lived largely by hunting. They, therefore, devised beds for their little ones that were easily transported and in which the babies were reasonably safe from accidental injury.

CHINESE JUNKS.

Their Shape Due to the Whim of Some Ancient Autocrat.

In striking contrast to the modern constitution and government of China are its industrial methods. The leaders of the new republic have succeeded in transforming the land politically, but the every day life of the people remains practically unchanged and the primitive ideals of craftsmanship still persist.

Chief among the industries which have languished for hundreds of years under the blighting influence of an ignorant, tradition bound autocracy is that of shipbuilding. Because some celestial Nero of a bygone age decreed that all ships constructed within the realm should be replicas of his majesty's shoe, the Chinese mercantile marine became a mere swarm of enlarged sampans of weird shape known as junks, and junk they surely are.

While the shipbuilders of Europe and America were gradually progressing from the caravel and the square rigged Indiaman to the clipper ship and later to the iron ship, and its lineal descendant, the modern ocean greyhound, the Chinese—pioneers in many lines of endeavor—continued to build their ridiculous seagoing slippers.

The inferiority of the Chinese upon the sea today is directly traceable to the whim of an almost forgotten ruler of the Flowery Land.—Detroit News.

A GARDEN TRAMP.

Travel of the Smiling Daisy From the Old World to the New.

Tradition has it that from the early garden of Governor John Endicott in Salem, Massachusetts, came what is now perhaps the commonest field flower in the United States. Few persons, writes Grace Tabor in "Old Fashioned Gardening," know that the pestiferous white weed, the jubilant, smiling daisy, is an imported exotic.

From this old dooryard garden it has danced to the music of the east wind straight across the land, up and down the meadows, through the long grass and the short grass, along every highway and every byway. Wherever man has gone it has followed gayly. Often it has driven him completely out of the fields he has made.

That Endicott valued the daisy enough to bring it with him to the new England from the old marks him as a man of taste, for this flower had in ancient days "found its way into the trimmest gardens; the greenswards and arbours were 'powdered' with daisies," and Chaucer wrote of it in superlatives. It is not native to England, either, however, but came from the continent, or perhaps by way of the continent, from an original home still farther east, in northern Asia.

The Evening Meal.

It is an interesting and instructive sight to watch a bevy of grouse at their evening meal in Algonquin Park. Quick and illusive as shadows they steal from knoll to knoll, their whole minds intent upon the work before them, that of appeasing their appetites, before the low call comes from the sentinel cock on the log.

As the shadows lengthen and the blue-dusky night begins to settle down, the actions of the birds will become quickened, for they realize that the command "fly to roost" will shortly be given.

And given it is. Just as the last long streaks of daylight are being drawn across the drab uplands, and the silence—that wonderful silence of the northern woods — grips the wooded world, the low "whirrit-whirrit" is sounded, and quick to obey it, the whole bevy rises as one bird, and on thunderous wings they speed away to some protecting jam-pile deep in the forest.

TO-NIGHT AT EIGHT P.M. THE GREATEST OF CONTESTS ENDS

BE ON TIME AND VOTE

Nothing Has Ever Attracted the Universal Attention of the Reading Public Like This Great Enterprise

To-night at eight o'clock will end the greatest of prize contests. It has been a great fight for fame and fortune. The different candidates have all done very good work. The readers of The Review have given the enterprise the best of support and have been helping their favorite candidate. Now comes the great question in the minds of the reading public of Peterboro and this part of Ontario. Who are the lucky ones going to be this evening at 8 p.m.? This is a question for the judges to decide, one thing is certain, and that is the candidate that wins any of the larger prizes will have to be up and going until the last moment for the race is going to be close and furious to the very end.

What to Do

To cap the climax in this great contest candidates should not overlook their friends, their close friends. Go and see them as a last resort. If they have given you a subscription earlier in the campaign get them for another to-night. It might be the winning of the Auto for you. Tell your friends what you have done and show them your results and ask their help. Be a winner.

Ballot Box

The ballot box has been locked and the combination is in the hands of the judges and it will not be opened until eight o'clock this evening when it is in the possession of the men who will count the votes. Candidates must have their votes in this box before the closing hour if they want them counted. If there are any candidates who wish to put their subscriptions and the money in the ballot box, they may do so and the judges will give the candidate the vote credit.

The Contest Department

Since the beginning of the great contest the contest department has been doing its best to have each candidate the winner of the grand prize. Every candidate has been urged to get every subscription and they deserve great credit for their effort. It is the advice of the contest department that each and every candidate get every subscription possible between now and eight o'clock. Bear in mind that the candidates are many and the prizes are few, and some have got to lose to-night, and do not be numbered among the losers, unless you absolutely have to. Your effort, your success, 8 p.m. to-night.

WHY MARGARET REFORMED.

The Big Black Bear That Bit Her Cured Her of Telling Stories.

Mrs. Brown lately awoke to the solemn fact that her young daughter, Margaret, was gifted with an oversized imagination, which threatened to run into exaggeration, and this might very easily soon develop into decided prevarication. And so this enthusiastic disciple of the new psychology called Margaret to the stand for a hearing.

"Margaret," said she, "do you remember what happened to those children in the Bible who told stories—how the big bears came out of the woods and ate them all up?" She had gone a little astray in her Biblical history, but we will let that pass.

"Oh, yes, mamma," said Margaret, with gooseflesh shivers, "I remember. Wasn't it dreadful! And I'm not going to tell another story as long as I live, because, mamma, would you believe it?—only yesterday when I was playing in the back yard a great, big black bear came out from under the currant bushes in the garden and bit me right on the knee!"—Chicago News.

All at Sea.

He was a tall, angular individual, who had strayed up Michigan avenue from the Park row station.

Taking in the sights on the boulevard, a theatrical sign caught his eye.

Strolling toward the ticket office, he bought a ticket in the gallery for 50 cents. The ticket man had forgotten all about the stranger, when at 9 o'clock he reappeared at the box office and said:

"Say, young feller, when does this show start?"

"Why, it started an hour ago."

"Well," replied the wanderer, "why don't you let that stairway down, so that I can get up there?"

The stranger had been standing under the fire escape waiting for the sectional stairway to be let down.—Chicago Record-Herald.

J. Gillespie Stewart Prominent Young Business Man in Town Wins The Grand Prize of the McLaughlin Buick Touring Car

HUNDREDS OF NEW NAMES; MILLIONS OF VOTES

Miss Minnie Logan Wins Second Grand Prize of the $400 Newcombe Piano—Many Other Winners of Beautiful Prizes

It is over.

The Review's Big Prize Contest closed Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, in a blaze of interest and enthusiasm.

At the hour mentioned the ballots were turned over to the judges, who at once began to count the votes. It was "some task," too, and they did not finish until nearly 10 o'clock. The result appears below.

Far into the night Saturday, all day yesterday and to-day, the telephone wires, and even the telegraph, have been loaded with inquiries as to the winners of the magnificent prizes offered by The Review to those who did the best work in getting subscriptions.

The closing hours of the contest were marked by heavy voting. The winner of the First Grand Prize Saturday night had over fourteen million, and several others not many less. In all many millions of votes were cast.

But naturally the most gratifying feature to The Review is the large number of new subscriptions which came in—all of the very best character, all paid in advance for periods of six months to two years. As a result of the contest, The Review had added to its subscription list the names of hundreds of new subscribers. This is in addition to more than 4,000 persons already receiving the paper who took occasion to help along a friend by paying their subscription in advance.

Honors Were Well Won.

Don't think for a moment that these splendid results were attained without work, hard work, and plenty of it. They were not. The prize winners labored early and late. Other contestants worked just as hard. They all deserved well, and The Review's only regret in connection with the whole affair is that all could not have won big prizes. But that was clearly impossible. However, provision was made that other prizes should go to those who came near the goal and yet failed of it. Diamonds and gold watches reward contestants who gave their time and hard work to the cause and yet did not land one of the major prizes.

Nor does the benefit end there. Every candidate, whether a winner or not, is better able to fight the battle of existence to-day than when he or she entered upon the contest two months ago, or whenever they went into it.

The Winners Feel Proud.

The winners are proud, and they have reason to be. Prizes like these are not picked up every day. Even if they had done nothing else for the past eight weeks, they would be well paid for their labor.

And the losers do not need to feel discouraged. Most of them did the best they could. It was inevitable that some should lose, just as it was certain that some would win. It is always so in the battle of life, whatever your occupation. Game losers are as much admired as are the winners, and those who took part in The Review's contest and failed to land a big prize are that kind.

As Viewed by The Review.

The Review did not spend hundreds of dollars in conducting a prize contest for the sake of the fun there was in it, you may be sure. It meant a tremendous lot of hard work. It meant no little risk. It meant certain disappointment to some of our friends, which was felt just as keenly by us as by them.

It was a business proposition with The Review. Already far in the front in Ontario journalism, it was determined to achieve the very first position in the matter of circulation, and the contest was started as the means to that end, and it succeeded. It cost us money to get these new subscribers. But it gave us the very cream of the newspaper-reading public in this part of Ontario. That the people who pay for a paper in advance are people well worth reaching is recognized by advertisers everywhere. And so, as a result of the contest just closed, The Review is able to say not only that it has a very large subscription list in Peterborough, but that it is made up of the most desirable people and the most valuable to advertisers, that it is possible to get.

The Grand Prize Winner.

The winner of the Grand Prize in the contest was J. Gillespie Stewart, the eldest son of Joseph Stewart, of this city. Mr. Stewart comes from one of the best known families in this city, his father and mother having resided here for the past 38 years. Mr. Stewart did not win this big prize without an effort, he worked from morning until night, in the country and in all the nearby towns, and his effort deserves the reward he received Saturday night.

Mr. Stewart wishes to thank his many friends for their support, also the Review for its prompt delivery of the paper to its subscribers, and for the Review's fairness in conducting the contest.

Second Grand Prize Winner.

The second grand prize, district No. 1, was won by Miss Minnie Logan. There was a very close vote between the two big prizes in District No. 1. Miss Logan was a very hard worker in the contest, her many friends have been giving her their assistance since she started in the contest, and did their best to make her the winner of the prize she won. Miss Logan had a great many other duties besides her work in the contest and had it not been for this fact she undoubtedly would have done a great deal better.

Miss Logan is to be given great credit, as one of the most energetic candidates in the great race, as the contest was on very nearly three weeks before she entered it, and by the prize she won it can be seen that she was very active from the time she started until the close. Miss Logan wishes to thank her many friends for their kindness and support during this great campaign.

The First Prize Diamond Ring.

Mr. J. J. Cocks, a well-known business man of the North End, the winner of this beautiful ring, was one of the hardest working candidates of the contest, although working under a great handicap, having to take care of his store most of the time, he well deserves the prize that he won. He also wishes to thank the many friends that helped him during this great race, also the Review for the squareness in which they conducted the contest.

The Second Prize Diamond Ring.

The winner of this beautiful ring, Miss Lottie Davis, who is a very prominent young lady of this city, was a very active candidate throughout the contest. She wishes to thank each and every one that helped her during this campaign, also the Review for the courteous treatment given her during this great race.

The First Prize Gold Watch.

Adjt. McElheney, of the Salvation Army, who was the winner of this beautiful watch, was very much handicapped by his other duties, was a hard worker, and wishes to thank the Review and his many friends for their kindness during the contest.

The Second Prize Gold Watch.

A very prominent young man, H. H. Lees, the winner of this prize, who was a little late in getting into the race, was a live wire, and certainly deserves the prize he won.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

The First Prize Diamond Ring.

R. C. Strickland, of Lakefield, was the winner of the first prize in his district, and was a hard worker from start to finish, and well deserves the credit for winning this prize.

The Second Prize Gold Watch.

Miss Florence Fairbairn, one of Lakefield's most popular young ladies, who was the prize winner of this Gold Watch, deserves great credit. Miss Fairbairn feels very proud of her prize, and wishes to thank her many friends for their support and the Review for its kindness to her.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL SOCIETY

Provincial President Addressed Meeting at the Lyceum.

Mr. J. J. Seitz, of the United Typewriter Co., of Toronto, and Provincial President of the St. Vincent de Paul Societies of Ontario, was in the city yesterday and addressed a very large number of the Catholic men of this city in St. Alphonsus Lyceum yesterday afternoon. Mr. Seitz explained at length the work of the St. Vincent de Paul Societies along the line of charity and also dealt with the work that lies not only at the door of this society, but every Catholic man along the line of morality . The evils of the big cities throughout the world are only known partially in this city, but they are coming this way with great rapidity, and it is the duty of the Christian man and Christian societies to check them. The speaker related several personal experiences and urged his listeners to be "up and doing" and assist the clergy in their battle against the great evils which threaten the world at the present time.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, D.D., Very Rev. Dean McColl and Rev. J. J. O'Brien who were present, all spoke a few words along the theme of Mr. Seitz's address and heartily thanked him for his helpful and instructive lecture.

It is anticipated that a branch of the St. Vincent de Paul Society will be organized in the Parish of the Sacred Heart in the near future.

COBOURG SHOOTING

Dr. Elliott is Nearly Killed While Walking on Street

COBOURG, March 30. — William Banford, aged 24 years, was committed for trial late Saturday afternoon on a charge of attempting to shoot Dr. H. C. Elliot. Commitment followed upon startling incidents earlier in the afternoon, which caused considerable excitement. Fortunately no one was injured. It is not improbable that the accused man will undergo examination as to his sanity.

It appears that Dr. Elliot on going to his office, found that a door and a window had been smashed, the marks indicating the use of an axe. Chief John Ruse was called, and with Dr. Elliot made a thorough examination of the office. Nothing had been removed, and there was no clue to the perpetrator of the damage.

Later in the day Banford approached Dr. Elliot on the street and drawing a revolver fired and would probably have killed the doctor but for the timely intervention of Chief Ruse.

ANNIVERSARY AT ST. JAMES'

Rev. H. B. Kenny of Bowmanville Preached to Large Congregations

The anniversary services at St. James' Methodist Church yesterday were conducted by the Rev. H. P. Kenny, president of the Bowmanville District. At the morning service he spoke on the rewards of the Christian soldier who puts forth energy during this life and thereby is made worthy of a victorious entry into eternal happiness. In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Kenny spoke to the Sunday School classes.

The church was taxed to its greatest capacity in the evening, when Rev. Mr. Kenny dwelt on the marriage in Cana as recorded in St. John, Chap. 2, Verses 9-19: "When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was (but the servants which drew the water knew), the governor of the feast called the bridegroom. And saith to him, every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine: and when men have well drunk, then that which is worse: but, thou hast kept the good wine until now."

The reverend speaker showed how the speech of the governor of the feast not only referred to the feast of Cana, but also was the underlying principle in Christian life. Many start out and gradually grow worse till the latter part of their lives is worse than the first. On the contrary there were some who started out and gradually became more virtuous, and it was the latter class he urged his congregation to follow.

The congregational tea will be held to-night in the basement of the church, and Mr. Kenny will give the address. Rev. J. N. Clarry, pastor of St. James' Church, was in Bowmanville yesterday, but will be present at the entertainment to-night.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA AND HER BASSET HOUNDS

Amongst the 4,239 dogs shown at Crufts' Dog Show in London were five of her Majesty's basset-hounds from the Sandringham kennels, and to these as they were brought to a halt before her, their royal mistress gave biscuit taken from a bag which her kennel-man produced from a pocket of his coat. Her Majesty sat in a "Royal box" specially fitted up on one side of the Hall.

FLORIDA---THE RURAL ASPECT

Written for The Review by a Peterboro Lady

Numerous long drives, in quest of health and rereation, in this bewitching old land, furnished opportunity for study and observation—"This old land!" Yes, and paradoxical as it seems, this is also a new country, preparing for greatly increased occupancy. The decaying ruins of many a home, and the tell-tale brilliant green of what might well be termed "pine tree nurseries" of extensive park regions, attest a former residence and somewhat remote civilization, as the latter are tokens of by-gone existence of luxuriant orange groves; but now only ruin, silence and seclusion mark their soft dreamy tangle, literally and heavily draped with long parasitic moss and fadeless emerald. But the rural scenery in De Laud's environments is far from monotonous. Here and there a pretty lake stretches out its shiny expanse amid the level, glossy green. These numerous bodies of soft water have no pebbly or rock-embroidered shores like our Muskoka, but only margins of white sand. Water lilies and the finny tribe abound in the shallows or deep, but always "firm bed" waters, and here also alligators live.

Ever and anon, perhaps where least expected, comes a glimpse or plain view of cultured acres of citrus fruit, bowing to the very earth with weight of their golden beauties, and at the same time profusely studded with the bursting buds of embryotic oranges, tangerines and grape-fruit, which with usual conditions, mature in early winter. Hard by, looms up a princely mansion, unique in architectural elegance, with no dearth of modern and luxurious equipment, while nature and art form a "combine" to emphasize the loveliness of immediate surroundings. And yet, all may be so completely hemmed in by the serene enchantment of simple, yet complicated, indigenous growth, that a query may intrude as to the site of primal Paradise!

Wealth, aided by natural advantage, has erected many Edenic homes in this salubrious clime, whose enterprising, industrious proprietors enjoy the full scope of nature's glory, while measurably immune from requirements, pressure and ceaseless whirl of commercial and social centres. There are also many almost Elysiane states, whose owners began "at foot of the ladder," and by dint of perseverance and industry have won a rightful title to genius.

It goes without saying that these notes deal with only a little part of a spacious State, where Spanish rule once flourished; a land laden with loveliness and climatic favor, but also laden with earth's "common lot." We visit, pass and repass De Land's beautiful necropolis—made so sacred to the writer as the last resting place of a venerable and beloved parent (who once abode in far away Peterboro.)

Oh, in the dawn of one bright Morn,
 Which cometh sure and fleet,
The veil will lift and Heaven's gift
 Be Paradise replete!

'Twill be enough —eternal years—
 The converse here denied.
If but transformed when Christ appears,
 We shall be satisfied!

ASQUITH SURPRISES HOUSE BY ASSUMING WAR PORTFOLIO; MUST NOW SEEK RE-ELECTION

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, March 30.—The first intimation the House of Commons had of Col. Seely's resignation was when the former War Secretary entered the House and took a seat on the back benches instead of among his former colleagues in the front row. The Prime Minister's form of words in announcing that Col Seely had paid the penalty for his indiscretions was, "Col. Seely's resignation has been accepted." Asquith's announcement that he himself would assume the war portfolio surprised the House. Having announced his intention to take up the office, he declared he would retire from the House of Commons in accordance with law "until it pleases my constituents to sanction my return."

He then walked dramatically out of the cha[illegible] amid a frantic demonstration by his supporters. Mr. Asquith having accepted "an office of profit under the Crown," must now seek re-election in East Fife, where he had a last election majority of eighteen hundred.

FINE ADDRESSES AT THE S. A. TEMPLE

Major Hay, of the Men's Social Work of the Salvation Army in Montreal, conducted the week-end services at the Temple and on Sunday.

His subject Sunday morning was The Triumph of Devotion. He addressed a large and interested gathering in the evening on the subject, David's Ghost. Major Hay has had considerable experience with Salvation work and his addresses were of particular interest.

BODY OF MISSING FOREIGNER FOUND

Was Taken From Pond at Havelock, Sunday Afternoon

LOOKS LIKE MURDER

Havelock, March 30. — At three o'clock Sunday afternoon, the body of a foreigner was found floating in the C. P. R. pond, just east of the C. P. R. shops, by another foreigner, who notified the officers of the company.

The body was taken from the pond and handed over to the authorities pending an inquest.

The body is believed to be that of N. Duloff, who while working in the employ of the C. P. R., mysteriously disappeared in the early part of December of last year. Although the affair was thoroughly investigated by the Provincial and C. P. R. officers, no trace could be found of the man, and it was thought that he had met with foul play, and that his body had been deposited in the pond.

The formation of ice made it impossible for the pond to be dragged.

Parts of clothing, identified as having been worn by Duloff, were found in the company's ashpit, and these bore traces of blood.

The general opinion was that the man had been the victim of a plot, hatched by some of his own countrymen, with the object of securing his money, as it was found during investigation that he had drawn a large sum from the Post Office Savings Department.

Another suspicious feature was that one of the foreigners who worked in the party with Duloff left the town suddenly on learning that an investigation was in progress. It is reported that this man fled to his own country, and that he has since been arrested and held on suspicion.

The body still bears some of its clothing, and there is a hole behind the ear, indicative of a bullet wound.

A brother of the dead man is still here. An inquest will be held today.

Mr. Ross Covert, of Clarke's Jewellery store, was in Havelock yesterday, and saw the body of the foreigner when it was taken from the pond.

COL. SEELY'S RESIGNATION IS ACCEPTED

Generals French and Ewart Take Definite Step

LLOYD GEORGE ILL

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, March 30.—Col. Seely, Secretary for War, resigned his portfolio to-day, and the prime minister accepted his resignation.

London March 30. — Generals French and Ewart definitely resigned from the army to-day.

London, March 30.—David Lloyd George is ill at Walton-on-Thames, and will not be able to participate in the discussion to-day on the Ulster situation. Prime Minister Asquith has decided to take the War Portfolio himself.

TROUBLE AT THE CREEK

High Water and Ice on the Program as Usual

The rumbling little stream which silently flows down through the centre of the city has, during the past few days assumed a ferocity that would rival the Fraser. Each spring the creek swells more or less, and although the prospects are that no unusual height will be attained this year, it is at present causing the engineering department a little trouble.

Street Commissioner Evans has been on the job all day endeavoring to free the ice above Brock Street and large cakes have been rushed onward to Spalding's Bay. This ice has accumulated considerably and has formed a dam under the George street bridge, but it is gradually breaking away. The water is about ten inches below the crib, and it is hardly possible that it will rise much higher unless a heavy rain occurs.

Unlike the story in the Review on Saturday evening about the heavy snow and flood which occurred forty-four years ago, there has been comparatively little snow this year, and many of the "old timers" declare that no one need worry about the water being exceptionally high this year. Nevertheless, some of the residents in the vicinity of the stream in the west end would just as soon see the water a few inches lower.

MR. L. M. HAYES IS APPOINTED SENIOR JUDGE

A despatch from Ottawa states that Mr. L. M. Hayes, K.C., has been appointed senior judge for the County of Welland. The other vacant seat in Welland County goes to Mr. A. Spotton.

The judgeship of Northumberland and Durham is given to Mr. H. A. Ward.

CHORAL SOCIETY

A meting of the executive committee of the St. George Choral Society will be held after the rehearsal next Tuesday night in Coleman's Parlours. All members should be present as important business is to be transacted in connection with the production of "Judas Maccabeus" on April 29th next.

THREE YEARS FOR HAGEL, TWO FOR WESTLAKE

Winnipeg, March 30.—"Notwithstanding the verdict of the jury I say that in truth and fact I am not guilty." So spoke Percy E. Hagel Saturday morning when asked by Justice Curran if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him. Hagel was then sentenced to three years imprisonment, and John Westlake to two years.

His lordship spoke feelingly and referred to the fact that strong influences for which he had the highest personal regard had been brought to bear on him in connection with leniency for Hagel. He stated, however, that those who had come to him had not in any way affected his own mind in the matter, for he had been inclined to leniency. He left, however, that he had duty to perform to society, and thus he felt that he could not do less than sentence the accused to three and two years respectively.

MUNICIPAL POLITICS IN SCHOOLS

A PROPOSAL has been made by some boards of trade and by some business men, that a chair be established in the University of Toronto, for the teaching of municipal politics, in order to secure better municipal government in Ontario. The proposal is short sighted. In all reputable universities municipal government is studied in the department of political science. A chair of municipal politics would be an improvement in that it would provide more specialized studies in that department. Those that study political economy in the universities are very few, compared with the number of men who take part in actual municipal affairs. The majority of students of politics at the present time proceed to the legal profession, or else into newspaper work. To obtain more scientific methods of conducting municipal government, the public school is the place to begin its study. There are a great many men whose education does not proceed farther than the public school entrance. They learn all about the Andes Mountains, the icy fields of Greenland, or the rivers of Africa, but they learn really nothing of what might be called civics. They know the names of the Counties and the county towns "off by heart," yet they leave school without knowing how to put a motion or the simplest rules of debate. The scientific study of what government means, municipal, provincial or federal, is left to the universities to teach. Even those that have a high school education, know nothing of the history or functions of councils and of the various offices from a theoretical standpoint. The majority of men actually conducting the affairs of municipalities have learned nearly all they know from hearsay and newspapers. Hence it is a common thing for motions to be made out of order, for language to be unparliamentary, for serious mistakes to be made, when much of this could be avoided. If there were some teaching in the common schools of the province on municipal politics, the mistakes which are so common in municipal government would be avoided. They are, usually, not due to lack of ability, but rather to ignorance of what right procedure and practice is, or to a misunderstanding of municipal laws.

We remember when the public school curriculum was considered too extensive, and, as a result, history, physiology and hygiene, were to all intents and purposes, taken off the course. To add a heavy subject like civics, or the teaching of municipal law, to the present curriculum would not be the proper remedy, yet it is in the public school, where such a study should begin and to do that, the public school course would have to be lengthened in time to perhaps another year. The increasing importance of instruction, like agriculture and nature study shows that the present course, which has been one of long standing, has fallen behind the needs of the people. To maintain a high standard of education which is essential, and to take up new studies like civics and agriculture, which are both very important, the present curriculum will have to be reconstructed.

There is another matter that also needs reform, that is, laws relating to municipal government. These are sadly in need of revision—even lawyers dispute the meaning of some of the statutes governing municipal affairs. How then, could the ordinary layman know what is correct, when lawyers are in doubt? The problem to improve municipal politics, cannot be solved by founding a chair in any university. The law must be made clear, and the youth of the country must be properly trained in the practice and procedure of the political machinery they may be called upon at some time to operate.

HON. G. P. GRAHAM'S SPEECH.

HON. GEORGE P. GRAHAM, ex-Minister of Railways, made a seven-hour speech attacking the N.T.R., and defending the construction of that road as it was carried out by the Laurier Government. It was a pity he took seven hours to deliver his speech. He could have said all the essential things he did say in one-fifth of the time, but that would not be in keeping with the Liberal policy. He must use up seven hours of some 250 members' time, a total 1,750 hours, which, if all the time of the clerks and attendants at the House of Commons is considered, must have cost the country well over $2,000. When a speech costs that amount of money and is given by an ex-Cabinet Minister, it should be of a higher standard than the yards of noisy talk with which Mr. Graham addressed the House. After five hours of declamation, the main points of the report were only more firmly established.

Mr. Graham defended the expensive scale on which the line was constructed. Grant that curves and grades of a different standard would have been cheaper, but that the roadbed is more permanent and efficient by reason of the more expensive construction, that does not alter the fact that the cost of the road was excessively more than the highest estimates placed before the public by Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fielding. Mr. Graham's speech does not alter the fact, brought out in the evidence that cuttings through gravel and mixed materials were charged up at the price of expensive rock cutting, and that the C.P.R., the most profitable line in Canada, has constructed many momentum grades in the last year or so.

But the most serious side of the whole affair is that of tying up too much of the country's wealth in a permanent utility and producing financial stringency. Even though there was no mismanagement, the policy was extravagant and unsound. Mr. Graham failed to justify the Liberal party's policy, or to recover the money which, to say the very least, has been imprudently expended.

NOVA SCOTIA TIED UP IN C. N. R.

A SETTLEMENT has not yet been reached between the Borden Government and the C.N.R. The trouble seems to be the difficulty of furnishing the security demanded from Mackenzie and Mann for further assistance to their railway. Now comes the report from Nova Scotia, showing that the Provincial Liberal Government there, is worried over the affairs of the Canadian Northern. The occasion was a discussion, precipitated by the opposition, in which the financial relations of Mackenzie and Mann and the Nova Scotian Government were under consideration. It developed that the province holds $4,500,000 of bonds issued by the Halifax and Southwestern Railway Company and guaranteed by the Canadian Northern. The province formerly held a first mortgage on all the assets of the H. & S. W. R. in Nova Scotia to secure it for a loan made to the company to assist in the construction of its railway in this province. Last year the province released its mortgage, authorized the company to issue bonds to the extent of $20,000 a mile on about 370 miles of road, and accepted the $4,500,000 of bonds in lieu of its mortgages.

The Nova Scotian government recognizing the present weakness of its security has made strong representations to the Federal Government, urging assistance to the Canadian Northern. Nova Scotia has imitated Saskatchewan in its dealings with the C.N.R. but the Borden government will not be true to the Canadian people if it backs down, by giving assistance not properly secured to the railway, which has hood-winked too trustful provincial assemblies.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

FOR A CONSIDERABLE time, the Review has been publishing the assessment. It has tried faithfully to reproduce it, in order that the public may make comparisons as to assessed values and notice any mistakes that may exist in the assessor's roll. We have been informed of several mistakes, such as wrong names for the owners of property, mistakes in the spelling of streets, and other errors, which should be corrected in the roll by those concerned. If time is not available to go to the assessor personally telephone or write, so that Peterborough's assessment will be as correct and fair as it is possible to be.

THE SUGGESTION has been made, that a clean up day be inaugurated, in order to have the city put in spick and span condition. There is a by-law to which citizens have to conform, in regard to cleaning up their yards and lanes Most people do not like dirt, and a clean city should be the desire of everyone. In some places prizes are given for the prettiest back yard which necessitates cleaning and care, and planting of flowers. If everyone in the city took some action to beautify their own property, and keep their own yard clean, the improvement would be immense.

W. DAVIDSON, M.P., for Annapolis, N.S., is a new star on the political horizon. His trenchant and brilliant analysis of the Hon. G. P. Graham's defence of his work on the N.T.R. was the best amongst some very good things. By many, he is thought to have excelled Mr. Meighen, who like Mr. Foster, is a master of attack. The Conservative party is developing quite a number of powerful debaters.

THE TORONTO STAR describes Mr. Burnham, M.P., as a "rapid action thinker." It is not unfriendly in its criticism, but it fails to note that Mr. Burnham's presentation of the theory of Protection as the only hope of Labor is what it really fears most.

WITH THE letting of the last large contract on the T.V.C. and only two small sections remaining which will be easy of completion, the opening of the T. V. Canal is almost in sight.

Has Proved His Foresight.

Hamilton Spectator.

Apropos of Gen. Gough's resignation the other day his action recalls an incident in the South African war, in which he was concerned. It appears that Gen. Methuen ordered him to make a frontal attack on the Boer rifle pits at Magersfontein. Gough, satisfied of the futility of the undertaking, demurred, and was told that he must either accept the duty or return to England. He chose the latter course, and demanded a court-martial, but never received it. Gen. Wauchope was sent instead on the forlon hope, and the unfortunate fate of himself and a large numer of his Highlanders is a matter of history.

She Made Her Hang Up.

Everybody's Magazine.

A young lady took down the receiver of the telephone one day and discovered that the line was in use.

"I just put on a pan of beans for dinner," she heard one woman complacently informing another.

She hung up the receiver and waited for the conversation to end. Upon returning to the telephone she found the women still talking. Three times she waited, and then, at last, becoming exasperated, she broke into the conversation.

"Madam, I smell your beans burning," she announced, crisply.

A horrified scream greeted the remark and the young lady was able to put in her call.

Extravagance vs. Cupid.

Leslie's Weekly.

There are 750,000 men and women in New York, under 35, who are not married, and, as far as appearances go, do not intend to get married.

Go into any theatre in any large American city and note the rows of young women sitting together, and the corresponding groups of men. Why are they not coupled off as in the smaller cities? Simply because the modern girl has developed an extravagance that the young man refuses to stand for. She must have a $2 seat; she expects a box of American Beauties with it; if the weather is cold, a taxi is required; and if her escort does not take her to a lobster palace after the show, he is regarded as a "cheap one."

And the same thing goes on after marriage, even if the husband's salary is small. He must go on working, of course, but she is to be henceforth a lady. She must have her maid, her laundress, her dressmaker, and she frets because she has no auto.

MR. HORSE

By Walt Mason

The good old horse, of sterling worth, has not yet fallen off the earth. I notice by the public prints that steeds of all the standard tints, strawberry roan, claybank and bay, buff cochin, black and dappled gray, bring just as much as horses brung before your motor cars were sprung. When something new has come to pass, some engine-driven thing of brass, some cart that eats up gasoline instead of browsing on the green, the prophets say, "This spells the end of Dobbin, man's old trusty friend! This gives the last, the final jolt, to every gelding, mare and colt! The equine tribe might just as well sit quiet while we toll its knell. For traveling, the motor car, than any horse is better far; and when it comes to heavy freight the motor truck can hit the gait; so there's no place on earth, indeed, for any bald-faced sorrel steed." And yet the steeds refuse to creep, heart-broken, to the rubbish heap. Their heads and tails are high in air, and they are wanted everywhere. They caper, beautiful and nice, commanding such a gorgeous price bologna makers can't afford to purchase samples from the horde.

ATTEMPTED TO ASSASSINATE EX-PRESIDENT

MADRID, March 30.—A despatch received here from Barcelona says that an attempt was made yesterday to assassinate Jose Santos Zelaya, former President of Nicaragua, at Casa Torres, where Zelaya resides.

A man who said his name was Rosas, and who declared that he was a Nicaraguan, entered the residence of Zelaya, drew a revolver and fired at the astonished ex-President. Zelaya was not hit by the bullet. Rosas was immediately overpowered and arrested. Replying to questions put to him by the police Rosas said Zelaya when President of Nicaragua was responsible for the death of his uncle, and that he had been pursuing him ever since in order to avenge his dead kinsman.

St. Frances' Graduate Killed.

NEW YORK, March 30. — Arthur J. Slevin, said to be a graduate of St. Francis College, Montreal, was found murdered in the cellar of a Sixth avenue saloon, where he was employed, yesterday. He had been choked to death with a belt, and his skull cleft with an axe. The pockets of the clothes were inside out, but the police said that as Slevin was without money they did not believe robbery was the motive for the crime. An employe of the saloon is being sought for.

Slevin, 26 years old and formerly a salesman for a Chicago packing house, was said to be the son of the owner of a chain of barber shops in Boston. Letters and postal cards from a young woman living up state were found in Slevin's pockets.

Birthdays of Note

MONDAY, MARCH THIRTIETH

The Rev. R. E. Knowles of Galt, one of Canada's best known novelists and the author of several entertaining books, was born forty-six years ago to-day in the village of Maxwell, Ontario. He says that one of the most amusing incidents in his life occurred one day when a man and woman came to his manse to be married. With his wife as one of the witnesses, Mr. Knowles went through the ceremony and, according to his custom, closed the performance by kneeling down and asking the Divine blessing on the couple, with a special petition that the man might be abundantly blessed in his business. As the two were leaving, he incidentally asked the groom what calling he followed and was somewhat dismayed to find that he as a saloonkeeper. "Well," said he to Mrs. Knowles, after the door had closed, "I'll just have to tell God, that that petition about prospering the fellow's business is one that he needn't fulfil."

SPECIAL CORNER FOR AFTER DINNER READERS

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE

A Story of the Workings of Lynch Law.

By John Turner

One evening when the stagecoach stopped at the tavern at B., a town in New Mexico, a melancholy looking man alighted, with no baggage but a gripsack in his hand, and, being received by the landlord, the two went inside together.

"Landlord," said the stranger, "I have come out here from the east to settle and try to make a living. I have been recommended to this town, among others, as one likely to grow, and I've concluded to put in my stake here, but I haven't a cent. It's better to tell you this in the beginning than to stay with you awhile and then have you turn me out for nonpayment of board. I'm an educated physician and hope to gather a practice. If you'll board me while I'm getting patients I'll pay as I get in fees."

"That's just the kind of man we want out here," replied the landlord. "I like the frank way you put the case. It shall not be said that Jim Henderson refused to help any man coming into New Mexico to try to make a living. Most of our people who have come here from the east have come strapped. If they hadn't been strapped they wouldn't have come. But I don't remember any of them that have been as frank about it as you have. Enter your name on the register; supper is ready, and after you've filled up I'll show you to a room."

The newcomer thanked the landlord for his kindness and entered his name as "Dr. George Atwater, City."

"I see you don't give the point you hail from," said the landlord.

"What's the use? I'm a citizen of this town."

"So you are—so you are. Nobody here cares where anybody comes from or what he's done elsewhere so long as he behaves himself after he gets here."

Dr. Atwater was recommended by Henderson, the landlord, and occasionally got a case in some one of the guests of the tavern. He became popular in the town and would have succeeded had there been more people or a greater proportion of invalids there. But B. did not grow as fast as had been expected and was a very healthful place. Atwater managed to pay his board by turning over a fee when he got one, but after he had been at the tavern about a year there came an interval when not a person in the town was ill, and, there being no fees, there was no money to pay board.

In new countries where there is no law the punishment for crime is usually assumed by a vigilance committee. There may be conditions of society where a vigilance committee is better than no law or even poorly administered law, but after all Judge Lynch is but a return to barbarous methods. There were at this time more or less shooting going on among the citizens of New Mexico and considerable horse stealing. There was no objection to the shooting so long as each man had a fair chance, but the horse stealing was bitterly condemned. A vigilance committee was organized to punish murderers and especially horse thieves. Since shooting them was not considered murder the principal business of the committee was catching and punishing horse thieves.

One day Bill Evans, one of the committee, entered the barroom and office combined of the tavern. Henderson was sitting by the stove with his back to the door, while Dr. Atwater was leaning against the bar. Evans came in just in time to hear Henderson say to the doctor:

"You haven't paid any board in four months."

That was all the conversation Evans heard, for Henderson, hearing a step, turned, and the doctor left the room. The remark made no further impression on Evans than to acquaint him with the fact that Atwater was in debt for his board.

One day Dr. Atwater received a letter that seemed to produce a marked effect upon him. After reading it he put it back in its envelope without remark, but Henderson, who was with him at the time, noticed that he had received some unwelcome news. The landlord, however, was not a man to pry into other people's affairs and made no mention of the matter to the doctor.

It was not long after this that a summons came in the middle of the night for Dr. Atwater to attend an invalid. He went on his errand and did not return. When a week elapsed and nothing was seen or heard of him people began to talk about the case. Curiosity was the chief incentive to debate the matter, and all speculated upon a reason for the mysterious disappearance. No possible clew to the cause of his going away was suggested until Bill Evans told of the remark he had overheard when he had suddenly entered the tavern and found Henderson and Atwater together. He told it simply as it has been told here, but when it was repeated it was given as follows:

"Bill Evans come on 'em all of a suddint an' hearn Henderson abusin the doctor 'cause he woudn't pay no board."

The next version was that Evans had reported a quarrel between the two men, in which Henderson was abusing the doctor about an unpaid board bill.

It was at last reported that Henderson had Atwater on the floor, pummeling him and demanding money from him.

The citizens of B. began to keep away from the tavern, except when they went there to see if the murderer showed any signs of a guilty conscience. Strangers who knew nothing of the stigma hanging over the house still came and went. When Henderson met his former friends on the street they looked at him askance and passed by on the other side, regarding him as having blood on his hands. There was hardly a citizen of B. but pictured the popular physician followed by the man to whom he owed money, struck from behind and dragged into an empty field near the house, where the sick man was waiting for him. Curiosity to know how Henderson had contrived to get rid of the body here came in and added fuel to the flame.

One morning just before daybreak Henderson's wife heard the sound of horses' hoofs without. She awakened her husband, who arose and, looking out through the window, saw that the house was surrounded by mounted masked men. Then there was a rap at the door.

Henderson went down to answer the summons and asked what was wanted.

A man—leader of the vigilance committee—entered, forced Henderson to dress and despite the pleadings of his wife and children took him from the house and down the road for a short distance, where they stopped under a tree.

"Confess that you murdered Dr. Atwater," said the leader.

"I did not."

A rope was produced, placed around Henderson's neck and the other end thrown over a limb of the tree. The culprit was again called on to confess, but persisted in his innocence. He was drawn up slowly until he became unconscious, then lowered and when revived called on again to confess.

Believing that he would not live through another such ordeal, Henderson to gain time admitted that he had murdered Atwater, but that two other men were implicated with him. If they would give him a trial by law he would make plain the whole scheme, which was to force the doctor to tell them where he had buried a large sum of money.

The committee—there were ten of them—consulted together and agreed that it would be well to get the whole story and to do this had better stop the proceedings. So, taking off their masks, which, now that Henderson had confessed, were not necessary, they took him to the jail and turned him over to the sheriff.

Henderson secured one delay after another, while he sent out statements of his case to editors all over the country begging them to publish it in the hope that Dr. Atwater would see it and come back to save him. Several months passed, and nothing came of this effort. At last Henderson could find no excuse to put his trial off longer and made up his mind that, having confessed, he would have to swing. The trial came off, and, having invented the story implicating others, he confessed as much, giving as a reason that had he not done so he would have been put to death.

The feeling ran so high against him that, though the judge charged the jury that there was no real evidence against the prisoner and though four of the twelve jurymen at first voted for an acquittal, a verdict of guilty was handed in by the foreman.

Scarcely was the word spoken when a man was seen elbowing his way through the crowd, and when he broke into the open space occupied by the lawyers an exclamation of astonishment burst forth. He was Dr. Atwater, the supposedly murdered man.

Atwater had seen one of the notices of the position in which he had placed the man who had befriended him and hastened to save him. The reason of his coming to B. and of his disappearance from there was that he had had trouble with his wife and had been directed by the court to pay her alimony which had loaded him with debt. To escape from further demands he had gone west and practiced his profession under an assumed name. The letter he had received which had disconcerted him was from his brother notifying him that his wife had learned of his whereabouts. When called out on the night of his disappearance, instead of going to visit the patient he had traveled till morning, turning up, after several weeks' shifting, in another locality and under another name.

Before leaving the courthouse Henderson entered a complaint against the ten members of the vigilance committee for "felonious attack with intent to kill," claiming $10,000 from each and every one of them for barbarous and inhuman treatment. They were all arrested the same afternoon and lodged in the same jail in which Henderson had been confined. Some of them secured bail and were liberated; others remained in confinement until the matter was settled.

Those who were free met together and sent one of their number to Henderson with a proposition to pay him on behalf of all the committee 50 per cent of his demands if he would withdraw his charge. He declined the proposition. A meeting of citizens was called and the full amount of the claim raised by subscription. It was paid over to Henderson within sixty days, and he withdrew his suit.

Henderson paid the doctor's arrears for alimony, after which he, his wife and children and the doctor all disappeared and never were seen in B again. It is said that Henderson is a grape grower in California and that the doctor is practicing medicine in some foreign country.

Cookery Notes

Careful Marketing.

The art of marketing properly is one which requires considerable study and skill, and the exact needs of the household should be ascertained to a nicety. There is no need to buy four herrings when three are ample, neither is it wise to buy perishable goods in large quantities.

Where one person has to plan the entire work of the household special care must be devoted to the marketing to allow sufficient time for the cooking and leave the mistress of the house leisure to attend to domestic matters.

A list of the various meat, fish, vegetables, etc., which are in season each month should be kept handy, and when the housewife takes her walks abroad to do the required amount of shopping she will know exactly what can be found in the shops and by careful experience note where the best quality of goods can be obtained for the smallest possible expenditure.

Food of poor quality is never economical. Doubtful eggs are a most unsatisfactory investment. Far better pay a little more for a reliable article than make an unwise purchase. This same remark applies to fish, meat and vegetables.

All goods which deteriorate quickly should be renewed daily. Butter should be as pure as possible and after purchasing should be removed from the paper and kept in a cool larder till required.

The choice of eggs is always rather a precarious venture, one fairly reliable proof being that if the egg appears clear when held before a lighted candle it may generally be assumed that it is fresh.

Good Coffee.

An authority on culinary matters says that in making good coffee a great deal depends on the kind of coffee that is used. The price is not always to be depended on in selecting it. Sometimes better results may be obtained with a moderately priced coffee than with an expensive kind. The best plan is to experiment until you find a kind that is satisfactory and then stick to that and to the dealer who supplies it. The quality of coffee is often influenced by the way it is kept in the shop; also sometimes when out of one grade an unreliable grocer will substitute another and cheaper quality. In the buying of coffee much depends on the good faith of the dealer.

A correspondent claims that she makes splendid coffee for breakfast in the following way: She uses a scant tablespoonful of coffee to a cup of water for each person. She puts it in the coffee pot with cold water in the evening before going to bed. In the morning she lets it boil for ten minutes, then sets it back on the stove and lets it simmer for another ten or fifteen minutes. In this way she extracts all the strength there is in the coffee.

An Administration Dainty.

The charlotte russe being a favored dessert at the White House and grape juice in the menage of the secretary of state, it would seem that the grape juice charlotte russe would be popular in administration circles. To make it take a quarter cupful of cold grape juice, one-half cupful of hot grape juice, one teaspoonful of gelatin, one-half cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of double cream, white of one egg, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, lady fingers, candied violets. Soak the gelatin for five minutes in the one-quarter cupful of cold grape juice, then dissolve in the hot grape juice. Add the sugar and lemon juice and let stand till cold. Beat the white of egg stiffly and gradually beat the grape juice mixture into it. Beat till it will hold its shape, keeping in ice water meanwhile. Line glasses with lady fingers and pour in the mixture. Decorate with the cream, beaten firm, and the candied violets.

Dutch Cabbage.

The good housewives of Holland are fond of cooking cabbage as follows: Take a small head of white cabbage cut in fine shreds, four tart apples peeled and sliced, one large tablespoonful of butter or drippings, a tablespoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of pepper and a sprinkling of cheese or nutmeg. Stir over a slow fire for at least three hours. Mix together one tablespoonful of vinegar, a little flour (not more than a level teaspoonful) and a tablespoonful of jelly. Just before taking from the fire add this mixture to the cabbage. Let it boil up once or twice and serve.

Croquettes of Macaroni.

Boil one-quarter pound of macaroni in salted water until very tender. Drain and toss in saucepan with one tablespoonful of butter, half an ounce of Parmesan cheese, quarter of an ounce of cooked tongue cut in dice. Spread on a buttered platter, cover with buttered paper, press it well down and set away to cool. Divide with a knife into five parts, roll each one in grated cheese, then in beaten eggs and in cracker crumbs. Drain and serve on a folded nappkin.

Baked Pumpkin.

Peel and cut some pumpkin into dice and stew until tender, but not soft. Drain and when cold place in a buttered baking dish, add half a cupful of sugar, a saltspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of butter. Bake brown.

One cake of compressed yeast is equal to a cupful of liquid yeast.

CHILD GETS HIS SIGHT

CORNEA FROM PIG'S EYE GRAFTED TO THAT OF BABY

BALTIMORE, March 30. — Sight has been given to the left eye of David Kane, nine-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kane, of Gettysburg, Pa., through the grafting of the cornea of a pig's eye to the child's eye-ball, according to a statement of physicians at a hospital here. Certain tests, they declare, have brought out this fact without a doubt.

When the bandage was removed from the eye it was declared the child followed the course of a lighted candle, which was moved in front of him. Another test that brings out the fact more clearly is that the child now winks his eyelid if a finger or a small object is waved close to his eye.

The operation was performed last Monday, and the cornea of the pig's eye was used because it is said it more closely resembles the human cornea than that of any other animal.

The child's eye to-day is said to be perfectly clear and free from inflammation.

HIS MAJESTY'S APPEAL STARTS ALL OVER WORLD

King George Issues Message Asking Help for the Blind.

LONDON, March 30. — At the stroke of midnight the King's world-wide wireless appeal to ships on behalf of the blind was flashed from the high-power stations at Poldhu and Cape Cod.

The following is the preparatory message first sent to "operators on all long-distance steamers":

"Offer every ship you meet to-night's appeal to commanders for the blind. Also ask every ship to relay the appeal through to ships on every ocean.

(Signed) "Expanse."

Then at midnight the King's message itself, in the form of a "newspaper story," so as to be immediately available for publication in the steamers' newspapers, winged its way through the ether:

"To commanders of all steamers:

"King George and the blind.

"First wireless appeal on record.

"King George, in opening the new premises of the National Institute for the Blind on March 19, wished God-speed to the appeal for books in Braille for the sightless, which, his Majesty said, would 'Break down the barrier shutting out the blind from the common interest of life.'

"King George further said:

"'I am confident that your appeal for funds will stir the imagination of many who unreflectingly enjoy the blessings of sight.'

"Books in Braille are practically the only solace of the blind, and in view of his Majesty's speech, which guarantees the genuineness and urgency of this appeal, may we ask you to arrange during the voyage subscriptions to this first appeal on record made by wireless.

"This appeal is made to all on board of British ships and even to sympathetic friends on ships flying other flags, who are grateful that they are not blind.

"Kindly send proceeds to Lord Mayor's Funds for the Blind, Mansion House, London.

"This message is sent you gratis by the kindness of the Marconi Company.

(Signed) "J. Arthur Pearson, Honorary Treasurer of the National Institute for the Blind."

It is estimated that forty-five ships on the North and South Atlantic and on the Mediterranean within the 1,500-mile radius of Poldhu and Cape Cod, equipped with apparatus for receiving the message from these high-power stations, heard the King's appeal, and speedily transmitted it to at least fifty-five other steamers which were incapable of hearing from Poldhu or Cape Cod.

These hundred are continuing to relay the wireless appeal till it girdles the world, more than 1,000 ships ultimately getting it.

The appeal was heard by the White Star liner Baltic 819 miles away from Poldhu, and at Cape Cod it was picked up by the Carmania.

"LEAVE STATE CHURCH."

Protest Against Establishment In Germany Very Strong.

BERLIN, March 30.—What extensive proportions the "Leave the State Church" movement has attained in Germany were disclosed for the first time at a meeting of the Berlin Synod last week.

The movement is supported by free thinkers like Prof. Ernst Haeckel and Prof. Drews, and very energetically by the Social Democratic party. It was stated at the synod meeting that matters had reached a point where even the Reichstag no longer contained a Protestant majority, as considerably more than half the Imperial Parliament consisted of Roman Catholics, Jews and Socialist free thinkers who had renounced all church allegiance.

During 1913 a total of 12,731 persons were induced to desert the State Evangelical Church, and for the last six years the number aggregated more than 50,000. A speaker at the Synod meeting branded the deserters as "heathen."

The State Church authorities are feeling the effect of this on their exchequer. The German states impose a church tax amounting roundly to $5 a year, so that $250,000 of annual revenue has been lost since 1908.

The Synod adopted resolutions thanking the ministers of the church for the vigorous resistance they were offering to the movement, and appealed to the nation to support the endeavor to keep the Church of the Reformation from being wrecked.

The resolution points out that the promoters of the "Leave the Church" movement are actuated wholly by the policy of negation. They are making no effort to reform the present church or to establish a new sect. Their warfare is, therefore, assailed as deliberately malicious and unreasonable.

MOCK PARLIAMENT AT NORMAL LITERARY SOCIETY

Young Ladies Were the Government and Young Men the Opposition—Some Important Legislation Before the House

The Normal School Literary Society, held a very successful meeting last Friday afternoon, when a Mock Parliament was given by the students of Form IV. Miss Knapp also contributed an instrumental.

In the Mock Parliament, the young ladies were the Government, and the young men formed the Opposition.

The Government was represented as follows:

Miss M. O'Connor, Speaker; Miss Shearer, Premier; Miss McDermit, Treasurer; Miss McGill, Attorney-General; Miss McCarten, Minister of Education; Miss Embury, Minister of Public Works; Miss Gillespie, Minister of Forest and Mines; Miss Black, Secretary of State; Miss Thain, Minister of Agricuture; Miss Vanderwater, Member for Bruce; Miss Reid, Member for Grey; Miss Redden, Member for Welland; Miss Hunt, Member for Wellington; Miss O'Neill, Member for Lambton; Miss MacMillan, Member for Huron; Miss G. Anderson, Member for Wentworth.

The Opposition were: Mr. Kinnear, leader of the Opposition, Member for Prince Edward; Mr. Nichols, Member for West Northumberland; Mr. Munro, Member for Hastings; Mr. Nesbitt, Member for West Durham; Mr. Masson, Member for East Northumberland; Mr. McFayden, Member for West Peterboro; Mr. Minns, Member for Muskoka; Mr. B. Hart, Member for Victoria; Mr. Hallock, Member for Lennox and Addington; Mr. Mallory, Member for York; Mr. Butler, Member for East Peterboro; Mr. Wight, Member for East Durham; Mr. Buchanan, Member for ——.

Miss Duff and Mr. Cornell were the stenographers, and Mr. L. Hart the Clerk.

The Speaker called for order and then asked for the business of the day. The Clerk called for questions. The Member for East Durham asked the Minister of Agriculture his reasons for the recent legislation requiring farmers and drovers to dehorn their cattle before putting them on the market. The Minister in his reply stated that it was to decrease the cost of living, for when cattle were sold by weight, the horns weighing so much, causes the cattle to cost more, and as the horns are of no use, it is a loss for the butcher.

In describing a cow, the Hon. Minister said it was a mature calf, or it was an animal standing on four legs, brandishing a pair of horns, and used as a milk pump, but, according to the latter, a cow without horns is not a cow, as one of the Opposition told her.

Several other questions of a similar nature were asked, and the replies were equally amusing.

The next order of the day was the second reading of the bill to amend the present regulations regarding work in Normal Schools.

The Minister of Education read the bill, the main points of which were:

I. The Normal course is to last two years. One year at Normal work, six months practice work, six months Normal work.

II. School to open 8 a.m., close 5 p.m., with one hour intermission at noon.

II. No special text books.

IV. The Library to be used for flirtation.

V. Gentlemen to take sewing and cooking and be required to eat their own cooking.

VI. The course in History of Education to be extended.

VII. Art work not a necessity.

VII. Manual training course to be extended.

IX. No final examinations, but popularity and a number of friends to be the standard.

In speaking about the bill the Minister said that as most Normal students had plenty of cash and found one year too short a time to spend it, he recommended the two year course.

In reply, the Member of West Northumberland stated that if that course were followed there would be a great decrease in teachers and that the salaries would have to be raised. He also stated that if the library were used for flirtation, as the bill demanded, and that as only teachers-in-training could use it, it would be hard on the boys, as the proportion in most Normal Schools is one boy to seven girls. Then, too, it would be dangerous for the boys to go out because of the jealous rivals outside the school.

The Premier spoke next and stated that if it were hard on the boys it would be all right as it is the law of nature that the fittest survive.

The member for Victoria then dwelt on the cost of such a system and said it would decrease the number of teachers.

The Treasurer then said that section two would make students form the good habit of rising early.

The Member from Hastings replied and brought out some humorous situations which would arise from the passing of this bill. His sonorous voice and dry humor had the audience convulsed with laughter.

The Attorney General and Member for West Durham, gave very fitting speeches, bringing out many humorous points.

The Minister of Public Works in dealing with section six stated that the present book was too elementary, and that students in answering have to use their imaginations too freely, as many Normal masters can testify.

Some Amendments.

The Leader of the Opposition then brought in amendments to the bill as follows:

Section I.

Sub-section 1. The Normal course be extended to two years.

Sub-section 2. The school shall open the first Tuesday in September at 8 a.m.

Sub-section 3. That all teachers-in-training receive a salary of $25 per week throughout the said term.

Section II. School open 8 a.m. and close 12 at noon.

Section III. The Janitor to have control of the school.

IV. The duties of the teachers-in-training:

1. They shall attend regularly.
2. They shall attend punctually.

V. That only such text books as the book-dealers recommend be used.

VI. That the libraries remain unchanged, except that more papers and periodicals like the Calgary Eye-Opener, Eaton's Catalogue, etc., be placed on the shelves.

VII. That the teachers-in-training be taught dialectic, that they may be able to sucessfully dispute, contradict, and argue with trustees, parents, inspectors and any other such persons who may differ in opinion with the teachers in regard to salary, fashions, high cost of living, and rural depopulation.

VIII. That all cooking be saved and a feast held once a month.

IX. That any incompetent official present the teacher with a certificate duly signed and which calls for a salary of at least $1,000 per year.

The House then adjourned.

After singing the National Anthem the meeting closed.

A GREAT TASK AT HOME SAYS REV. DR. RAMSAY

The Question of Home Missions Dealt With at Knox Church

The Sunday morning congregation at Knox Church listened to a very fine address by Rev. Dr. Ramsay of Toronto, who took the services for Rev. H. J. Keith, who was absent from the city on a mission for Presbytery.

Dr. Ramsay dealt with the question of Missions—always an interesting subject for treatment at the morning service. The preacher dealt particularly with the question of Home Missions, and he said that there was a great task for us at home, not to speak of the work abroad.

In his introductory remarks, Dr. Ramsay explained the third and fourth verses of II Timothy: "Thou therefore endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ .... No man that warreth, entangleth himself with the affairs of this life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier."

Paul was in jail, and he was exhorting his son Timothy and all men. Timothy's work was no easy task.

In explanation of the second verse, the preacher said that unlike in modern times, when a battle is fought till victory is gained, fighting ceased during the winter and in the spring again, the fighting was renewed. Men placed the care of their business in others' hands and returned to do battle with that thought alone. They were not entangled with their own affairs.

"The Church," said the preacher, "is a standing army and has been given all the weapons with which to fight, so that she can conquer all the world. Therefore the Church must carry on Foreign Missions."

"There is a task for the Canadian Church. Must we give up? Shall we give up that work so that we can concentrate on some great work in the foreign fields?"

The Indians

In the case of the Indians, the preacher pointed out, their lands had been taken away from them. They had been made a people without a home. Are we to make them a people without a God? We did not deny God to the heathen of foreign lands; will we deny God to the heathen of our own lands? We ought not to give up work among the Indians, he said.

The Jews

Shall we not do anything for the Jews? The Jew will deeply influence the future of our land. There are no people on earth having a greater national strength than the Jews. He is not a weakling. The Jews of Canada are for the most part gathered in our cities, and they will influence our Canadian future, profoundly. The Jew needs the Messiah which he rejects.

The Ruthenians

Speaking of the Ruthenians, Dr. Ramsay said they numbered 250,000 in Canada. They had come from lands where they had not known liberty. They had been oppressed by landlords and priests and had come to the land of liberty.

Some of the young men had been educated and had gone to work among their own people. But they had not the equipment to work with. Shall we go forward or go back? They have members of provincial legislation to-day and they may have federal representatives. We ought to make Christ King over them.

The French in Quebec.

As for the French of Quebec, he would say, least of all, withdraw from the work among these people. Quebec must be the link that will hold the country together or be forever that wall that shall separate us. It was not a question of language, but what we should be most concerned about is that the Roman Catholics are trying to make the French language a means of their advancement.

There are so-called Christian shrines, but the people do not know that Christ is the only Mediator that they need, and that they can have immediate and direct communion with God. Many men have ceased to attend church; they do not believe the doctrine of Rome and they are slipping into infidelity. Surely we ought to show these people there is a purer Christianity, a higher religion than they have known.

But, some will say, what about our own stock? Do we need to send the missionaries to them? The speaker said he did not think it would be safe to send his own boy or girl out to the West, where they would be without the ordinances of religion.

Like, as with Nelson's message, "England expects every man to do his duty," a great victory was won. It is our Lord and King who expects us to do our duty. Will we heed the appeal?

Every soldier of Christ must be consecrated to his service. We must keep ourselves free from worldly entanglement. It is the common soldier that wins upon the field of battle, and the task is not too great if each will do his part.

The trouble is that we do entangle ourselves. Like Paul, we must glorify God in our business. We ought to dedicate ourselves only and entirely to Him. Many of us rob God of ourselves; we hold ourselves master of our destiny.

Dr. Ramsay addressed a largely attended open meeting of the Sunday School in the afternoon and spoke again at the evening service.

THEY DISPERSED QUIETLY!

Paris Suffragettes Only Required a Small Force of Police.

PARIS, March 30.—French suffragettes yesterday made their first attempt to hold an outdoor meeting on a street of the boulevards. The meeting had been frowned upon by the principal women suffrage associations and consequently there were few women who responded to the call for the rally.

A compact throng of male spectators was on hand for the proposed demonstration, however.

On a big board which hung from the balcony of one of the buildings, was the following inscription: "We want votes for women. We want to collaborate in making the laws we obey. We denounce with indignation the legal sham which gives us the quality of French women without the rights of citizens."

Several women made speeches, after which an attempt was made to march to the boulevards, but the demonstrators were politely dispersed by a small body of police.

Disaster at Launching.

TOKIO, March 30.—A panic followed the launching of the new battleship Fuso, biggest in the navy, Saturday. A terrific storm burst while the spectators were dispersing after watching the ceremonies, and many were killed and injured.

Hundreds of men, women and children were trampled under foot as the great throng stampeded in terror of the storm.

COPENHAGEN, March 30. — Today there is no treaty between the United States and Denmark, as the Danish Senate failed to ratify the new obligatory arbitration treaty Saturday, and the Danish Government has refused the proffered renewal of the old one made by the United States.

QUAKE CAUSES LANDSLIDE.

Section of Mountain in France Is Sliding Down Valley.

BOIVE, France, March 30. — A large section of a mountain has become detached by seismic disturbances and is slowly sliding down the valley, sweeping over everything in its path. Already a number of farms and cottages have been blotted out, and the high roads from Boive and Lanteuil, have been destroyed for more than half a mile.

Heavy rumblings indicate that the mass is gaining impetus, and the inhabitants are fleeing from their houses. Government engineers are seeking a means to limit the extent of the disaster.

HOME RULE FADES BEFORE GREATER CRISIS IN BRITAIN

"Aristocrats Against the People" May Be the Battle Cry In the Next General Election If the Radicals and Laborites Effect Their Union.

LONDON, March 30.—What has been pronounced "the greatest crisis for statesmanship in three hundred years" is simmering over Sunday. Both Houses of Parliament will train their heaviest guns upon the whole complicated affair to-day. Passions are running high and country houses, where the politicians customarily spend the week ends, are deserted.

The party leaders are conferring in London, and urgent summonses have been sent to all members to attend. If the outcome of the crisis is to be a general election in the near future, the Radical wing of the Liberal party will form a close alliance with the Labor party, the coalition crystallizing its platform into the battle cry "Aristocrats against the people." Whatever may be the merits of the coalition it seems to hold possibilities of vote-getting, which the Conservatives shy at.

The army order which Premier Asquith announced Saturday is generally considered to have been intended as a sort of charter on which Field Marshal French and Gen. Ewart might be induced to remain in their positions. Col. Seely's tenure in the office of the War Ministry seems destined to be of short continuance.

The Westminster Gazette and The Daily Chronicle, foremost among the Liberal papers, are saying that Col. Seely must relinquish his portfolio. The name of John Burns is most discussed as his probable successor.

"That a democratic Government could be carried to such lengths as to give supervision of the army into the hands of the sturdy character, who came into the limelight first as a labor agitator, would have been unthinkable a decade ago," says one paper. "Yet the recognition of the soldier as on the same plane with the officer, in the charter rights and duties which the Government proclaimed to-day, is a long step towards the same levelling of the classes."

The King's actions and attitude during the political crisis are gradually becoming known. The attacks of the Radicals and Laborites on the King for his alleged interference in politics have subsided. The Unionists are criticizing His Majesty, but quietly, among themselves, and the Unionists have the most reason to complain of the King's policy, as would appear from the most trustworthy accounts of the happenings at Buckingham Palace during the frequent conferences which the King had with the Cabinet Ministers and army officers.

The King followed his Minister's advice from the beginning of the Home Rule controversy. While maintaining impartiality, apparently he had a personal leaning toward Home Rule. The King and the members of his court were outspoken in their condemnation of Sir Edward Carson in organizing the Ulster volunteer army and resented his act in reviewing the volunteers as though they were a regular military body, and in acsuming prerogatives by reason of which the Liberals named him "King Carson."

Such an offence, as Gen. Sir Robert Baden-Powell discovered when he placed his portrait on postage stamps during the siege of Mafekin, is an unpardonable sin in the eyes of the court.

Opposing Parties Clash.

BELFAST, March 30.—Late last night three uniformed Ulster volunteers were attacked near Carrick Hill by a crowd of Nationalists. The police dispersed the attacking party and there were no further disorders. One of the volunteers was so badly injured that he had to be conveyed to a hospital.

Resignations Still In.

LONDON, March 30.—The Conservative morning papers assert that Field Marshal Sir John French and Gen. Ewart have decided not to withdraw their resignations, but no official announcement has been made or is expected until Parliament reassembles to-day. Brig.-Gen. Hubert Gough, commander of the third cavalry brigade, has left Curragh for some unknown place.

Politicians Influence Committee.

PARIS, March 30.—Two members of the committee of the Chamber of Deputies, which is investigating the Rochette affair resigned Saturday. They were Judge Delahays and Geo. Berry, who took the ground that a majority of the members of the committee were being influenced to too great an extent by politicians. The resignations of the two deputies were presented at the end of a stormy session of the committee.

A New Wireless Wonder.

PARIS, March 30. — Communication by wireless telephone between Laeken, a suburb of Brussels, and Eiffel Tower, was established last night, and the voice of a tenor singing at Laeken could be heard. This was made possible through a new and powerful microphone invented by an Italian engineer.

Empress of Japan Ill.

TOKIO, March 30.—The Dowager Empress Haruko, who is suffering from angina pectoris, continues in a serious condition at the imperial villa at Numazu, a watering place southwest of Yokohama. Court physicians are in attendance.

Lake Champlain Rising.

WHITEHALL, N.Y., March 30.—The level of Lake Champlain has risen four feet within the last 24 hours. Should the rapid thaw now in progress continue the worst flood in the history of this region will result, it is said.

Anticipating Her Needs.

The End of the Romance.

"The days will dreary seem," said he,
"When you are far away.
Though blue above the skies may be,
To me they will be gray.

"My every thought will be of you
Until again we meet.
It is so hard to say adieu
Though parting is so sweet."

"I'll think of you each day," said she,
"And dream of you each night,
And every thought that comes to me
To you I'll gladly write.

"You've promised that each day you'll pen
A word of love to me,
And that will help to cheer me when
The hours drag drearily."

But day by day no letters came,
Since fiction here is barred,
For he forgot the maiden's name,
And she mislaid his card.

ADDITIONS TO WINDSOR HOTEL AT MONTREAL

While the large bulk of the new Windsor station and offices of the Canadian Pacific at Montreal has been complete for some time past, there has been much work to do in the way of putting the finishing touches here and there, to give completeness and perfection to the ensemble. On the main floor it was necessary to lay down new flooring, open up an information bureau, a nursery, a luncheon and dining room, where not merely the employees, but the general public, can be sure of appetizing dishes at moderate prices. Part of the plan was to incorporate the old front entrance on Osborne street with the great concourse and give a new entrance on the corner, with modern and rapid elevators. This work, which did not make bulk, but was most important, and which has been carried on for many months, is now completed, and three new elevators in the north-east corner of the old building, facing at once on Windsor and Osborne streets, have been opened to the public. The old luncheon room, for that is the space used, is now beautifully tiled and wainscotted with marble, delicately veined and exquisite in polish and color, while the elevators express the latest word in speed, comfort and reliability. The whole space, which was devoted to the public, the ticket offices, and which went the length of the whole building, will now be taken over by or incorporated with the new concourse, which, large and dignified as it is, will be considerably augmented, thus giving to it a sense of impressiveness and space, which will be much appreciated by the travelling public. With a new entrance, new elevators, a big clock facing the public, the improvements and renovation will give to the old building a new and desirable character in keeping with that which the great station and office building presents to the eye from Osborne to St. Antoine Street, and which on St. Antoine Street will, with completed buildings, soon extend to Mountain Street, thus forming, in one great and dignified whole the finest terminal, almost, it might be said, on this continent. Illuminated at night with the myriad office lights, reaching to the sixteenth storey, each quivering point becoming more tenuous as the altitude becomes more marked, and enswathed by the white and softening glow of the great arcs outside, the monstrous bulk gives to the eye of the visitor the sense of power and vastness modulated by the fairy-like illumination which claims the admiring regard.

STOP EASTER DESECRATION

Fashions Obscure the Real Significance of the Day.

Washington, D.C., Mar. 30.—Designed to check what is declared to be a growing tendency on the part of the American people to make the Easter season the occasion for displaying fashionable clothes, a movement was launched here to form the "Society for the Prevention of Easter Desecration."

The members of this society would pledge themselves not to wear new articles of clothing beginning with Palm Sunday until after Easter Sunday.

In proposing the new society, the district of Columbia Christian Endeavor Union declares that the real meaning of Easter is often lost sight of nowadays because of the popular craze for new and fashionable clothing, and predicts that the movement will vastly increase the calm devotional spirit of that season.

There is nothing beter to use under carpets than old newspapers, as moths do not like printer's ink.

Make Us Prove It

When We Say to You

in an advertisement that we can, and will, sell you better clothing for the money than you can get elsewhere, MAKE US PROVE IT. Make us "show you."

When any dealer claims to give better values than someone else, make him show you what he will give you for a given sum, then come here, and see the quality of the goods that we give you for the same amount.

We like to have you compare our goods with what you can get elsewhere. We say to you "Take this suit, match it in value if you can, and we'll buy it back from you." We expect every man of good sound judgment to buy his clothes where he can get the most actual value for the money that he pays.

If we can show you that our clothing, at our prices, is the best for you to buy, we expect to clothe you. On the other hand, if you can find anybody, anywhere, who will give you more actual value for your money, we expect you to get your clothes there.

We wish that we could show every critical, discriminating clothes buyer in Peterborough this spring the unusual values we have to offer. If we could, we'd do all the clothes business in town.

We're ready "to show you."

LINDSAY GOLFERS ELECT JUDGE HARDING FOR THE FIFTH YEAR

Lindsay, March 30.—A well attended meeting of the Lindsay Golf Club was held in the Town Hall, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—His Honor Judge Harding.
Hon. Pres.—J. G. Edwards.
Vice-Pres.—R. Kylie.
Treasurer—P. Kennedy.
Secretary—L. R. Knight.
Historian and Chaplain—C. D. Barr.
Captain—J. D. Flavelle.
Asst. Captain—G. H. Matthie.
Green Committee—Judge McMillan.
Managing Committee — The officers of the club, G. H. M. Baker and L. V. O'Connor.
Membership Committee — Judge McMillan, L. V. O'Connor, P. Kennedy and A. G. Simpson.

In appointing His Honor Judge Harding to the position of president, it marks that gentleman's fifth year in the chair, his willingness to be of help to the club being highly appreciated.

Generous Offer.

Mr. G. H. Hopkins, K.C., stated that he and Mr. J. G. Flavelle had purchased the lot immediately in front of the golf grounds, and the clug in future could have the use of this ground free of charge. He suggested that a new "T" be built on the same.

BASEBALL

The following will compose the squad of the Senators, which will report at Chatham, on Monday April 29th:

Frank Shaughnessy, manager and outfielder; Frank Dolan, first base; Frank Smykal, second base; Al. Tesch, shortstop; Dusty Bullock, third base; Petie Powers, outfielder and utility catcher; Artie Lage, catcher; Oscar ,Kohl a pitcher from Cleveland; Frank Kubat, pitcher ; Billy Murphy, outfielder; Joe Lill, pitcher; Tom Kane, pitcher; Art Newman, pitcher from Toronto; Al. Bernlohr, pitcher, who had a try-out last year; Harry Donovan, pitcher; Jock Freel, shortstop; Anderson, shortstop, from Elgin, Ill. Donovan is a hold-out and Rogers is also uncertain. Terms were forwarded to Outfielder Frank Burke and if he does not report he will be traded to some other club.

Anderson was recommended to the Ottawas by Ed. Renfer, and Kohl is one of Petie Powers' sidekicks, of whom the Cleveland lad speaks in glowing terms. The Ottawas have also signed an outfielder, whose name they are not yet in a position to make public. If Rogers reports it will equip the Senators with a very formidable squad. Then if they get the men they have offered to buy outright from the Cleveland and Brooklyn clubs, competition for places on the squad will be particularly keen. Only four pitchers will be carried after June 1, so the axe will fall on some of the twirlers now under contract.

In Saturday's game between Toronto and Waco, Texas, the Leafs won 7-5, but on Sunday the Waco outfit defeated the Canadian team 8-0. A despatch says: "Bradshaw, the Berlin Canadian League youngster, succeeded Gaw in the seventh, and gained favor with the crowd. Both hits off him were for extra bases. He "winged" one player and gave one base in balls, but only one run was scored off his delivery. Trout figured in part of the game. he had two put-outs, and an assist to his credit."

The Warder has received a post card letter from Mr. Jack Spratt, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Spratt, William Street, who is now in Texas. Jack, as could be expected, is playing baseball, and apparently making good on the pitching staff of his team. The team journeyed to Hubbard, Texas, where they were billed to play a game, and as Hubbard is the home of the famous baseball player, "Tris" Speaker, the home club were exploiting him in their advertisements, and stating that he would play. Jack had the pleasure of a short conversation with the world-renowned ball player.

Mr. Spratt is attending St. Basil's College, and his many Lindsay friends will be pleased to hear that he is enjoying good health and getting along well.—Lindsay Warder.

A Meaning Remark.

"Isn't it disgusting the way she brags about her beauty?"

"Why, I did not hear her say a word about it."

"Didn't she say she entered a crowded car last evening and every man in it jumped up and offered her his seat?"
—Houston Post.

MRS. EDDY'S LARGE ESTATE

CONCORD, N.H., March 30.—J. Fernand, the administrator of the estate of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, made a final settlement of his account in the probate court.

He turned over to the trustees appointed by the court the sum of $2,590,632.18. The sum of $20,000 was set aside to defend a suit brought by Geo. W. Glover and D. E. M. Foster Eddy to recover legacies of $10,000 and $5,000, respectively. At the time the will was filed there was also presented to the court a statement showing that both persons received money prior to Mrs. Eddy's death, in lieu of the inheritance fixed in the will.

The figures given out are the first official figures as to the total value of Mrs. Eddy's estate. In her will she made a few personal bequests, giving the bulk of her property to the directors of the mother church. She bequeathed $175,000 to the second church in New York to help pay off an indebtedness.

Three Fires In 24 Hours.

TRURO, N.S., March 30. — Three fires within 24 hours caused considerable property loss to a number of owners yesterday. W. M. Lawrence's residence was damaged to the extent of $1,600 and the contents $500. Fire in M. A. Ward's drygoods store caused a loss of $2,000. Yesterday morning early the firemen were again called out by an alarm for a more serious conflagration in the west end of the town. Part of the building was a boarding-house and considerable difficulty was experienced in getting all the sleepers out.

1,300 Miles of New Road.

A new record in the establishment of colonization roads for the province has been set in the improvement and construction in the last year of 1,300 miles. The sum expended in this manner, under the supervision of Superintendent G. W. Bennett, exceeds $400,000, and the efficiency of the highways placed in the north are also considered by the department to have left old standards behind. In some cases the Government bore the whole cost and in others the localities shared by bylaw.

GENERAL VILLA HEARS GOOD NEWS FROM CARRANZA

Indications From Front Received at Chihuahua Indicate That Rebel Forces Are Not Having Much Success.

JUAREZ, Mexico, March 30. — It was believed here yesterday that the assault of Gen. Villa on Torreon Saturday night was repulsed, or at best that some incident unknown here prevented the attack.

The last word from the rebel general came at 11 o'clock Saturday night, when a telegram from him was quoted as saying that the taking of the city was not a matter of hours but of minutes.

This was premature, for even Gen. Carranza said on his arrival yesterday that he had received no word from the front, and that evidently Villa had not yet taken the Federal stronghold.

In Juarez it was confidently expected that news of the capture of the city would form the chief feature of the welcome to Gen. Carranza and the fact that no message of success of any kind was awaiting him was accepted as indicating that the fate of the city was still in the balance yesterday.

A report was received at Gen. Chao's headquarters last night that a force of Federal volunteers, or former Orozquistas, attempted to cut their way out of Torreon yesterday, but were driven back with great loss. Gen. Villa long ago gave notice that no quarter would be given any Federal volunteers found under arms, and this is prompting those in the ranks of Velasco's army at Torreon to fight with desperation. They may be killed in battle, but they know they surely will be killed if captured.

It is believed Velasco has taken advantage of this situation to force the Federal volunteers into the position of the greatest danger in the defence of Torreon.

Rebels Faring Badly.

CHIHUAHUA, March 30. — Such news as reached here from the front yesterday was unfavorable to the rebels. Wounded rebel soldiers continued to arrive by train, bringing the number now here to 538. Several hundred other wounded were being provided for at Jimines, and batches of wounded were being distributed at Parral and Santa Rosalia.

This evidence of the sanguinary at Torreon, with the suggestion that the list of dead on the rebel side necessarily would have a great tendency to make headquarters reticent about the progress of the battle. The officers admitted they have received despatches from the front, but they declined to reveal the contents.

The reports originated from one of the hospitals after more men came in, that Gen. Francisco Villa had been wounded slightly and compelled to retire from the front. The report was based merely on the word of a wounded soldier, who, however, insisted he had seen Villa wounded. He declared for moral effect the news was withheld from the rank of the rebel army.

Gen. Villa's delay in taking Torreon, it is said, has revived the belief that, should the Huerta forces drive him north, something in the nature of a northern republic embracing the states bordering on the United States will be established. The plan of separating the north from the south of Mexico has long been contemplated by some of the rebel leaders.

Unless decisive results are achieved soon the financial affairs of the rebel territory will reach a crisis, according to men in authority. Six million pesos in fiat money are in circulation in the states of Chihuahua, Durango and parts of Zacatecas, and this money is steadily decreasing in purchasing power, with no prospective reserve backing, while more is being issued.

Students Fired Upon.

MEXICO CITY, March 30. — Already small demonstrations against President Huerta have occurred in the streets of the capital. The police last night fired upon a small crowd of students who were marching and shouting "Mueras" for Huerta and making remarks derogatory to the Government.

Federal Defeat Reported.

MEXICO CITY, March 30. — Four hundred Federals have been defeated in an engagement north of San Luis Potosi, according to consular advices, which add that traffic north of San Luis Potosi has been suspended.

The occupation of Chilpancingo, capital of the State of Guerrero, by the rebels is officially admitted.

Conference on G. B. Canal Enquiry.

OTTAWA, March 30. — Chairman Sanford Evans and Col. F. S. Meighen of the Georgian Bay Canal Commission had a long conference with Hon. Robert Rogers on Saturday regarding the prosecution of the enquiry. After the conference Mr. Evans stated that the proceedings of the commission would be open to the public at all times, and that the material collected would be made public so far as possible. A full meeting of the board will be held as soon as Edward Gohier, the third member of the commission, returns from Europe.

Jap Prince Offered Premiership.

TOKIO, March 30.—The Emperor has offered the Premiership to Prince Iyecato Tokugawa, President of the House of Peers, but it is believed that the prince will decline. Should he accept the hopes of the Radicals for a pure party Cabinet would be greatly lessened.

Since the resignation of the Yamamoto Ministry on March 24, the names of several prominent statesmen, including Okuma, have been mentioned in connection with the formation of a new Cabinet.

A "Date."

He waited on the corner,
With fond emotions rife,
And waited for an hour,
But not upon his wife.

If she had so delayed him
'Stead of the girl who did
The anger that consumed him
He never could have hid.

And yet we heard him humming
A happy little tune,
And yet we saw him smiling
That sunny afternoon,

As if the sweetest fancies
Were flitting through his brain
And all the world around him
Held not a trace of pain.

BECKONED TO HUNTERS.

Monkeys Wanted Men to Shoot Their Enemy the Leopard.

The strong manner in which the leopard out for prey catches monkeys in the low country jungle of Ceylon is related by a correspondent who obtained the information from the native Sinhalese.

The leopard will not attempt to climb trees in reach of prey. When monkeys catch sight of their enemy blinking under the trees they become greatly excited, and all chatter together. As soon as the leopard hears this he lies down under a bush and begins to click his teeth together.

This noise seems to make the monkeys beside themselves with terror and excitement; they huddle together in the tree top above the leopard's head, jumping up and down on the branches, shrieking and chattering. Below, the leopard waits motionless, clicking his teeth, until suddenly one of the monkeys misses its footing and comes to the ground with a thud—and then the leopard is on it in a bound.

"I had always received this information with some doubt," continues the correspondent, "until I one day saw at any rate the first acts of the tragedy. I was traveling in thick jungle, and, my bullock carts having gone on in the early afternoon, I was following later in the evening down the same sandy track. I noticed that a large leopard had been following behind the bulls, and that he had suddenly turned aside down a small game track.

At the same moment I became aware of a tremendous chattering of monkeys in the distance. I had a Sinhalese with me and we crept through the thick jungle towards the noise.

After crawling about 150 yards I saw about fifteen to twenty monkeys jumping up and down excitedly on the top of a small tree. They seemed to be looking down at something on the other side of a large bush which was in front of me; and, when they saw us, they kept on turning their heads first to us and then to this something, leaping up and down and shrieking perpetually and—as it appeared to me—gesticulating and beckoning to us with their long thin grey arms.

The same thought came to the Sinhalese, for he whispered to me, "They are beckoning to you to shoot." I lay still for a moment thinking which side of the bush it was best to crawl round, and then I distinctly heard the click, click, click of the leopard's teeth behind it. I chose the wrong side, for as I came round all I saw was the leopard disappear in a great curving bound into the thick jungle beyond.

To prove that our claims for the Bosch-Ford Magneto are not composed of Hot Air, we make the following offer: We will install a Bosch-Ford Magneto on any Ford car, and if the owner is not perfectly satisfied, we will remove it, and refund the money.

Would not do without it for any amount, is the verdict of all purchasers.

We cannot recommend these outfits for Ford cars too highly. Come in and talk it over.

Let us prove our Assertions.

ANOTHER WEEK OF SERVICES

Evangelist Pugsley Accedes to Request of Park Street People

Sunday was a banner day for the special services at Park Street Baptist Church, and the congregation and their friends are glad to learn that the meetings will be continued this week.

Evangelist Pugsley is postponing an invitation to Fairview in order to meet the wish of the people at Park Street.

At the morning service, when Mr. Pugsley spoke on Death, eight took a stand for Christ, and at the evening service, when the church was jammed with people, he spoke on Heaven. He said heaven was real, ideal and substantial. It was a place prepared for prepared people.

At this service six people accepted Christ, making in all 181 converts during the mission. Twenty men went forward at the afternoon service for men only, when the Evangelist spoke on the subject, "Chickens come home to Roost."

JUDGMENT IS RESERVED BY MAGISTRATE

R. section foreman, gave evidence to this effect. Harold Tomas, a G. T. R. construction worker, said he saw two similar men on the 5th of April loitering around the bridge where he was engaged near the Otonabee river.

MEMBERS OF THE Y.M.C.A. AT GEORGE STREET CHURCH

The Pastor Rev. R. G. Peever Speaks on Youth, Strength and Service

There was a very large congregation in George Street Methodist Church Sunday evening, when Rev R. G. Peever preached. In the pulpit with him were Mr. Connal and Mr. Hainsworth, of the Y. M. C. A. The occasion was a special service, when some three hundred members of the Y. M. C. A. attended the church in a body. Previous to the sermon, Mr. Connal addressed the congregation on behalf of the Y.M.C.A., thanking them for the assistance and interest of George Street Church in the Y. M. C. A. He said that it was difficult to get representatives in other churches, although the Y. M. C. A. was an undenominational organization. The past season was one of the busiest in the history of the institution. The boys' department had gone away ahead, the increase being about one hundred members. The present membership was about seven hundred. They were aiming for a 1914 record of one thousand. There were from two hundred and fifty to three hundred at the banquet Friday night. Owing to the endowment, little more than half of the funds had to be raised by subscription, and he urged that parents should get acquainted with the staff, and fathers should join the institution with their boys.

There were two texts for Mr. Peever's sermon, the first one was from Luke 2-52: "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." Judges, 16-6: "Delilah said to Sampson. Tell me, I pray thee, wherein thy great strength lieth." Youth, strength and service were thus the three points in the sermon. Caring for youth is the wisdom of age. The Apostolic Church believed the end of all things would come in their day and generation. In it, there was no to-morrow. Youth is the to-morrow of the church; men look forward to it. As age advances, dreams become less frequent; yesterday, they overlooked tragedy of serious things, because they wanted comedy to laugh and enjoy life. Youth owns the future; God wants to put youth into the heart of the church, and to build round it so that the church may have it to-morrow. The church should have sympathy with youth, and not find too much fault.

Church Hungry for Youth.

The church is hungry for youth, not to help pay the bills, but because it needs youth. Christ wants boys to grow strong in body and morals. Youth is the only hope of the church of to-morrow. The church of to-morrow depends on its attitude in dealing with youth. Youth despises softies, sissies, milk sops, those spineless persons, with no convictions, without a mind of their own, without energy. Christ grew in wisdom and in stature, he was strong in purity. Would your boys not be better, the speaker said, if we had thrown into the sea the billion cigarettes used last year? Christ loved home, and was subject to his parents, he liked to go to church, and loved the Sabbath. Sabbath breakers cannot grow strong and serve God. Christ was associated on the side of the weak, of the down and out, he hated sham, hypocrisy, superficialty. Christ had convictions, and went to his death because of them. Canada wants men with convictions about home life, purity, honesty. The speaker then gave two illustrations of men and boys who had convictions of the right kind. The first was Sir George Williams, who rose from a humble clerkship to be a master of a great commercial enterprise, and who effected the great deal of good to those with whom he came in contact. There must be other things besides going to Sunday School and Church. There must be winsomeness of manner and unfailing courtesy. The second illustration was that of McLaughlin, the hero of the Iroquois Theatre fire in Chicago in 1903, and who gave up his life, saving the unfortunates in that disaster. Men must have a sense of responsibility in the discharge of duty. There must be a sense of brotherhood and a desire for thoroughness. To help in the great uplift of mankind, is the work of young men.

Announcements.

The music was, as usual, exceptionally good. Besides the ordinary announcements, Rev. Mr. Fairwell will preach next Sunday, morning and evening, it being the Sunday School anniversary. Rev. Mr. Keith will give his lecture on India Monday evening.

Scene from Denman Thompson's famous play, "The Old Homestead," at "The Grand" next Thursday. Seat sale opens to-morrow morning.

VISITING MINISTERS IMPRESS A LARGE PUBLIC GATHERING

Questions of the Day Are Discussed in Comprehensive and Masterly Manner---The Protective Policy of Borden --- The Yellow Peril --- Laurier's Transcontinental ---Naval Aid to the Motherland

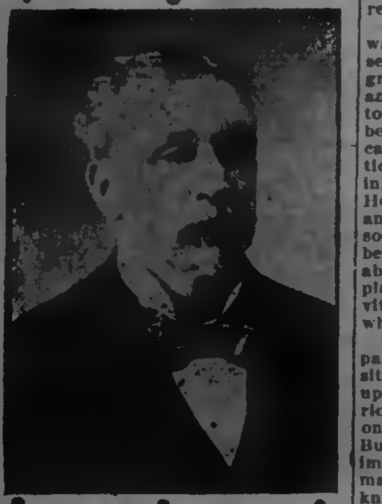
It was a great meeting. Impressive from the introductory remarks of Mayor Buller to the last word of the Hon. Robert Rogers, every address was heard with that wrapt attention which took no thought of time. Every address was finely worded, the subject matter marshalled with care, the logic clear, the conclusions convincingly established.

Mr. J. H. Burnham dealt, in his vigorous style, with the Oriental problem, and plainly showed that the most perplexing question of the Pacific Province had a vital influence on labor conditions, not only in Peterborough, but throughout all Canada. When the same problem bred talk of war in the United States and Japan, the importance of that question in Canadian politics was partly realized.

The Solicitor-General, the Hon. Arthur Meighen, delivered one of the finest addresses the citizens of Peterborough were ever privileged to hear It was a long speech, yet so well were the sentences composed so incisive was the reasoning, so clear were the conclusions that not a sound was heard throughout the house, and, even when visibly moved by the speaker's words, the audience seemed loath to break the silence by the applause which every little while punctuated the address. Mr. Meighen's speech was a masterly presentation of Conservative principles and of the record of the Rt. Hon, R. L. Borden's administration. He showed how consistent the Liberal-Conservative party has been in its promises and practice; how it has preserved a worthy continuity of policy on a protective tariff; how effective and reasonable its naval programme is and how faithfully it had carried out within the limit of its power, the pledges it had made to the Candian people. He illustrated also, how vascillating had been the policy of the Liberal party, how radical had been its pre-election cries, how narrowly conservative had been its practice in power. He ably contrasted the naval policies of the two parties, showing the abortive efforts of Laurier in power and the expensive and ineffective plans the Liberals were now advocating. He announced that very probably an election would be fought out on the naval question, and as the policies of the two parties stand, all reasonable citizens must admit there is really no choice between them. The Borden policy is the one to follow.

Mr. Meighen appeared to be in fine fettle for the occasion. He is of commanding stature, and erect bearing. He speaks with a fair amount of rapidity, yet does not run beyond his hearers. He begins slowly and impressively, and, while he uses his arms and hands to advantage, he speaks without flourish or ostentation. He gives the impression that he is always holding back something as a driver tightens the rein on a swift, nervous steed.

The Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, followed Mr. Meighen. He is a speaker of a different sort, speaks slower but more impressively. He handles details with skill, but none the less clearly, and, although the audience had been sitting three solid hours, held their attention to the last word.



MR. JAS. KENDRY. Ex-M.P.
President of the Conservative Association.

The Opera House was crowded to the doors long before the speakers arrived. The balcony, reserved for ladies, was filled likewise to capacity. About eight o'clock the 57th Reg. Band arrived and under the leadership of R. Gliddon rendered several pleasing numbers which put the audience on edge for an enthusiastic hearing of the speakers of the evening. After playing a few numbers the Mayor and guests arrived.

Mayor Buller briefly introduced the speakers and without taking up the time of the audience with an extended chairman's address called on Mr. E. A. Peck, the member in the local assembly. Mr. Peck stated, amid the vigorous applause which greeted him, that he had not the slightest intention of making a speech, and, proceeded to say that it would be out of place to dwell on Dominion matters, much less to take up Provincial matters. He said that he might have an opportunity at a later date to discuss Provincial politics.

Mr. Jas. Thompson, M.L.A., was next called upon to speak. He stated, "I am going to follow the good example set out by the previous speaker and not take up much time. However, I am proud of being a member of Sir Jas. Whitney's Government, one of the best governments of any province of the Dominion of Canada. You have heard of railways costing much money, but let me tell of 30 miles of railway built on the highest standard, equal to any railroad in Canada and at a cost of less than $25,000 per mile. Such was the record of the T. & N. O. The government of Sir Jas. Whitney has done great things for Canada. It has popularized and made possible government ownership. Mr. Beck stated in Ottawa a few days ago that $22,000,000 had been invested in Hydro-Electric and the expenses did not overrun the estimates, Sir James Whitney has demonstrated that public ownership is the best possible thing for Canada when backed by the best government possible in the interests of the people.

MAYOR BULLER.
Who was Chairman.

Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., was next called upon and made a brief speech. He was glad to be present with the honored gentlemen on the platform (applause). Mr. Burnham, he said, was modest and disliked to praise himself but he took this opportunity of praising him by saying that the people had elected a most worthy representative.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.A., M.P., was then called to address the assembly. When he stood up he was greeted with prolonged applause and the band struck up a merry tune to set things going. Mr. Burnham began by saying he didn't know what caused the band to play the selection, "I won't go home until morning," when he was an early bird. He thanked the band for its assistance and also the Conservative Association of West Peterboro, both being made up of good fellows and able to carry out the program they planned. He was pleased to be invited along with the honorable men who were to speak to them.

Ottawa was a place for developing patience, when you hear a man opposite you telling lies and keeping it up for three or four hours your patriotism urges you to get at him but one must exercise restraint. Mr. Burnham then proceeded to give his impressions of Parliament as a freshman. You know to the observer who knows a little about the subject that this assembly presents occurrences of various interests. He was thinking of the boy who told his mother a lie and was punished and in the midst of the slaps said he wanted to talk to her. He asked if he was being whipped for telling a lie. Being informed that he was he asked what about the goblins, ghost stories and fairy tales that she had told him about. You see as a family man it had never struck mother so before. When he saw ladies here he was a little fearful because there were those awful newspapers who might say things which he would have to deny later on. He was pleased to see the ladies present and stated that even if he had anything uncomplimentary to say, which he had not he hoped he would be politic enough not to state it outright.

HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN, K.C.
Solicitor-General.

One observed the passions that were aroused in the House of Commons. He recalled how Mr. Lemieux had launched into a tirade of abuse because of the attendance of a Canadian member at the Carson banquet held recently in London. He had difficulty in keeping his seat and not telling that gentleman what he thought of him. He recalled the encounter of Nicholas Flood Davin with Duncan Fraser in the House of Commons. When Fraser challenged him to a duel Davin said since he was about half the size of Fraser that he would chalk out the outline of his body on Fraser and any shots outside that line wouldn't count. (Laughter).

There is one thing and in all seriousness a most important thing for the people of Canada. He had studied it himself, and it should be studied by all. We in Canada as elsewhere are concerned with the masses of people. This is the age of democracy. We must go to the task without shrinking, its cause and interest must be looked into: we must investigate the conditions. We must give up partyism and look at all these matters in a clear way. A great danger threatens us at the present time, for there are great numbers of Asiatics knocking at our Western doors. Asiatics have been largely excluded for a number of years. There is great danger of a misunderstanding, of war, over the Asiatics in the United States, and British Columbia has been severely strained. We owe them kindness, and it is true that we are trying to Christianize them, but their entrance into Canada must mean that labor will be depressed, its reward restricted, the high standard of civilization which has been man's inheritance will have to be given up. There are 900,000,000 Asiatics and 700,000,000 whites. The former are now for the first time waking up. 1868 was the year when Japan first aroused itself, but not till 1884 did she thoroughly awake, admit foreigners and absorb western ideas. She developed and became a great power. China, with its 150,000,000 men, has recently established a republic and begun the necessary development of arts and science. They have all the resources necessary for manufacturing, raw material and cheap labor. The unskilled laborers receive from 2 to 5 cents per day and the skilled laborer no more than 35 cents per day. During the past few years it has advanced industrially and has drawn upon it the attention of the whole world.

Canada, as well as the United States, was involved. Rev. J. A. Macdonald, editor of the Toronto Globe, in a lecture in the New England States a short time ago, stated that in the great struggle of the future they weren ot alone, but the threatening influence was against Canada as well as the States. Mr. Macdonald was employed as a preacher of peace because he believed what he said. This opinion impressed Mr. Burnham greatly because it bore out what he was then remarking.

Bearing in mind that we must protect our own people, he wished to say that prosperity depended upon protecting them from too great a flow of immigrants from any country, because it unsettles the labor market to bring in too many, even from the best country in the world. (hear, hear).. He sent out circulars to the Labor leaders asking if they would agree with him that it was useless to protest against Asiatics if they allowed Asiatic goods to come in. If the Chinamen has given to him twenty to thirty cents a day he can provide unlimited products of everything that go to make up industrial life. Western capital has gone to China for investment and for making things for the western world. They will displace the west and we are threatened with something of which we are just beginning to hear the rumblings now. Let me beseech you to give ear to these things, there is no election now, look into these matters and first you will find in the past you have had no competition from these people, yet it is coming and we must seek the remedy. Seeing that this country contains abundant wealth in the ocean, on the land and in the forest, and which makes for a great civilization, then we don't know enough of the great civilization God has given us unless we preserve it for our own people. If we live fifty in a house, ten in a room, of course we can live cheaply. If we want to live that way we can deal with the Chinaman on a free competition or a free trade basis. Capital wants cheap labor and cheap food. England's trade and capital and millionaires have increased enormously, and what is the result? Her people are fleeing from the wrath to come (hear, hear.).

Yet men would refute this by mere trade returns. But if you are going to preserve your independence, that fine standard of life, if you are going to preserve that, look into these matters. I thank God that we have enough consideration for the masses who have a desire to be the best that walk on the land.

The Hamilton Trades and Labor Council said they did not care how much protection was placed on goods so long as Asiatic Labor was kept out. The same opinion came from Cobalt. The real danger to our home is the cheap labor of the Asiatics. It would not be long before cotton and steel industries would be in the hands of the Chinese if they were allowed a free hand.

Why is it that the Labor, the Conservative and Liberal parties are divided in the Old Country? Because the Unionists and the Liberals both stand for free trade, which means cheap food and cheap labor, and pauperism is on the increase in spite of old age pensions and everything that Lloyd George can do for making up in some way for what the Government does not do for fair wages and fair play for the men who earn them. (prolonged cheers).

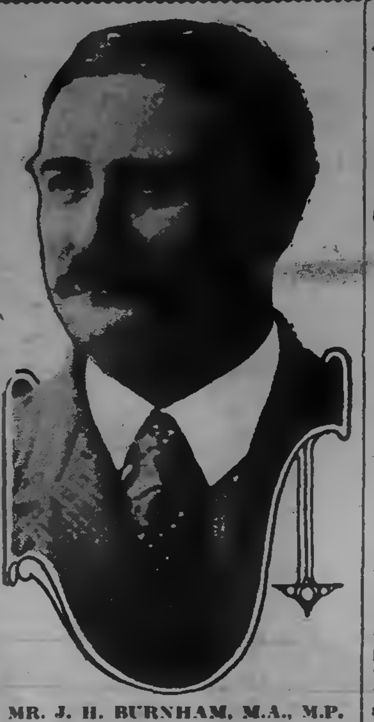
Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Hon. Arthur Meighen thanked the Conservatives of the city for the invitation to speak to them and also for the address and stated that he could but plead not guilty to the flattering references made to him in it. He claimed that the members of the House of Commons were not far removed from the ordinary man and also stated that it was a great opportunity for a man to have a chance to address such an audience under such favorable conditions. He complimented them on the fine and commodious hall and remarked how enjoyable it was to speak to such a large number and yet do so with ease, not having to raise his voice above the ordinary tone.

MR. J. J. TURNER, JR.
Secretary of the Conservative Association.

It has been the custom for a long period of time to consider the tariff as the dominant feature in politics and that every speech should have a reference to it. There was no great concern as to where the Borden Government stood. The Borden Government has had one tariff policy both in and out of office. It has no apologies and no alterations to make. it stands where it has always stood and from that point it has progressed. It was determined from early days that the Canadian people could only develop by making the most out of the natural resources of the country and seeing to it that what could come from the soil of Canada should reach the highest stage of manufacture within the confines of our own country. That is the principle of the protective policy to which the Borden Government adheres, as well as never to allow the capitalist to overtax the consumer. Protection must be a modern policy and as long as the Borden Government is in power, such it will be.



MR. J. H. BURNHAM, M.A., M.P.
For West Peterborough.

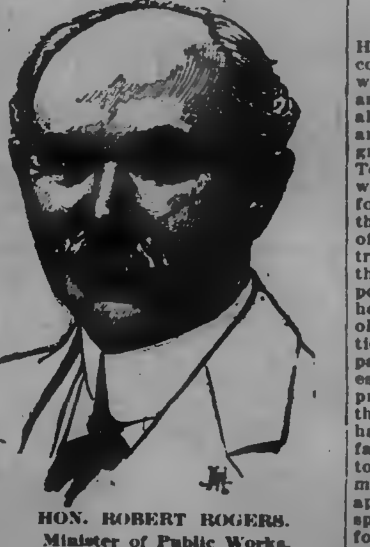
Race for Armaments

The most radical Government that has ever sat in the British Commons is trying to maintain the power of Britain on the seas as a substance and not a shadow. Now they are facing that race for armaments. No nation since the time of Philip of Spain, about three hundred years ago, has been able to maintain a first class position on both land and sea. Britain must retain her sea superiority. She does this by virtue of tremendous sacrifice, and we ought to share it. She maintains about twenty-five capital ships right on her own shores to protect the heart of the Empire. The Triple Alliance of Germany, Austria and Italy, has fifteen capital ships. In 1915 that alliance will have thirty-five, together with all other vessels concommitant and proportionate to them. Britain will have forty-one.

The speaker went into the history of the last century and showed in spite of all the safeguards for peace and peace propoganda, the great prevalence of war. The last fifteen years were the worst of all. Man, to-day, as of yore, is a creature of ambition and passion. The only safe course is to protect her peace as in the past. Do we owe nothing in return beyond Christian forgiveness, as one man phrased it? The Laurier navy is for an independent Canada. Mr. Meighen then showed from history how Britain had maintained armies and ships all over the world about a century ago, and that she sent to Canada an army equal to the entire standing army of the United States. Britain built up fortification throughout Canada,, spending $35,000,000 on Quebec alone, and a total of about $400,000,000 on land fortifications.

Course Canada Should Take.

As to what course we should take the parties in Canada were divided. There's no question where the Government stands. Mr. Borden assented to the resolution to take part in the defence of the Empire, and to build into the British Navy a Canadian Naval Service. In the first place it should be in accordance with the suggestion of the conference of 1907. In the second place there should be co-operation with the British fleet. In the third place, there should be sympathy with the supremacy of the British fleet. Sir Wilfrid introduced his naval bill in 1910, which violated every injunction of the resolution. The navy was in distinct dis-union with the British navy, in flagrant violation of the first principle of the Admiralty. (Applause.) Unity of control was insisted on, without it you waste the money of the British people. (Applause.) The Laurier Navy was not in sympathy with the British fleet. It was not at liberty to fire a shot until Parliament and Sir Wilfrid might decide that Britain was worthy and the ships should go to Britain's assistance. Mr. Borden proposed in 1909 we should go at once to the asistance of Britain and later work out our permanent policy and submit it to the Canadian people. Recently he consulted with the British Admiralty, and was told of the serious situation and of the colossal sacrifices being made. He was told that the best thing Canada could do would be to add a couple of the strongest ships that science could build or money buy. The duty of Canada was to contribute and then work out her permanent policy.



HON. ROBERT ROGERS.
Minister of Public Works.

The Corner Stone.

The British fleet is founded on the corner stone of one central control. There should be one fleet for the empire, because there is one Empire and there is going to be one so long as Borden is in control of the country.

Expensive Laurier Policy.

Speaking of Laurier's policy, the Liberals would build two fleet units of two capital ships with their appurtenances and maintain them on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, but under the control of Canada. The estimates would call for an expenditure of $67,000,000 for ships and of $70,000,000 for a plant to build them—a total of $143,000,000 for two fleet units. It's a policy of millions for contractors and prayers for the country.

It is doubtful whether Sir Wilfrid will do what he promises were he returned to power. He brought in his bill in 1910 and it was nearly two years before he bought the Niobe and Rainbow. He also advertised for tenders in April, 1911, and he kept these in his pocket, and nothing was done, for in September, 1911, he was turned out of office. Anyway, we would be no further ahead if he did spend the money—debt would be the only big thing about it. We are not independent. We stand or fall with the Empire. Britain has had one obligation in the whole defence of the Empire. There is one sea for the Empire, we must maitain our control of it, and at the same time also of our local affairs. "There is no fear of attack on the Pacific so long as Britain's strength is unimpaired. We are and propose to be a part of the British Empire on land and on one sea."

Where Do Liberals Stand?

Where does the Opposition stand? He would be a close student who could say where they do stand. He would have to read both the morning and evening press. They preached alternately reciprocity, free trade and continental free trade. No greater compliment was paid to the Tory party than when the Liberals went back on their principles and followed the Tory policy. Most of them became converts to the doctrine of protection. They believed industry should be protected and such was their policy until they went out of power in 1911. However, we now hear in the Opposition cries 16 years old. We hear them making resolutions and speeches which are now passing through kaleidoscopic changes. The party that two years ago pronounced to the Canadian people through Sir Wilfrid Laurier that they had gone the limit to the western farmers now declares they are ready to go the whole hog and put implements on the free list. Sir Wilfrid appears to be losing all sense of responsibility in his old age. Free food for all the people in Canada was his announcement in Hamilton. He would place on the farmer the burden of being compelled to pay his share and deny him the advantage of sharing privileges. But no serious attention need be paid to these doctrines, Were the Liberal party returned to power these doctrines would meet the same fate as in 1896. Protection has come to stay, our tariff policy is a protective one and the Canadian people are determined it shall remain so.

N.T.R. WAS WINDFALL TO LIBERAL FOLLOWERS SAYS MAJ. SAM. SHARPE

Conservative Speakers In N.T.R. Debate Point Out That Monument to Laurier Represents Only Millstone About the Neck of Country and a Rich Haul for Dependents of Liberal Party.

OTTAWA, March 31—Another day was spent in the Commons debating the Gutelius-Staunton report on the building of the National Trancontinental Railway.

Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine introduced a bill to amend the Vancouver Harbor Board Act so as to permit the sale instead of lease of portions of the foreshore.

W. F. Carvell (Lib., S. Cape Breton) introduced a bill to limit the number of hours of work for railway trainmen. The bill provides, except in cases of accident and obstruction, that no trainman shall be kept at work for more than fourteen hours at a stretch.

Mr. Boyce (W. Algoma) resumed the debate upon the Gutelius-Staunton report on the National Transcontinental Railway. He denounced the construction of the N. T. R. between Moncton and Winnipeg as having been characterized by fraud and dishonesty, which the Laurier Government "connived at, condoned and concealed." He said that the Canadian Pacific Railway represented the Conservative party, while the National Transcontinental represented the Liberal party. The Canadian Pacific had made confederation possible and represented progress and prosperity, while the National Transcontinental stood for a dead loss of $75,000,000 to the people, and continued high freight rates for the west.

Hon. Frank Oliver said the National Transcontinental project grew out of the determination of the Laurier Government to free the western people from the monopoly of the Canadian Pacific. Already the new road had brought about railway competition, rate reduction, and bad terminated the annual grain blockade at the head of navigation. It would give the western farmer a route open the year round and would put an end to the frantic rush to get all the wheat to Liverpool before the close of inland navigation, which meant a lower price to the farmer.

"The Conservative party fought for railway monopoly before," he said, "and to-day by the use of this partisan report they indicate the determination of the Government now in office to break the back of the only enterprise in sight which can give the four western provinces effective railway competition.

"This Government," he continued, "is spending large sums upon the deepening of the Welland Canal. I am not complaining of that, but it is as much for the benefit of the United States, with whom the Government wanted no truck or trade, as for Canada. When they are doing this they are not the people to complain because a large sum has been spent for a railway entirely for the benefit of Canada, built for Canada, located in Canada, built not only for the grain trade of the west, but for the development of Canadian ports."

Major Sam Sharpe replied briefly at the evening session. He said that the building of the N. T. R. instead of reducing rates means higher freight rates for the next two generations. The building of the line from Levis to Moncton was an absolute waste of money. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had projected the National Transcontinental in the hope of leaving a monument to himself such as Sir John Macdonald left in the Canadian Pacific Railway, but the National Transcontinental would soon be a millstone about the neck of Canada, burdening the people for years to come.

"Another purpose for building this road," Major Sharpe continued, "was to enable party favorites and camp followers to enrich themselves at the public expense. Many a Liberal pauper became a millionaire, and many a Liberal millionaire became a multi-millionaire."

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY. MARCH 31, 1914.

SENIOR JUDGE OF WELLINGTON.

HUNDREDS OF OUR citizens will join in congratulations to our fellowtownsman, Louis M. Hayes, K.C., on the preferment accorded him in his appointment as Senior Judge for the County of Wellington. Mr. Hayes was called to the bar in 1885, and practised for a short time at Toronto and Beaverton, coming to Peterborough in 1887, and entering into partnership with Mr. E. H. D. Hall, city solicitor, as Hall & Hayes. This partnership has continued to the present time, Mr. B. D. Hall being taken into the firm in recent years. He was created a K.C. in 1907, a deserved recognition. The firm enjoys an extensive practice, being solicitors for many large corporations, and has handled cases of great importance.

Mr. Hayes was twice elected president of the Peterborough Law Association, and Chairman of the Board of Education for two successive years. As a citizen, he has gained the respect and confidence of the entire community, and has a host of friends in the town and district. He was interested in military matters, and was awarded the officers' decoration, the long service medal for twenty years' continuous service. He is at present Honorary-Major and Paymaster of the 57th Regiment. The Review extends to Judge Hayes the wish that he may long live to enjoy the privilege of upholding the majesty of law in Ontario.

HIGHEST FIRE RECORD IN WORLD.

CANADA'S FIRE RECORD compared with European statistics shows the startling fact that Canada's is the highest in the world. Toronto's fire loss alone, to date, has been over three-quarters of a million. Vancouver adds to the ominous list, with a very recent loss of $600,000, by a single fire. The record is not so much an adverse criticism of fire brigades or fire fighting appliances or organizations, but, rather, a startling revelation of carelessness, laxity, and lack of proper inspection in building construction. The Woodbine Hotel fire in Toronto showed how utterly incapable the city architect's department was to determine the proper standard of hotel construction. It is quite possible there is room for a general provincial law, stating explicitly the proper standards to be followed in the erection of buildings. When these things are left to municipalities, they are apparently neglected or made inefficient by petty jobbery, or ignorance of the essential needs of the case. Certainly, some stringent legislation is required to reduce materially the fire loss, which must be considered a disgrace among European nations. An important reduction in fire loss would mean a very great saving in fire insurance, as well as reduced rates of insurance, a much smaller sacrifice of human life, as well as many other benefits of less importance.

GRITS IN A HARD PLIGHT.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, Ottawa, is till in the throes of discussion over the N.T.R. The Honorable George P. Graham advanced the doctrine that all public works exceeded the estimates. This admission is amazingly true in regard to the whole policy of the late Laurier administration, of which the N.T.R. is the most colossal example. The Honourable Adam Beck, speaking in behalf of the great Ontario Hydro Radial deputation to Ottawa, told the Government that $22,000,000 had been expended in developing the Hydro Electric system in Ontario, and the whole expenditure had been within and below the estimated cost. Here is an example flatly contradicting one of the principles on which the Liberal party mismanaged the country's business. While it contradicts the incompetence of the Liberal administration, it also commends the efficiency of the Whitney Government, and particularly the construction of the Hydro Electric system, which is one of the greatest publicly owned enterprises in the world. The ex-Minister of Railways is making a sorry picture of himself, and of the Liberal party, in trying to whitewash the extravagance and inefficiency of the Liberal management of the National Transcontinental Railway.

A WORD ABOUT EXPRESS COMPANIES.

THE VOLUME of express statistics for 1912 and 1913 issued by the department of railways and canals, contains some important facts about express companies. A very small amount of the total capital of the companies operating in Canada, is invested in physical property or equipment, and nearly everything expended to carry on their business, seems to have been provided from earnings. This fact is no ground for reproach, because express companies are forwarders, not carriers of freight. They operate with wagons, and over railways and shipping lines, and usually supply the wagons for collection and delivery purposes. They pay rent for the space occupied on the great transportation lines. The reasonableness of their earnings depends on the quality of the service supplied, and, while there are no statistics bearing on this phase of their business, the feeling is current that express charges are too high. While the express companies are forced insurers of most of the goods they carry, and while it is largely of a costly or perishable nature, they must handle it with care and speed and certainty. The relatively small amount of invested capital, the comparative safety of most of their shipping, without considering the dividends or salaries paid, are grounds for the feeling that the charges are high. The comparison of express charges in the United States with those in Canada might also bear out the same conclusion. But at any rate, such a conclusion must be passed on very inadequate evidence.

As five of the companies reporting have headquarters in the United States, the capital figures are those of the four Canadian companies only, the total being $4,805,000. Their real property and equipment were valued at the end of the year at $2,938,000, and of the total some $460,000 was represented by horses, wagons and other vehicles for collecting and delivering freight. The gross receipts from operation in 1912-13 were $12,827,000. There was paid to railway and transportation companies for privileges $5,708,000, and for operating expenses, largely wages, $5,743,000. The net operating revenue was thus $1,421,000. In the case of the Canadian companies the net earnings are given as 10.27 per cent. of the gross earnings. The rate is not heavy. The business done is shown to increase steadily, partly due to the general development, and partly to the extension of the services which cover 32,557 miles of rail, water and stage route, an increase of over 2,100 miles over 1911-12. An increase is also noted in the amount of financial paper issued. In 1910-11 the figure was $52,165,000; in 1912-13 it was $65,044,000.

Within the present year, express companies have been called upon to meet the competition of the parcel post. So far, nothing serious has resulted although in the United States there were some serious consequences. Time alone will show what the outcome of the competition of parcel post with express companies will be. Express companies have certain advantages over the parcel post system, and their future will depend largely on their efficiency or the quality of the services rendered.

KEEP IT OUT OF PETERBOROUGH.

AMONG THE IMPORTATIONS into Canada is that recently much talked of subject sex-hygiene. This very respectable name is in most cases merely a cover for filth. As such it has invaded literature, the stage, the movies, and now it tries to worm itself into the schools. Playwrights compose sex-dramas that necessitate fumigating the theatres after each performance. Masquerading as literature appears the same stuff. The "Yoke," the title of a novel, was a book the circulation in Canada of which should have been a crime. Recall the presentation of "Deborah" in the Princess Theatre, Toronto, and the subsequent litigation. Toronto Saturday Night has the following:

> "The sex hygiene curse, decked out in all its filth and nastiness, has reached Canada. A Toronto gentleman informs me that while attending a meeting of a semi-public nature, in which young people of both sexes were interested and were present, he was astonished to see boldly displayed on a table a batch of this dirty stuff, bound in pamphlet form, free to all the curious-minded boys and girls who might desire to inform themselves. In general character it was, I imagine, the same putrid mess that has been forbidden the United States mails, and which was tried for a brief time, a month in the Chicago schools and was withdrawn and buried under the protest of outraged parents.
> If this stuff is being sent through the Canadian mails it is time that the Post Office Department followed the lead of the United States and banned it as obscene. For, while we shall probably continue to have hysterical people who will do their best to help along this iniquity, there is no reason why the Government should be a party to it.

The citizens of Peterborough should take action to keep what is called sex-hygiene out of this city and out of Canada. The occasion is one for our local members to take up, for there is certainly too much dirt circulating in Canada under a respectable name. Above all things keep it out of the schools. The right sort of sex hygiene is taught in the home. Bring up strong, healthy children, the race will need none of this sex hygiene balderdash and, in the meantime, let us have what assisstance the law can give to keep the country free from this obscene trash.

The Trouble With the Magazines

Minneapolis Bellman.

Demorlization and degeneration have marked the course of most of the American monthly publications during the past few years, ever since the poluting hand of Hearst invaded the magazine field. Crude illustrations, the work of decadent or half-trained artists, have taken the place of drawings that were a delight to the eye and a gratification to the artistic sense; the scholarly and cultivated editorial touch has been superseded by the italicized sentimentality, the capitalized boastfulness of the literary bounder and charlatan. Literature has gone and the discussion of the more revolting "questions of the hour" has evicted it. Even verse has been compelled to drag miserably at the chains attached to the car of pseudo-reform, and fiction which does not deal more or less with some repellant social problem is no longer in demand.

It has come to be that scarcely one of these monthly magazines may be safely admitted to a place on the family library table without first undergoing a rigid censorship lest it contain something unfit for indiscriminate readers. Since knowledge of evil has been proclaimed the sole protector of youth and innocence, the bars against verbal and pictorial filth have been swept away, the magazines once clean and wholesome can no longer be wholly depended upon to keep the implied faith of decency and reticence with their readers.

It Struck the Spec's Sense of Humor.

Hamilton Spectator.

Rather a funny heading appeared in last Sunday's Buffalo Courier, to the effect that a meeting of protesting followers of the herring industry in the North Sea, met at Fishmonger's hall, Minneapolis (!) instead of London, Eng. This should balance up the complaint of a citizen of the former constituency, who, induced by his wife to go to church, returned with the complaint that, while the preacher amply glorified St. Paul, he didn't say a dinged word about Minneapolis.

THE CIRCUS

By Walt Mason

They grease the circus wagons now, and exercise the spotted horses, and curry down the sacred cow—and this a harbinger of course is. In training are the acrobats, those dauntless neck-and-shoulder riskers; the clowns invest in steeple hats, and sacrifice their winter whiskers. Full soon the own and only show will set forth from its winter quarters, and we shall to the big tent go, and take our wives and aunts and darters. I've lived on earth a hundred years, and most things weary me and bore me, but every time the show appears, a glad sensation travels o'er me. I'll never be so beastly old that I unmoved can see the circus, with chariots of red and gold, and flimflam gents who deftly work us. I like to watch the lion track around his lair in futile rages, to see the camel and the yak, the bughouse monkeys in their cages. I like to see the hippo swim like mermaid, in the dirty water, then turn a fond admiring glim upon the warthog and the otter. Without the circus genial spring would be a tame and plotless story; so come, oh circuses, and bring red lemonade and peanuts hoary.

FIVE YEARS FOR ARSON.

Chatham Man Goes To Prison For Firing Father-in-Law's House.

CHATHAM, March 31. — For attempting to burn down the house of his father-in-law, Edward Capman, on Taylor avenue, Gideon Jewel was yesterday sentenced to five years in Kingston by Magistrate Stanworth in the County Police Court. Jewel had trouble with his wife, and attempted to commit suicide by gas and acid, but failed. He was in a local hospital for several days, and after his release went to Walkerville.

He came back here on the evening of Feb. 19, and set fire to the house where his wife was living with her parents. He was tracked through the snow by officers and arrested on a C. P. R. express just as it was leaving the city for Windsor.

MADE THREATS AGAINST WIFE

WINDSOR, March 31. — Startling charges were preferred by Mrs. Elizabeth Rolinson, a pretty little English woman, against her husband, David, when she appealed to the police yesterday for protection.

Mrs. Rolinson declared her husband tied her and their infant baby to a chair and threatened to set both on fire if she attempted to free herself. Rolinson admitted the charges.

"I was so angry I lost all control of myself," said Rolinson when he was brought in. "It is purely a case of too much mother-in-law. My wife and I could be happy if her mother would leave her alone."

Magistrate Leggatt has taken the case under advisement.

Originally a journalist and for years an editor, first in Morrisburg and then in Brockville, he began his political career in 1898 when he was elected to the Ontario Legislature. Before the Liberal defeat of 1905 he had risen to be Provincial Secretary and afterwards he was for a short time leader of the Opposition. Then he was invited by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who made him his Minister of Railways and Canals. He was defeated in 1911 but a seat was found for him and he is to-day recognized as leader of the Ontario Liberals in the House.

VOTES FOR WOMEN NOT DEMANDED BY THE MAJORITY IS LUCAS' CLAIM

Provincial Treasurer, Speaking For the Government, on Elliott Bill, in the Legislature, Says Most Women Are Indifferent in the Matter—Debate is Adjourned—Move to Close Bars on Saturday Defeated.

TORONTO, March 31. — Although the debate was adjourned before a division was taken yesterday, J. C. Elliott's bill granting a measure of suffrage to women in municipal elections will be defeated when it comes up for a vote. Speaking for the Government the Provincial Treasurer, Hon. I. B. Lucas, said the time was not yet ripe for such legislation because the women, who should be chiefly interested, were not united in their demand for it. In fact, he said the majority were either opposed or indifferent.

Mr. Rowell maintained that although there might be a division of opinion regarding women's participation in national politics, there was none with regard to the value of votes for women in municipal affairs. The principle was accepted in Britain and in most leading countries.

Resuming the adjourned debate on Mr. Elliott's bill to extend the vote to married women property owners, Mr. Rowell demanded of the Government a statement of its position.

Hon. I. B. Lucas, in reply, said that in the world's history the granting of franchise extension to a new class had never been opposed by any in that class. This was not the case in this proposal, for a great many women were out against votes for women. If women were indifferent it would be a great mistake to press it on them, for a Government should know that any new electors were prepared to accept the full responsibility of citizenship. It was not a question of class or sex, because there were no clashing interests between the men and the women of this country, he declared. He disputed the contention that equal franchise rights would bring equal salaries. It had not done so in the U. S.

As to the effect of woman suffrage on temperance, Mr. Lucas was sceptical. There was only one state in the union where prohibition was in force and where women had the vote, and even there prohibition had carried twenty years before the first woman went to the polls. The time had not come when any good service would be performed by extending the franchise. The next point advanced was that the majority of women in the province did not want this new privilege. They had not declared for it.

Sam Clarke (Lib., W. Northumberland) declared that the question of equalization of wages had nothing to do with the matter, and that Mr. Lucas was simply dodging the real issue. If such a privilege was not in the interests of the state, it should not be permitted, but what was there in it that could be contrary to such interests? As far as he was concerned the bill did not go far enough. If he had his way he would give every woman of the age of 21 years and a British subject full power to exercise the franchise.

Mr. Rowell followed. He regretted that the Government had not seen fit to take a step in view of the widespread favor in which women's suffrage was held.

"The Government has apparently made up its mind," he said, "to kill this and all other bills of a similar character." He went on to point out that the bill did not affect the Parliamentary franchise but only the municipal one, and he did not believe that women themselves opposed it, as Mr. Lucas had intimated. In England the same privilege was granted years ago, and women were even eligible to hold municipal offices through it. It was wrong and misleading to say that women had objected to being given a municipal vote for on the contrary direct requests had been made. Mr. Rowell referred to the votes in Toronto, Ottawa and other cities, and concluded with an appeal based on the advocacy by women of advanced legislation along temperance, housing reform and general humanitarian lines.

J. G. Anderson (Bruce) and R. J. McCormick (Lambton) also spoke briefly.

The Opposition suggestion that the bars of the province be closed on all legal holidays and on Saturdays at noon went down in a division of the Legislature last evening following a short debate. Hon. W. J. Hanna said that the day had not arrived when such a move was warranted.

Wm. McDonald (Centre Bruce) was responsible for the measure on the order paper and urged it on the order paper and urged it on the ground that what was good for one day in the year (Christmas) was good for several more. It was a small start, but it would mean a blow at the treating system, for this was the way in which boys began.

In replying, Hon. Mr. Hanna said that since 1905 upwards of thirty amendments had been made to the Liquor License Act. The legislation which had cut off two hours in the morning, had been belittled, and yet the Government had received commendations from employers who observed an improvement in their staffs.

Similar conditions prevail in the township and many orchards will have to be destroyed, as they are too far gone for spraying to be of any benefit.

NEURALGIA

"Nearly Drove Me Wild, Until I Took Kephaldol."

Mr. Thomas Cooper, Ludley, Sussex, England, was almost frantic with Neuralgia, when he first took a KEPHALDOL Tablet.

"I am nearly 74 years of age and have suffered with Neuralgia nearly all my life. A friend told me about KEPHALDOL and I had my people get me a 2s. package. I took two tablets as soon as I got them and quickly received relief. It was a joy."

So great became the fame of KEPHALDOL Tablets abroad that their reputation spread to this country. The demand for KEPHALDOL grew so rapidly that arrangements were made to establish a Canadian office and supply all the druggists. These wonderful tablets, the prescription of Vienna's famous nerve specialist, Herr Doctor Stohr, have brought welcome relief to hundreds suffering from Neuralgia and Headaches, the ravages of La Grippe, Rheumatism, Sciatica and Lumbago, Pain in the Back, and in fact any pain.

If you canont get the 50c. tubes at your druggist's, write Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

Evidence

Trouble

Flatfoot is not to be laughed at—it is a serious condition, rightly called an epidemic in the modern time.

Thousands of adults suffering with rheumatism, with leg pains, weak ankles, tired and aching feet, bunions and callouses, should know that they are in the clutch of flat-foot.

The arch of the foot is breaking down, causing all these ailments.

The Scholl "FOOT-EAZER" gives permanent relief by providing the necessary elastic support to the arch or instep, and providing just the right pressure at the right spot.

Scholl Foot-eazer Eases the Feet

is made of two German Silver springs, leather covered, and are worn unnoticeably in any Shoe. Can be taken out and changed from one pair to another.

They ease the foot by helping Nature, and are a practical, orthopedic invention, endorsed by the medical profession.

"FOOT-EAZERS" brace you up—are a cure and prevention for foot troubles.

If you know of a friend whose feet are troublesome, send him in for a free demonstration of the "FOOT-EAZERS".

We will be glad to explain the advantages of any of the COMFORT-GIVING APPLIANCES listed below:—

COMMONS IN DEBATE ON SECOND READING OF THE HOME RULE MEASURE

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, March 31. — The Commons started to-day, the debate in the second reading of the Home Rule bill. It is expected that the debate will occupy three days. The absence of Asquith, who is in charge of the bill, was bitterly complained of by the Unionists. From Dublin comes the report that Asquith will be opposed in the East Fife bye-election by James Larkin, leader of the Transport Workers' strike in Dublin last summer.

London, March 31. — Viscount Morley, Lord President of Council, in response to strong pressure brought to bear upon him at the Cabinet meeting to-day not to add to the difficulties of his colleagues by giving up his office, agreed not to resign, and later in the House of Lords, announced his decision to remain in the Government.

EVANGELIST SPOKE ON THE SWORD THAT SLAYS

The Park Street Baptist Church was filled with an attentive audience last night. All were delighted with the sermon by Evangelist Pugsley on "The Sword That Slays." The Evangelist based his remarks upon Heb. 2, 12., and proved by Scripture that the weapon to slay souls was The Word of God. Eight accepted Christ at the close of the sermon. Gilbert Peter, the chorister, sang, "Never Give Up," very feelingly, and all were impressed. Everything indicates the greatest week of the campaign. Subject to-night, "What is Repentance?"

ADDRESSES OF WELCOME

Presented to Minister of Public Works and the Solicitor General

The following are the addresses of welcome, presented to the Hon. Robert Rogers, and the Hon. Arthur Meighen at the meeting in the Opera House last night.

To the Honourable Robert Rogers,
Minister of Public Works:—

Dear Sir:—

We are exceedingly pleased to have this opportunity of welcoming you to Peterborough on the occasion of your first visit to the City as a Minister of the Crown. We believe it is of advantage to those who have charge of the affairs of the country to become personally acquainted, so far as is possible, with the different parts of the Dominion, and especially with the important centres of the different districts, and we are gratified that you have found time, amid your multifarious duties as the able administrator of a very important department and a member of Parliament, to visit this City, which is the largest centre between Toronto and Montreal.

We desire to assure you of a hearty welcome as a Minister of the Crown, and as a member of the Administration of the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden. The Government has established its claim upon the support of the people of Canada by the enterprising, patriotic and prudent course it has followed since it took office, for while providing by advanced measures for the increasing business of the country, it has by its carefulness and wisdom conserved the finances and interests of the people. We know that very much more would have been accomplished if you had not been unduly hampered by partisan opposition of one of the House of Parliament, an opposition that we trust will become less effective so that the beneficial policies of the Government may be carried out to the full extent.

We wish to express to you our deep appreciation of the manner in which you as Minister of Public Works, with the concurrence of your colleagues, have taken active steps to provide for the needs of this city. We are grateful for your determination to have erected here a public building that will provide adequate accommodation for the business of the several departments of the Government, and we are sure that in doing so you will not only provide sufficient accommodation for the expeditious transaction of business, but will also have erected a structure that will be creditable to the Government that will build it and to the city in which it is located. We have also been pleased to learn that a dry dock will be constructed here, which will be of great benefit to the whole district served by the Trent Waterway, a waterway that will soon be completed and will be of immense service to the people of the district.

We heartily welcome you to Peterborough and hope that you will pay many more visits to us as a member of the Dominion Government.

Signed on behalf of the West Riding of Peterborough Conservative Association.

JAS. KENDRY,
President.
J. J. TURNER, JR.
Acting Secretary.

To the Honourable Arthur Meighen, Solicitor-General:

Dear Sir:

Permit us also to welcome you to Peterborough. We have watched with appreciative interest your course in Parliament, and have admired the very able manner in which you have supported the Premier, the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, in the efforts he has made, with the assistance of his colleagues and supporters, to give Canada honest and efficient government, efforts which have been eminently successful despite the opposition encountered from the minority in the House of Commons and the majority in the Senate.

We, in common with all who take an interest in public affairs, were greatly pleased when you were called upon to take a place of greater responsibility and usefulness as a member of the Government, where your great abilities and industry will have more ample scope and where you will be in a position to give still greater service to the country.

We welcome you also as a representative of the newer great West. You come from a part of the Dominion which has grown with great rapidity, and which will be the home of increasing numbers of Canadians. The people of the older parts of the Dominion take a very deep interest in the advancement and prosperity of the West, and have heartily supported every action taken to open and develop it and will gladly continue to do so. Geographically there is an East and there is a West, but geographically only, for from one ocean to the other we are Canadians, and all Canadians are citizens of the great British Empire.

We are greatly pleased to have an opportunity to welcome members of the Government, led by the honored Premier, a Government which has steadily grown in the esteem of the people of Canada since it assumed office, and to express our confidence in our great leader and his colleagues, and to give assurance of our continued hearty support of the patriotic policy which it is pusuing in carrying on the affairs of the Dominion.

Signed on behalf of the West Riding of Peterborough Conservative Association.

JAS. KENDRY,
President.
J. J. TURNER, JR.
Acting Secretary.

HER LITTLE SON WAS DYING

Gave Him "Fruit-a-tives" And Saved His Life.

CAMPBELLVILLE, ONT., May 5th. 1913.

"Our little boy, Lawrence, was sorely affected with Chronic Indigestion, and the doctor did not think he would recover. He started with a sore mouth and it developed into this other trouble. Everything he ate just passed right through the system without change. He cried incessantly and life was a misery to him. My husband had been using "Fruit-a-tives" for Indigestion, getting much benefit from them, and I thought what did him good, might help our boy. We tried "Fruit-a-tives" giving Lawrence ½ a tablet at a dose, and the result was marvellous. Today, he is the picture of health, and he is perfectly well".

VISITING MINISTERS IMPRESS A LARGE

Railways.

Mr. Meighen then considered the record of the Conservative Party during the two and a half years they have been in power. We ask you to review studiously and with care what has been accomplished and then to declare your verdict as you see fit, the speaker said. One of the great questions is the railway problem. Great corporations are coming to the government almost on bended knee for assistance. Why is this one of the problems? In 1903 the Liberals began the National Transcontinental. They hurried into it with impetuous speed without considering whether the conditions of traffic warranted it in whole or in part. Their leader, Sir Wilfrid had an idea he was going to be another Sir John Macdonald if he could build another great transcontinental. He went against the advice of his minister of railways and hurried the country into the project and to-day we are paying the penalty. It has cost, exclusive of interest, $117,000 for every mile and a burden of $234,000,000 has to be expended before Canada gets a dollar of rental in return. One section was little used, so much so that the rails were rusting, the ties rotting and the brush growing up and breaking the car windows (laughter).

The Canadian people has paid one and a quarter million dollars per annum in interest on construction alone, and the prospects are that there will not be sufficient traffic for one train per day. Moreover, the Intercolonial could have been made a better road for one-third of the amount. The Winnipeg to Quebec line was built at even greater expense, before its time, at a cost unwarranted in the light of expected profit. Forty millions were sunk to no purpose whatever, $6,200,000 were lost in face of the opinion of engineers; $8,800,000 were squandered on contracts which were let by a restricted system, so that only favorite ones were on the ground floor. The record of waste totals forty millions, a sum which is two-thirds of the whole revenue of Ontario since 1906.

We now come to the third transcontinental, the Canadian Northern, to which the Laurier Government bound themselves to guarantee thirty-five millions to connect it with eastern lines. These are the problems left at our door by the party out of power and we will try to solve them in the best interest of the Canadian people.

Highways.

In the matters of highways the Borden Government was pledged to do something to improve them. In the first session of this parliament a bill granting $1,000,000 to improve the highways of the country passed the Commons, the money was to go for this purpose alone and the Provincial Legislatures were to be utilized in spending it on the highways where it would do the most good. The Senate threw it out. Hoping that the midnight of their intoxication had passed they returned to the task and bound the provinces as before in the disposal of the money. The Senate threw out the bill in the same high-handed manner as before. This unreasonable action of the Senate was due, they said, to the unequal distribution of the money among the provinces. It was not for that reason they threw out the Highways Bill. If it went to law the result would be a contrast between the two parties, unfavorable to the Liberals, which the Senate couldn't stand, so they stood between the farmer, the people and good roads.

But the Senate has done more than that. The Government determined to appoint a commission to investigate the tariff in order that justice might be done to the consumer and producer. A bill to provide the commission was burned up in the Senate, just like the Highways Bill. The Senate has denied the Government the power to put in force its pledges. The Senate has denied the people the right to have their way and to allow the passage of laws by the Commoners who are sent to Ottawa to pass them

The Naval Question.

The Naval question was the next considered. Very probably the naval question will be the issue in a general election. There was a difference between the two parties on this question. In the first place why is there a naval question? We have lived here forty or fifty years and suffered from no foreign power. Many cannot understand why money should be spent for defence by sea. Europe is not the same as it was when we were in our cradles. It has vastly changed; the position of Canada is altered; we are now a strong nation in the British Empire. The world is at peace to-day; Britain is on good terms with rival powers and there is no fear of invasion, but there is also a tremendous race in the building of armaments and Britain must maintain the place she has, in her wisdom, decided to do. She is expending not six million as formerly, but $138,000,000 now. Is it the desire to keep ahead? The British Government has promised the people to keep within the smallest cost. It is done by men who know what other countries are doing and by men who know that the peace of the world is due to the power of the British Empire alone (Cheers).

Hon. Robert Rogers

As in the case of the preceding speakers, Hon. R. Rogers, Minister of Public Works, was given a very cordial reception. He acknowledged what he termed a compliment to him in the invitation to meet the people of Peterboro. "I have also to acknowledge," he said, "the many kind and generous words in the address just read by Mr. Kendry." He had the pleasure that afternoon of inspecting some of the proposed undertakings, due to the fact that in private and public enterprises, the citizens were building up a city of which they might well feel proud. This would impress upon the Government their responsibility to see that Peterboro should receive consideration along with every other growing city. There were many nice things which it was easy to say of Mr. Burnham. "I must say," said Mr. Rogers, "that as a member of the Parliament of Canada, no other member takes a place ahead of your trusted representative, in respect to his energy and his duty, for which you have sent him there, and let me say that as a result of that desire to do the best that in him is, he has won a place in the confidence and respect of the Government of to-day."

The Government proposed to build immediately, a large public building that would, he trusted, be satisfactory to the people and a credit to the growing city. "We also note your progress in another respect—the development of your waterways, and we propose to provide a drydock for the vessels that pass up and down your canal. This we propose to undertake immediately and carry out."

He was pleased at the presence of the beauty and the fashion of the city. To have the interest of the ladies, he said, augured well for the Parliament of the Dominion.

"There is no other place I would rather come than to Peterboro, and let me say that I deem it advisable for members of the Government to avail themselves of the privilege of meeting the people face to face. I deem it a necessary undertaking. You know as well as I do what changed conditions we have in Canada. There was a time in the history of Canada when truth and principle were the guiding stars to the Liberal press in the Dominion, and you know he would be a bold man to claim that either truth or principle has a place in the Liberal press of to-day. Hence the necessity of our accepting the opportunity such as you give us today, in order that we will be able to present our work and consider those affairs that will redound to the credit and satisfaction of the electors in all parts of the Dominion. We have been considering in the House at Ottawa, these last few days, the conditions of the Canadian people and the condition in which the Government finds themselves to-day as the result of the position which our predecessors have left us, in respect to the railway situation. We find ourselves face to face with one of the most serious problems that has ever faced the Government of any country. Mr. Meighen has told you of the great extravagance practised in connection with the building of the Transcontinental Railway. It has become a great burden, and it is quite clear that they have committed the greatest political crime. They have been guilty not only of maladministration, but they have been guilty of allowing a commission to rob the public treasury of forty millions.

"You ask how this was done. First of all, it was done by indefinite specifications. They had specifications made for the work and for some time they had to have lawyers to find out just what they meant. The Government took no notice of these conditions, and allowed all the contracts to be let under the same specifications and Canada to-day is spending forty millions more than they expected to pay.

"We are interested in this great work and in the work of the Western provinces—the development of transportation. That hope has now vanished because of the fixed charges, which are so fixed that it is impossible for the railway to be a factor to help the provinces of Western Canada to bring their products to the market of the world."

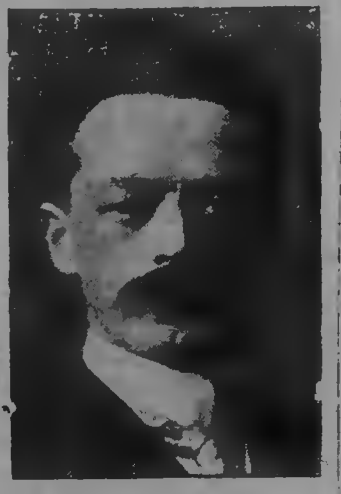
Continuing, Hon. Mr. Rogers spoke of the eloquent evidences of the products of British Columbia, of her wheat, timber, fish, fruit, and her minerals. Only sixteen millions of acres were as yet under cultivation. There were between two and three hundred millions of acres waiting to be cultivated.

Referring to the development of the waterways, the speaker said he was proud to visit the Canadian General Electric Company and to see the many buildings, the development of which any company and country might well feel proud. He was also glad to see the great milling industries here.

"But we must also see that we give the means that will enable you to carry on the manufacture and transport these products to the market, and it is to this end that the Government is spending to-day, large sums to develop the waterways."

The speaker demonstrated Sir Wilfrid's naval policy with the supposition that Sir Wilfrid's ships were out at sea and overtaken by the enemy. What could they say. "All they could say would be, 'Please, sir, don't shoot. It is true we fly the British flag, but we don't know what we are. We will go back to shore and consult Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and if he says we are Britons we will come back and fight, and not till then.' Is any self-respecting citizen of Canada going to approve of a policy like that? We owe our duty to Great Britain—a duty that should move the heart of any loyal subject to do everything possible to show appreciation of the liberty of peace and plenty we have ever enjoyed under the broad folds of the grand old Union Jack. We owe more—we owe it to ourselves, to our children, to those who come after us, and especially now, at a time of a burden that they themselves say is too great for them to carry. Every one of the overseas Dominions has responded except Canada. Here we are as Canadians tied up by the will of the Senate—by the dictatorship of one man who has never hesitated to say that he stands for independence above all other things. There is the problem we have to take up."

Hon. Mr. Rogers concluded his address amidst thunderous applause. Cheers were given for the King, the Premier, and the visitors, and the meeting was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.



MR. JAS. THOMPSON, M.L.A.
For East Peterborough.

The Luncheon

Previous to the meeting, the visitors were guests at luncheon in the Foresters' Hall. The attendance was large and representative and the function was carried out with gratifying success. The Cabinet Ministers occupied seats at the head table on either side of Mr. Jas. Kendry, and with them were Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., and Mr. E. A. Peck, M.L.A.

It was evident that the gathering enjoyed the appetizing spread, provided by Hooper and Sons, and also the music of Mr. R. J. Devey, who presided at the piano.

The toast of The King, proposed by Mr. Kendry, was honored with the singing of God Save the King, after which Mr. Kendry proposed the toast of Our Visitors.

Hon. Mr. Rogers, Hon. Mr. Meighen, Mr. Burnham, Mr. Peck, Mr. Sexsmith and Mr. Thompson replied.

Mr. Rogers made a humorous reference to Mr. Burnham's conversation with him in regard to the moral citizens of Peterboro. He noted the presence of water and the absence of smoke.

Hon. Mr. Meighen, the second speaker, said he was prepared for something original, for if ever there was an independent, courageous and original member, it was the representative for West Peterboro.

Besides the guests of the evening, there were present: W. H. Denham, E. G. Patterson, W. H. Hill, Malcolm McCulloch, A. P. MacLean, W. C. Ackerman, F. Bartlett, W. Kemp, John Bell, J. W. Miller, E. A CORRECTION.

In our report yesterday of Mr. L. M. Hayes, K.C.'s appointment to a senior judgeship, it was incorrectly stated that his appointment was for Welland, when it should have read Senior Judge for the County of Wellington, of which the city of Guelph is the County Town.

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa. — "When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown state of health, had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. FRANK CLARK, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Pa.

Women Have Been Telling Women

for forty years how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It will pay you to do so. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Dress Decrees Hit Trade.

LONDON, March 31. — The home correspondent of The Sunday Observer states that the directress of La Mode Illustree has interviewed Cardinal Merry Del Val on behalf of Parisian modistes and complained that business was suffering as a result of the strictures of the church on modern fashion, especially with South America, where rigorous instructions on dress was issued. Promising to confer with the Pope, the cardinal said it was impossible to keep a corps of artists at the Vatican to decide such points, but when dress became too outre the church must intervene.

HOUSE WILL BE TECHNICALLY WITHOUT LEADER FOR TWO WEEKS

The Latest Surprise in the British Crisis—Asquith Says "He'll Be Handy."

LONDON, March 31.—A series of sensations in the House of Commons yesterday in connection with the army crisis reached its climax with the announcement by Premier Asquith that he himself would assume the portfolio of Secretary of War, vacated by Col. Seely. He added that he would retire from the House of Commons until his constituents in East Fife re-elected him.

Field Marshal Sir John French, chief of the Imperial general staff, and Gen. Sir John Ewart, adjutant-general, declined to withdraw their resignations in spite of the army order issued on Friday, which Viscount Haldane cleverly framed as a platform on which the generals might stand with consistency and honor.

It thus became impossible for Col. J. E. B. Seely, who was co-signer with them of the assurances to Brig.-Gen. Gough that the army would not be used to suppress the Ulster opposition to Home Rule, to retain the Secretaryship of War. His resignation, therefore, was accepted, after he had been for some days under fire from the newspapers of his own party, which insisted that he must go.

Viscount Morley of Blackburn, Lord President of the Council, who was partner with Col. Seely in drafting the offending paragraphs of the document, stands in the same position, and his withdrawal from office is expected to-day.

The Premier's absence from Parliament will not last longer than two weeks, as his re-election for the Scottish division he has represented ever since he entered Parliament is regarded as a foregone conclusion.

The decision of the Premier was wholly unexpected and momentarily overshadowed the retirement of Col. Seely, Field Marshal French and Adjutant-General Ewart. Politicians were brought back to the original cause of the Ministerial crisis by the admissions of Viscount Morley in the House of Lords, which confirmed many of the Unionist charges and the intimation that Viscount Morley himself intended to retire from politics.

"Col. Seely's resignation has been accepted." This was the euphemistic expression by Premier Asquith in announcing that his War Secretary had paid the penalty of his indiscretions in adding to the Cabinet document the two paragraphs which have aroused such feeling as threaten the existence of the entire Cabinet.

The first intimation received by members of Parliament that Col. Seely had definitely retired from the Cabinet was when he entered the House and took a seat in the back benches instead of among his late colleagues.

The only practical loss to the party meantime will be the withdrawal of Mr. Asquith's voice from the debates. He will preside over the Cabinet meetings and direct manoeuvres in the House of Commons from an unofficial seat, while Reginald McKenna, the Home Secretary, and Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, will understudy him as House leader.

"Oh, I'll be handy if I'm wanted," Mr. Asquith remarked to Andrew Bonar Law, the Opposition leader, who thought that the Home Rule bill could not be proceeded with in the absence of the Premier.

Mr. Asquith apparently consulted no one except the King before his bold decision. His colleagues in the Cabinet seemed to be as surprised as the other members of the House when he revealed his plans. Mr. Asquith is already First Lord of the Treasury, which office he will continue to hold. If he had merely shifted from one office to another the resignation of his seat in the House of Commons would not have been necessary, but he said that he had been legally advised that the acceptance of "an office of profit under the crown," in the words of the statute necessitated a new election, although he will take only one salary, $25,000.

Both Houses yesterday debated the situation at great length, but the debates simmered down into merely assertions, on the one side of a plot to seduce the army, and on the other side of a plot to crush the Ulster covenanters, with denials and counter-denials and heated personalities.

TWO NEW BRIDGES TO BE CONSTRUCTED IN THE COUNTY

With the construction of the two new bridges by the County Council this year, the people of the township of Asphodel and Dummer will have a long-felt want fulfilled. Both the present structures were condemned owing to the old and dangerous condition they were in.

The bridges, when completed, will present a good solid investment on the part of the Council, and will cost about $4,000, including all work.

The Dickson Bridge Company, of Campbellford, have the contracts.

Other speculative articles, too, all showed a setback—corn ⅜c to ⅝c, oats ⅛c to ⅛c, and provisions 15c to 25c.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 30.—At the live stock market business picked up considerably, owing to the approaching end of the Lenten season. Receipts were larger, and in consequence the offerings were of a greater quantity and of better quality than of late. Drovers expected that packers and butchers would be disposed to operate more freely at a slight advance in prices, in order to secure some of the better stock for Easter trade, but the drovers were somewhat disappointed in these expectations, as buyers showed little disposition to operate any way freely at the higher prices asked. For full loads of choice Easter steers as high as $9 per 100 pounds was asked, but the top price realized for small picked lots was $8.75, and a few odd loads changed hands at $8.50, while good steers in carloads sold at $8 to $8.10, and some fair stock at $7 per 100 pounds. There were a few extra choice bulls on the market, which brought $7.50 to $7.75, and as high as $7.50 was paid for a few odd lots of choice butchers' cows. The supply was in excess of the requirements, and some were carried over for next week's market.

STERLING HEARD FROM; HAS SIGNED WITH BLOUNT

A letter from Manager Blount to-day informs the local management that Bob Sterling, last year's big slab artist, has signed up. Blount is very sweet on Billy O'Hearne a first baseman, he has added to the roll, yet he failed to furnish much dope about him. A complete list of the Petes will be available in a few days.

That mysterious figure 13. On the 13th of May last year "Wild Bill" Baker, the big St. Thomas hurler, held Berlin hitless, and on August 13th, Kirby, of Guelph, held the Saints without a bingle. The only other no-hit game was registered against Peterboro, Baker doing the trick on May 17th. Baker was the most talked of man in the league that week.

Bill Wright, who will wear an Erie uniform this season, hit for 231 bases last year. His extra base hits included 19 doubles, 15 triples and 19 home runs. At that he'll have to hit the pill to make up for our old pal LeRoy Osborn.

FEDERALS HOLD OUT.

Huerta's Forces Still Hold Three Citadels in Torreon.

JUAREZ, Mexico, March 31.—Conflicting reports have been received here and in El Paso. The Mexican Consul-General, M. Diebold, in El Paso received messages which he claimed were from Gen. Refugio Velasco, saying that everything was quiet in Torreon, that the rebels had been driven back in disorder, and that Pascual Orozco was coming with 9,000 men from La Colorado. The rebels claim that this is only one of the Federal fakes, and declare that private despatches have been received at military headquarters that Villa is still fighting stubbornly in Torreon, and has the Federals hemmed into three citadels, where he is holding them until more ammunition and dynamite may be brought up. The rebels admitted that the situation is precarious, and that the fact that five machine guns and 350,000 rounds of ammunition were rushed from the reserve arsenal here indicates that the battle is not yet over.

Suffering in Chihuahua.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, March 31.—War is reaping its whirlwind in this capital city of the Villa revolution. All day yesterday the hospital train has been flying the Red Cross flag between here and Bermejillo, which is the field hospital for the gathering of the wounded off the battlefield. There is nothing heroic in this return of the rebels, after leaving with bands playing and color flying. The hard floor of a cattle car, vermin ridden and unclean, was the only conveyance convenient for bringing back the wounded from the battle of Torreon.

Three New Judges.

OTTAWA, March 31.—Three Ontario county judgeships were filled yesterday.

Col. Harry Ward, of Port Hope, becomes county judge of Durham; L. M. Hayes, K.C., of Peterboro; senior judge of Wellington county, vice Judge Chadwick, resigned; and Anson Spotton, of Harriston, junior judge of Wellington, vice Judge Jameson, superannuated.

THE SARONIC AND HER SUCCESSOR

Demonstration of the Advancement of Modern Day Ship Construction

It was in 1883 that the Saronic, then known as the United Empire, was cut away from its moorings and slipped serenely into the blue waters of the Great Lakes. As she rode there on the shifting blue, in all her queenly splendor, none begrudged her the title of "Empress of the Lakes." She seemed to embody all that courtly mien of the then reigning sovereign of the vast Kingdom from which she took her name.

Stretched out 263 feet in length and with a beam of 36 feet, she represented the last word in shipcraft creation of her day. The world worshipped at her shrine. People looked with awe and wonder on her 1960 tons of luxury. The event of the Saronic, with its safety and excellent equipment, greatly increased the tourists' trips up the Great Lakes, from Sarnia to Fort William, Port Arthur and Duluth.

It was but a few years, however, when the march of shipbuilding science pushed the United Empire a little into the background.

Other leviathans of the deep were constructed which eclipsed the splendor of the Saronic. In some ways she was not forgotten, but grouped with other new creations.

In the matter of speed and safety, the Saronic held its own with its rivals up till 1905, when the Northern Navigation Company decided to rebuild this splendid vessel. Its solid oak frame had withstood the buffets of the angry waters in a wonderful manner and all it needed was some modern improvements in the way of passenger convenience to restore it almost to its former eminence.

But last year the ever-increasing business of the Northern Navigation Company demanded greater passenger carrying facilities than the good old Saronic was capable of, so out of this demand for a larger and finer vessel grew the Noronic. Whereas the Saronic had sleeping accommodations for but 96 people, the new Noronic can sleep 600. In the matter of dining-room facilities, the Noronic far eclipses the Saronic.

Two hundred and seventy-eight people can dine in the magnificent Noronic dining salons, while but 65 could be taken care of on the old Saronic. In many other ways, such as smoking rooms, lounging rooms and promenades, the Noronic demonstrates the advancement of modern day ship construction. The Noronic will take up the burden so long and gracefully borne by the Saronic, that of showing big bands of tourists the thousand delights of a trip from Sarnia up to Port Arthur and Duluth.

But even in the just pride the Northern Navigation Company officials feel in the latest acquisition, the Noronic, there is still a deepening feeling for the passing of the good old Saronic, which has served so faithfully and so well through all these years.

"The demands of modern day lake travel, for nothing less than a floating hotel—and greatly enlarged business, made it absolutely essential that we dispense with the services of the Saronic," said General Manager H. H. Gildersleeve, of the Northern Navigation Company, in discussing the passing of the Saronic.

"The soundness of construction of the Saronic leaves it to-day as sturdy and safe a vessel as there is on the lakes, or anywhere for that matter. It was only, as I say, the expansion of our business that caused us to sell the Saronic to the Canadian Steamship Company."

"Why, even in that awful stormy season we experienced on the lakes last fall, when so many of the big ships were wrecked, the Saronic came through without hardly as much as a scratch. er solid oak frame and firm construction stands her to plying up and down the St. Lawrence for the Canadian Steamship Company. The Saronic will render as excellent service as could be asked for. Of course, she can't compare with her illustrious successor, the Noronic, for sheer comfort, luxury and capacity, but she will do all that is asked of her and do it with a big margin of safety."

FILTRATION FAVORED.

Ottawa Citizens Support Minority Scheme by Big Majority.

OTTAWA, March 31.—After one of the most bitterly contested municipal battles in many years—a pure water supply for the capital being the issue—when ratepayers flocked to the polls yesterday and gave the project to mechanically filter Ottawa river water, at an approximate cost of $2,000,000, a majority of 1,308. In opposition to this plan was a scheme to take the water from Thirty-One Mile Lake, via a pipe line fifty-two miles long, at an estimated expenditure of $8,000,000. This latter scheme was reported on by Sir Alex. Binnie, an eminent British engineer, and the victorious project was recommended by Mayor McVeity and reported on by Archibald Currie, city engineer of Ottawa.

A majority of the council, led by Ald. Ellis, M.P.P. for West Ottawa, and mayor in 1913, who was defeated for re-election, opposed the mechanical filtration scheme, supported by The Ottawa Free Press and The Evening Journal. The Ottawa Citizen joined forces with the minority in council, and for the past few weeks a warm fight has raged.

At one time the question went to the Ontario Legislature, which finally had to decide on the wording of the ballots.

VOTE COMES TO-DAY.

U. S. House Fireworks on Canal Bill Approaches an End.

WASHINGTON, March 31. — On the eve of the vote in the House of Representatives on the repeal of the American toll exemption in the Panama Canal, Congress yesterday was completely absorbed in the controversy, verbal artillery thundering throughout the day in both House and Senate.

While opposing forces were clashing in oratorical flights at the capitol, President Wilson took occasion to discuss the all-engrossing situation with callers, expressing keen regret that what had promised to be a dignified contest over principles had degenerated into a fight upon the administration. While on the subject, President Wilson characterised as "a crowning insult of a number of insults" in the debate, the declaration of Representative Knowland of California, that the administration had made a deal to repeal the toll exemption with Sir William Terrill, secretary of Sir Edward Grey, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

Little doubt as to the result of the vote on the bill is entertained by any one, the majority for the repeal being variously estimated at from 30 to 75 votes.

AIRSHIP IS NOISELESS.

New Zeppelin Craft Has a Newly-Invented Silencer on It.

BERLIN, March 31. — Germans are delighted over the newest achievement of Count Zeppelin in perfecting an invention which makes his airships practically noiseless in the sky. Berliners had the opportunity of observing the effect of the invention yesterday when the new army Zeppelin "25" cruised over Berlin without hardly an evidence of its proximity. The passenger Zeppelin "Hansa," which also flew over Berlin during the day, gave the usual sound of its approach miles away through the rumble of its engines and propellers. All this is done away with in the newest army and navy "Zeppelins," which as newspapers proudly proclaim, henceforth will be able to sail through misty or foggy skies without themselves giving warning to the enemy that Dreadnoughts of the air are coming.

MR. L. STEVENS MEETS WITH PAINFUL INJURY

Fingers Were Caught in Cog Wheels of Ice Cream Freezer

Lindsay, March 31.—Mr. Lester Stevens, confectioner, Kent Street, met with a painful accident while putting his ice cream freezer in order, the result of which may mean the loss of the index finger of the right hand.

Mr. Stevens was in the rear of the store operating the machine at the time, when his finger became caught in the cog wheels of the freezer and it was not until an employe of the King Edward hotel arrived that his hand could be withdrawn. Besides the finger being badly ground up, which it is feared will have to be amputated, the second finger is bruised considerably.

Dr. Blanchard dressed the injured member.

COAL PRICES DOWN

As will be seen by advertisements elsewhere in this issue, J. E. A. Fitzgerald announces a reduction in the price of coal. These reduced prices do not mean inferior coal. The quality will be of the same high standard, customers always receive from this firm.

BUTTER FROM NEW ZEALAND

The first of the spring shipments of butter from New Zealand has arrived at Vancouver. The market in Montreal and Toronto fell in sympathy two cents per pound yesterday.

Lloyd George Ill.

LONDON, March 31.—David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was taken ill at Walton-on-Thames, Surrey, where he passed the week-end playing golf. The Chancellor, it was stated, would be unable to participate in the critical discussion in the House of Commons to-day on the situation brought about by the resignations of the army officers who refused to march to Ulster against the Unionists. The debating power of Mr. Lloyd George had been greatly relied upon by the Government.

Bishop Du Moulin Ill.

BALTIMORE, March 31.—Bishop Frank Du Moulin, formerly rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Chicago, now co-adjutor of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Ohio, is a patient at a hospital at Baltimore, where he went after preaching Lenten noonday services. Bishop Du Moulin has been in poor health, and when he was invited to preach in Baltimore he decided to remain for treatment. He is a native of Montreal and son of the late Bishop of Niagara.

PLENTY OF PAVING ON THE PROGRAM OF THE BOARD OF WORKS FOR THIS SEASON

Water and Aylmer Streets Between Charlotte and Brock

ALSO THE CROSS STREETS

Hunter Street Residents Want Extension West From Aylmer Street

The Board of Works last night recommended that the City Engineer prepare plans and specifications for the street paving on the following streets: Charlotte Street, from George to Water, and from the G. T. R. tracks to Park Street; Water Street and Aylmer Street from Charlotte to Brock, and the cross streets, Simcoe and Brock.

Tenders will be asked for both bitulithic and asphaltic pavement.

It was stated that a petition was being signed, with the request that Hunter Street west of Aylmer, be paved.

The contractors of last season have to continue the pavement on George Street to the C. P. R. station and Charlotte Street from George Street to the G. T. R. tracks, to complete their contract.

Ald. Duncan's suggestion that Water, Aylmer and the cross streets be paved, thus completing the hub, was endorsed by the other members.

Ald. Green opined that it might be a good idea to use both kinds of pavements, and thus find ont which is the better.

The bitulithic pavement is the more expensive.

The Board first tnought of paving Water Street to Murray, but on account of the necessary sewer operations this would be impossible.

HARRISON IS SENT UP FOR TRIAL FOR THREATENING

Beatty Swears Harrison Said "I'll Blow Out Your Brains"

Thos. E. Harrison, a farmer residing in North Monaghan, charged with threatening Chas. A. Beatty, an officer of law, was committed for trial my Magistrate Dumble this morning at Police Court.

Chas. A. Beatty, a sheriff's officer, stated that on the 24th of March last he was instructed to serve a writ on Thos. E. Harrison, of North Monaghan. Harrison said, "If you touch a thing on this place I'll blow your brains out."

His little boy came to the door with an oil can and papers. Harrison then turned to the boy and said these men are here to put us on the road to-night, but you have a rifle, and I have my fists and we'll show them." "We left then," said witness.

"You were afraid then," inquired Mr. Wearing.

"Yes."

Witness said he was afraid to execute the writ on account of the threat. Harrison was in a great passion.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ruddy, witness said he had been doing occasional sheriff's duties since last fall.

He stated his intructions were to dispossess him and put everything in the road. Witness said he showed Harrison the writ and told him for what purpose he was there.

Didn't Like His Looks

"You didn't like the look of Harrison with his fists then," remarked Mr. Ruddy.

"No."

"You had two men?"

"He is not bound to fight his way," contended Magistrate Dumble.

"You did not ask Harrison to go off the place."

"No."

Witness admitted that Smith, his companion, had a flask. He had not been drinking himself. Smith had a drink while at Harrison's place. He admitted seeing Smith offer Harrison a drink. He thought, however, Harrison refused to drink..

"Did not the Sheriff discharge you?"

"Yes."

"Did he tell you that you had made a bad job of it?"

"No."

Henry Smith stated that he had been engaged by Medd and Hall to go with Beatty and hold possession of the place.

To Mr. Ruddy witness said his personal opinion was that "the old chap," meaning Beatty, was frightened.

"You could have executed the writ?"

"Well, I should have had a good try at it."

"So, the old fellow was frightened?"

"Well, everybody doesn't want a punch in the nose."

"Well, wouldn't you have helped him?"

"Yes, I should have helped him."

Deputy Sheriff F. J. A. Hale said the writ had been placed in his hands with instructions to dispossess Thos. E. Harrison. He selected Beatty, as he was a reliable man. This was his first attempt at seizure. He had not discharged Beatty. He had nothing to do with Smith.

"If every man is going to threaten to shoot when the law is being carried out, we had bettter go down to Texas," remarked His Worship.

SPOKE ON NEEDS OF REPENTANCE

Some Examples of True and False Repentance.

Evangelist Pugsley held the large congregation at Park Street Church last night spellbound as he explained the needs of Repentance. It was the most profound discourse of the series. He took the Children of Israel, David and the Prodigal Son as examples of true Repentance, and scored such repentance as Pharaoh, Saul, Balaam and Judas professed. The Prodigal Son took all and lost all. He came to himself, and returned to his father. Repentance is not only penitence for sins, but the turning of the man himself from sin to God. Wherever grace is effective, a well ordered morality must follow and all this idea of justification without repentance—of religion without reformation—of forgiveness without purity—of faith without morality—is a libel upon the economy of God, and a Satanic cheat to ruin immortal souls. Eight accepted Christ at the close of the sermon. The Evangelist will speak to-night upon the subject, "Be sure your sin will find you out." All welcome. Large chorus choir led by Gilbert Peter.

BOARD OF TRADE TO HAVE BOOTH AT CONVENTION

Will Ask the City Council for a Grant Towards This Proposition

The Board of Trade met last evening, and after considerable discussion decided to have a booth and distribute advertising at the Convention of the Ad. Clubs to be held in Toronto in June.

A delegation consisting of members of the Board will also be in attendance at the convention, which is one of the biggest events the Ad. Clubs have ever held.

Mr. J. McNabb dealt with the affair, describing it as one of the best advertisements for the city.

President Basil Hall said since their organization considerable work had been done. A delegation was present at the meeting of the Women's Council in connection with the Public Playground project.

The various committees presented a successful and business-like aspect.

He expressed regret on behalf of the Board at the death of Mrs. Ritchie, the mother of Mr. Ryerson Ritchie. Mr. Ritchie, the president announced, would deliver at some future time, a series of addresses on Board of Trade work.

A letter had been sent to the committee of the Ad. Club Association, Toronto, extending an invitation for a delegation of the Ad. Club to visit Peterborough. The Ad. Club are holding a big conference in Toronto in June.

Mr. J. McNabb reported that the invitation of the Board for the Ad. Club delegation to visit Peterborough had been favorably received. He was advised to have a delegation attend the convention and distribute literature regarding the city. They then could have a deputation visit Peterborough.

Mr. J. W. Worth reported on the meeting of the Women's Council in connection with the playground suggestion.

Mr. R. M. Glover said that advertising and having a booth in Toronto during the Ad. Club convention was excellent. It would be a great thing for the city.

Mr. J. W. Worth was appointed representative of the Board of Trade, to the committee of the Women's Council in connection with the Playground project.

Mr. W. C. Ackerman contended that it was useless trying to suggest or do anything without funds.

Several members remarked that the fee should be higher.

Mr. G. O. Cameron said that an address by Mr. R. Ritchie was a great education. It would only be a matter of a week until he could meet the Board. He suggested the formation of some plans for the criticism by such a man as Mr. Ritchie.

A motion in favor of Mr. Cameron's suggestion as to forming a platform before commencing a campaign was passed.

Mr. W. H. Dunsford spoke of the desirability of the merchants receiving the Toronto papers through the post office, in the early morning. The majority of the business men received their papers through the post office.

President Hall said that about 95 per cent. of the residents on Hunter west of Aylmer Street were petitioning for pavement and had brought this matter to the attention of the Board of Trade.

Mr. F. D. Kerr said it was better not to have intereference with Council in regard to this matter.

"If we come forward with this business, we are lowering the Board of Trade." remarked Mr. Worth.

Have a Booth.

It was decided to arrange for a booth at the Ad. Club Convention at Toronto in June.

Mr. J. McNabb spoke of the great work being done by the Ad. Clubs of Canada. This was an opportunity the Board could not afford to pass up.

Mr. Dunsford suggested that the Council ought to grasp this, as an important opportunity to advertise the city.

Mr. E. N. McWilliams spoke of the great advertisement for the city in this respect.

It was decided that a committee should await on the Council for the purpose of securing a grant for the Toronto Ad. Club Convention advertising scheme.

STORES ON KENT STREET LINDSAY WERE ROBBED

Britton's Jewellery Store, the Heaviest Loser as Gold Watches and Diamond Rings Were Taken

Lindsay, April 1. — The citizens awakened this morning to find that during the night the town had been visited and that several stores on Kent Street had been entered and robbed.

The grocery and confectionery stores of Ed. Robson at the corner of Kent and Sussex Streets was entered and the till robbed of $7. Bon bons and cigars were also taken.

A massage apparatus and other articles were taken from the barber shop of Williams' Bros., as well as cigars from the tobacco stand.

At R. L. Morgan's drug and notion store, $10 was extracted from the till and the midnight visitors also took a quantity of small articles.

The biggest haul was made at Britton's jewelry store, where the robbers secured diamond rings and watches to the value of between $300 and $400.

Sketch of Stores.

It was in the Williams store that Chief Chilton discovered a clue. A piece of paper was found in a pass book, on which appeared a sketch of the stores on Kent Street, and the streets leading to both stations.

The Peterboro and Lindsay Police Chiefs were in communication to-day and Chief Chilton, Detective Foster and Mr Britton will go to Peterboro this evening.

Used a Jimmy.

The men evidently used a jimmy in some cases. They apparently entered the Williams' store with the use of a Yale lock key.

He was driving a team and for some unexpected cause the tongue of the waggon broke, frightening the horses and causing them to make a wild dash for liberty. Mr. Johnston was thrown out, but some passerby rushed to his assistance and helped him to the residence of Mr. A. A. Hainsworth, where he was attended by Dr. Moir. He was found to be suffering from the effects of the fall, but was not seriously injured. Another resident of Cavan happened along and Mr. Johnston continued to his home with him. The horses were left in a local livery barn over night and were taken away to-day.

FAVOR OMEMEE AND MT. PLEASANT AS ONE CHARGE

Rev. H. J. Keith Took up Important Matter With Omemee Presbyterians

Omemee, April 1: — Rev. H. J. Keith, B.D., of Peterboro, was the speaker from the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning. His text was II. Samuel, Chap. 23, Verse 20; his sub-topics were, (1) The wider Vision, (2) The Wider Experience, (3) The Higher Sacrifice, from which he deduced an admirable and practical exposition of the value of the wider Christian outlook. A congregational meeting was held at the close of the service and a vote taken on the proposal to leave the Omemee circuit as at present constituted; viz., Omemee, Mount Pleasant and Bethany. Next, a vote was taken on a proposed change of Omemee, and Bethany being formed into a pastoral charge. The two motions were unanimously negatived. Then, a resolution or motion was put that Omemee and Mount Pleasant be one pastoral charge, the mover showing the financial apportionment each would give. This was unanimously supported. The Rev. Mr. Keith and his companion must have had a strenuous day—leaving Peterboro in the morning for Omemee, then Bethany and Mount Pleasant, and, returning to Peterboro after the evening service. The roads were in poor condition for wheels.

MUSIC THAT HATH NO CHARM

Canine Quartette Not Popular With Gilmour Street People

The most of us are lovers of music and admire Grand Opera quartettes and choruses, yet the residents in the vicinity of Gilmour Street are growing very tired of the music which a canine quartette is nightly rendering. While baby keeps three or four families awake, these wooden-lunged tenors render their accompaniment with an ease that would put MacCormack to shame. Talk about Caruso when he's warbling through his part of the Lucia sextette, why these dogs have him pushed back into the back row of the chorus.

Notwithstanding the fact that music is very soothing and that dogs are the most popular of pets the residents of the above named section of this city would be greatly indebted to some of the ones "higher up" if something would be done along the line of making people keep their poodles tied up at night, and also muzzle them.

RADIAL LINES

Delegates Discuss Memorial and Present it to the Government

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, April 1.—Mayor Carter, of Guelph, presided over a meeting of one hundred and twenty-five delegates at Queen's Hotel this morning, representing municipalities from Windsor to Prescott, which considered the terms of a memorial afterwards presented to the Government in Queen's Park. Mayor Carter's own interpretation of the memorial in his address to the meeting indicates its import. "We want," he said, "the government to grant sufficient money to generate power from the Spillway of Welland Canal. We want the Government to give a guarantee to Hydro debenture issue which will make it the safest investment in the Province, and we want the Government to frame a by-law that will allow voting on these radial questions to be conducted in an absolutely fair way, so that knockers cannot block the progress of the road."

Nobody dissented from these sentiments and later Mayor Carter said he expected a start to be made in the Markham line within the next few weeks.

This is the meeting which was attended by Mayor Buller, members of the Council, and representatives of Eastern municipalities.

CHIEF TENEYCK AS FIRE MARSHAL

Fire Chief Howard Thinks He Would Be a Good Man

"An exceptionally fine man in every respect, well educated and experienced, and possessing extra good executive ability." Thus did Fire Chief Howard express himself when informed by The Review that Chief A. B. Ten Eyck, of Hamilton, had been naemd as the most likely candidate for the position of Chief Fire Marshal for the Province of Ontario. For the past five or six years the Chiefs of the Province have been agitating for the appointment of such an official by the Legislature, and his duties will be to investigate thoroughly all fires in any section of the province, the origin and cause of which were suspicious.

The instruments were purchased from the firm of Royce and Company, of Toronto.

"This was also my first trip to Toronto, and I think it a mighty fine place," remarked the stalwart Indian, "but I would not like to live there," he continued.

SUNDAY VOTING.

THERE HAS been considerable discussion concerning Sunday voting on election day. Recently some have advocated making election day a public holiday, others have advocated having the voting done on Sundays. In Quebec, election day is a public holiday, but Major George W. Stephens, the English speaking candidate for the Mayor of Montreal, does not favor this scheme. The most democratic country in the world, Switzerland, does its voting on Sunday. Democracy is quite successful there, and voting is regarded as a sacred duty. While at the University of Geneva, Major Stephens studied, recently, the effects of Sunday voting, and his verdict is that it is a complete success. The underlying principle is that Sunday is the one day that the workman can do as he pleases, is not shackled by what employers may think, and further, it is the day when he would be best able to think of serious things. However successful Sunday voting might be in Switzerland, it would not likely be a success in Canada, because what is good in one country, may not be good in another country. In America, we do not for the most part, regard voting as a sacred duty. We have forgotten that the suffrage was dearly bought. To maintain the highest state of efficiency, we have failed to regard it as one of the most dear and sacred possessions. The prevalence of dishonesty, scandal and graft in politics, has somewhat accustomed us to regard the ballot as anything but sacred. To such a degree has indifference, concerning political privileges proceeded, that we make a great many jokes and cynical expressions concerning graft and dishonest practices in politics. We ridicule not only the mistakes of the ignorant, but also the honest efforts of disinterested persons. We have imported a great many election features from the United States, which play on the emotions and weaknesses of the people, rather than appeal to the highest ideals of politics and of patriotism. Thus, the day is one of excitement, of bustle, of hurrying rigs, of free picture shows, of tooting autos, and special newspaper editions. It is a time of violent speeches, and more or less "mud slinging." We work on the excitement of the people, rather than appeal to the higher and more serious side of their natures. We cannot get rid of these election features at a single stroke, no matter how disagreeable these may be. The practice of a century will continue more or less as it has done in the past, in spite of Sunday voting or any other reform that may be inaugurated. Sunday voting would be practicable, if there was a public sentiment tending to regard electoral privileges with more seriousness, but this is not the case. If we had Sunday voting, the same kind of elections would still take place. In the middle of a church service, the congregation, if there was any congregation, would likely be startled with the noise of a brass band, the dashing by of cabs and rigs, the honking of auto horns, or the shouting of interested electioneers. Most of the provinces in Canada have had a hard struggle to maintain Sunday as the day of rest, which it is. Sunday games have been banned, public shows and exhibitions have been tabooed, and Sunday street cars have been obtained only with considerable struggle. Sunday voting would certainly not be consistent with the sentiment in regard to Sunday, owing to the character of our elections. Not until there is a public sentiment regarding elections with a good deal of seriousness, could Sunday voting be considered as an improvement, or even at all likely to become an accomplished fact.

THOSE WERE GOOD OLD DAYS.

AS THE weary-eyed seeker after truth plows through the dusty best sellers of the extreme past, he discovers much mislaid and startling information. A little journey through Saxon history recently unearthed the fact that in those early English days mild offenders were punished by being deprived of warm baths. Serious offenders were not allowed to bathe at all, while deep-dyed villains who mocked the saints and shot dice in the king's highway were compelled to take cold baths.

There was a time then, it seems, when the man who took cold baths didn't make the rest of mankind tired and sad by alludinng to the fact in countless indirect and ingenious ways. There were some very attractive things about the good old times.

BAD WATER OR NOT BAD WATER.

THE SPECTACULAR and bitter campaign on the question of the source of Ottawa's water supply terminated on Monday, when the ratepayers, by a majority of 1308, declared their preference for mechanically filtered water of the Ottawa River. The other scheme was that of Sir Alexander Binnie, to bring water from Thirty-One Mile Lake in the Gatineau district. The referendum was ordered by the Ontario Legislature, which prepared the questions to be submitted.

Ottawa's water supply has been a much discussed question there for the past few years. Being forced to drink very bad water, the people have suffered more than one epidemic of typhoid fever. Those who did not drink the water, drank bottled spring water, or else wet goods of a more invigorating character. Possibly the bad water conditions were responsible for much of the booze that bubbled around the Dominion Capital. At any rate, the same old excuse will still exist, will still be available for late-at-the-clubs, for many will refuse to drink Ottawa River water on principle, and others claim that the river water cannot be made fit for drinking purposes. In choosing between the two evils, bad water and booze, it is difficult to say which is the worse, although it is easy to understand where the majority of preferences go. In the meantime, it will be interesting to know just how many fabulous sums Ottawa will squander before it gets pure water.

GRAFT IN JAPAN.

A REPORT states that graft has been unearthed among Jap admirals. This is certainly news from Japan. It shows the rapidity with which the flowery kingdom is adopting Western ideas. Having suddenly risen into the lime-light as a world power, imbued with the western spirit, it has shown the impossibility of separating the chaff from the wheat, and that to import western ideas and ideals, was also to import western intrigue and moral weaknesses. Perhaps the old heroic spirit of Japan is giving place to a superficial party spirit. At any rate, Japan is not being outdone in producing all the phases of our supposedly advanced civilization.

NO SURRENDER TO C.N.R.

STILL REPORTS are drifting into the daily press as to the progress of the C.N.R. negotiations at Ottawa. It was expected that the Government would be in possession of all the desired information regarding the C.N.R. this week. However, the required information is not forthcoming and the $40,000,000 bond issue guarantee is temporarily held up. It is understood that the Government will follow the advice of the Honourable W. T. White, Minister of Finance, and Mr. White has, it is understood, stated positively and clearly to the management of the C.N.R. that all their cards must be placed on the table before he will advise the Government as to what it should or should not do. Gossip in the lobbies seems to indicate that the C.N.R. feels itself on strong ground in asking for the guarantee, owing to the fact that provincial governments, as well as the Federal Government, are already financially interested in the enterprise, and cannot afford to allow the railroad to go into liquidation. However, this confidence has been rudely shattered by the firm attitude assumed by the Minister of Finance, and by the backing which Premier Borden has given him. The firm position taken by Mr. White and Mr. Borden has considerably increased the confidence which the Conservative Party feels in two of its prominent leaders. Not only have they grown in the confidence of the Conservative Party, but also in the confidence of the Canadian people, who feel that their interests will be quite safe under the careful policy which the Government is adopting in regard to great railway corporations. They deserve the support of a united press in the stand they have taken.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

FIRE BUGS active in Brantford, says heading. This is not the only kind of bug that is active in Brantford.

A Sorry Defence.

Calgary Herald.

After reading Hon. George P. Graham's defence of the Laurier government on the Transcontinental deal, a Liberal contemporary sadly remarks, "It does seem as if the builders of the railway had been somewhat generous with the contractors." The defence fails to convince even members of the family.

What a Swat in Time Means.

Belleville Ontario.

A man who enjoys doing large sums in arithmetic tells us that from June 1 to September 1, one unswatted fly means 4,353,564,672,000,000,000,000 flies. We will accept his statement rather than audit the figures but it is easy to see what a swat in time means.

In "Toronto the Good."

London Mirror.

The Canadians are a terribly modest folk. A traveller just back from Toronto tells me he saw on a bill of fare at a restaurant there "Ox limb soup."

"Do you mean ox tail soup ?" he asked the waiter. "If so, why don't you say so ?"

"Hush !" said the waiter, looking shocked, "it's so unrefined."

Good on the Charge.

Montreal Gazette.

In New York the other night the police broke up a riot in the "San Juan Hill" district by charging a mob with an automobile. The car mowed its way through the disturbers, who afterwards made themselves scarce. The incident seems to show that the auto as a suppressor of riots is much more effective than the police horseman.

Not So Slow.

London Opinion.

A shy young man had been calling on the sweetest girl in the world for many moons, but being bashful, his suit progressed slowly. Finally she decided it was up to her to start something, so the next time he called she pointed to the rose in his buttonhole and said:

"I'll give you a kiss for that rose."

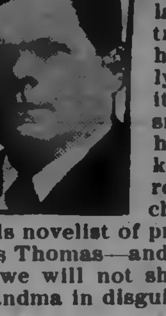
A crimson flush overspread his countenance, but the exchange was made after some hesitation on his part. Then he grabbed his hat and started to leave the room.

"Why, where are you going?" she asked, in surprise.

"To the—er—florist for more roses," he called from the front door.

BERTHA M. CLAY

By Walt Mason



Poor Bertha's gone to glory, she died a month ago; no more she'll write the story of heartache, love and woe, the story sweet and tender of maids and wedding rings, for now, in realms of splendor she's trying out her wings. I thought she was a maiden with old style corkscrew curls, with beads and earrings laden, like other ancient girls; but now the truth is printed since Bertha home was called; her nose was crimson tinted, and she was slightly bald! Upon her face and body life had left its scars, for Bertha liked her toddy, and Bertha smoked cigars! On earth no human gazer beheld her in a gown, she used a safety razor to keep her whiskers down. With other mild carousers she liked a quiet game, and Bertha's chums wore trousers, and Bertha did the same. This novelist of promise pursued deceitful plan; her given name was Thomas—and Bertha was a man! With this fact as a starter we will not show surprise on learning that Nick Carter is grandma in disguise!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

MOVING PICTURE HOUSES.

Editor Review:

Dear Sir:—

In all cases, Moving Picture houses should be compelled to have side exits the same as theatres for the protection of the public. It is often stated that the operating rooms are fireproof. They are so long as the doors are kept closed, but if the cabinet was on fire the operator is only human and would want to save his life. There are so many picture houses with exits at the ends of the building and the ceilings so low that the house would fill with smoke so quickly that half the people would be suffocated or burned to death in case of fire before they could get out.

These are things that Corporations should look into before granting a license. It is too late after a number of human lives are sacrificed. At the present time parties can rent a store and start a picture show in the centre of a block without any precautions as to the safety of the people that attend these places. Not so with a theatre. They have an alley way on each side with doors opening outward, with lights over each door both on the inside and outside. They have to have all these things according to Government orders before they can get a license, and where there is not anything like the danger there is in moving picture shows.

Yours truly,
AN OBSERVER.

The couple became engaged in 1911, when Miss Delprat was 19 years of age, before Dr. Mawson started on the last expedition.

Birthdays of Note

WEDNESDAY, APRIL FIRST

J. CASTELL HOPKINS, the Canadian historian, who is observing his fiftieth birthday today, has probably written more books about Canada and Canadians than any other author. He has now to his credit twenty-six bulky volumes of his own composition and has been editor of over fifty others. It is interesting to note that it was the late Sir John A. Macdonald who started him off on his literary career. Mr. Hopkins was in early life a bank clerk in the employ of the Imperial Bank. He took a considerable interest in politics and the discussion of Imperial affairs and had ambitions to be a writer. Having met Sir John in London, Ont., he took the liberty of writing to the Premier afterwards, asking him if he knew of any opening that would suit. Soon after a letter reached Mr. Hopkins from the editor of the Toronto Empire offering him an editorial position, clearly the result of Sir John's influence. Needless to say he accepted and, after a short newspaper experience, gave up journalism in order to devote himself to authorship.

Baby Suffocated by a Dog

A distressing affair occurred at Huntly, Aberdeenshire, the infant son of William Roy, baker, being suffocated in its cradle by a toy Pomeranian. When Mr. Roy went to work in the early morning the child was sleeping peacefully, but when he returned to breakfast he found the child dead, the dog having jumped into the cradle and lain on the face of the infant.

Longest Railway Tunnels

The largest railway tunnels in the world are on the continent of Europe. Of these the longest is the Simplon, twelve and a quarter miles through the Alps; two others, the St. Gothard and the Lotschberg, are over nine and a third miles long. In all there are fourteen tunnels over four miles long. The longest in the United States is the Hoosac, four and a third miles long.

Extend Time for Payment.

OTTAWA, April 1. — The Senate yesterday gave third reading to the bill extending the time for payment of the $500 in lieu of land for South African veterans scrip. Senators T. D. Davis and Cloran claimed this was merely giving a bonus to land speculators and that this should be eliminated. The bill was adopted, however.

BOWSER, HUNTER

He Goes Forth in Search of Elusive Game

By M. Quad.

[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

SNOW had been falling all the afternoon, and Mrs. Bowser had a presentiment that something was going to happen.

Whether Mr. Bowser was going to invent a new kind of snow plow or make a start for the north pole, she could not say, but that it would be something connected with the snow she was sure.

She made no mistake.

When Mr. Bowser arrived he would have hidden a parcel in the vestibule, but, being caught at it, he said:

"It's a shotgun I borrowed, and you don't want to fool with it. I shall take a day off tomorrow to go hunting."

"Rabbits?"

"No—snipe."

"If there is a brand called the winter snipe I have never heard of it. I supposed the snipe was an early spring and fall bird."

"Well, when I bring home a bushel of snipe tomorrow night you'll suppose something else."

Mrs. Bowser Asks Some Questions.

Nothing more was said till after dinner, and then Mrs. Bowser queried:

"Where do you go after snipe?"

"Oh, down the marshes," he replied.

"But what is a snipe?"

"A snipe? Do you mean to tell me that you have lived to be forty years old and don't know what a snipe is? A snipe is a bird."

"What sort?"

"Well, it's neither a buzzard nor a bluebird. It's—it's a snipe. It flies over marshes and is good eating. Snipe on toast is a dish fit for a king."

LOOKED WARILY AROUND.

Mr. Bowser talked very confidently, but he had never seen a snipe, alive or dead. Mrs. Bowser wanted to know lots of other things, but he choked her off in time to save his prestige. He got to bed early, so as to get an early start, but his dreams were snipe haunted. At midnight he yelled out and almost rolled out of bed. At 2 o'clock he got up to look out of the window and listen for the notes of birds, and at 4 o'clock he was up to look at the weather, and at 6 he dressed and went downstairs to load his gun.

Deaf to Entreaty.

"I wish you wouldn't," pleaded Mrs. Bowser. "You don't know anything about snipe hunting, and you'll be sure"—

"Stop right there!" interrupted Mr. Bowser. "I go forth to hunt the snipe, and I'll come home with a basketful. Nothing will happen except that we'll have snipe on toast for breakfast—fat, juicy snipe!"

With that he was off with the gun on his shoulder and three small boys and a dog trailing behind. At the corner his retinue left him, and he took an electric car for the country. He wanted to get a line on snipe as soon as possible, and so he asked information of the conductor. The conductor replied that the snipe were so thick just beyond the terminus that farmers were killing them with clubs.

Mr. Bowser chuckled as he pictured Mrs. Bowser's chagrin when he arrived home with a wagon load of birds. He set off bravely and at last struck a marsh. He looked warily around him for snipe, but realized after a minute that a bird of brains would be hidden away where the reeds were thickest and highest. There was water in the marsh. There were also old roots and logs to ensnare, and as the hunter plowed his way along he got a fall every ten feet. He had filled his shoes with water and torn half the brim off his hat before he got through the marsh, and the biggest thing he had scared up was a woodpecker. On the farther side of the marsh he came across a farmer, and he approached him to say:

"I'm out after snipe, but I don't think I've struck the right spot. They hang around the marshes, don't they?"

"They dew," replied the farmer as he straightened up to rest his back. "Yes, the gol darned things hang around the marshes and keep up such a chatterin' you can't hear yourself think."

"But I don't see any around."

Returns to the Trails

"That's 'cause they've gone over to that marsh to the west. They allus go about this time of the day to feed. You jest go over there if you want to plunk 'em by the million."

Mr. Bowser's lost exultation returned to him, and there was a song in his heart as he climbed the fence and fell in and out of a ditch and made his way into the large marsh. He splashed through water and toiled along over beds of high grass with all the instincts of a hunter on the qui vive, but nothing offered, not even a bluejay. It was either a good day for liars or a bad day for snipe. When he finally emerged from that marsh it was to come again upon that same old farmer. He had tramped for two hours in a circle.

"Didn't git any, eh?" queried the farmer. "I was thinkin' after you'd gone that I ought to have sent you over this other way. That's where the snipe all appear to git together about this time of day to discuss the news."

"I was told that there were plenty this season," said Mr. Bowser as hope rekindled.

"Millions of 'em, but they don't allus stay in one place. Try this other marsh."

There was more water in this marsh, also more obstacles, but Mr. Bowser plunged in with a stout heart and looked upon a fall into a ditch or a tumble into the reeds as all in the day's work. After he had stumbled along for an hour without raising a bird and had come out on the old farmer for the third time he yelled:

"See here, you blamed old idiot! I am back again!"

"I declar', if you ain't!" replied the toiler. "Why, you must be lopsided to walk in a circle this way!"

Mr. Bowser Loses His Temper.

"You are a liar! I came down here after snipe. I don't believe there is one in the state!"

"I dunno, unless they've all crawled into a holler log to get out of the wet," ventured the farmer. "But if you'll hang on you'll find 'em flyin' around, waitin' to be plunked."

The car which conveyed Mr. Bowser from the snipe grounds to town conveyed a cross eyed, bow legged man who sat on a back seat and quoted poetry relating to swamp tourists and snipe hunting. There were forty verses, and the end of every verse left the hunter in a ditch or on his nose in the grass. Mr. Bowser vowed he would hunt that cross eyed man to his doom. When he reached his own gate he saw Mrs. Bowser and Mrs. Bowser saw him. Mrs. Bowser called out:

"Nothing for you this evening! I have neither cold victuals nor money for you!"

Dazed, he opened the gate and advanced.

"If you come in here I will call a policeman!" shrieked Mrs. Bowser.

Nimrod Bowser was taken for a tramp by his own wife!

Foolishness.

There was a goose that waddled through
Her life, and night and morn,
As fowls in general like to do,
She gathered grains of corn.
But this goose, differing from the lot,
Ate little corn each day,
And most of all the grains she got
And slyly stored away.

There was a man who lived his life
In frenzy hot and strained.
He passed his days in anxious strife,
And dollars thus he gained.
But this man spent by day or night
Few dollars won the while.
In saving took he vast delight
And adding to his pile.

It would be custom's way to name
The goose a goose indeed
And to the rich man goodly fame
Award as proper meed.
And so these lines no moral bear,
For what would be the use?
But did you ever anywhere
Know such a foolish goose?

REFUSED A RAISE.

Dr. A. C. McKay Established Record Among Public Officials.

Dr. Alexander Charles McKay, principal of the Toronto Central Technical School, who recently caused much surprise by refusing an increase of $1,000 a year in his salary, on the ground that his present salary of $5,000 a year is sufficient, is one of the best known educationalists in Ontario. He received his elementary education at Grimsby, and before entering Toronto University put in a few years as a country school teacher, earning money for his college course, and at the same time preparing himself for matriculation. At Toronto University he had a most successful course, capturing the class honors in mathematics when he graduated. He won a fellowship which he held for a year and took a post-graduate course at Cambridge, where he also took high standing in mathematics. Returning to Canada, he taught for a time in the Port Hope Collegiate Institute, leaving there to take an appointment on the staff of Upper Canada College. During his latter engagement he taught in the Parkdale Collegiate Institute and was also lecturer in physics to the medical students of Toronto University and lecturer in mathematics in the Ontario School of Pedagogy. He was also, during part of his time, examiner for both the University and the Ontario Department of Education.

Dr. McKay once declined the principalship of the Toronto Technical School and joined the staff of McMaster University, as professor of mathematics and dean of the faculty of arts. He served likewise for some time as registrar of the University, and was unanimously elected chancellor of McMaster University, nine years ago. Since August, 1911, he has held his present position of principal of the new Technical School of Toronto. He was offered $10,000 to become chancellor of the Western University, but refused, preferring his $5,000 a year appointment at the technical school. The committee in charge of the institution then insisted on raising the salary to $6,000, but Dr. McKay refused, and again, last month, he refused to allow the committee to even consider the question of a further increase, saying that he was engaged in the work for something besides money. Dr. McKay is a native Canadian, and son of the late Alex. J. McKay, a native of Guysboro, N.S., but for many years a resident of Western Ontario. Principal McKay was born in Beamsville, Ont., and is still in the prime of life.

Dr. McKay is the joint author of a couple of text books on mathematics now in use. He was appointed a member of the Educational Council of Ontario, nine years ago, and is a vice-president of the Upper Canada Bible Society, of the Ontario Lord's Day Alliance, and of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Temperance Alliance. He is an active member of the Baptist body.

More Men Than Women.

There are half a million more men in Canada than women, according to statistics issued by the census department at Ottawa recently. This is largely due to immigration, more males coming into the country than females. For the population under 16 years of age, the proportion is fairly level. At the age of 70 the ratio of males to females assumes again its normal proportions. The greatest longevity is seen in Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. From 80 years and upwards the female population shows a greater tenacity to life than does the male.

Of the total male population, 62 per cent. are single, and of the total female population 57 per cent. are single. The percentage of the widowed is greater for females at every age period. This apparently shows that the rate of mortality is greater amongst married males than among married females. In all eastern cities, the female population outnumbers the males, and the opposite is the case in the west.

When the census was taken in Hull, there were 120 persons over the age of 100 years. Sixty-two of these were males and 58 females. There were 1,548 persons over the age of 90. There are 37 centenarians in Ontario and 21 in Quebec.

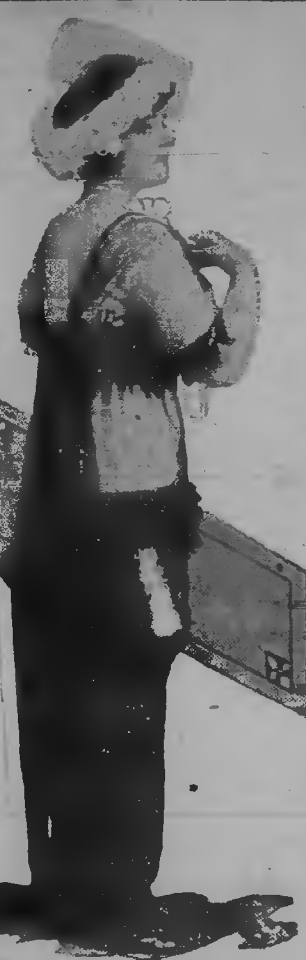
DECOLLETE EFFECTS.

They Are to Be Very Pronounced on Spring Gowns.



SATIN AFTERNOON GOWN.

Even for afternoon wear very low cut effects are to be very much a la mode. The gown pictured here, which is carried out in black and white, is an example of this. The tunic of black net is applied over white mousseline.

For the foundation of the corsage of evening gowns tulle, even more than lace, is favored, especially flesh colored tulle. The effect is naturally startling. How could it be otherwise when the tulle takes on the tints of the flesh and the effect is that of a seminude woman? To see a woman wearing one of these tulle corsages when she is seated at a table is even enough to cause spectators to gasp with consternation.

CURING COLDS.

Simple Remedies That Will Often Cure Them.

To cure a stubborn cough take 5 cents' worth each of pressed horehound leaves, pressed hops and wild cherry bark. Boil together in a scant quart of soft water to form a strong dark tea, strain the tea through cheesecloth without squeezing, add a pound of loaf sugar and simmer slowly to a thick sirup.

Take a teaspoonful several times a day, whenever the cough is distressing. For whooping cough add 5 cents' worth of chestnut leaves to the other ingredients when making the tea.

A slight cough may often be quickly cured by gargling with hot water in which a little soda has been dissolved. This is excellent for croup: Take a thin cloth—either linen or cotton—saturate it with pure glycerin, add a few drops of camphor, then sprinkle nutmeg thickly over all and apply to throat and chest.

Camphor is a handy remedy in case of colds which make breathing difficult. Moisten a handkerchief with the camphor and lay it on the pillow. The fumes will relieve the head and induce sleep.

For dryness in the throat hold a few drops of glycerin in the mouth as long as possible with the lips closed or gargle the throat with equal parts of glycerin and water.

Chic Evening Robes.

The most fashionable color for evening wear at present is pale green. There must be more than a touch of black used with it if the wearer wishes to be completely up to date. Jet and black tulle are favorite adjuncts. A tulle tunic bordered with a line of jet bugles may cover the green to the knees, or, instead of beads or bugles, velvet poppies with black stamens may be used.

The shoes should match the gown. They may have jet embroidery on the toes and heels. The hair ornament must also be jet. Or the gown itself may be black, with a green velvet coat worn with it trimmed round the outlines with a band of jade green embroidery.

Next in favor for evening shades is the lovely Rose du Barry pink.

MEDICAL COLLEGE REFORM.

Raising the Standard For Both the Student and the School.

There are 14 fewer medical schools in the United States than there were a year ago, 1,200 fewer persons studied medicine in 1913 than in 1912, and there was a decrease of 500 in the number of medical graduates, according to figures compiled at the United States bureau of education.

The reduction in the number of medical schools is part of a steady movement for improved medical education that has been going on for the past eight or nine years. The American Medical association, the various state medical societies and other agencies have aroused public opinion to such an extent that seventy-nine medical colleges have either merged with other institutions or ceased to exist, and the standard of medical training has been raised considerably.

Of the 101 medical schools now listed at the bureau 53 are requiring one or more years of college work as a prerequisite to entering upon the study of medicine. State examining boards in North Dakota, Iowa, Minnesota, Colorado, Indiana, South Dakota and Kentucky have introduced regulations, in most cases to be made effective within a year or two, provided that every applicant for a license to practice medicine shall have studied two years in college after a four years' high school course before even beginning medical training. A similar requirement covering one year of college work will soon be enforced by the state boards of Connecticut, Kansas, Utah, Vermont, Pennsylvania and California.

An interesting feature of the statistics is the part played by women. Although the total number of medical students has decreased, the number of women studying medicine has increased. In 1912 there were 18,451 medical students, of whom 712 were women; in 1913 there were 17,238 students, of whom 835 were women. Only 70 women graduated in 1913, however, as compared with 142 in 1912.

WOULD BETRAY THE TWO BANDITS

Anonymous Postal Card May Result in Arrests

MONTREAL, April 1. — "Central police station: Dear Sir: If you are willing to pay the reward in advance to me for the capture of Bourret and Foucault I will take your offer and have the men in your hands in twelve hours' time, that I know. Answer by newspapers."

This message, scrambled on a postcard with the local postmark, was received by the Montreal police yesterday morning. It refers to the two bandits who are alleged to have helped in the shooting of two policemen three weeks ago. Two others of the gang are being held for trial. The police have been absolutely unable to locate either Bourret or Foucault, who are believed to be kept in hiding by friends in the city, but the anonymous postcard is believed to furnish a clue leading to a known underworld resort.

Poaching Schooner Confiscated.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 1.—The American fish schooner Valiant, which was captured May 11, 1913, by the Canadian fisheries protection sloop Joliffe, was declared confiscated yesterday in the Admiralty Court.

The Valiant was seized by the Joliffe off the northern end of Vancouver Island, where she was alleged to have been fishing close in shore. She raced for the open sea when the Canadian vessel hove in sight, but was overhauled. One thousand pounds of halibut, some of the fish being still alive, were found below.

The Valiant was of 18 tons and owned in Seattle.

Thieves Devastated Church.

MONTREAL, April 1.—Failing to find money in St. Joseph's Church after smashing their way into the building through a window, thieves Monday night took the candles off the altar and by their light played cards. Yesterday morning the sanctuary carpet was covered with candle grease, the cards used were found strewn over the floor, while cigar and cigarette butts were found where they had been thrown away. The poor boxes, emptied several days ago, had been broken open, while attempts had been made to open the tabernacle where the sacrament is kept.

BILL IS HELD UP IN THE SENATE

OTTAWA, April 1. — After a second reading being granted to the bill consolidating the railway act in the Senate yesterday, Hon. Mr. Lougheed moved that it be referred to a joint committee of the Senate and House of Commons. This precipitated a discussion when Senator Bostock, the Liberal leader, opposed the move.

Among other things the railway board was given the power of regulating the stock and bond issues of railway companies, which will hereafter be required to obtain permission of the board to issue stock or debentures.

The bill was given its second reading, and Hon. Mr. Lougheed moved that it be referred to a joint committee of the two Houses of Parliament. He said he did this in order to expedite legislation and to avoid the unnecessary repetition of the evidence and arguments on behalf of railways, organizations of railway employes, boards of trade, and other bodies who are interested in the bill and would desire to make representations concerning its provisions. There was precedent for this, as the bill revising the statutes and the bill revising the criminal code had been dealt with by a joint committee of the Senate and Commons.

In answer to a question, Mr. Lougheed said it would be impossible to say how many members the Commons would appoint upon the joint committee, as the Senate had no control over them.

Senator Bostock said as the joint committee might have a membership from the Commons much more numerous than the membership from the Senate, and as it would have under this motion power to make amendments to the bill, he thought that the course suggested might interfere with progress. He moved an amendment referring the bill to a special committee of the Senate.

The debate was not finished.

EPIDEMICS A MYSTERY.

Is Disease in Factories the Work of Russian Malcontents?

ST. PETERSBURG, April 1.—Members of the Douma are urging the appointment of a commission to investigate the cause of a mysterious sickness from which operative in the tobacco and rubber factories are suffering. More than seventy new cases were reported yesterday in one tobacco factory and thirty in a rubber factory. The employes are leaving by the scores.

According to the police the epidemic is the result of a plot to foment strikes by men who have engaged an expert chemist to assist them to bring about conditions whereby the operatives have been overcome while engaged at their tasks. These methods so far defy detection, but it is supposed they consist of the production of poisonous fumes.

POLITICAL CONTRIBUTIONS BILL DISCUSSED IN LEGISLATURE

Details of Measures to Remove Suspicion From Candidates by Excluding Interests From Aiding Campaign Funds and by Publishing Expenses To Be Worked Out In Committee.

TORONTO, April 1. — When the political contribution measures came up in the Legislature yesterday they found the rival parties therein in full agreement on the necessity for the reform. The details, however, will have to be worked out in committee.

One of the bills prohibits political contributions by corporations, license holders, and public contractors. The other rules that all contributions received in the recognized fashion shall only come through the official agent of the candidate who is interested, and that a detailed statement of any sums given in this way, either as loans, gifts or otherwise, shall be submitted to the returning officer within two months after the election and be published by him. In addition all such accounts are to be open to inspection after payment of a nominal fee by any interested persons.

These measures passed their second reading yesterday, and with approval from both sides of the House went to the legal committee for discussion. Bills much to the same import were submitted by Hon. Mr. Hearst and Mr. Rowell, and the merits of each will be embodied in the ultimate legislation.

The Minister in speaking to the second reading of the Government measure stated that there had been very little corruption in Ontario for a long time, and that the legislation proposed was not of such pressing necessity here as in the Federal House where millions were expended yearly in the Department of Public Works. The bill as suggested would wipe out the suggestion of wrong as to campaign contributions, if this suggestion did exist.

The Liberal leader was not so sure of the limited nature of political corruption. He felt that there had been some among the ridings, and whether this was large or small it was still prejudicial to the country's best interests.

He spoke of the wisdom of including license holders, and felt that this was a vital part of the bill as referring to the relationship of the liquor interests and a Government in power. He would recommend that the Government measure be strengthened in this particular.

Toronto University stands to-day at a parting of the ways, according to the representations made to the Government yesterday by Sir Edmund Walker and President Falconer, in presenting a request for further aid. One path stretching before points to mediocrity and an uphill fight to grant Ontario students a higher education; the other leads into the first rank of educational institutions on the continent, they declared. The board of governors yesterday left the course to be pursued in the hands of the Legislature. To advance meant money and a good deal of it; otherwise the progression from the standpoint of both students and professors would necessarily be retrograde.

Sir Edmund said the accommodation was limited and the staff so poorly paid that many were seeking a livelihood elsewhere.

He estimated the total expenditure for the coming year, with necessary buildings included, to be in the neighborhood of $1,400,000, and the deficit of $85,000 now standing would be increased to $120,000.

By a series of comparisons President Falconer showed that the Toronto University income did not stand in the same class with other large ones across the border. Even Iowa, with 2,000 students less, showed more of an income, and Missouri with 1,500 less had an income of $992,000 in comparison with $839,000 received in Toronto last year.

Fifty Thousand Miners Out.

CLEVELAND, O., April 1.—With few exceptions every coal mine in Ohio was closed down indefinitely last night. Local operators estimate that 50,000 miners are affected.

Recent legislation changing the method of payment of miners from the screen plan to the run-of-mines basis is the cause of the shut down, operators refusing to renew contracts expiring to-day until conditions resulting from the new law became more settled.

The estate of the late James Gow, of Hamilton, will net about $6,000.

THE OUTER LOBBY OF PARLIAMENT

(Special to The Review.)

LONDON, March 31.—The ever changing scene in the Central Hall of the Palace of Westminster—the Outer Lobby of Parliament is one of absorbent interest.

One may muse on many a phase of English History as one strolls these tessellated flags. At four points of this octagon hall stand the statues of Gladstone, Iddesleigh, Russell, and Granville in attitude and pose as often they moved their fellows with eloquence, or argument, or appeal; and filling as many sconces, standing one above another in threes, are counterfeit presentments of forty-eight of England's Kings, and Queens. And if one lingers in the corridors one may reflect on long past events portrayed by great artists in the fine panelling of the "St. George for England" and "St. David for Wales" keep guard—the central figures in resplendently emblazoned panels—the first above the entrance to the corridor leading to the House of Lords, and the latter over that by which the Commons House of Parliament is reached. The corresponding spaces, the one over the doorway of St. Stephen's Hall the other over the passage to the Committee Rooms "upstairs" are blank. They bear no blasonry of any kind, and one wonders why have not St. Andrew for Scotland and St. Patrick for Ireland been honoured equally with the patron saints of England and Wales. An Irish Member, to whom the question was put shook his head about Scotland, but he had no doubt about the Irish patron saint. "When those were done," he said, pointing to the two illuminations, "there was far too Much Intolerance

for St Patrick to have a chance."

Here, too, there are interesting or curious occurrences to be seen, as, for instance, the unrehearsed scene with the party of Suffragettes, who tried in vain to reach the Prime Minister and the Home Secretary, came into conflict with the House of Commons Police, and were sent to prison; or somewhat earlier when a man declared insane, and who later committed suicide, fired a revolver, hitting a statue, with, perhaps, some hazy idea of protest against fancied wrong.

In the Outer Lobby visitors to Members of Parliament await the latter's coming from the sacred interior, crowd as near as possible to the entrance to the corridor leading to the Inner Lobby and the Commons Chamber, and gaze at the ever-swinging doors at the far end, and look with curiosity at passing Members, and officials; or experience the mild excitement of the ringing bells, the shouts of "Division" and the sprinting of belated Members, anxious to reach the Chamber before Mr. Speaker orders the closing of the doors.

Many visitors to the Outer Lobby are habitues, or very frequent attenders; as numerous and as diverse as the subjects and interests that draw them there. Easily distinguished from these are the "country cousins" who make a a large feature in the visit to town. Almost comical, often, are the blank looks of some of these latter, when their distinguished representative is not in the House, and they hear his name read out by a sleek young man in evening dress—one of the messengers—after the policeman door keeper has announced in stentorian tones "Cards returned, Members not found."

Call on the Local Member

Others again look with envious glances on the favoured few, escorted by Members into the Corridor, there to sit on one of the leather-cushioned benches and to chat, or perchance to be piloted "round the House."

Party differences are greatly assuaged in the Outer Lobby. The visitor asks, and the Member confers, the desired favour, if be can, quite irrespective of party bias. Just after a keenly fought by-election the then newest made legislator appeared from the corridor, and to him swiftly moved one of his constituents. They greeted each other cordially and the visitor exclaimed "I was in London and thought the Chairman of his Opposition Committee couldn't miss coming to shake hands. "The two erstwhile opponents went off arm-in-arm in quite affectionate attitude.

A Picturesque Figure

sometimes seen crossing the Outer Lobby is that of the Sergeant-at-Arms, the custodian of the decorum of Parliament—Sir Donald Erskine of Cardross—as occasionally he passes from the House of Commons to his own home, entered from a far corner of St. Stephen's Hall. The dignified figure, slight but upright, the quaint dress, knee breaches, silk stockings, shoes with silver buckles, the dangling sword, always draw all eyes, and sometimes quaint comment. Once "Is that the Kink ?" was heard in awed whisper—a contrast to the idea of the little Lancashire boy, who having seen King George V. howled with disappointment, and exclaimed, "Why he's only a fella."

Many Enthusiastic Comments

on current events are to be heard too, and that without eaves-dropping. On one of the days following a certain "snatch division" when the situation, and the plans of the Government for meeting it, were being excitedly canvassed, an aged Lord, short and sturdy, and keen of face and tongue,—the Earl of Halsbury, stood in the middle of the Ventral Hall, laying down the law to a mild-mannered Liberal Peer." "It's preposterous." the ex-Lord Chancellor declaimed. "If this Government can do this, then any Government can do anything."

This octagon hall, too, is the home and centre of "lobbying." The representatives of "causes" interested in bills before Parliament, or wanting to push some scheme or reform, or to prevent something being done, pace these flags long hours day by day, send in innumerable cards bearing Members' names, and make what appeal they can, in the few minutes any Member can be induced to spare for the purpose.

And, except perhaps on the very quietest of nights, the Outer Lobby has its quota of late stayers, till the rising of the House, to respond to the joyful cry of the door-keepers, which always marks the end of the sitting "Who goes Home !"

GREY HINTS AT FEDERAL GOVERNMENT SCHEME

After a Crisis Unparallelled In Modern Times Asquith Government Is In a Better Position to Secure Consent on Home Rule---House Listens to Proposal of Devolution of Britain With Interest.

LONDON, Arpil 1.—A Parliametary writer observed a few days ago: "This amazing Government seems to thrive upon its blunders," and the net result of a crisis without parallel in modern times has been that the debate on the second reading of the Home Rule bill was resumed yesterday in an atmosphere of unexpected calm with apparently a better prospect of being carried by consent than ever before.

The Unionists are clearly alarmed at the spectre which the Carsonite methods have raised of an election fought on a platform cry of "The Parliament vs. the Army." Even the moderate Liberals are anxious to avoid such a struggle which it is foreseen would leave loose a flood of passion exceeding even that which attended the agitation to abolish the veto power of the House of Lords.

Hence the proposal of Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to the House of Commons yesterday of a federal system of Government for the British Isles as a solution of the difficulty, which he put forward in a most conciliatory speech, has been received on both sides of the House with great sympathy, and it is believed will lead to a renewal of the negotiations between the two front benches in the arrangement of an acceptable compromise.

The large body of opinion, both inside and outside Parliament, supports a settlement on the Federal basis and a meeting of about fifty members of the House representing both parties was held yesterday to discuss a settlement.

It is reported from Dublin that Premier Asquith is to be opposed in the bye-election for East Fife by James Larkin.

Viscount Morley's dicision not to resign as Lord President of the Council pleases the Liberals, as at his advanced age it would have meant his permanent retirement from politics and the party would regret to see the veteran statesman retired under a cloud.

The Cabinet met yesterday, and the strongest pressure was brought to bear on Lord Morley not to add to the difficulties of his colleagues by giving up his office.

Sir Edward Grey, during the debate in the Commons, suggested the resumption of the conversations between party leaders, in order to see whether the lines of a settlement could not be reached on the basis of establishing a federal system for the whole country before the end of the six years named by the Government in its offer to Ulster.

Sir Edward Grey said he believed that if the difficulty was not solved by the introduction of a federal system, the country would go under through the sheer inability of Parliament to transact its business. If, he added, an election could be assured on the terms of securing the abolition of plural voting and of placing Home Rule and Welsh disestablishment on the statute book, the method would be worthy of consideration. The suggestion of a federal system was received by the House with marked attention.

PREYED ON WIDOW.

Mean Thieves Robbed and Wrecked House of Lonely Woman.

MONTREAL, April 1. — Edward Belanger and Joseph Roy, suspected of being two of the three masked men who last week forced an entrance into a house at St. Jerome, occupied by Mrs. Guenette, a widow, and her little granddaughter, were arrested in the city yesterday. Anton Verdun, alleged to be third of the hold-up trio, was arrested at St. Jerome on Saturday.

The three accused are said to have compelled the aged woman, at the point of revolvers, to get supper for them, and the little girl to go out to neighbors to borrow money, saying it was for her grandmother. The child returned with $2, which the bandits appropriate, together with a purse containing about $40. They sent the woman and child to bed and played cards and smoked and damaged furniture. They slept in the house that night and decamped in the morning.

TRAPPER'S BODY IS DISCOVERED

Provincial Constable Found A Tragedy in Black Sturgeon River

TORONTO, April 1.—Shot through the stomach and frozen stiff, the body of Arthur Frampton, a trapper, was found this week on the ice of the Black Sturgeon river, between Nipigon and Port Arthur. The first report of the affair reached the headquarters of the Provincial Police yesterday morning from Constable Symon, the officer who discovered the body.

According to Symon's report, the body of Frampton was lying near a trap in which a weasel had been caught. It was apparent that the trapper had attempted to relese the animal from the trap, and in doing so had let his gun drop in such a manner that it exploded one of it's shells while the muzzle pointed at his body.

Frampton was a well-known figure in the Nipigon district.

A few days ago Linnekogel made a new altitude record with one passenger, reaching a height of 18,050 feet.

CHICAGO, April 1. — Mrs. Catherine Morris and Mrs. Sarah Sallans, life-long friends and neighbors in the crowded West Side, were shot to death while at work in their homes about a block apart. Peter Welter, a neighborhood character and a boarder in the Sallans home, was found hiding in a closet of his room mortally injured from two bullet wounds.

Outlook For Early Navigation.

SAULT STE. MARIE, April 1.—According to reports from various points, conditions are favorable to an early break up of the ice. The field in St. Mary's river is rapidly disintegrating and the open water extends more than half way across from the Canadian shore and down through the old channel to Little Lake George.

Society Little Folks Enjoying Winter Sports.

© by American Press Association.

With the recent advent of Jack Frost sleds, skates, toboggans and the other aids that make winter joyous have been working overtime. Especially in New York city and its environs have the little ones been making the most of the winter. It sometimes happens that a whole winter may go by without producing enough ice to make skating possible. So when Mr. Frost does come he is welcomed with great glee by the younger contingent. Tuxedo Park, in Orange county, N. Y., about thirty-five miles from the big city, is the home of many rich and fashionable folks who prefer its quiet country ways to the bustle of the big town. It has river, lake and forest in plenty, and there the young folks revel. The picture shows Lucy Whitfield and Nelly Lee of that exclusive locality. They were skating when they consented to pose.

A Boy's Visit to Washington.

When a Colonel B. of Virginia fame was a boy of seven years his mother took him to spend the day with General and Mrs. Washington. The boy had heard so much of the great general that he was afraid to meet him, and he hoped that something would happen to prevent the visit. But it didn't, and the only consolation the youngster had was the possession of a new suit with brass buttons for the occasion. While driving there in a coach the lad's mother remarked, "This is the general's birthday, and I want you to say something pretty to him." The boy looked alarmed, so his mother hastily added, "You might say that you hope the good Lord will spare him to our people many years to come."

He repeated this speech all the way there. Washington was standing near the fireplace in the library, his hands behind his back, when they first saw him that day. The boy was attracted to his penetrating eyes, and he afterward remembered he was not as severe looking as his portraits. Mrs. Washington was knitting at the window, and the boy liked her kind face. After the greetings were over the general patted the boy on the head, and then the boy, in confusion, stammered his little speech thus: "I hope the good Lord will spare me to the people!" A laugh followed, and the boy ran out of the room, while his mother tried to explain. His confusion was forgotten at tea time by Mrs. Washington presenting him with a little inlaid box.

Washington's First Letter.

"Dear Dickey—I thank you very much for the pretty picture book you gave me. Sam asked me to show him the pictures, and I showed him all the pictures in it, and I read him how the tame elephant took care of the master's little boy and put him on his back and would not let anybody touch his master's little son.

"I can read three or four pages sometimes without missing a word. Ma says I may go to see you and stay all day with you next week if it be not rainy. She says I may ride my pony, Hero, if Uncle Ben will go with me and lead Hero.

"I have a little piece of poetry about the picture book you gave me, but I mustn't tell you who wrote the poetry:

"G. W.'s compliments to R. H. L.
And likes his book full well,
Henceforth will count him his friend
And hopes many happy days he may spend.
Your good friend,
GEORGE WASHINGTON.

"I am going to get a whip top soon, and you may see it and whip it."

A Washington Anecdote.

It is told of Washington that during the Revolutionary war a flag of truce coming in at New York brought a letter from General Howe addressed to "Mr. Washington."

Our general took the letter from the red coated soldier and, glancing at the address, said: "Why, this letter is not for me. It is directed to a planter in Virginia. I'll keep it and give it to him at the end of the war."

While speaking he thrust the letter into his pocket, ordered the flag of truce out of the lines and directed the gunners to stand by. Before another hour the redcoat returned with another letter addressed to "His Excellency General Washington."

General Howe had taken the hint.

SPORT ON THE CAM.

Cambridge's River Is a Centre of Athletic Activities of Students.

Much of the sport and innocent fun of Cambridge undergraduate life takes place on the River Cam, that delightfully lazy river which once gave rise to a bet between two learned professors as to whether a snail, or a straw floating on the river would reach a given point first; but slow as it is, and in many places narrow, Cambridge would be much less attractive without it. Passing through the grounds of many of the principal colleges, it adds an indefinable charm to the view of the "Backs," and in summer it is ever an animated scene as the students, in their white trousers and many-colored "blazers," often accompanied by girl friends in gay dresses and gayer parasols, lazily paddle along.

Cambridge is perhaps the one place in England where canoes are as much used as in Canada. In Oxford the usual craft is a punt; there the graceful figures of men or girls, standing in the rear of these punts and propelling them by means of a long pole, are a pleasant sight, but one which lacks the utter restfulness and peace of the scene on the Cam. On the river, too, a little below the colleges, take place the Lent and summer races between the college "eights."

The Lent races are rowed in clinker-built boats with fixed seats; the summer ones in carvel-built ones with sliding seats. These latter races are rowed in the first few days of "May" week — apparent so called because it never comes in May, but always in the first week of June—and are visited by every person, "town or gown," in Cambridge and by many thousands of visitors who flock in from every quarter to take part in the great festive week of Cambridge life. For the greater part of the year the students are content with the more or less exciting round of lectures and college activities, but in May Week the work is over for the year, and don and student alike throw aside all pretence of seriousness and have a regular rollicking time. Everyone has visitors, hotels and lodgings are crowded out, the usually quiet, narrow streets are ablaze with color and movement. As stated before, the first three days of May Week are given over to the races. Everyone goes to see them, either by water, when one takes the best places available along the bank and picnics between the races in precarious but happy style, or by coach-and-four, more lately in an auto, which are accommodated in a paddock at Ditton Corner in the front of old Ditton Church, where the rector's daughters provide refreshments in aid of local charities; or again, if one is more keen on the actual racing than on the social side of it, one races along the towpath, level with one's favorite boat, and yells oneself hoarse by way of encouragement. The river is not wide enough for the races to be run in the ordinary way, so the boats are started in a given order, with a given distance between each boat, and the point of the race is for each boat to "bump" the one in front of it, in which case the "bumping" boat replaces the boat "bumped" in the order of precedence in next day's racing, the ambition of every college being to have its boat "head of the river."

When the next household treasure arrives a few of his intimate friends who know all about it get one "on the quiet" just to keep them still.

After that they buy their own cigars. Papa is too busy bringing home nursing bottles and the other necessities of life to notice their hints.

FOR WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

A Colonial Supper a Nice Way of Entertaining.

There are all sorts of clever ideas that can be worked out for a Washington's birthday entertainment, whether for children, young people or their elders.

For the latter a real colonial supper, served as far as possible with colonial dishes and silver and with the participants attired in colonial dress, seems to be the most appreciated.

For the youngsters plenty of cherries, cocked hats, hatchets and cannon ball arrangements provide the patriotic setting required. If they are allowed to "dress up" with cocked hats, knee breeches, shoes with buckles, powdered hair, wigs and patches their joy will know no bounds.

An old folks' concert makes a delightful way of celebrating the day.

THE CHERRY TREE BOX.

At a woman's club social last year a dwarf cherry tree was hung full of realistic cherries made from red paper. When opened these were found to contain limericks on each of the guests. As each limerick was read the one to whom it referred took her place in the line until all were out. Then, while standing, the company joined in singing old time melodies.

Boxes that look like the stumps of real cherry trees are cut out of wood or made of papier mache. These are shown in the shops as favors for the Washington's birthday entertainment. Filled with bonbons or inclosing a small gift, they make nice souvenirs for the bridge or dinner party or for the afternoon tea. One of the boxes is illustrated here. A bow of tricolored ribbon encircles it, and a miniature hatchet and artificial cherries give the touch of timeliness.

New Bottle Stopper.

There is a new bottle stopper which is ideal. It could not be described as an automatic cork, and yet it almost amounts to this. There is a cork, or, rather stopper, arrangement of nickel that has a rubber socket cap. This claps down over the mouth of the bottle from which the original cork has been removed. The stopper fits firmly, for the reason its supporting mechanism is fitted to the neck of the bottle by means of an easily adjusted collar that will fit any size bottle. By pressing a lever at the side the stopper is instantly released.

"Do you take much exercise?" asked the doctor.

"Exercise!" exclaimed the patient. "Why, man, I have to put the dog down cellar every night, and I chase him at least seven times through every room in the house before I can catch him."—Denver Republican.

Between 25 and 40.

According to Sir Ernest Shackleton the finest work in polar exploration may be expected from men between the ages of 25 and 40. A man does not attain his full growth until he is 25, and whatever may be the superiority of youth in the way of spring, nerve, and enthusiasm, these do not weigh against the staying power of an older man or the balanced judgment of one who has experiences behind him.

In the Antarctic expedition soon to be undertaken by Sir Ernest Shackleton, where there will be so little room for mistakes and where the ill-considered action of one man may involve the lives of all, impulsive youth and the man of middle age, whose vitality has slightly diminished, must alike stand aside. Sir Ernest Shackleton, who is now 38, was 27 when he first undertook polar work, and about 35 when he made his great march to within 97 miles of the South Pole. Capt. Scott was 33 when he set out in 1901 for the Antarctic, and 44 when he died. Prof. David, who accompanied Sir Ernest Shackleton's expedition and led the party to the south magnetic pole, was nearly 51. Peary was 53 when he discovered the North Pole, and Amundsen 40 when he discovered the South Pole.

SCHOOL BOYS ARE TALKING ABOUT BASEBALL LEAGUE

According to all reports a very speedy school baseball league will be formed during the coming few weeks. The public school league has been in operation for some time but it is anticipated that the School of the Sacred Heart can gain entrance and perhaps St. Peter's. If eight teams can be secured it is expected that there will be two divisions, four teams in each division, and the winners will play off in a final series. The progress of the baseball league will depend considerably on the progress of the public school lacrosse league.

CHAMPIONSHIP HOPES

Movements on Canuck Circuit

It is improbable that Manager Curly Blount will add many more names to his present list. With Miller, Kelly and Chapdelaine to work behind the bat, and Sterling, Schettler, Belting Tracey, Cresswell and a few recruits in the box, the Petes batteries will be hard to improve upon. Of course the infield will be entirely new, but by the dope on the kids Manager Blount has enlisted, the skinned section of the Parks on the circuit will be burned up.

The outfield will be adorned by the manager himself and all the men he has signed up to fight it out for the other two vacancies are reported as being heavy hitters, with lots of speed. The latter asset should be very prominent with the locals this year, since the majority of Blount's squad are twenty or twenty-one.

The team will report about April 15th at Youngstown, Ohio, and after two weeks of preliminary practice will work north, playing several exhibition games.

The scribe on the Hamilton Spec. has selected Toronto and Ottawa to be the strong teams in the Canuck League. Here's the soothing syrup about the Petes: "Peterboro is regarded as a dangerous proposition this year. The Peterboro directors have secured Curly Blount as manager, and Curly has a reputation as a real hustling leader. He had some pretty good material left to him by Davy Rowan, and has added some good youngsters to last year's squad. The Petes have always got away to a bad start in past seasons, but this year they will train in Ohio and should be ready when the bell rings on May 7 for a good start. If they get away good, look out."

St. Thomas, April 1.—Bert Mollineaux, formerly pitcher of the St. Thomas Baseball Club, who was also with Knotty Lee's Hams and the Ottawa Senators, drifted into town yesterday, having wintered in California, and is looking in the pink of condition "Molly" would like to join Craven's squad, but Midge has too many twirlers, and cannot use him. He, however, should get a berth with some Canadian League team, as he heaved some good games in the 1913 season. Mollineaux was with Dayton, Ohio, part of last summer.

The London club has not yet completed its lease on Tecumseh Park, the deal hanging fire for a few days, However, it is expected that this matter will be settled in a few days, and work will be commenced getting the grounds in shape for the London Club when it arrives her on May 4.

There is the nucleus of a very fast Canadian League ball club here with the Leafs. Kelley will have a couple of pitchers to turn back for the Toronto Class C club, Trout, the catcher; Killelea, an infielder; and maybe Frank Schultz, the outfielder, though it is not outside the range of possibility that the latter will stay in the higher ranks.

Joe O'Hara, the Toronto boy, is working hard, but his diminutive proportions militate against his ball playing ability. He will go direct home to Toronto after the Marlin visit is over. He is the protege of Tom Flanagan, and has paid his own expenses here hoping that the experience might qualify him for Canadian League service—Toronto Star.

St. Thomas, April 1.—The management of the St. Thomas baseball club will invite the Duke of Connaught to attend the game scheduled at Pinafore Park on May 13, with George O'Neill's Erie team. This is the day his Royal Highness is to visit St. Thomas, and Mayor Johnson has declared it a holiday.

It is thought likely the Duke will inspect the Twenty-fifth Regiment and Collegiate Cadets at Pinafore Park, and an effort will be made to have him witness a few innings, if unable to stay for the entire game.

"Dad" Stewart, the former manager of the Saints, and London's right fielder last year, is still unsigned. "Dad" is at present holding down a job as brakesman on the Wabash at his home in St. Thomas, and the strenuous life on the railroad has kept him in good shape. There's no doubt that when the ball season opens the Wabash will be short one good brakeman and some team in the Canadian League will get one good outfielder, and a good sticker in the bargain.

From the present outlook, it would not be surprising to see Stewart back with Rube Deneau. Deneau is geeting together a good team for Brantford, and is said to be figuring on the services of the man who helped him put London in second place last year.

TAKEN FOR GRANTED.

Host Raised So Few Things Caller Wasn't Sure About the Baby.

"A FRIEND of mine moved out into the country last year," writes a correspondent. "and after that he bored the life out of us by boasting about his 'country place.' He told how he raised all his own vegetables and animals and everything like that and was no longer dependent on the city for anything, and at last we went out to visit him.

"At dinner I said: 'This is excellent roast pork. Raise your own pigs?'

"'Yes,' he faltered, 'but as it happens, this is not our own pork. The pigs weren't ready to kill yet—we started so late—and I had to send to town for this.'

"It was the same with every one of the vegetables. They hadn't got there in time to start a garden or a hothouse or cold frames or to see to the old orchard. Everything we had was from town, but next year it would be different. It got positively embarrassing after awhile.

"But after dinner my wife cleverly helped out the situation. Our host's little baby was brought in by the nurse for inspection. And after we had admired the kid sufficiently my wife said:

"'I won't ask you if you raised him yourself. He's mighty nice whether you did or not, and I'm sure that after you've been here long enough'"-

SOME GOOD WRESTLERS TO BE SEEN AT THE Y.M.C.A.

Growing out of the success met with by the wrestlers from the Peterboro Y. M. C. A. who took part in the Toronto City wrestling championships recently, an invitation has been sent to Toronto for some of Toronto's best wrestlers to come to Peterboro and compete against our local wrestlers in a series of bouts on Thursday evening, April 9th, in the Y. M. C. A. An effort is being made to secure wrestlers for the 115, 125, 135, 145 and 158 pound classes. These are the standard weights.

Mr. Collings, wrestling instructor of the Central Y. M. C. A., Toronto, has intimated over the long distance telephone that he will be able to send up a bunch of the best men they have got. If the local Y. M. C. A. is successful in securing these wrestlers it will make the best night of wrestling ever seen in Peterboro. Any wrestlers in Peterboro who are amateurs, whether they belong to the Y. M. C. A. or not, are invited to send in their entries to Mr. J. J. Thompson, Physical Instructor, by Tuesday of next week.

THE SEA GULL.

Scavengers of Great Lakes Are Unwearying Fliers.

O far away, blue waves, your voices call;
White sea birds, crying hover—soft shades fall—
Deep waters dimple 'round the dripping oar,
And last rays light the homing fishers' shore.

Familiar with small boats since the age of six, from the eighth year onward, I was granted freedom to spend the whole day rowing about Toronto's Bay, did the spirit move me, says C. M. C. in Toronto Star Weekly. Even when Fisherman King Ward II. reigned at the Island and young Ned Hanlan—off the farther end — was putting brawn and bone in final shape to win his first championship at the Philadelphia Centennial, I delighted in investigating the gulls. It mattered little if some sportsman like (now) Assessment Commissioner Forman, or the late Ald. Geo. B. McMurrich, for instance, was abroad on foreshore on sandbar — keeping his plover-whistle piping and his finger on eager trigger—for me it was sufficient enticement to prowl from log to stump, often heedless of danger zones, and to study the gulls' evolutions and habits.

In winter time, so deep this fascination, frequent long tramps would terminate on the Lake Shore road, whence among the ice-floes of Humber Bay, the same birds—as well as skittering fish ducks — were to be viewed by the hundreds. In fact, it is so to-day. Next Sunday walk off some of your business staleness; go see for yourself. Well, the point to be made is that, though so common, one never reads much about them.

Marvelous fliers — the despair of aeronautical imitators. Some wild ducks, (like the whistlers), may score their fifty or sixty miles an hour; the hawks may appear from their motionless poise, in mid-air, before their plummet-drop to their prey, to set Newton's laws at naught; but the gull—his is the poetry of airy motion—the embodiment of buoyant agility and grace. Those who have given a casual glance or two at these birds from some island ferry see little; the crowded harbor disconcerts them; they reserve the most wonderful portions of their program for the more secluded wave expanses of blue Ontario.

A huge flock were "sitting in their rocking chairs" amid the hiss of the curling waves off Exhibition Park recently, and evidencing their delight in laugh-like, creaking cries—a prodigious racket! Here and there at intervals a little white company would rise, their pink feet dangling, circling overhead till moved once more gracefully to glide down to join "the floating population" for another interval. When an individual gull approached, swinging a giant circle, his round, shiny, black eye—wonderful lenses—would take one all in. The flesh-tinted feet were tucked tightly under, by then; the head turning this way or that—in quest of food. At times the entire squadron would, whistling nervously, as if at a signal, rise from the troubled lake at once—the scatteration! They resembled then the feathery spume cast heavenwards by an explosion below. Sometimes—and as suddenly—down would they flash again, scattering about just as the foamy shafts of water might do in their descent. Ever the shrill, quavering cries.

Watching them thus, one realizes how easy it is for the gull to sweep on moveless outstretched wings, against a head wind, after a steamer; as one may often witness on the Niagara boats when the meal refuse is about to be cast overboard. The gull times that pleasant happening to a minute. Out it goes; and the bird terminates its mysterious planing or its marvellously-balanced wheeling. It dives headlong and glides smoothly along in the steamer's wake, feet dangling, and almost touching the water, from which presently that yellow bill snatches the tasty morsel.

Of course my opinions

I would not abide them
  A day were they not.
I'd shift in a jiffy
  Or less, I should say,
And get me some others
  To have on display.

The reason I hold them
  Is not that I may
Be counted contrary
  And slightly astray.
I cling to them closely,
  Because don't you see
That they are the only
  Opinions for me?

Of course there are others
  Whose feelings are strong
For different opinions,
  But they must be wrong.
Their views must be ever
  At fault, I opine,
Since they are so often
  Cut crossways to mine.

How could it be different?
  I've figured a sight
And settled the questions,
  So I must be right.
Yet pig headed people
  Look at them and scoff
And sometimes say boldly
  That I am way off.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES GIVES BIG MAJORITY FOR PRESIDENT WILSON

In Spite of Every Effort of Both Republican and Democrat Jingoes to Prevent It, Plea of President For Honorable Course In Observing Treaty Is Responded To---Senate Fight Will Be Spectacular.

WASHINGTON, April 1. — The House of Representatives last night, after one of the most spectacular legislative struggles in the history of the nation, voted to repeal the provision of the Panama Canal Act, exempting American vessels from the payment of tolls. The vote on the repeal bill was 247 to 161, a majority of 86 votes in support of the personal plea of Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States.

This verdict on the issue which has absorbed Congress for many weeks came at the close of a stirring day, made memorable in the annals of the House by a party division which found Speaker Champ Clark, Majority Leader Underwood and other Democratic chieftains, lined up in open opposition to the President on an issue which the latter had declared vital to his conduct of the nation's foreign policy.

Yesterday's result was but the beginning of victory for the administration within the party for the first time since democracy took control of the Government a year ago. To-day the bill goes to the Senate, where the fight will be renewed with all the vigor and determination that attended it in the lower House.

On the final vote 220 Democrats in the House stood by the President giving him in "ungrudging measure" what he had asked "for the honor of the nation" in its foreign relations. Twenty-five Republicans and two Progressives also voted to sustain the President. Fifty-two Democrats followed Speaker Clark and Mr. Underwook to defeat in their steadfast determination that the President was wrong in his decision that toll exemption for American ships is a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty with Great Britain.

A Sacred Organ and Vocal Recital is to be given in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church by Miss Dorothy Allan and Mr. John Allan on the evening of Good Friday, April 10th.

THE PETERBORO BILL.

A strong deputation from the City Council will be in Toronto tomorrow, when the Peterboro Bill is considered by the Private Bills Committee. This bill, if passed, will not include the Auburn Dam as a part of the property of the Peterboro Light and Power Co., which the city took proceedings to expropriate.

Noted Artist Dead.

LONDON, April 1—Sir Hubert Van Herkomer, the famous artist, died yesterday at the age of 65. Sir Hubert, who was born in Bavaria, passed several years of his early boyhood in America. In 1857 the family settled in England, where they lived for some years in great poverty. After studying art at various schools young Hubert rapidly gained celebrity. One of his best known pictures is "The Last Muster." He was knighted by King Edward in 1907.

DEBATE GOES ON.

French Members Contribute Share To Discussion on N. T. R.

OTTAWA, April 1.—Some half a dozen speeches were contributed at yesterday's sitting of the House to the debate on the N. T. R. The majority of these were delivered by members from the Province of Quebec including Mr. Sevingny (Con., Dorchester), Mr. Lachance (Lib., C. Quebec), Mr. Power (Lib., W. Quebec), and Mr. Demers (Lib., St. Johns and Iberville.)

Mr. Sevigny, speaking in French, recalled that Sir Wilfrid Laurier in opening the campaign in 1904 in Sorel had boasted that he would build a line from Moncton to Winnipeg for $13,000,000, but now the country found that the bill was not $13,000,000 but $180,000,000 and allowing for interest and other losses the bill would amount to $250,000,000.

Mr. Lachance followed, also in French, and said that the present Government had degraded the standard of the National Transcontinental between Cochrane and Quebec, and had made changes in the terminals at Quebec City against which the Chamber of Commerce had strongly protested.

Mr. McCurdy (Queens and Shelburne) said as a Canadian he was sincerely disappointed at the failure of the Liberals to explain at all the enormous discrepancy between the estimated cost of the road and its actual cost.

William Power, who followed, declared that in building the N. T. R. the Liberal Government would go down in history as having opened up the great hinterlands of Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Logie (Nothumberland) and Mr. Demers (St. Johns and Iberville) continued the debate, both speaking in support of the Graham amendment.

A Knowing Parrot.

"What a fine parrot you have," said Harold to the young woman on whom he was calling. "How is he on imitating?"

"Great," said the hostess. "He can imitate almost anything."

"Over at Smith's," continued Harold, "they have a bird that can imitate a kiss to perfection. Can your bird do that?"

"No, indeed," answered Mabel indignantly. "Parrots can only imitate, and it is not likely that our bird would repeat a sound it is not accustomed to hear."

Then Polly spoke:

"Don't, Will; don't, dear," it said. "Wait until I take this wretched bird out of the room."—Lippincott's.

WOMAN'S WORK

Contributed by the Executive of the Women's Council

Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, the corresponding secretary of the National Women's Council address is 78 Pleasant Boulevard, Toronto. Her telephone number is North 8056.

After May 1st the Council Column will be in the "Women's Century" instead of the "Canadian."

Queen Mary Mother's Club was organized last Friday evening. There was a very enthusiastic meeting. Mrs. Waugh was elected president, Mrs. Cox vice-president, Mrs. McDuffee secretary, and Mrs. Cranfield treasurer.

The Citizens' Committee beg to report that they have brought before the Property Committee of the City Council a number of improvements concerning the market by-laws; that these have all been approved, and some of them will go into effect immediately.

Public Schools.

The Public School is a fundamental, educational and democratic institution of national character. Public opinion needs to be aroused to the tremendous importance of a common school education in order that nothing be allowed to cheat the boys and girls out of their right or to prevent the schools' utmost efficiency. No School Board, staff or Inspector can do their work to the best advantage unless backed up by strong public opinion.

Each school should have playground apparatus with a man and woman teacher supervising—these to receive about $10 a month extra for rendering this service. Each city should make special and adequate provision for the education of backward and defective children and for the foreigner, old and young, that they may be prepared for intelligent citizenship.

Industrial Schools.

Every girl should have the teaching of a housekeeping school from 14 to 18 years. The Dominion Government should pay half. This movement could be chrystallized and brought about by women under local direction and initiative. A gathering composed of employers and employes should confer—consider the needs of the community—plan continuation classes if necessary, as in Edinburgh. Then send the recommendation to Toronto—press the provinces into action. We could have this change established within two years.

The Board of Education should make a careful study of the vocational opportunities for boys and girls leaving school. A copy should be placed in the hands of those parents who have children between the ages of twelve and sixteen, so that they should know the actual and prospective opportunities of pupils of these ages for a livelihood in industries. Teachers should through this report also be in a position to give authoritative information and counsel. At the presnt time far too large a proportion of our youth are going into industries where there cannot possibly be adequate advances in wages. More unskilled labor is coming into Peterborough from abroad than she needs without producing it at home. If this city is to maintain a place as a leading manufacturing centre her own boys and girls must not be allowed to drift into uneducative employment, and eventually swell the already too large ranks of "unemployables."

HAS TORREON FALLEN?

U. S. Consul Says It Has, But Officials Are Skeptical.

EL PASO, April 1.—Absolutely no confirmation of the first flash of the Torreon fall has yet been received in Carranza's headquarters at Juarez at seven o'clock last night, though it is believed to be true. The first message read:

"Torreon fell at 1.30 this afternoon. (Signed) Ham."

Ham is the American consul at Durango and outranks Vice-Consul Carothers, who is with Villa. Carothers relayed the message to the American consul, Marion Letcher, at Chihuahua, to send it to Juarez, and it was relayed there to Washington. The words "Torreon fell" were preceded by a code word which could not be deciphered by anyone in Carranza's office, and it is thought to have been a part of a State Department code arranged by Washington for its consul. Juarez continues to celebrate and messages are flying in every direction announcing the capitulation. Federal officers on this side remain skeptical.

"No Quarter," Villa's Edict.

JUAREZ, April 1.—"No quarter" is expected to be the edict of Villa, the reported victor at Torreon. It is stated that all that was left of the Federal army of defence was captured, having refused to surrender, and finding escape cut off by rebel troops. Executions are now anticipated by the wholesale, Villa saving only the enlisted for his augmented army, which will move on to Mexico City. The fight had dwindled to a test of endurance, which the Federals cooped in the three remaining cuertals, and fighting for their lives against the rapidly increasing horde of rebel soldiers who swarmed across the nazas and into the town from all sides.

Except for his big ears a donkey could not appreciate his own music.

CALLING HIM TO TIME.

A Touching Family Reminiscence Which Effected the Purpose Desired.

THE young man was slow in declaring himself.

"I had an aunt," said the dear girl reminiscently, "who was engaged for twenty years. She gave up all her spare evenings to the man and never went anywhere with anybody else and burned lots of gas and coal for him and gave him a nice supper every little while."

"That's very strange," said the slow young man. "Engaged for twenty years?"

"Yes, twenty years. The young man didn't know it, but auntie did. And finally—they were growing old, you know—she actually had to ask him to name the day. Wasn't that dreadful?"

"It was," said the young man. "I never heard of any one as slow as that."

The girl opened her blue eyes very wide.

"Didn't you?" she asked, with painful distinctness.

A great white light beat upon his dull brain.

The cards are out.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

No Mercenary Lover.

"Sir," said the young man with much respect, "I know that you are a millionaire and that I am poor. It seems presumptuous in me to aspire to the hand of your daughter. But I have thought the matter out, and with some diffidence I have resolved to make my request. Love, sir, is not bound by sordid considerations or by mere social convenience. I have a very real attachment for your daughter."

The old man seemed interested in the young fellow and inclined to listen.

"Quite so," said he. "As you know, I am not in the habit of sticking at trifles, providing the main purpose is straight. But which of my girls do you want?"

The young man breathed a sigh of relief and courteously replied, "Oh, I'll leave that to you, sir."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Her First Thought.

When the clever acrobat jumped into the air and turned three different ways before alighting the audience yelled its approval.

"Ever see anything like that before?" enthusiastically cried a young man who sat in one of the front rows with his best girl.

"Yes, indeed," answered the girl. "That looks just like the way the average man turns a griddlecake."—Judge.

A Compensating Condition.

A woman visited a friend whose husband thought of moving out into the country.

"Getting back to the land is all well and good," she said, "but could you be contented to live in a little place?"

"Yes," replied her friend, "I think I could if I were the only one there who owned an auto."—New York Times.

Hard to Impress.

"Didn't I tell you the last time you were here," said the magistrate sternly to the prisoner who had celebrated not wisely but too well, "that I never wanted you to come before me again?"

"Yes, sir," replied the prisoner, "but I couldn't make the policeman believe it."—Chicago News.

YOUTHS WHO ROBBED STORES AT LINDSAY IN THE TOILS

Pair Are Caught With the Evidences of Their Crimes---One Breaks Down and Admits Everything --- Lindsay Official Gave the Tip That Brought About Their Arrest

Frank Smith, aged seventeen, of Midland, and James Wilson, aged nineteen, of Hamilton, arrested here yesterday morning by Detectives Newhall and Meagher as the two suspects wanted in Lindsay for a series of thefts committed in Lindsay on Wednesday morning, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning on the charge of carrying concealed fire-arms. They pleaded guilty to the charge and were handed over to the Lindsay authorities.

Two revolvers and one rifle were confiscated by the Police Chief. The two prisoners were taken back to Lindsay, accompanied by Police Chief Chilton and Constable Foster.

The various paraphernalia consisting of three suits of clothes and also stolen articles were also taken by the Lindsay authorities. Jewelry supposed to be that stolen from Britton's store in Lindsay, was found in a small leather club bag of the prisoners intact except for a few cuff links which they claimed they threw away.

Smith Broke Down.

Although Wilson presented a bold and hardened appearance, the younger prisoner, Smith, broke down and announced his plea of guilty in sobs which could be plainly heard throughout the court room. The finger prints and other descriptions were taken by Detective Newhall and Meagher after which the youths were escorted to the photographers where they were photographed.

"Oh, my God, what will my people think," were the words of young Smith to a reporter when asked how he came to be mixed up in the case. Smith's whole appearance denoted a breakdown and complete loss of nerve. He further stated that his home was in Midland. His father conducted a blacksmith shop there. The youth claimed that he had been easily led astray by the others and also stated that there were more in the gang, which he had not the slightest intention to shield from the law. He also remarked that a number of them had a camp near Orillia, which served as a rendezvous for the entire gang. Here they spent vacations, shooting. A rifle, found in their luggage, had been often used at this place.

He had received a letter a few days ago from Wilson, asking him to meet him, "and you see the result," the boy continued amid a storm of tears.

Wilson had very little to say except that he had worked on a boat running from Hamilton to Fort William and other points during the summer. He was west for a time, and "going broke" was forced through necessity to steal, which eventually has led to his downfall. His parents lived at Hamilton, but outside of that he refused to say much about them.

Smith admitted that he had served three months a few years ago, for theft, near Midland.

The Lindsay Warder says: "It is said that the men who operated admitted that they were the parties who robbed the town stores last fall, and also owned up to be the chief actors in last night's attempt to clean up the place.

How They Were Caught.

Police Chief Thompson stated that credit was due to Governor Balfour, of Lindsay, who, while coming to the city became suspicious of the actions of the two prisoners who got on the train at Reaboro, a few miles this side of Lindsay. He watched the men and in conversation with the train officials found that they were coming to Peterborough. He followed them and coming here informed the police. Accompanied by Detectives Newhall and Meagher they arrested the two near the Munro House. This was about half an hour after they landed in the city.

"Credit is certainly due to Governor Balfour," remarked Detective Newhall this morning.

The two prisoners will come before the court at Lindsay this afternoon, and will be remanded.

The Provincial Police have been notified, and word is expected any time connecting the two arrested here with a gang which have been operating extensively in Ontario.

The two prisoners admitted that they were concerned in the series of burglaries which took place in Lindsay last fall. They also admitted being connected with robberies which took place in other western towns.

The Review had much of the above information yesterday, but no mention was made of the arrests, at the request of Police Chief Thompson, who said he had information that might lead to the arrest of others. The Chief further stated that the papers in Lindsay would confine their reports to the robbery, and thus give their assistance. The Lindsay papers, however, published a lengthy account of the arrests as made here.

What Was Stolen.

The losses of the four merchants summarized are as follows:

Mr. S. Britton—Three gold watches, one twin diamond ring, one three and one five whole pearl rings, claw settings, one diamond ring with three stones, one five-stone diamond, and one-stone diamond rings (claw settings), two ladies' bracelet watches, gold filled, thirty-six assorted rings, one ladies' Elgin watch, silver case, one tray of brooches and two trays of cuff links, all valued at about $500.

Williams Bros.—One electric massage machine, two meerchaum pipes, one briar pipe and other small articles.

Mr. R. L. Morgan—$35 worth of goods. It is difficult to estimate how much was taken, but two watches, $15 and several pipes are missing.

Mr. Ed. Robson will be a loser to the extent of about $25 worth of goods, which consisted of two set of fancy playing cards, seven or eight dollars in cash, with candies and other small articles, which cannot be enumerated.

A Daring Robbery.

It was a most daring event and had the men met the Lindsay police judging from the arms they carried when arrested, there might have been a deadly conflict in which some one would have fared badly."

ROSELLE KNOTT WANTS ALIMONY OF $15 A WEEK

Actress Takes Proceedings Against Her Former Husband.

HE OWES HER $10,000.

New York, April 2.—Proceedings were begun yesterday to compel Ernest Montague Shipman, a former theatrical manager, to pay Agnes Jane Shipman, his former wife, who achieved considerable fame as an actress under the name of Roselle Knott, $15 a wek alimony.

The proceedings were instituted by Abraham C. Cohen, No. 61 Park Row, Mrs. Shipman's attorney, after she had become convinced that approximately $10,000 she lent Shipman could not be recovered.

The actress sued for divorce two years ago on statutory grounds. She received a large salary on the stage and invested some of her earnings in theatrical enterprises. It is said her income from both sources in one year was about $25,000.

Witnesses for the complainant in the divorce action testified that after Mrs. Shipman returned from a tour and was in a sanitarium with nervous breakdown, due to overwork, her husband had entertained women in the East Elmhurst home that she had bought.

The action begun yesterday grows out of the financial transactions of the Shipmans. It takes the form of divorce granted Mrs. Shipman in July, 1912, by Justice Gavegan. It was alleged that Shipman had borrowed from his wife and given notes to her for $9,940. A part of this is said to have been spent in bringing back to this country the Kilties Band, an organization which Shipman had taken to Australia, where it stranded high and dry.

There is said to have been an agreement between the pair that the notes would be met and on that account no alimony was asked for. Since these notes have not been met and all payments to Mrs. Shipman in the divorce proceedings have been discontinued, the motion to amend the final decree to include alimony was made.

Shipman married Helen Foster Barham, an actress, and playwright, in Jersey City recently. They had been married first in California after Roselle Knott divorced him, and the New Jersey ceremony was performed in order that there might be no legal question of the property rights of their baby in the English estate of the second Mrs. Shipman's family.

CALCUIM CHLORIDE AS A DUST LAYER

Is Used in Regular Street Sprinklers With Success.

Saskatoon, Sask., April 2. — For years past a solution of calcium chloride and water has been successfully used in Great Britain and elsewhere as a street dust layer. It is used in the regular street sprinklers just as water is. Its qualities are that it attracts moisture from the air, and by thus keeping the dust damp prevents it from blowing about. One application is said to last for a considerable time. On the whole, the cost is little more than that of plain water, while the results are said to be vastly better. With a view to testing the matter thoroughly, Saskatoon will order a carload of calcium chloride.

APPEAL CASE.

The appeal case of Herbert Clayton will be heard to-morrow by Judge Huycke. The apellant was fined $100.

SOME SHOWERS

Park Street Church Audience Benefitted by the Fall

There were not only showers of rain but showers of blessings poured upon the large congregation assembled at the Park Street Baptist Church last night. It was a powerful praise service. Scores sought for a deeper work of grace in their lives to overcome sin. The able address of Evangelist Pugsley on "Be sure your siu will find you out," was replete with helpful and practical illustrations. Eight accepted Christ at the close of the service. Musical director Peter sang a solo, and the large chorus choir led the singing. Subject to-night, "Fat Kickers." All come.

WEIGHING AND TESTING OF MILK

Something to be Gained by Keeping Records of Cows

The following is a sample of what is discovered by the simple weighing of milk and testing of samples. A four-year-old cow gave in one month 920 pounds of milk containing 35 pounds of fat. In the same herd a five-year-old gave only 330 pounds of milk and 19 pounds of fat. Thus the first cow gave more than twice as much as the second.

This further fact is interesting; this particular cow was sold by a man absolutely ignorant of her value or dairy capacity. The present owner, through keeping individual records, knows her better and would not sell her for less than thirty dollars more than he paid for her.

Another fact is worth careful attention; the total of the herd yield for a day or a month will never reveal these good individuals. What the owner needs to know for certain is obtained only from a record of each cow he keeps. You can save labor and good feed by bestowing them on cows that you know are worth keeping; you will then be in a position to keep your best cows, and will not lose money by selling good cows cheap.

MR. R. F. McWILLIAMS SPOKE ON EVILS OF THE FLOWING BOWL

Mr. R. F. McWilliams, formerly of this city, was one of the speakers at rally day services held at St. Stephen's Church Sunday School at Winnipeg last Sunday. The addresses were along the line of temperance.

Mr. McWilliams dealt with the problem as it pertained to the realm of sport. Anyone who desired to accomplish anything in sport had to leave liquor alone. The man who used lqiuor was the man who was lost when the critical stage of the game was reached. It was the same way in business. In many departments of business. In many department room for the man who drank, and the places where they had room for him were narrowing down every year. He appealed to the boys to be total abstainers, if for no other reason than for their own self-respect. Mr. McWilliams also pointed out the influence held by the girls in keeping the boys straight, and declared that there was an opportunity to-day for all to unite in making the city one of which all her citizens might well be proud.

BROKER TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

W. H. Spader Suicides by Shooting at Cobourg

Cobourg, April 2.—W. B. Spader, formerly a partner in the late brokerage firm of Marshall, Spader and Co., of New York and Toronto, committed suicide at his residence here last night by shooting. Mr. Spader, who had dwelt in Cobourg for a year or more, appeared in excellent spirits during the day, although he had been in ill-health for some time. Late this afternoon he retired to his bedroom, undressed, lay down and blew out his brains. A short note was found beside the body, addressed to a local friend. It is said that the note merely wished the friend "good-bye," and gave no reason for the suicide.

Mr. Spader, who was 54 years of age, is survived by a widow and three daughters, all living here. The family is well known and popular in Cobourg's American colony. The remains will be taken to Rochester for interment Friday.

REV. J. N. CLARRY B.A. AT BOWMANVILLE

Bowmanville Statesman. — Rev. John N. Clarry, B.A., the successful pastor of St. James Methodist Church, Peterboro, who preached two very earnest and practical sermons in the Methodist Church, Bowmanville, last Sunday, was a schoolmaster before entering the ministry. We have never known an instance where a man went into the ministry after being a successful schoolteacher, who did not also prove himself to be a popular pastor. There is some peculiar influence that gets inoculated into a man's nature through his experience in dealing with children for some years in the schoolroom that gives him a lasting desire to be helpful to young people all the rest of his life. This characteristic showed itself in Mr. Clarry's first act after devotional service on Sunday morning when he stepped to the front of the rostrum and talked for five minutes to the children on telling the truth always. In this way he enlisted their attention and interest during the delivery of the sermon proper.

BRANCH OF CHURCH UNITY LEAGUE FORMED

Montreal, April 2.—At a public meeting held in the Church of St. James the Apostle, Rev. Dr. Symonds presiding, a resolution to form a Montreal branch of the Church Unity League was adopted unanimously. The object of the league is to promote by all constitutional methods the cause of Christian unity. In reply to a question, Dr. Symonds stated that if it was thought there would be the slightest use in approaching the Roman Church, it would be approached. Rome, however, had already stated that there could be only one basis of union, and that it was ready to receive all the Christian churches.

THREE HOTELS ARE BURNED

ALL THE GUESTS MADE THEIR ESCAPE FROM THE FLAMES

Canadian Press Despatch.

St. Augustine, April 2.—An early morning fire destroyed the Florida House, Munson House and the Nannet Hotel, all crowded with tourists, several residences and the County Courthouse. The loss is half a million dollars. The flames were extinguished late in the morning and no lives were lost, although many of the hotel guests escaped hurriedly, scantily clad.

St. Augustine (later)—Two more hotels, the Atlantic and Central, were consumed before the fire was out, and loss may be three-quarters of a million dollars.

DEGREE TEAM TO PUT ON MOCK INITIATION

Havelock, April 2.—Royal Lodge No. 268, Independent Order of Oddfellows, has issued invitations to its friends to attend the official dedication of its new lodge rooms in the Curtis Block, on Friday evening of this week. The feature event of the evening will be a mock initiation, put on by the members of the Peterboro degree team.

PREPARING FOR THIS SEASON ON TRENT CANAL

The Survey Boat Oriental Will Have New Engine

Hastings, April 2.—The canal staff under Mr. West, who have been at Harwood for the past two months, are now fitting up the boats ready for the summer's work. The old railway bridge out from Harwood has all been cross sectioned and it is likely that the old piers and piles will all be dredged out, as they are mostly under water and a menace to navigation. The survey boat Oriental has been at Peterboro all winter being rebuilt and having a new engine installed.

Jack Burness and Mike Murphy have started on fitting up No. 7 dredge. The former will run No. 7 this season. The Coate Bros., who have run No. 7 the past two seasons, will run the No. 8 this season.

Most of the launch owners are getting at their boats looking them over and fitting for the coming season, the last few days' fair weather putting everyone on the lookout for an early spring. The water in the river is rising steadily despite a number of stop logs out, and if the present weather holds we can look for our high water almost a month early.

The work on the Oriental is being executed by M. B. Rye at the Otonabee Boat House.

A PETERBORO LADY IN FLORIDA

Since early January we have enjoyed ten long carriage drives, averaging about fifteen miles each, and radiating from De Land, the metropolis of Volusia Co.

The poverty and resultant unproductiveness of Florida is proverbial, yet a wealth of wood-land might be its boast. Not forests or jungles, but trees scattered about as in a park. The great groves of pine, (not the northern variety) straight as an arrow, and limbless, perhaps for eighty feet are abundant in the interior, furnishing work for the steam sawmills and heavy hard wood lumber for building purposes. It seems to us a contradiction of terms to speak of pine as hard wood and oak as soft wood, but thus it is, as to the heart of the trees, growing in the "High Pine Belts," although the "Hammock Land," which is low land, may have a different specie. To me, the Florida oak is a ponderous puzzle. In the short spact of thirty years the diameter of its spreading branches frequently reaches one hundred feet, while the lower branches are like common trees in circumference, but are unfit for building purposes. This giant oak so monopolizes the soil nutriment that deep ditches usually enclose the citrus-fruit groves to shield their roots from the voracious neighboring oaks. The latter tower high above stately city edifice, and form charming avenues in city, town, village and country, stretching miles and miles away. The entrance to "Rose Lodge" has fifty of these giant oaks on either side; they are of decidious type, parting with their green vesture in February to don fresh foliage in early March; and so mystic is this miracle that ere one is aware the words of Longfellow are verified:

"Lo, the bright foliage interweaves
"In one unbroken roof of leaves!"

While the pine and oak largely predominate, yet interspersed are many other varieties—the brilliant mangolia, the queer cabbage-palmetto, the gay oleander, the crepe-myrtle, eucalyptus, bamboo, mahogany, mulberry, camphor tree, umbrella tree, cypress tree, etc.

At middle of March the air is full of fragrance from orange blooms. Frequent showers come pouring, but sunshine soon has precedence, and even sombrous night has a brilliance peculiar to the tropics. High winds are rare, nature seems reposing in verdure under the calm of the white-flecked, cernlean arch. The cheerful red-bird, and the carolling mocking bird make the spring mornings musical; our northern robin, waiting for suitable reception in his distant home, awakens thoughts of the same by his chirrupping notes, but never deigns the rich carol in a southern clime. Among transient visitors is the "cold wave" which called here the 9th inst. mercury dropping for three hours, at early dawn, to 32 degrees zero, very slight damage resulting.

The outlying country of this spacious country is not thickly populated, as the "millions of acres that want hands" still wait for the "millions of hands that want acres"; however, without capital, failure would probably follow in consequence of expressive fertilization. For instance, a fair sample on small scale is before me: "Rose Lodge" has citrus grove of only five acres; for crop of 1914 fertilization costs as follows: Twelve tons of "commercial fertilizer" at $35 per ton, ten tons of lime (or lime stone) at $4 per ton, aside from labor of caring for grove, which includes banking and unbanking trees, cultivating and providing apparatus for "fireing" in times of "cold wave." Withal, the citrus fruit industry pays a good dividend even here, where cold waves sometimes come, as the cash asset from this same five-acre grove; last December amounted to two thousand dollars, hanging on the trees.

Nitrate of soda is also used on the garden lands.

The weight of a cabbage that I saw from the latter, being 20 pounds. From the garden we have at Rose Lodge generous helpings of nice, fresh strawberries several times a week, since January and such large, luscious fruit—40 berries filling a quart.

Poultry farming if done scientifically yields good returns, without a large priority of outlay.

H. I. Morse-Farnum.

Poultry Association.

The regular monthly of the Peterboro Poultry Association will be held in their hall to-night. All varieties of Wyandottes will be on exhibition. Ribbons will be awarded.

SEVERAL HUNDRED CASES OF MUMPS IN THE CITY

SOME VICTIMS HAVE CAUGHT COLD

Society and other functions have to take second place in the swell affairs and Mumps is leading with a big margin.

The disease is not confined to children, as there are many adults who have contracted this painful affliction. Dr. McPherson is not able to give the exact number of cases in the city, but he says that perhaps there are several hundred.

In some instances the victims have caught cold and the results have been very diastrous. There are still many vacant seats at the Normal School. But there is very little other infectious disease in the city.

This month the moving picture apparatus of the Ontario Health Department will be in Peterboro and arrangements will include a lecture by Dr. Clinton. Special reference will be made to Measles.

AMOUNTS NOT EXCEEDING $1 TO BE ALLOWED IN UNREGISTERED MAIL

Ottawa, April 2.—"We are going to modify the regulation recently passed prohibiting transmission of coin or bank notes in unregistered letters, so that people will be able to send through the ordinary mail amounts not exceecing a dollar," said Dr. Coulter, deputy postmaster general to-day.

"All I can say is that the bill was passed recently," said Dr. Coulter, "and notice of it appeared in the Canada Gazette. We have, however, decided to alter the regulation somewhat, giving any person the privilege of sending any small sums, not exceeding one dollar, through the ordinary mails without having them registered. This change will be put into effect very shortly," he concluded.

It is understood the regulation was passed to remove temptation from postal employees to steal money from unregistered letters. Unregistered letters containing money are now being sent to the dead letter office.

THE POWER COMPANY CANNOT LOAD CITY WITH ANOTHER PLANT

CITY WINS DISPUTED POINT

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, April 2.—This morning the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature decided that the City of Peterborough could acquire the plant of the Peterborough Power and Light Company immediately at the value set by the arbitration and that the city did not have to purchase any other works controlled by the holding company, despite efforts of the latter to load the city with another plant.

Hon. Adam Beck, chairman ofthe Hydro Electric Commission, came to the rescue of the city of Peterboro and told the committee exactly what the situation was at the present time.

SEALER MEETS DISASTER

FIFTY OF CREW DEAD FROM EXPOSURE ON ICE FLOES

Canadian Press Despatch.

St. John's, Nfd., April 2.—Sealing steamer Newfoundland has been crushed in ice just south of Belle Isle Strait. The greater part of her crew of 150 men it is believed perished. Steamers in the vicinity picked up several bodies and a few of the crew, who had survived on the ice floes to which they escaped when the vessel went down. Fifty of crew have been accounted for. Most of them were dead when discovered, and several others are dying.

Great alarm is also felt for the Sealing steamer Southern Cross, also believed to have been caught in the ice. First reports received here said it was part of the crew of Southern Cross that had been picked up and that they were being brought into port by the Newfoundland. There are 173 men on board the Southern Cross. She was due here Tuesday. The storm that has raged over Newfoundland for three days continued unabated to-day and telegraph service to points along the coast has suffered.

ENGINE WENT THROUGH CULVERT

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, April 2.—Word was received this afternoon that a fatal accident had occurred at the C. P. R. construction camp near Cherrywood, where an engine went through a culvert, seriously injuring the fireman and brakeman. The engineer is missing, and it is feared that he is under the engine.

AN OPIUM RING.

Woodstock, April 2.—There has been considerable police investigation into an alleged Chinese opium ring, said to exist in London. It was said there that the drug had been sent there from Woodstock and several other western Ontario towns. Chief of Police Killings when seen in regard to the statement said he had been endeavoring to get onto the trail of the stuff for a long time, but had been unsuccessful.

NEW RECEPTACLES FOR RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

Will Hold Both Letters and Parcels—Farmers Can Exchange Present Boxes

Toronto, April 2.—The manufacture of 100,000 special combined letter and parcel boxes for rural mail delivery will be commenced in Toronto immediately. The Dominion Government has awarded the contract for the supply of these boxes to the International Mail Equipment of Canada, and by June 15, the first 10,000 boxes must be delivered.

The new boxes are similar in design to the rural mail boxes now in use, and are equipped with self-locking signal devices of the same type. The difference is in size. The new boxes will be more than twice the dimensions of the old ones. Their price will be $4.25 apiece, as compared with $3.00. The original tender price was $4.50, but the company, considering the size of the order, cut 25 cents off this figure.

Like U.S. Boxes.

The boxes are of the same type as those made by the International Mail Equipment Co., of New York, which supplies the U.S. Parcels Post system. One clause of the contract with the Dominion Government, however, provided that the boxes should be made in Canada, and the International Mail Equipment Co. of Canada was organized.

Farmers having the present boxes can exchange them for the new boxes on payment of $1.50 to the Post Office Department.

ARTIFICIALLY HEATED ELECTIONS.

THE MUNICIPAL elections in Montreal are going to be hot ones. At a meeting held in College Hall on Desery Street, the other night, cayenne pepper was scattered on the floor, causing convulsions of sneezing among the four hundred people in the hall. As a usual thing, municipal elections in Montreal are, to say the least, vigorous, but to what degree of depravity municipal elections are being reduced in that city may be understood, when they have to resort to cayenne pepper to make the elections interesting. However, the pepper will no doubt wake them up, when the speeches would likely put them to sleep. More pepper and fewer speeches might be a good thing for Montreal's municipal politics.

ENOUGH RAILWAYS FOR THE PRESENT.

THE BILL to incorporate the All Red railway company, came up in the railway committee the other day. The proposal to construct a fourth transcontinental railway across Canada from Labrador to British Columbia naturally received very little encouragement, owing to the fact, as the Honorable J. D. Reid explained, that the new concern cannot expect government assistance, because the Government had all it could handle at the present time. Labrador is a vast country very little known. It is a rough country inhabited by roving tribes of Indians and great herds of caribou. Reports state that it is of little value agriculturally, but the reports from Labrador are not at all thorough, and perhaps a railway would reveal another great field for enterprise in its immense tracts of unexplored territory. Labrador has only been crossed two or three times, once by a woman who successfully crossed it in search of her husband whom she found dead, he having lost his way in the attempt. But as for developing this country, at the present time, it is quite out of the question, for everything cannot be done in a day, and Canada has got enough to do for several years to come, in developing the present railroads she has now in course of construction.

LIBERALS NOT SERIOUS.

A REPORT states that Senator Sir Lyman Melvin-Jones, president of the Massey-Harris Company, has broken with the Liberal Party as a result of its endorsation of the resolution, calling for the removal of duty from agricultural implements. Senator Jones claims to be a moderate tariff man. No great insight is necessary to see why Sir Melvin Jones would be opposed to a free tariff on agricultural implements. The case is largely one of self interest, but aside from the obvious reason that prompted the Senator's action, the more important fact is that the Liberal Party is not a united force on the tariff question. It undoubtedly contains men who are opposed to the free trade schemes of its leaders, and this fact shows why the free trade cries of the Liberals, prior to 1896, were smothered in neglect when they came into office. Having been mumified for some sixteen years, they are now bringing them out, like a jar of old preserves, and spouting free trade as of yore. Since they ignored while in office, their free trade planks, they cannot be deemed really serious in what they are now proposing.

PERFORMING THE IMPOSSIBLE.

SCIENCE IS making such rapid progress that difficulty is experienced in keeping pace with it. Modern industry is supplying the field and incentive for the greatest and most useful advances. Thus the Pennsylvania Railroad has recently tested an improved brake system that actually stopped at rain of twelve steel passenger cars and a locomotive, weighing in all nearly a thousand tons, within a thousand feet, or the length of the train, when running at a speed of sixty miles an hour. The energy generated by a train of that weight running at that speed corresponds to that of a blast of dynamite powerful enough to blow the entire train 120 feet in the air. The high-speed brakes now in general use would in an emergency stop the same train within a distance of from 1,600 to 1,800 feet.

So wonderful have been the inventions, that people are not surprised at even the impossible, for the impossible has been seemingly performed over and over again.

TORIES WILL NOT COUNTENANCE GRAFT.

FOR SOME TIME the Toronto Globe and other Liberal newspapers have been indicting the Borden Government for being a party to railway graft in the construction of the Southampton Railway, a thirteen mile line in New Brunswick. They have been charging that $26,000 was wrongfully used, and that the Conservative Government was making no effort to probe the affair. Just the other day, Honourable Frank Oliver stated in the House that the government was allowing this case to pass without instituting an investigation. Honourable Dr. Reid at once arose and informed Mr. Oliver that a commissioner had already been appointed in the person of Mr. R. A. Pringle, K.C., of Ottawa. Mr. Oliver was obliged to admit without enthusiasm, that he must congratulate the government on the position taken. The action of the Borden Government is clearly in the interest of the Canadian people, and is also in striking contrast to the methods adopted by the Liberals. When the Tories were in Opposition they asked for a commission to investigate the Transcontinental and the Liberals refused to accede to the request, and persisted in their policy of waste until the people thrust them headlong from office. Now, when the Tories are in power they have probed the N.T.R. which has discredited the Liberal party, but they also are going to probe whatever should be investigated in order to satisfy the charges of the Opposition. Borden knows that he has nothing to fear from truth and frankness.

THE LONELY ONE.

THERE APPEARS to be only one real advocate of Canadian independence in this country. His name is John S. Ewart, K.C., of Ottawa, a rich man and author of the Kingdom papers. Recently he addressed the Canadian Club in Montreal and boldly preached his favorite doctrine. But his triumph was short. Up rose Henri Bourrassa, the Nationalist, who smote Ewart hip and thigh. "We want to remain as we are," cried Mr. Bourrassa amid thunderous applause. It astonished Mr. Ewart. It astonished Montreal. It astonished all Canada. But it did not astonish Mr. Bourrassa, apparently. He stoutly maintains his loyalty to British connection as it is, but not as some would have it. He appears to have spoken the funeral oration of Mr. Ewart. The last has been heard of him. It is high time.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE TAX RATE of the town of Galt was set, at a meeting of the council on Tuesday evening, at twenty-six mills, a rate which exceeds last year's rate by four mills. The town council of Galt was apparently not afraid of a big jump in the tax rate. The city council of Peterborough is trying to maintain a rate of twenty-five mills, and if all estimates are provided for as proposed, the rate will probably be twenty-six mills. This city seems to have an economical council, relatively speaking.

THE CITY of Liverpool, England, enjoys the distinction of having the first woman police in England. She is Mrs. Hughes, a widow of 35, and was made inspector of the criminal investigation department.

Will the Liberals Remember.

Kingston Standard.

Will the Liberals kindly remember that a Liberal member of the Dominion House has now said that he desires "no truck or trade with the Yankees." But because he has done so, the Conservatives will not be such fools as to claim that all Liberals desire this, as they did when one Conservative voiced such a wish.

A Good Innovation.

St. Thomas Times.

A Western States railway company has decided to hang in its observation cars framed maps that will show all the points of interest, the names of important waterfalls, their height, the elevation of various hills and peaks, the roads, the streams, and the hotels. The company will use the topographical maps published by the government, which are remarkable for their beauty and accuracy.

Graham's Poor Defence.

Toronto News.

Mr. George P. Graham was inclined to wander in his defence of the National Transcontinental Railway construction. He did not stick to the main point, the cost of the road. He was like the colored offender in a Tennessee town who was about to be sentenced to death. When asked if he had anything to say, he responded: "Well, Jedge, it's like this: If you hangs me, you hangs the best bass singer in Tennessee."

"How do you live on?" That's Russian. "May thy shadow never be less." That's Persian—and all mean much the same thing.

Asquith Hanging On.

Montreal Gazette.

Mr. Asquith has sought to find a way out of the army crisis by accepting the resignations of Col. Seely, secretary of war, Sir John French, chief of the general staff, and Sir John Ewart, adjutant general of the forces. The Prime Minister will himself take the war portfolio. By this arrangement the army loses the services of two good soldiers. It may be that nothing else would meet the situation. There is much yet to be told of the circumstances which made it appear that officers of the army participated in something akin to mutiny. Until it is told comment on a regrettable incident will be made with only partial knowledge and will be weak. Colonel Seely's retirement makes it appear that he was admittedly at fault. Perhaps the way chosen was the best one out. The situation has hurt some traditions, and may have hurt the Government, which is naturally held accountable for whatever goes wrong in connection with the public services.

Sung by Sir William Mackenzie.

THE HOURS I spend with Thee, dear heart,
In looking for a guarantee,
Are calendared with golden ink
In Memory.

Soft modesty beclouds mine eyes
And hope is difficult to see,
For thou hast said in vast surprise
—— "A Guarantee ? ? ? ? ? ?"

'TWAS IN the windy month of March
When all the buds were busting,
I brought a deputation here
In common-sense a-trusting.
The speakers said to Government,
In accents bold and hot:
"Don't build the Georgian Bay Canal, Improve the one we've got."

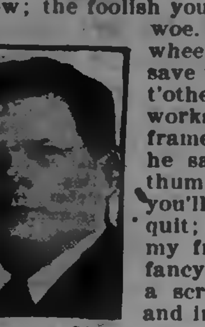
THE TOBACCO HABIT

By Walt Mason



Oh, Clarence, do not learn to use those foulest weeds that grow; the foolish youth who smokes or chews is storing future woe. For years I've spent my hard-earned wheels to keep my briar fed; I always smoked save when at meals, or in my truckle-bed. And t'other day the sawbones came, and took my works apart, and said, while pawing o'er my frame, "You have a cabbage heart. It's fierce," he said; "I never seed such wild, spasmodic thumps; unless you quit the noxious weed you'll surely bump the bumps." And now I've quit; life's on the blink, the world is drear, my friends; and I can only sit and think of fancy Turkish blends. My nervous system is a scream, the tears stream down my cheek, and in my fevered sleep I dream of burley and perique. My agony is too intense to be before you lugged; I feel like twenty-seven cents, and every penny plugged. So, Clarence, do not learn to smoke, and keep no pipes about; believe me, son, it is no joke when you must cut it out.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE HEALTH SUPERVISION.

Editor Review:—

Dear Sir:—

I wish, through the columns of your paper, to draw the attention of the public to the rather partial course the nurse had taken at the King George School. In several cases she had sent children home on the plea of having chicken-pox, when it was nothing but a mere rash. On other occasions she allowed children of a family to continue at school when other members of the same family were at home, ill with chicken-pox. Is this performing duties in an impartial manner?

Yours truly,
BROOKLYN.

ASSISTANCE TO THE C.N.R.

HON. DR. REID TABLES FIGURES IN REPLY TO MR. BURNHAM.

OTTAWA, April 2.—The Dominion Government has thus far granted cash subsidies amounting to $28,354,942, and bond guarantees amounting to $59,746,582, to the Canadian Northern Railway Co. and its subsidiary lines. Of the total of the cash subsidies granted, the amount of $21,378,534 has thus far been earned, while on the bond guarantees the company has so far raised $39,937,822. In addition to this the company has received from the Federal Government land grants of 4,002,846 acres originally granted to the Lake Manitoba Railway & Canal Co., the Winnipeg & Hudson Bay Railway Co., and the Manitoba & Southeastern Railway Co., which roads were taken over and completed by the Canadian Northern Co.

This information was given in the Commons yesterday afternoon by the acting Minister of Railways, Hon. Dr. Reid, in reply to a question by Mr. J. H. Burnham (Peterboro). The details given, however, do not, of course, include public aid received by the Canadian Northern system from the various provinces or from municipalities.

TIME YET THIS YEAR.

Radial Deputation's Requests May Be Granted Now Says Beck.

TORONTO, April 2.—Hydro radial enthusiasts from all over the province, but in the great majority hailing from points in western and central Ontario, swarmed into the Parliament Buildings yesterday in a huge deputation, urging tangible Government assistance to the promotion of publicly-owned electric lines.

The requests were in brief as follows:

(1) That permission be granted to the Hydro Commission at once to proceed with the development of power at the spillway of the new Welland Canal, and that such funds as are necessary be placed at the disposal of the commission.

(2) That the model agreement which authorized the commission and the municipalities to enter into a contract for the construction and operation of such railways be adopted as the standard and be ratified by legislation.

(3) That the Government guarantee bonds approved by the commission and the municipalities to form a security, to be sold in the market.

(4) That the Government, by legislation, authorize such bonds for 50 years, and that no sinking fund be provided for the first ten years.

(5) That legislation be passed to divide the province into electoral zones so that one municipality could not hinder the construction of a radial that was desired by the majority of those concerned. The zones would be outlined by the commission.

The reply of the Government came through Hon. Dr. Pyne, as senior member of the Cabinet, and Hon. Adam Beck, who was forced to respond, because of the insistence of the audience. The very serious consideration of the whole matter and a careful study of financial obligations involved was the promise of Dr. Pyne, and Mr. Beck stated, in addition, that the move had his sympathy, and that there was yet time during the session, he would think, to come to some conclusion.

Birthdays of Note

THURSDAY, APRIL SECOND

HON. F. A. ANGLIN, puisne judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, completes his forty-ninth year to-day. He is one of the ablest jurists of the present time, being a close student, a quick thinker and an impartial investigator. He first gained recognition when a young lawyer practising in Toronto. He was engaged to defend a man who had been arrested on a charge of fortune telling and the case came before the Court of General Sessions. There had been seven consecutive convictions in the Court and the prospects were by no means bright. However Judge Anglin took a clever line of defence and showed to the satisfaction of the jury that the prisoner did not depend on the element of chance in his transactions but possessed a scientific knowledge of phrenology, the exercise of which was perfectly legitimate. His man was accordingly acquitted. Ten years ago Mr. Anglin was made a judge of the High Court of Ontario, in which position he rendered some important judgments, and five years ago he was raised to the Supreme Court bench.

Though Two Were In Waiting, and He Admits the Boys May Get Him In the End—Downfall of a Great Marksman—A Social Snub Paid Back.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

LAST week (Monday) a mule backed up on us on the street and put both hind feet against our waistband, and it was two days before we got our breath back to ask what had happened. On Tuesday our horse editor was shot in the shoulder by a Pine Hill man and will be laid up for a week. Next day while our agricultural editor was prowling over the sand hills he was bitten by a blind wolf, and on Thursday old Jim Hewson broke loose and shot our local editor in the left leg. With the four compositors wrestling with the measles, the week was a busy one, but the Kicker is out on time, as usual.

Some one told Colonel Kelso's gang of cowboys that we were going to ride over to Rocky Bar Saturday afternoon, and eight of the boys waited three hours for us on the highway. They had two hanging ropes with them, and one of them had a paper and pencil to take down any dying statement we might wish to make. We don't know how high Mr. Haman was hung, but the intention of the gang was to boost us at least a foot higher. As mayor of Givesdam Gulch we have a strained relation with this crowd for two years past, and nothing short of our death will even things up. We didn't start for Rocky Bar—had no idea of going there—and the gang was disappointed again.

The boys may get hold of us sooner or later, but we are not going to worry over it.

Major Bill Jackson, who came here from New Mexico last spring and has been posing as a man of nerve and a great pistol shot, got into a political discussion with George Barnes near the postoffice the other day, and after some hot words had passed George Barnes called him a liar. The major made a great show of pulling his pop and finally took a snapshot, with the result that the bullet intended for a man ten feet away entered his own foot. Mr. Barnes, who was not armed, was backing off when the shot was fired. The affair was witnessed by half a dozen citizens, and so great was their surprise and contempt for the major's workmanship that he had to limp away unassisted. He sent for us and was prolific of excuses, but the best thing he can do when able to travel is to get out of town.

Two weeks ago we published an item to the effect that Billy Baines of the White Swan saloon had been imprisoned in Utah for biting off a man's nose. We have nothing against Billy as a citizen, but wrote the item, which we believed to be true, to fill a space of four lines at the bottom of a column on the local page. Mr. Baines visited the Kicker office two or three days ago and showed us letters and documents to prove that we were in error. He was never in Utah in his life, but many years ago, back in Illinois, he got into a fight with a lightning rod man and chewed his ear, but chewed very softly.

We beg to apologize for our mistake.

We were not at the "at home" given by Mrs. Colonel Powell at her abode on Cochise place last Monday evening. As a rule, nothing of the sort is given in this town without our advice and assistance, as we are the only person posted on etiquette. The lady left us off her list in order to give us the cold snub and to prove that our assistance was not necessary to pull off a successful function. As a result the whisky was served from a demijohn, the napkins were not correctly folded, and the rabbit salad was brought on hot and had neither lettuce nor cabbage mingled with it. The affair broke up two hours earlier than usual, and some one stole the demijohns and two boxes of cigars.

We took the snub in silence, but yesterday an officer arrived here and took the colonel away to Iowa to stand trial for embezzlement. We can be socially snubbed, but there will always be an afterclap. Some folks are fitted by nature to lead society; others must follow. We are one who leads.

CATCHING THE COD.

Newfoundland's Great Industry Carried On By Whole Families.

We are in the days of the succulent codfish ball—to be exact, of the prepared cod, in one form or another.

What a tale the cod could tell, had he but his life and the gift of speech! What a long cry it is, too, from his place on the salesman's shelf to the storm-swept ocean wastes off Newfoundland's grand banks.

Thirty thousand or so of Newfoundland's fishermen go each year to take the cod. Inhabitating the miserable little turf houses, they work seven days of the week, but their lives are not without interest.

Cod fishermen go out early, usually four in a boat, sometimes leaving the shore as early as four o'clock in the morning. No bait is employed; they use mammoth cod traps, which have square pounds or enclosures of netting. To these traps there extends a "leader"—a rope or wall of the netting leading to the shore. As the school of cod advances, it strikes this wall of netting and follows it out into the trap.

Usually a trap holds from 30 to 100 quintals of fish at a drawing. The traps are made by the fishermen themselves, in the winter — large enough to hold 200 quintals. A quintal is 100 pounds.

The drawing of a trap—the "raising," it is called—is a process ever full of interest to the newcomer. Out of the strait, between Portugal Cove and Belle Isle, three fishers, in the yellow, oil-skin "slickers," are engaged in raising the great cod net as you approach. You row over to watch them. All three are leaning far back and pulling at a rope, strung with squares of cork to keep it up in the water; this is the line to the long trap, 15 fathoms square. Each of the three men is astride a seat. The oldest cries "heave!" and all three pull back as far as they can to bring in the net. First, however, they bring in the line which the cod had followed to the trap.

When once they have in hand the cork-strung rope forming the top of the net, they set it into a notch at the end of the dory or boat. Now begins the real hauling in of the net. Two of the men take places at one end of the boat and the third at the other to pull. It will take a long time, for there are full 15 fathoms to be hauled in. Only now does one realize how very heavy is the load. As the net is drawn in it is at the same time released over the other side of the boat, so, as fast as they are drawing it they are again casting it. By and by, however, the fish are drawn together in one ever-narrowing section close to the boat, until finally the wriggling mass of fish is near enough to be scooped from the net into the bottom of the boat and taken ashore.

These nets or traps have taken the men, working four or five in company, from two to three months to make and are valued at about $200 each. The fishers may make $20 at each raising, or may get next to nothing, according to the catch. Much depends on prices, for when the fish are too plentiful prices are low; only when they are scarce do high prices prevail.

On shore with the catch, men, women and children clean the fish and set them to curing. At the wharves of St. John's, Nfld., one may witness the process. When the fish have been cleaned and washed they are set out on the flakes to dry—not on the naked stages, for the sun would then crack the fish. Instead, evergreen boughs are laid on the stages, and on these the fish are placed, so that the wind can get underneath and assist materially in the drying.

At night the fish must be taken in, likewise when a fog comes up; otherwise they will again take up the moisture. In fact, even when they are dried and stored away in the warehouses they must be brought out now and then for redrying. There are thousands and thousands of them on the wharves of St. John's, ready for shipment all over the world. Up on the coast there are additional thousands, where picturesque schooner girls, who ship with the fishermen, attend the cleaning and curing.

THE "HOUPPELANDE" COAT

"Houppelande" is merely the French for big coat and here is one that is big and roomy enough for the most luxurious of motor wear. It is smartly developed in a black and white check with cuffs and a collar of white Jeveline. Like many of the loose garments of to-day, this coat is cut as little as possible, one back and two fronts, taking in sleeves.

LIBERAL ORATOR FINDS ANOTHER "DEFENCE" FOR EXTRAVAGANCE

Macdonald, of Pictou, Says Government Knew All Along.

OTTAWA, April 2.—The debate on the National Transcontinental Railway scandal is nearing its conclusion. One Conservative and three Liberals spoke yesterday and a vote will be reached to-night, after speeches by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Prime Minister. E. M. Macdonald found another way out for the Liberals yesterday. He read Hansard to show that Mr. Borden and other speakers had in 1904 accurately predicted the cost of the line when they were in Opposition, and need not therefore be surprised at the extravagance.

Major Fowler replied to Mr. Macdonald and incidentally ventilated the Delisle farm deal, where $24,000 was spent in placating a farmer who could have been brought out for $3,500.

The debate was resumed by Mr. Gautier (Lib., St. Hyacinthe), who contended that the present Government had no right to degrade the standard of the National Transcontinental without first obtaining a mandate to that effect from the people.

"He was followed by E. M. Macdonald (Lib., Pictou), who ridiculed the claim that Parliament in 1903, and the electorate in 1904, had endorsed the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme in the belief that the Government line between Moncton and Winnipeg would not cost over $13,000,000. He then read at length from Hansard to show that Mr. Borden had estimated the cost of the road at $150,000,000, while the late Hon. John Haggart and Speaker Sproule had put the cost at $125,000,000. Sir Edmund Osler, he said, had estimated the cost at $250,000,000. In 1908, when but a small portion of the work had been completed on the National Transcontinental, Hon. George E. Foster had declared in Parliament that the line between Moncton and Winnipeg would cost at least $155,000,000, while R. L. Borden had made the remarkably accurate estimate that the cost would be $161,726,185, exclusive of terminals, which he estimated at $5,000,000 additional. Now, in 1914, the entire Conservative Parliament, from Mr. Borden down, affected to be horrified, and astounded at the announcement that the complete line would cost $161,000,000, including terminals.

"The Laurier Government is responsible for $95,000,000 of this expenditure and the Borden Government for $66,000,000," declared Mr. Macdonald, "but if gentlemen on the other side say that the cost of the road is $200,000,000, $300,000,000 or $400,000,000, so much the worse for them, because for only $95,000,000 of the total expenditure can the Laurier Government be held responsible. In short, the road was little more than half finished when the present Government took charge two and a half years ago."

Major Fowler (Con., Kings and Albert) replied for the Government. After a brief defence of the standing and reputation of Messrs. Lynch-Staunton and Gutelius, he declared that the old National Transcontinental Railway Commission was either inefficient and ignorant, or fraudulent and corrupt. The contractors, he said, with the connivance of the commission, had looted the public treasury of Canada as no South American dictator had ever dared to loot the treasury of his country.

Mr. Fowler next took up the Delisle farm crossing case. Delisle had offered to see his farm of 55 acres to the N. T. R. Commission for $3,500. The right of way agent reported that this price was excessive and the Parent commission had accordingly purchased five acres from him at $100 an acre, and paid him damages aggregating in all $700 more. Then Mr. Delisle insisted upon having a crossing, so that he could drive his cattle to water. To meet this request the commission had enlarged a culvert so that the cattle could be driven through it, and in the end had expended $24,000, although the entire farm could have been purchased for $3,500.

Mr. Fowler said that he was not afraid to say that the $35,000,000 expended on constructing the line from Lewis to Moncton was a mere waste of public money. He had opposed its construction in 1903, and, notwithstanding the fact, had been re-elected to the House by his constituents in 1904. In conclusion, he said the salient facts which would remain in the public mind long after the debate was over were that the road was to cost but $61,000,000, and it would cost, including interest, $240,000,000. Moreover, there had been, beyond any dispute a wanton waste of $40,000,000, a large portion of which, in his opinion, had been actually stolen.

Judge McKenzie (Lib., N. Cape Breton and Victoria) followed, and Mr. Nesbitt (N. Oxford) moved the adjournment of the debate.

Engineers Negligent.

MONTREAL, April 2.—The Board of Control, which investigated the break in the water main, which plunged the city into a drought at Christmas time, finds that workmen were allowed to cut too near the conduit, causing it to collapse. George Janin, chief city engineer; Thomas Lesage, superintendent of the water department, and all the city engineers in charge of the work are found to have been grossly negligent in not compelling the workmen to follow lines laid down for the work.

MADOC BANK CLOSES DOORS

NOTICE SAYS DEPOSITORS WILL BE PAID IN TEN DAYS

BELLEVILLE, April 2.—The private bank of F. C. Dale & Co. at Madoc Village closed its doors yesterday morning, and posted up a notice to the effect that depositors would be paid in full in ten days. Mr. Dale, senior member, is in very poor health, and at present at a sanitarium. The bank did a large business.

New Type of Aeroplane.

RHEIMS, France, April 2.—A new type of aeroplane consisting of seven planes arranged in a semi-circle was tried here yesterday for the first time and gave good results. The arrangement of the planes gives complete stability, and it is said the aviator will have to watch only the steering.

TO HANDLE SMALL SUMS.

Amounts Not Exceeding $1 May Be Sent In Letters Soon.

OTTAWA, April 2.—The recent regulation against sending money through the mails, save by registered post, will be modified so as to exempt amounts not exceeding $1, said Dr. Coulter, deputy postmaster-general, yesterday. The change will be officially announced at an early date."

The regulation against sending money in unregistered letters was designed to remove the temptation from postal employes to steal from the mails, several cases of this kind having been detected in various cities. At present, letters violating the rule are being sent to the dead-letter office. It has been pointed out to the Department that it is a hardship to compel the registration of trifling amounts, as the hazard of sending them unregistered does not justify the extra expense.

OFFER OF FEDERAL SOLUTION INTERESTING TO THE UNIONISTS

General Feeling in Opposition In British House is That Offer Of a General Election If Plural Voting Bill Is Agreed to Would Be Impossible—Asquith May Not Be Opposed In East Fife Election.

LONDON, April 2. — Sir Edward Grey, appearing in the House of Commons yesterday as spokesman for the Government on the second reading of the Home Rule bill, showed that the Cabinet was in a conciliatory mood. His proposal to the Unionist party, to hold an early general election, if the Opposition would allow the plural voting bill, as well as the Home Rule and Welsh Disestablishment bills, to go through, before the end of the present session, is regarded by the Unionists as preposterous, for the enactment of the plural voting bill is just what the Liberals want to insure their continued ascendancy in power.

Sir Edward Grey's other offer of a federal solution in six years was far more interesting, and, in the opinion of the Unionists, much more satisfactory.

This means that Ulster could secure her own separate government, and most of the speakers from either side of the House supported the possibility of a federal scheme being worked out in the six years during which the option to the Ulster counties would be operative.

The first act of Premier Asquith in his new capacity as Secretary of State for War was to clear up the mystery surrounding the instructions given by the War Office to Gen. Sir Arthur Paget, commander-in-chief in Ireland. Home Secretary McKenna announced yesterday that all Gen. Paget had done was to ask the officers whether they would put their duty before any other considerations. Refusal, he told them, meant dismissal.

The result of the day's debate was to confirm the impression that an understanding will eventually be arrived at. A large meeting of Unionist members in favor of a settlement on the federal plan was held in a committee room of the House of Commons yesterday. The proceedings were private, but it is understood that an amendment to the Home Rule bill carrying out the views of the meeting was approved, and will be placed on paper after the bill has been read a second time for discussion in the committee stage.

Polling in the East Fife bye-election has been officially fixed for April 15. Until the meeting of the East Fife Conservative Association to-day, it cannot be definitely stated whether the Unionists will run a candidate, but the probability of their doing so now is extremely remote.

The association practically advises the Unionists to refrain from opposing Asquith on condition that he repudiates michievous anti-army propaganda of some of his colleagues. The position, says The Scotsman, calls for wise action on Asquith's part and it adds: "But if there is any whisper of people versus the army in the Prime Minister's manifesto the rejoinder of Unionists should be instant and determined."

OPPOSITION IN LEGISLATURE WOULD PROBE RURAL CONDITIONS

Hon. James Duff, In Exhaustive Analysis of Reports of Department of Agriculture Shows That Wealth and Productivity of the Province is on Ascent and Proposal Is Defeated.

TORONTO, April 2.—After a long debate in the Legislature yesterday afternoon and evening the Ontario Government decided that a commission to investigate rural conditions in Ontario was not needed, and an Opposition resolution calling for one was defeated by 51 votes to 16.

Col. T. R. Mayberry (Lib., S. Oxford) presented a motion calling for the appointment of a non-partisan commission of practical members to enquire and report on the remedy of present conditions of rural depopulation. Cal. Mayberry said the farmer was not gaining a fair share of attention. Although the wage of farm laborers had been increased, it had been a vain attempt to bring the men back to the farms, and the only solution in his mind was that specially-fitted men be brought from the old country by the Government. This had been tried in counties and had worked well.

In replying, Mon. J. S. Duff made a vigorous defence of the work of his Department as far as it affected the question. He cited figures showing decreases in rural population of 51,400 from 1881 to 1891, from 48,257 from 1891 to 1901, and from 1901 to 1911, 52,161, which showed materially better conditions under the present Government. Proceeding, he quoted more figures showing the agricultural production of the province, and while there had been decreases in cereals and grains, including both spring and fall wheat, be maintained that the increased production of live stock and dairy products by feeding, more than compensated for the shortage. Mortgages were decreasing year by year. Only 45 per cent. of the farms were now mortgaged to 33 per cent. of their value, meaning that only 15 per cent. of the farms in Ontario were now under mortgage. He found that the total amount of farm moneys on deposit had increased from 15 to 30 per cent., the aggregate amount being over one hundred millions, and the aggregate wealth totaling $1,405,950,940.

Mr. Duff turned to the problem of rural depopulation and said that what was Ontario's loss was the Dominion's gain. The province was entitled to great credit for her share in Canadianizing the west.

In following up the Minister Mr. Rowell stated that there were many things in the Government policy with which he could agree. The support which was being granted to the O.A.C. was very commendable, and would always be assured of Opposition unanimity. The Government, however, was not doing all that it should, and the appointment of a commission would work well towards the solution of some of the agricultural problems.

Hon. Mr. Duff, he said, had missed the point of the Opposition motion in making such a vigorous defence of the work of his Department. They faced a condition, he said, that was not confined to Ontario, but was almost world-wide. A good commission would help to bring out the facts upon which action could be based.

George Pattinson (Con., S. Waterloo) and W. McDonald (Lib., C. Bruce) also spoke.

Radical legislation regarding inspection of boilers was introduced in the Legislature by Hon. Mr. Duff yesterday. Every boiler in Ontario and not only those in factories, shops or offices, must be annually inspected henceforth by qualified engineering inspectors. This will include theatres, hotels, schools and show building of all descriptions, and all come under a provincial supervision independent of insurance companies.

Children who work in canning factories during the summer months will have the hours of labor cut down from 12 to 10, and elevator operators must be over 18 years of age.

PRINCES' TRUST BROKEN.

Royal Germans Fail In Their Ambitious Investments.

BERLIN, April 2. — Negotiations have been concluded in Berlin which mark the final collapse of the great German "Princes' Trust," consisting of the Kaiser's best friend, Prince Max Egon zu Fuerstenberg and his Majesty's kinsman, Prince Christian Krafl zu Hohenlohe. The princes, who have been in financial difficulties for months, have parted company and the control of their vast properties passes for the most part to the hands of the Deutsche Bank.

The "Princes' Trust," which came into existence seven years ago, represented an attempt on the part of its royal founders to emulate the "high finance" methods of American money makers. They organized a huge "community of interests" which comprehends de luxe hotels in Berlin, a Hamburg bank in Palestine, a steamship line to the Levant, huge department stores in Berlin, a realty and building company, the Berlin Omnibus lines, tin and copper mines in Silesia, breweries in the Black Forest and other vast concerns. Only one or two of these enterprises proved successful. The rest have gone steadily from bad to worse owing to the princes' incapacity as managers of affairs. They are said to have lost sums estimated as high as several million pounds.

BEEKEEPERS ARE IN SEASON

The annual meeting of the Peterboro County Beekeepers' Association was held this afternoon in the recreation room of the Armouries. President W. B. Anderson occupied the chair. Prof. Morley Pettit, Provincial apiarist, of the Guelph Agricultural College, gave a very instructive address on "Spring Management," while Mr. Agur, fowl food inspector, spoke on diseases which prevail among the bees of Ontario. Both addresses were listened to with great interest by the large number present.

A very important question discussed by the meeting was "Co-operation." It was proposed for the beekeepers to co-operate and send their honey in bulk to western markets where good prices were obtainable.

SAFETY FIRST

That the Safety Committees of the Grand Trunk Railway are doing most effective work in the prevention of personal injuries is clearly shown by a statement just issued by Mr. Geo. Bradshaw, Safety Engineer of that system. From September, 1913, to February, 1914, inclusive, there was a decrease of forty-six per cent. in the number of employes killed and a decrease of sixteen per cent. in the number injured, including all classes of injury, serious or trivial, as compared with the corresponding months of 1912 and 1913. The Safety Movement was put into effect on the Grand Trunk in August, 1913.

SENATE FIGHT

Panama Canal Tolls Bill Will Have Spectacular Trip

WASHINGTON, April 2—The fight over the repeal of the tolls exemption clause of the Panama Canal act shifted quickly from the House to the Senate yesterday. President Wilson was undoubtedly delighted at the heavy majority polled for his measure in the House, and the opposition was proportionately discouraged. But yesterday the opposition in the Senate rallied, and the indications were that only a stubborn fight, long drawn, as all battles in the Senate are, would give the President a victory by a small margin, that so far cannot be accurately estimated.

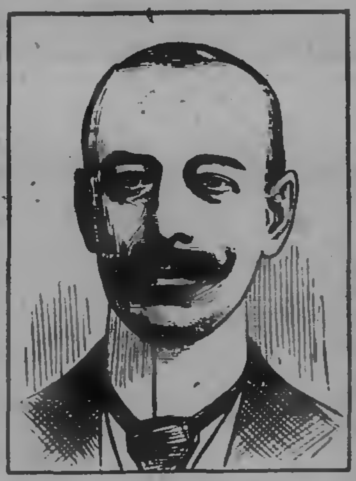
BEST LIKED MINISTER

RT. HON. LEWIS HARCOURT IS POPULAR IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Secretary of State for the Colonies Who Has Figured In the Public Eye In Connection With South African Labor Troubles Learned Politics Under His Father—Is a Delightful Personality.

The Right Hon. Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies, whose name has figured conspicuously in the communications between the Colonial officials and labor leaders over the South African labor troubles, is admitted to be personally the best liked man in the Asquith Cabinet. The late W. T. Stead once wrote of the handsome Colonial Secretary: "Though you may dislike his politics, you cannot help liking Lulu Harcourt, the able son of a very able father; in fact, whether in society, or in the House of Commons, or wherever you meet him, he is a delightful personality."



RT. HON. LEWIS HARCOURT.

Born in 1963 to the late Sir William, by his first wife, the Colonial Secretary, after Eton, underwent his political apprenticeship with his father, as his private secretary in the Liberal organization, and was for some time secretary of the Home Counties Liberal Federation.

He was first elected for the Rossendale division of N. E. Lancashire in March, 1904. He was thoroughly at home in the Office of Works, but he could not frame a plural voting bill to please the House of Lords, and it was said at the time that he took no particular pains to do so. He was liked so well as a Minister by his chief that he was taken into the Cabinet as First Commissioner of Works, and in November, 1910 he was appointed Secretary of State for the Colonies.—Family Herald and Weekly Star.

DON'T WANT NAME CHANGED.

St. Jean Baptiste Society Object to Renaming Historic Gate.

QUEBEC, April 2.—The St. Jean Baptiste Society of Quebec has adopted a resolution to the effect that while it is animated by the deepest respect for the Duke of Connaught, it objects to the proposal to change the name of the historic St. John's Gate to that of Connaught Gate, and thinks that another occasion, another site, and another edifice should be chosen to do honor to the Governor-General, as the people of Quebec are practically one in demanding that there be no change.

Mayor Drouin was the first to suggest that the name be changed to Connaught, and wrote to the duke to ask if he would allow his name to be used in this way.

Special Correspondence.

APSLEY, April 2.—Messrs. Reginald and Stanley and Miss Myrtle Windsor attended the wedding of Miss A. Wigg to Mr. G. Northey in South Burleigh on Wednesday of last week.

Messrs. John and Thomas Coones who have been working in Northern Ontario have returned home.

Mr. Stanley Windsor was the victim of a bad accident which took place on last Friday. He was leading a horse across the road to the weigh scales when the animal kicked him in the face knocking him senseless. A crowd was soon on the spot and medical aid summoned. He was taken into his home and after some time gained consciousness. He is at present doing nicely.

Dr. Shepherd of Bancroft has returned to our village.

A few persons of this neighborhood are suffering from an attack of mumps.

Miss Eliza Clegg was the guest of Mrs. Rev. J. Prosser on Thursday of last week.

Miss Alice McFadden of Burleigh is spending a few days at Mrs. D. Brown's.

Miss Edith Tucker returned to Warsaw last week after a month's visit among relatives here.

The pupils of the Burleigh Sunday School called on Miss Edna McIlmoyle and presented her with a handsome manicure set, and the following adress.

Burleigh, March 26, 1914.
To Miss Edna McIlmoyle:
Dear Teacher:

We, the pupils of No. 2 Burleigh Sunday School having heard of your intended departure avail ourselves of this opportunity to give expression to the commingled regret, reverence and love which fill our youthful hearts. For a number of years it has been our good fortune to be under your wise and skillful guidance.

We learned to recognize in you the true friend pointing out to us our many faults and imperfections, showing us at the same time how to do the right and proper thing, sympathizing with us in all our difficulties and encouraging us to ever press onward to reach the heavenly goal.

We are indeed sorry that you are soon to leave us. Any success we may have achieved is owing almost entirely to your painstaking and unselfish labor for which we wish to express our sincere thanks. You have set an example that each of us may safely follow.

As a token of sincerity we ask your acceptance of this gift and pray that God may continue to watch over you and your father and direct your every effort for good.

Signed on behalf of the pupils of the Sunday School.

CHINESE IN BOND.

Fifty Celestials On Their Way to Jamaica Like So Much Baggage.

MONTREAL, April 2.—There are fifty Chinese in the immigration quarters of the C. P. R. at the Windsor station here waiting for the first ship which, touching at New York, will take them to Jamaica, where they will work on the sugar and coffee plantations under a system which is not unlike that of the "padrone" with the Italians. They are virtually enslaved. At the same time they are, in their own philosophical and stoical way, having a good time. Their food is brought to them from the outside, rice, and fish cut up in the rice.

Every one of the Chinese is under bond. He comes in like a piece of baggage. If the C. P. R. lost one of them the company would have to forfeit $500 and a fine besides. For that reason they are carefully watched; the windows are barred; the attendants can shoot, and would shoot, if necessary.

There are more than 1,000 Woman Suffrage organizations in the United States.

THOUSANDS OF SUFFERERS

Bless The Day They First Used GIN PILLS For The Kidneys.

Galette, Ont.

"My husband used GIN PILLS for Backache and Kidney Disease. The pain in the back was dreadful and the kidneys failed to do their work properly. As he became worse, we found it necessary to begin treatment, and unfortunately wasted time and money on remedies that were little or no good. After taking one dose of GIN PILLS, he found them to be exactly what he needed, and after taking two boxes of GIN PILLS, was completely cured. We heartily recommend GIN PILLS at every opportunity to our friends and relatives". Mrs. JAMES B. MILFORD.

Liniments and Plasters won't cure Lame Back and Kidney Trouble, because they never reach the part that is causing the pain. Weak or irritated kidneys cause Rheumatism and Lame Back, and start the back to aching like a toothache.

You have got to take GIN PILLS to cure the Kidneys before you will be free of pain. GIN PILLS soothe and strengthen the kidneys—neutralize the excess of uric acid—regulate the bladder—overcome the scalding urine, as nothing else will. Get a box today, and start the cure. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Sample free. Write National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto. 213

THIBETAN MAGIC.

Member of Younghusband's Force Brings Back Queer Tales.

From far-away Thibet, the roof tree of the world—the last old-world country to be opened to the enterprise of the new — comes strange news of advanced scientific knowledge.

A member of Col. Younghusband's flying expeditionary force into the interior a few years ago was enabled to perform an important service for one of the lamas or priest-rulers of that country.

In the course of conversation he received from this man much confidential information of a curious kind. It appears that for centuries the lamas have had a great belief in hypnotic influence.

The will power may be projected, they claim, over great distances when intended to react upon human will. All the opposition foreign expeditions have experienced was directed by the Great Lama himself. Every one of the worrying night alarms and every barricade attack was ordered by him, and communicated directly to subordinates by no other telegraph than his imposing will.

The most surprising claims were made upon credulity by the friendly lama in this regard. For instance, he said that by his will alone he could and often did cause, heavy vehicles to move along the highways, and laden barges to pass up the rivers and canals.

Divination by table turning is an exceedingly ancient pastime in most Eastern countries, and was practiced in Egypt in the earliest ages, and is probably rebuked in the New Testament as it certainly was by Tertullian and other old writers. In Thibet, however, he claims the lamas actually make their tables rise into space and perform gyratory movements with great rapidity.

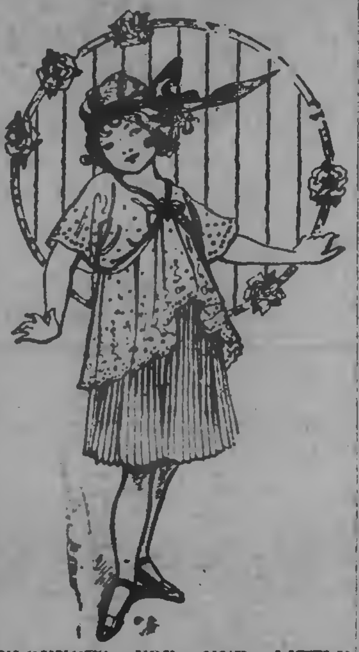
The square tables which are used, in their fall, incline in the direction where the answer to the inquiry in hand is to be found. The lama first lays his hand upon the table and then, holding his arm in the same position, slowly lifts it, the table, after some preliminary hesitation raising itself until on a level with the lama's eyes, when he begins to turn around the table, following until gradually he has increased his speed and is spinning about like a dancing dervish, the table keeping time at first, and at last accelerating until exceeding the speed of the man it appears to hurl itself away, and falls.

The lamas are commonly the physicians also, and have an elaborate homoepathic system. Their medicines are really poisons, many of them derived from poisonous snakes, minerals, and vegetables. Alcohol is largely used by them in cases of fevers.

Moxa is really the name of a Chinese herb, the dried leaves of which were used in cauterizing. So that it is perhaps not to be wondered at that the medical practitioner in Thibet is always well supplied with hundreds of gold and silver needles, and other small instruments used in hot-cupping, or in the actual cautery.

They are great believers in the virtue of advertising, and hang at their doors illuminated lists of patients cured by them, giving full names and addresses, and the diseases of which each was relieved. These lamas use, as one of their signs of greeting, and in their secret communications with each other, signals well known amongst Freemasons of the first and second degrees. Like the Druses of the Lebanons, and the Bedouins of the inner Sahara, who also have many such usages, the educated class of the Thibetians appear to have preserved among themselves some remnant of what was perhaps at one time a universal mystery of religious cult.

THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION



FLOUNCES FOR HER LITTLE MAJESTY.

Little girl styles follow very closely after those of mamma and here she is in quaintly ruffled and peplum effect in a simple design that is easy to follow. Machine embroidered voile and plain voile side pleated make a one-piece frock of which the upper part is cut in two pieces, giving kimona and bolero suggestions.

No use in waiting for something to turn up. The turnpike is lined with pikers sitting on the fence for the same purpose.

Time gets ahead of all of us despite the fact that some of us boast of never being behind time.

Just being in touch with money is all that some of our nervy brethren ask.

DURING the cold weather when it is necessary to keep on extra fires, there is always increasing danger of accidents happening from defective chimneys, defective stovepipes, furnaces, explosion of coal gas, accumulation of dust near heating appliances and numerous other causes.

Lesson I.—Second Quarter, For April 5, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xiv, 7-24 Memory Verses, 13, 14—Golden Text Luke xiv, 11—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

As He ate bread in the house of one of the chief Pharisees on the Sabbath day He not only healed a man who had the dropsy (xiv, 1-6), but He had a special message for the guests and then for the host and later for one of the guests who had made an interesting remark. Oh, how He did live before God and seek the souls of men fearing no one's frown and desiring no one's favor. To the guests He taught humility, for then as now there was often a desire for the best place that could be obtained. Humility is a rare virtue, and few there seem to be who in lowliness of mind esteem others better than themselves (Phil. ii, 3). There was only one who was perfect in humility and lowliness, the speaker on this occasion, and He could truly say, "I am meek and lowly in heart" (Matt. xi, 29). Exalting self is like antichrist (Dan. xi, 36; II Thess. ii, 4; Rev. xiii, 5, 6), but renouncing self is Christlike, for He made Himself of no reputation and took upon Him the form of a servant (Phil. ii, 7, 8). See also verse 11 of our lesson.

His message to His host was in reference to a future rather than a present recompense. How common it is to be kind to those who can return the kindness, to invite those to enjoy our hospitality who can return the invitation. How much of social life is filled up in this way? This may seem all right for those who know no better way. But when in church work, supposed to be the Lord's work, people act as if money could be obtained only by giving a present equivalent in the form of a lecture or an entertainment or something to eat, does it not all seem contrary to our Lord's admonition to this host? My own intense conviction is that giving or living only for a present equivalent is all wrong, and I have proved in a ministry of over thirty years that the love of Christ and the need of those who never heard of it will constrain people to give freely to help make Him known and gladly await the recompense in His kingdom in connection with the resurrection of the just.

It does not appear from the Scriptures that believers are rewarded at death, though it is a common saying that he or she has gone to his or her reward. The truth concerning the dead in Christ is that they rest from their labors and their works do follow them, but rewards are promised only at His coming again (Rev. xiv, 13; xxii, 12; I Pet. v, 4). Here is a plain reference in verse 14 of our lesson to the difference between the resurrection of the just and the unjust. That there shall be both is written in Acts xxiv, 15, but that there shall be a thousand years between them is just as plainly written in Rev. xx, 5, 6. The hour of John v, 28, does not conflict with this; for the hour of John v, 25, has already lasted nearly 1,900 years, and that of verses 28, 29, may easily cover the two resurrections at the beginning and end of the thousand years.

His mention of the resurrection of the just seems to have led one of the guests to remark, "Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God" (verse 15), which be evidently associated with the resurrection. This led our Lord to speak of the great supper and of the way the invitations were treated and of the excuses which men will make rather than accept the invitation. He seems to reply to the remark of the guest that men are more interested in property and in earthly enjoyments than in the things of the kingdom.

The things unseen and eternal are so unreal to most people that things seen and temporal hold all their attention. Contrast the way of the believers in II Cor. iv, 17, 18. The redemption which leads to the kingdom is described as a great supper fully prepared, and the invited ones have only to come and enjoy it. It is probable that the invitations of this chief of the Pharisees, in whose house they were, had all been accepted eagerly, but the invitations of which our Lord spoke were treated far otherwise. The great salvation has been fully prepared by the life and death and resurrection of the Lord Jesus, nothing can be added to it; but, oh, the cost of it all to the Father who gave His only Son and to the Son who gave Himself! And all is offered freely, for "the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord." "We are justified freely by His grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus" (Rom. vi, 23, R. V.; iii, 24). How often we hear Him say, "Come!" from Gen. vii, 1 to Rev. xxii, 17; notably in Isa. i, 18; Matt. xi, 28, and how frivolous are men's excuses when compared with the importance of the salvation offered them and the glory of His kingdom.

I have heard of one man who was led to accept the great invitation by the remark, "There will be no excuses at the bar of God." Meantime, the devil, the god of this world, is busily blinding the minds of them which believe not lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them (II Cor. iv, 3, 4). Yet the word stands "Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

NEARLY IN CONVULSIONS

With Acute Indigestion. "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Me.

NEWBURY, ONT., MAY 29th. 1913

"I am not a strenuous user of medicines or patent medicines, but I have taken nearly everything recommended for Indigestion and Constipation.

I have been so bad with Acute Indigestion that I was nearly in convulsions and had to be held. I have used "Fruit-a-tives" and I have not had another attack nor suffered at all with Indigestion since taking them.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy I ever used that did me any good, and I am grateful to "Fruit-a-tives" for making me as well as I am today, and everyone agrees that I look in firstclass health.

My husband likes "Fruit-a-tives" very much and takes them whenever he has occasion to use a remedy for Constipation"

EXISTENCE.

HEIGHO, but it's a humdrum life,
When all is said and done,
A lot of work, some worrying
And very little fun,
Three meals, with labor in between,
And thus the day goes by!
All the excitement that we get
Our creditors supply.

A brief vacation once a year,
Two weeks perhaps of mirth,
To spend the money we have made,
Then back again to earth,
Back to the hammer or the pen,
The chisel or the saw,
To selling soap from door to door
Or maybe to the law—

Back to our everyday affairs,
The routine and the grind,
To overtime to catch up with
The work that got behind,
To argue politics perhaps
Or talk about the crops,
To see a man with tangled feet
Arrested by the cops.

Yes, it's a humdrum, sure enough,
No change from day to day,
The same old places where we eat,
The same old debts to pay,
The same old faces in the streets,
The same old jokes to hear,
The same old neighbors dropping in—
Thus runs away the year.

Being Kind to Them.

J. Pierpont Morgan is the greatest plain and ornamental bracer of tottering thrones this modern age has produced.

Nowadays when a throne gets wabbly on its pins and begins to totter like a grand stand in an earthquake, instead of putting a scantling under one corner to brace it up, the jaunty monarch hops down and sends an invitation to the New York financial wizard to come over and bring a basketful of tips on the stock market.

The king then borrows a few hundred on his crown, plays the market, hands Mr. Morgan a cigar and goes back to his job of reigning with new heart for the task.

Mr. Morgan is never so happy as when bringing sunshine into the life of a distracted crowned head. As first aid to the busted monarch he has the chancellor of the exchequer beaten four ways from the royal mint.

Perhaps.

"I wish that there were no such thing as hunger in the world."

GIBRALTAR OF THE PACIFIC.

Uncle Sam's Steel Clad Sentinel, the Island of Oahu.

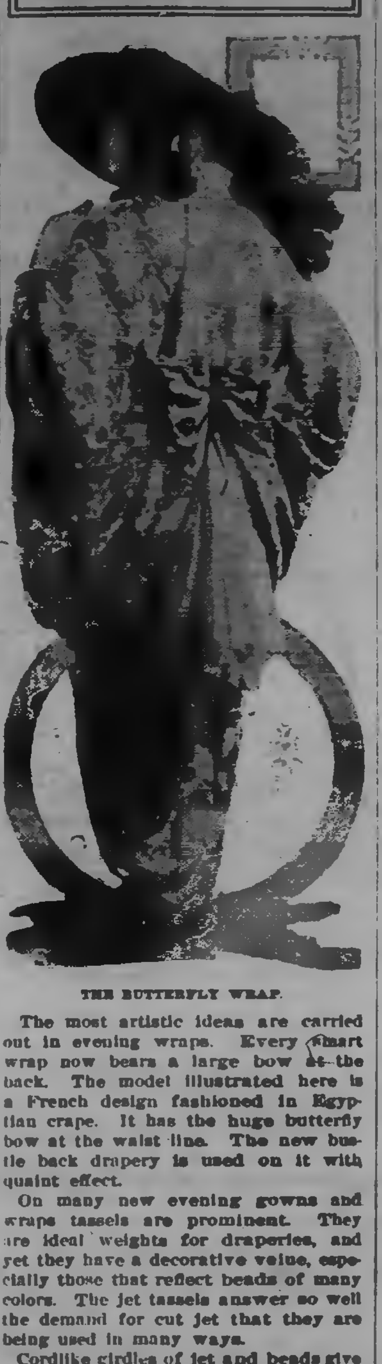
Oahu today is the greatest armed military camp under the American flag. It is the khaki-clad sentinel of the Pacific, a lone vidette on an everlasting picket, day and night, year in and year out, guarding the approach to the Pacific coast. It is a sentinel that covers a long beat for, with its lightning flashes of battleships and cruisers emanating Jovelike from Pearl Harbor, designed to be the greatest naval base of the United States by 1915, and with the fringe of steel which is to be placed in redoubts all around the 177 mile coast line, it bars the approach of a hostile fleet from the far east.

It is a khaki clad sentinel, for the island of Oahu, known militarily as the Hawaiian department of the United States army, maintains six military posts, of which four are coast defense fortresses and the other two are garrison posts, in which every branch of the service is represented.

Oahu is a vast armed camp, and the ground trembles with the tread of infantry, the rumble of artillery and the thud of cavalry hoofs. From 1898, when the first garrison of United States troops was stationed on the island with 100 men on duty, the military establishment has grown to 7,000, with 4,000 men yet to be assigned to duty this year. No mainland coast line has so many coast artillery companies massed along the shores as Oahu. No area of the size of Oahu contains so many army posts or as many armed men.—Leslie's.

NEW EVENING WRAPS.

Butterfly Bows and Bustle Draperies New Style Features.



THE BUTTERFLY WRAP.

The most artistic ideas are carried out in evening wraps. Every smart wrap now bears a large bow at the back. The model illustrated here is a French design fashioned in Egyptian crape. It has the huge butterfly bow at the waist line. The new bustle back drapery is used on it with quaint effect.

On many new evening gowns and wraps tassels are prominent. They are ideal weights for draperies, and yet they have a decorative value, especially those that reflect beads of many colors. The jet tassels answer so well the demand for cut jet that they are being used in many ways.

Cordlike girdles of jet and beads give a classic air to many evening gowns in which the simple Greek lines have been retained.

Medici collars of silver lace, ostrich ruching, jeweled girdles, velvet flowers and lace decorated with strass and silver or gold threads are a few of the methods by which quality is made the feature of the present day evening costumes.

A Convenient Dressing.

A most efficient antiseptic wet dressing, poultice and cold pack may be made in the following manner: Soak a sufficient amount of gauze in one part of alcohol to three parts of water. Apply to the part to be treated thoroughly wet, just short of dripping; cover with rubber tissue and bind firmly with a bandage. Such an application many times takes the place of an icebag in reducing swellings or acute inflammation. On the other hand, it will hasten suppuration of a boil or abscess that cannot be aborted as well as the old flaxseed poultice.

This alcohol dressing should be renewed every twelve hours. If the bandage is put on tightly, so that no air gets under the rubber tissue, the dressing becomes a warm one, acting like a poultice. If the bandage is put on more loosely, so that air gets under the rubber tissue, allowing the alcoholic solution to evaporate slowly, the dressing is a cold one, acting like an ice bag.

THE SPORTING WORLD

COMMITTEE IS FORMED TO ORGANIZE TEAM FOR O.A.L.A.

The hard fight of lacrosse enthusiasts against baseball and other popular summer sports, which have displaced their game and caused it to lie dormant for a number of years, has been very general throughout Canada, and particularly in this Trent Valley District, where once the very essence of good lacrosse was put out by local boys. If a drop of Canadian blood flows in our veins, it alone should cause us to assist in every possible manner when an effort is being made to arouse interest in Canada's national game. In previous seasons considerable conversation took place about this matter, but we find that the opening of this season will see the game again started on a firm basis.

Mr. Frank Doyle, secretary of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association, has voluntarily offered his services to any municipality in Canada where there are the least possibilities of reviving the game. Local enthusiasts, after laying the foundation for a good season, made arrangements with Mr. Doyle to have him come to the city and address a meeting of all interested. The meeting was held last night in the St. Alphonsus Lyceum, and despite the decidedly inclement weather, there was a goodly number of red hot fans on hand, among them being many of the men who wore the Peterboro and T. A. S. sweaters in days of yore.

Mr. Doyle, in his short address, briefly outlined the history of the game from its rise to its fall. He claimed professionalism breaking into the amateur ranks, men going to a town for the sole purpose of playing lacrosse, the cause of its death. The game grew nothing short of a professional sport, and naturally the fans became disinterested, with the inevitable result.

Lacrosse enthusiasts, in the last few years, ashamed of the way in which the good old game was allowed to die, have gotten together on a coast to coast campaign and nothing is left undone in order to resuscitate it. The idea of taking men who have matured and attempt to make lacrosse players out of them is absurd, therefore the boys of the public and separate schools must be made interested. It is not only necessary to place sticks in their hands, but also to form a league and work in a little rivalry. A school league embracing a team from each school in the city would be an ideal organization and to give this league the appearance of something worth while Mr. Doyle stated that gold medals would be furnished to the winners. He had a sample of these medals with him, and they are of excellent design, bearing the image of a lacrosse player and a bar with ample room for a player's name. The knowledge that if his team wins he will receive one of these beautiful medals should induce any local boy to forget baseball and take to lacrosse with the vim of an old timer.

To place sticks within the reach of everyone, the Association can give those sticks through the Peterboro Bookstore for 50c. and $1.00. This it will be noticed, is a great reduction when compared with the old stick, but these sticks are by no means an inferior quality, they are sold at cost price to aid in the battle to bring back the game. As for the school boys, it is generally the custom for a few of the old lacrosse players to get a little fund together and put a stick in every boy's hands. Mr. Doyle had two samples of the sticks with him, and a few of the men who knew something about the game were remarking how short the gut was. This, it is stated, makes throwing a great deal more accurate.

Closing, Mr. Doyle urged the gentlemen present to go into it with a heart, and endeavor to have an Intermediate team in the O. A. L. A. The annual meeting will be held in Toronto on Good Friday, and he hoped to see local representatives there.

Dr. McPherson, who occupied the chair, also spoke along the theme of Mr. Doyle's address, and when he asked for a word from some of the lacrosse players they came through to a man by assuring him that they would do all in their power to help the game along.

A committee composed of the following gentlemen was appointed to make arrangements for an organization meeting: Messrs. R. Begley, convenor; L. LeBarr, F. McGrath, E. Dillon, W. Rudkins, G. Mein, W. J. Foster, E. Galley, M. Park, H. Theobald, H. Morgan, R. M. Glover, F. Dobbin, L. Tracey, C. Graham, P. Treblicock, H. Donovan, and F. C. Weber. They will meet in the Lyceum on Monday night.

At the close of the meeting votes of thanks were tendered to the speaker of the evening, Mr. F. Doyle, and also to the trustees of St. Peter's T. A. S. for the use of the hall.

RUBE WADDELL GREAT SOUTHPAW IS NO MORE

San Antonio, Tex., April 2.—"Rube" Waddell, the famous left-hand pitcher, died here yesterday. He had been ill for months with tuberculosis.

George Edward Waddell, one of the greatest of pitchers, was noted early as much for his eccentricities as for his ability as a ballplayer. In the seventeen years he spent in professional baseball he held positions with twelve teams, and, including "return engagements" had fourteen jobs. His longest term of service was with the Philadelphia Americans, where, under the watchful eye of Connie Mack, he pitched winning ball for half a dozen summers.

Waddell shared with Robert Glade the strike-out record of the American League. On July 29, 1908, while pitching for the St. Louis Americans, to which he had just been released by Mack, he fanned sixteen of the Athletics, his former team-mates.

The Minneapolis club bought Waddell in 1910, and he was two years with that club. Illness began to get the better of him, and last spring he was sent to Texas, in an effort to prolong his life.

Waddell was born in Butler, Pa., October 13, 1876.

Girl Shopper—Why did you make that poor salesman pull down all that stuff and then not buy anything?

Second Ditto—Why, the mean fellow was in a car yesterday and never offered me his seat, though I looked right at him. So I just decided I would get even.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Answered Question.

"Where is the center of population around here?"

"I don't understand you, mister."

"Where is the population densest?"

"Dunno what you mean."

"I guess the population is densest right here," opined the stranger, and he drove on.—Kansas City Journal.

PLAYERS WHO WILL TRY FOR EMPLOYMENT WITH BLOUNT

Schrage Who Was With the Team Last Season is After Another Chance

Manager Curley Blount has about completed his work of getting his team together and has forwarded the following list of players to the local management:

Catchers—
E. Chapdelaine, New Bedford, Mass.
Mully Miller, Massilon, Ohio.
F. Kelly, Erie, Pa.
M. Ryberg, Ridgway, Pa.
E. McClure, Dunkard, Pa.

Pitchers—
Robert Sterling, Mt. Vernon, N.Y.
Kenneth Tracey, Detroit, Mich.
Knut Belting Rockford, Ill.
Stan. Cresswell, Peterboro.
Louis Schettler, Youngstown, O.
Sid. Tirrell, Rochester N.Y.

First basemen—
Ed. Flanagan, Erie, Pa.
Wm. O'Hearn, Lockport, N.Y.

Second basemen—
Ed. Price, Youngstown, Ohio.
Frank Schrage, Bronx, N.Y.

Shortstop—
Geo. Miller, Massilon, Ohio.
Lawrence Buckdew, Tyrell Hill, Ohio.

Third basemen—
Frank Fox, Portville, Pa.
Chas. King, Parkersburg, W. Va.

Outfielders—
Curley Blount, Youngstown, Ohio.
Paul Dawson, Clarkesburg, W. Va.
J. J. Gaffney, Cleveland, Ohio.
Charles Naw, Jeannette, Pa.

Outfielder John Bane, of Uniontown, Pa., was signed up some time ago by Manager Blount, acting on advice given by Chas. Hickman, the Cleveland scout. Hiskman wrote Blount a few days ago and tipped him off that Bane necessitated a little more seasoning, so Curley gave him his release.

Outfielder Naw and thirdbaseman King have not been signed as yet, but will be in the course of a few days. Frank Schrage, who is going to try out for second, was on the team last year. He came here with Thompson, but was weak in batting, and as Byrne was coming strong, he was let out again. He gave every promise of becoming a nifty ball player, and if his work with the stick has improved he should find no difficulty in catching the team.

Several other pitchers from Youngstown will try out with the team, but it is improbable that they will land a berth. If, however, they show the necessary class, Blount will pick them up.

HAVELOCK TO HAVE LACROSSE TEAM

Havelock lacrosse enthusiasts are holding a meeting to-night, with the object of organizing an Intermediate team.

CHAMPIONSHIP HOPES

Movements on Canuck Circuit

With two new clubs, Erie and Toronto, in the league, the race will be hard to dope out until the teams have been seen in action. There is bound to be a dark horse, and indications are that Peterboro will spring the big surprise this year. The Petes were one of the strongest teams in the league last season, and with the proper kind of handling would have copped the rag. Most of the players will be back again this season, and under Curley Blount, who has landed some more good ones, should prove a strong contender. — London Advertiser.

St. Thomas, April 2.—The baseball season was given a mild opening yesterday when George Ort, Midge Craven, Harry Howick, Fred Gladsby, Gilbert Forgue, Dusty Bullock and other Canadian League and local ball players had a workout at Recreation Park in the afternoon.

The boys tossed the ball around quite freely for a while and at night were complaining of feeling a little sore. They will indulge in similar practice when the weather permits until the middle of April, when they leave to join their respective teams.

Doc. Yates has added Firstbaseman Dudley of the Edmonton Club, Western Canada League, to his squad. Dudley has been in the Western Canada circuit for the past two years and has shown ability to warrant the jump to higher company. In 1911 he hit .251 in 108 games, contributing seven two-base clouts and nine for three bases. In the same year he fielded .969.

The Border League has been rechristened the Eastern Michigan. Amby Kane and other Canadian League cast-offs may play in it.

How Ottawa's championship team of 1912 has scattered! Robertson and Draper are in the Virginia coal fields; Herbert is with Toronto; Champene, playing semi-professional ball around Cleveland; Jimmie Louden, across the great divide; Louie Cook, managing Ashville; Red Rowe, with Cook and Frank Burke in retirement at Toledo; Art Schwind is with the Atlanta club of the Southern League.

Dusty Bullock is lighter this spring than any time since he broke into baseball. He weighs 164 pounds.

Pitcher Kirley, who was with Guelph last year, will probably be left in the south. He has few of the qualities of a ball player, if early form is an indication.

So far the despatches fail to say whether Chief Garlow is pitching ball or hay for the Boston Americans.

Neavitt, the big Indian backstop of Craven's clan, stands 6 feet 3 inches in his bare feet.

TWO DISTRICTS IN THIS SECTION SAYS MR. DOYLE

Eight Clubs Expected to be Represented With Teams

Mr. Frank Doyle, who addressed the lacrosse meeting last night, left to-day at noon for Havelock, where he will attend the organization meeting to-night of the Havelock Lacrosse Club. Mr. Doyle will also attend the meeting in Campbellford to-morrow night. In speaking with a Review representative to-day, Mr. Doyle remarked that he expected to have two districts formed in this section.

Havelock, Norwood, Sterling, Marmora, Campbellford, Hastings, Tweed and Lindsay and Peterboro will in all probability have a team and two four-team groups could be organized with good success. He is particularly pleased with the good railway facilities, which means small expense.

"Lacrosse is booming in the West, and reports from Guelph and Berlin state that they are very enthusiastic, so you can depend upon lacrosse being a permanent sport in this city from now on," were the encouraging words of Mr. Doyle.

Fatal Recognition.

The minister's wife was busily engaged one afternoon mending the family clothes when a neighbor called for a friendly chat. After a few moments of news and gossip the caller remarked, as she began to inspect a basket of buttons:

"You seem to be unusually well supplied with buttons of all kinds. Why, there's one like my husband had on his last winter's suit."

"Indeed," said the minister's wife with a sigh. "Well, all the buttons were found in the contribution box and I thought I might as well make some use of them. What—must you go? Well, goodby. Come again soon."—Philadelphia Ledger.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, April 1.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending March 28 were 700 cattle, 110 sheep and lambs, 1100 hogs and 1250 calves. The offerings on the market this morning for sale were 800 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 1200 calves.

There was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle since Monday, prices being about steady, because of the smaller offerings. The demand was principally for small lots to fill actual wants for the balance of the week, owing to the near approach of the Easter trade, when butchers generally lay in large supplies in order to make a good showing.

Altho prices for hogs in the Toronto market advanced 15c per 100 lbs. yesterday, there was no actual change in the local market, except that the feeling was a little firmer for Ontario stock.

Humor and Philosophy

SHATTERED ROMANCE.

BELIEVE me, gentle Annie,
If I had but the price
And you, indeed, were willing
'Twould be a case of splice;
But, finding on the needful
That I am more than shy,
I fear that I can only
Admire you, dear, and sigh.

In days that are departed
When romance was in style
A man and maid were wedded
Though fortune did not smile.
They lived on love in summer.
When autumn turned the page
They gathered in some acorns
And let the winter rage.

But now we have to figure
On rent and light and heat,
On confabs with the grocer
About the things to eat.
The iceman leaves us warning
Before he drops a cake
That promptly every morning
Full payment we must make.

And so, my dearest Annie,
Unless they raise my pay,
I haven't nerve to ask you
To name the happy day.
You have to keep on doing
The very best you can
There at the ribbon counter
Or hunt another man.

Considerate.

The friend to whom she had promised to be a sister after allowing him to spend all of his surplus on theater tickets was offering her disinterested advice. "There is only one request I have to make of you. I know those people, and I know their intentions are all right. Please when you are away don't step on Rhode Island."

Presto!

"I would do anything to give children a jolly time."

"Would you?"

"Yes."

"Those children over there are having the time of their lives."

"I was just noticing. What are they playing?"

"Football with your new silk hat."

FORTY CANDIDATES ARE CONFIRMED AT ST. LUKE'S

The Holy Rite Was Administered by His Lordship Bishop Reeve

The holy rite of Confirmation was administered to forty candidates by His Lordship Bishop Reeve, Assistant Bishop of Toronto, at St. Luke's Church last evening. This impressive service of the Anglican Church was attended by a large congregation. The class, which included a large number of adults, had been carefully instructed for weeks past by their rector, Rev. F. J. Sawers, and the instructive remarks of His Lordship, last evening, left no doubt in the minds of those to be confirmed, as to the great importance of the step they were taking, and the great blessing they received by so doing.

Previous to the solemn ceremony of the laying of hands, His Lordship addressed the congregation on the meaning of Confirmation, and the recognition in it of strength from God. He spoke of the two-fold purpose of the ordinance. First it was the open profession and confession of the candidate to carry out the promises made by one's parents at baptism, namely, to renounce the devil and all his works, to believe all the articles of the Christian faith, and to keep God's holy will. They covered the whole duty of man.

The second part was very different from the first, inasmuch as it was what God did for one. It was only in His strength that these promises could be kept. "The reason we have so often failed in the past," he remarked, "is because we relied only on ourselves, and not on the strength and power of God." He pointed out that Confirmation was not merely for the time being, but should be lasting throughout their lives. He urged them to be prayerful, to study God's Holy Word, and to make this great gift the turning point towards a life of greater service for Christ.

Then followed the confirming of the candidates, the Bishop laying his hands upon the head of each one as they knelt before him, His Lordship repeating a prayer.

The music was especially appropriate for the occasion. During the offertory the Choir sang "Send Forth

MR. FRANK SANDY GOES TO LINDSAY

It was announced some time ago in the columns of the Review that Mr. Frank Sandy, the local Grand Trunk agent, was to be moved to assume lighter duties in some other locality upon his own request. The company, however, deemed it advisable to retain Mr. Sandy till the troublesome winter season was passed and assured him that his wish would be fulfilled in the spring.

To-day, Mr. A. McNabb, agent at Lindsay, arrived in the city accompanied by Trainmaster McMillan and the Review learns that he is to succeed Mr. Sandy and that Mr. Sandy will assume the duties of Mr. McNabb in Lindsay. Mr. Sandy will leave in the course of a few weeks and will remove his family. Thus the city will lose one of the most popular residents. The Review unites with the general public in regretting Mr. Sandy's departure, yet wishing him the best of health and success in his new position and likewise welcoming Mr. McNabb to this city.

THE GRADUATE NURSES HEARD FINE ADDRESS

Dr. Middleton Dealt With the Care of the Teeth.

The regular monthly meeting of the Graduate Nurses' Association of this city which was held yesterday afternoon in the Public Library, was featured by a very instructive address by Dr Middleton on Oral Hygiene. His remarks centred around care of the teeth in every stage of life, thus preventing the loss of them and having them replaced by artificial denture.

There are many points of difference in favor of one's natural teeth, but time would not permit the speaker even to open the question, suffice it that apart from appearance, the maximum biting stress of the natural denture is 175 lbs., as compared with 40 lbs. in an artificial denture.

So much is written these days on pure food and even our Legislatures are spending a great deal of time enacting laws that guard carefully all we eat. This is well, and there is still room for much improvement, but how absurd it is, when in so many cases, pure food and pure drink provided us at great expense to the State, is passed through mouths reeking with filth and pus, contaminating it to a far greater extent than public opinion would have permitted it to become contaminated when offered for sale by the grocers, even before any pure food law was passed. It becomes the privilege then of all those interested in Hygiene to create a public sentiment in favor of a more rigid examination of the oral cavity, and providing a means for those who, through stress of circumstances, cannot afford the necessary expense to have the pathological conditions corrected.

A dentifice once a day, a mouth wash and brushing after each meal and silk floss at night are among the essentials. It is not so much the kind as the constant daily sticking everlastingly at it, that counts.

At the close of his address Dr. Middleton was tendered a very hearty vote of thanks. The Association then elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—Miss F. Dickson.
Cor.-Secy.—Miss B. M. Moury.
Sec. Treas.—Miss L. Simons.

ANGLICAN BISHOP OF OTTAWA TO RETIRE IN JUNE

Canadian Press Despatch.

Otawa, April 3.—Most Rev. Chas. Hamilton, Anglican-Bishop of Ottawa, and Metropolitan of Ontario, has announced in a circular letter to the clergy and members of the church, his resignation to take effect June twenty-second, giving advanced age as his reason.

KIMBERLEY WILL SOON BE FREE

He Has Been the Silent Prisoner at the County Jail

With the expiration of his term, in the County Jail near at hand, Alfred Kimberley, who said he committed murder, will soon find himself cast upon the stormy waters, and he will have to look after number one. Kimberley's term of two months in the County Jail for vagrancy expires on the 9th of this month.

During his imprisonment at the County Jail he has been almost silent, conversing very little with his cell-mates or the officials.

Chief Thompson received some time ago a lengthy communication of an investigation into the case from the authorities in England, who evidently are convinced that Kimberley was trying to effect free passage to the Old Land when he told the story of the murder.

What course will be taken when he is released is not known.

A BALLAD OF THE BESSIE B.

They told of a mornin' and widout any warnin,
That "High Water" Mack had been given the sack,
An, we sphoke in amazement, and utter dishplazement,
For sure he'd had heelers galore at his back.

He'd captained the Bessie, as owner and lessee,
As mate, supercargo, an' roustabout too,
Till he felt that he owned her, and the nice min that groomed her,
From wheel-house to stern-post—an' they'd be a few.

Och, murther, 'twas illigant farin' between times,
With a hoith of good livin before thim all day,
With haddock and mullet, with whitebait an' salmon,
All fishes that swim in the beautiful say.

As they'd lie in the lock, being unduly phrostrated,
An' weary with waitin and takin a resht,
Just thin to revive em, while he sat down beside them,
J. Harris dishtilled them a drop of the besht.

There was Scotch from Kilmanny, an rye from Loch Hanney,
Mild from Ould Blarney and shtrong from Tokay,
With Seagrem's and others, sure they're cheerful as brothers,
I'm thirsty myself, now, d'ye moind phwat I say.

Oh, the beautiful Bessie, the illigant Bessie,
A duck of a saucy and a dream of a day,
So speedy and caucy, so handy and glossy,
No wonder the guests were determind to shtay.

CENTRAL RAILWAY UNDERWAY RUNS NORTH OF STONEY LAKE

WILL BE GREAT BOON TO THE NORTH COUNTRY

This important undertaking is now actually under way. Mr. Burnham, M.P., has written to the County Council stating that the contract calls for completion of the road to Midland Harbour by Dec. 31st, 1915. The rails are now being laid west of McAlpine. This railway runs to the north of Stoney Lake, and will open up the whole north country. It will be remembered that Mr. Burnham asked for instructions last session from the County Council and was told to do all he could for the scheme.

After a good deal of trouble, rival companies were compelled to withdraw their opposition and the road will soon be completed.

G.T.R. LINE TO LINDSAY HAS BEEN IMPROVED

Roadbed to Belleville to Receive Attention This Summer.

The work performed last summer by the Grand Trunk Railway in an effort to perfect this section of their road is already bearing fruit. Never before has the road been in such good shape in the spring season, and Mr. Frank Sandy, the local G.T.R. agent, informed a Review man today that even the sink hole (a term applied to a section of the track near Lily Lake) is in good condition. This sink hole has been one of the dark spots on the history of the Midland Division, and many an engineer shook his head dubiously, and thought of the little ones at home, as he passed over it when the water would cover the rails.

More particularly in 1913 an effort was made to raise the track and insert solid ballast with the result that it is at present high above the swelled waters of spring. Of course the small amount of snow in the northern townships does not cause the lake to become as high as in previous years, yet the road has withstood the frost and thaws well, a feature that has not had a precedent since the road was first built.

The Belleville line is likewise in good condition, and the G.T.R. will undoubtedly continue to ballast the line and provide new and heavier rails this summer.

HEAVY BLOW AT ST. JOHN'S

Mr. Thos. Mckay, Quaker Oats Representative Sends Word of Disaster

A night lettergram was received at the Quaker Oats offices this morning from Mr. Thos. McKay, their representative in the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. McKay happened to be in St. John's when word was received of the disaster to the sealing steamer Newfoundland. He speaks of the gloom cast over the city, as a result of the disaster. The steamer was owned by city merchants. She was caught in a blizzard and sixty-eight of her crew are dead and others are dying from the effects of exposure on the ice. The survivors were picked up by other steamers.

When Mr. McKay sent the message, the ships bearing the dead and rescued were entering the harbor.

From Charlotte Street to the C.P.R. Station.

While in Toronto on Wednesday, Mayor Buller, Ald. Johnston, City Solicitor Hall and City Clerk Armstrong saw the superintendent of the C.P.R. Telegraph Company, in regard to the removal of the poles on George Street, south of Charlotte to the C. P.R. station. There are eighteen poles.

He has recommended that the poles be removed and it is now up to the city to see that the work is done.

The company will plant the poles on their property along the water front.

RADIALS IN EAST

Mayor Buller is quite optimistic that the Ontario Government will do something for Eastern Ontario if all the municipalities put their shoulder to the wheel and work together.

At the Legislature on Wednesday, when the big deputation of Eastern and Western delegates presented a memorial, Mayor Buller submitted suggestions as to the route of radial lines in eastern Ontario which would give service to the south and to the north. He pointed out that the country through which the lines would run was rich in agriculture, timber and minerals, and the many summer resorts commanded a heavy passenger traffic.

Hon. Dr. Pyne, Hon. W. J. Hanna, Hon. W. J. Hearst and Hon. Adam Beck spoke for the Government, and consideration was promised. The Government is asked to guarantee the bonds of the municipalities.

Township Council Decides to Buy Property for This Purpose

At the last meeting of the North Monaghan Council a by-law was passed authorizing the issue of debentures to the amount of $3,500, this money to be used in finishing up the rooms at S.S. No. 2 and to purchase additional property.

One acre of land will be purchased with a view to providing suitable playgrounds for the pupils of this school, the attendance at which has shown a steady growth.

NEW PASTORS FOR NORWOOD CHURCHES

Norwood, April 3.—The official board of the Methodist Church, by a unanimous vote, extended an invitation to the Rev. A. M. Irwin, B.A., B.D., of Cannington, to become their pastor at the close of the present conference year.

Rev. W. W. Low, who recently resigned the pastorate of the Baptist Church, has accepted a call to Midland. Sunday Mr. Low will preach his farewell discourse at the 9th line church in the afternoon and in the church here in the evening.

REID-AULL CASE FOR NEXT MONTH

Miss Doris Reid Seeks to Have Marriage Set Aside.

Toronto, April 3.—In a month or six weks, probably, society will throng the corridors of the City Hall for a chance of listening to the details of the Aull-Reid wedding, which was staged in an impromptu fashion at Cobourg last July. Miss Doris Reid, who then became the bride of Robert Aull, Jr., of St. Louis, alleges that she was not mistress of herself at the time, and that she was not consciously willing to marry Mr. Aull. She now seeks to have the marriage set aside, the action being brought by her father, as she is not yet of age.

The case has been set down for trial, and will go upon the general list three weeks hence, after which it will take its chance and turn with the other cases ahead of it. It will be tried in public without a jury.

Whether Mr. Aull appears for the trial or not, the action may be proceeded with even in his absence.

ANNIVERSARY OF GEORGE STREET SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. F. L. Farewell to be Heard at Sunday Services.

The anniversary of George Street Church Sunday School will be held on Sunday, when Rev. F. L. Farewell, associate secretary of the Sunday school work, will be the visiting speaker. Mr. Farewell will address the congregation, an open session of the Sunday school in the afternoon, and will also speak at the evening service.

This Sunday school is one of the best in the city, with all the departments organized. There is a splendid staff of teachers and officers, who are under the able leadership of Mr. Wilson Taylor, B.A., of the Collegiate staff, who is the superintendent.

At the morning service, the primary department will occupy seats in the body of the church, and the intermediate classes will be in the gallery.

George Street Sunday School is steadily growing, and at the present time, the bible classes and some of the intermediate classes find it necessary to use the auditorium. A larger Sunday school room is a great necessity.

BELLEVILLE REGT.

Representatives Here in Regard to Visit on Victoria Day.

Representatives were in the city yesterday from the 15th Regiment, of Belleville, in connection with arrangements to have that regiment come to Peterboro on May 24th and 25th. They went over the grounds with local officers and will report to a meeting of their officers in Belleville to-night. In all probability a decision will be made to come here.

Their coming means a big thing to Peterboro. Bringing from three to four hundred red coats in on Saturday evening, pitching camp, attending church in a body on Sunday (24th), and then a big day on Monday, which is a public holiday, will add a great amount of interest to a usually quiet period. Another big attraction on Monday will be the Canadian League games between the Petes and Erie, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

A JOKE

That $3000 Idea of the City Dads

"It's quite a joke."

So says one of the members of the Board of Education in regard to the move of the City Council, to ask the Board to prune down their demands by $3,000 and thus help to keep the rate of 25 mills.

He points out that the great part of the expenditure is for teachers' salaries. It might be possible to take up a subscription among the school teachers. If that failed, the members of the Board might come to the rescue and each contribute $300.

As for himself, he said he did not mind an extra mill. He paid more taxes than twenty-five workingmen, and he would not complain.

MAYOR AND ALDERMEN ARE JUBILANT AT OUTCOME OF FIGHT WITH POWER CO.

Committee at Toronto Approved of the Principle of the Bill

Mayor Buller, members of the Council and city officials, have returned from Toronto and all are jubilant at the success of the Peterboro Bill. There is no doubt whatever that the bill as recommended by the Private Bills committee will be passed by the House next week.

This bill practically gives to the city the right to immediately take possession of the distribution system of the Peterboro Light and Power Company. The city will have to take some legal steps, but the point has been gained.

One month after the passage of the bill by the House, the Company will submit the details of their property in the city. The contracts of the present company will be taken over, subject to the approval of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

The Power Supply.

As regards a supply of Power, the city has a contract with the Hydro Electric Commission, and in the face of what has already been done by the Commission, for the city, Hon. Adam Beck can be relied upon to deliver the goods.

The Power Company, through its representatives, fought hard against the bill being passed, but the Committee approved of the principles of the bill.

The Hydro Electric Commission will fix an amount to be deposited by the city, with the County Judge, who will then give an order for the city to take possession. If the price offered to the company for their property is not satisfactory, they can then arbitrate.

The Toronto Telegram reported the proceedings as follows:

"We object to buying anything but the property they had at the date of the legislation, May 6, 1913," said Mr. Cowan. "We are not going to allow them to load the other plant on us by a shrewd trick."

Hydro Obstructed.

"It is impossible for the Hydro to carry out its contract with the city until this plant is taken over by the city," said Mr. McInnes for the Hydro-Electric Commission. "I don't think that you honorable gentlemen intended to allow any opening in the original legislation for the company, and I think that it was more a mistake of language than a mistake in the bill itself."

Would Ruin Business.

Mr. A. B. Colville, for the company, said that the Auburn plant was in the city and that it was really a part of the other company. There were twenty or thirty companies included in the same holding company. The Auburn Company really supplied all the power for the city, through the Peterborough Power Company as distributor. He declared that the company would be put out of business and that it could find no market for its power. They had no rights of their own, and they were dependent on those of the Peterborough company for the use of the streets.

Mr. Beck Makes Charges.

Hon. Adam Beck charged Mr. Colville and his company with refusing to entertain a proposition from the Commission for a supply of power. The reason given was that the Company's power was all under contract. This did not quite agree with his argument that the sale of one plant without the other would result in injury to the Auburn Company. Mr. Colville replied that the Commission had never asked for power. Mr. Beck insisted that they had, and said he could produce correspondence showing the business transactions.

The Poor Bond Holders.

Mr. Strachan Johnston said he represented the bond holders, and that they should be considered. They had invested their money thinking that the charter was good for a number of years. He thought that the Auburn Company was really a part of the Peterborough Light and Power Company inasmuch as the Seymour people owned all the companies.

Mr. Colville again undertook to advance reasons why the bill should not be passed.

Hon. Mr. Beck—"Tell us candidly what is your object?"

Mr. Colville—"To sell all our holdings in Peterborough."

Mr. Beck—"What did you pay for the company? Is it not true that you simply transferred a mortgage and paid a dollar?"

Mr. Colville—"That does not matter in this case."

Beck Exposes Them.

Hon. Adam Beck—"I want to tell the gentlemen of this committee that the Hydro has been hampered in all its work by this sort of thing. If this committee had listened to all the technicalities brought forth by the power interests we would never have had Hydro in existence. This is simply a clever scheme of transferring stock from one company to another. Look at this case. Here is the stock of the Auburn Company transferred from G. E. Kerry, of that company, to G. E. Kerry of the other company, on the payment of one dollar. It is a shrewd trick and only used to load the plant on the city. You should pass this bill."

AN OLD POEM MADE NEW

A Lecture by Judge Huycke Before the Women's Art Association

The members of the Women's Art Association and their friends enjoyed a treat last evening, when His Honor Judge Huycke, gave a lecture on An Old Poem Made New. The accommodation in the board room was taxed to capacity and one and all were unanimous in extending to his Honor sincere thanks for his kindness in lecturing before the Association.

The President, Mrs. Vincent Eastwood, presided.

In introducing his subject, Judge Huycke said:

If we were to visit old London, the metropolis of the world, any time during the coming Spring or Summer, and travel down one of the less noisy streets, we would see a unique but inviting looking building with a strange Eastern name over the entrance, chiselled in fantastic Oriental characters. Watching it for a while we should see thoughtful, scholarly looking individuals passing in and out, apparently intent, not on business, but on study and seclusion. Accosting one of them with a stranger's inquiry for explanation, the good fortune of an invitation to enter might be ours. The furnishings we find rich and rare, and the rooms, redolent with an Eastern atmosphere, are filled with treasures of what seems another world, so much out of place do they seem in the dull fog of the English Thames.

Passing out to the yard or garden behind, we are shown what is said to be the gem of the collection, most highly prized and protected of all, and our surprise and curiosity are unbounded, when we see but a plain ordinary rose bush, wild and straggling in appearance, and in due season, covered with curious single white roses, whose spicy fragrance fills the air about us. Our curiosity still further aroused, eager questions are asked and are fully answered by our guide, who tells us that rose tree was brought over the seas from far off Persia, and that its parent tree flourishes by the grave side of the great Persian pagan poet, astronomer, mathematician, philosopher and tent maker, dead now eight hundred years, but whose fame still lives and who has given existence and his name to the place we are now visiting. Going back we decipher with difficulty the inscription over the portal and find we have been admitted within the sacred precincts of the "Omar Khayam Club."

In imagination let us take another and longer trip to far off Naishapur in Persia, a typical Oriental and Mahometan city. We follow up our quest of the so long forgotten Omar, and with difficulty try to locate some of his homes and haunts, but with less difficulty we find his grave on the outskirts of the city.

The stone is almost covered with fallen leaves and flower petals. This is the mecca of many a pilgrimage, a tomb, ancient and moss grown, fringed round about by a bewildering growth of the trees; they bounded on the north by vines and fruit trees, so that pursuant to his dying request to friends and followers, the north wind should always scatter fragrant petals over his last resting place. His recorded words as reported are, "My tomb shall be in a place where the North wind shall scatter roses over it."

But who is this Omar to whom so many, especially in these later days, gladly do honour.

His full name was Ghiyalhuddin Abulfath Omar bin Abrahim Al-Khayyammi. He was born, lived and died in Naishapur, born about A.D.1050, and died about 1123. Khayam means simply, tentmaker, thus indicating his occupation, or more probably that of his father. He was, of course, brought up a Mohammedan and trained in all the mysteries of that faith. His teacher was the vizier Imam Mowaffak, one of the wisest and greatest of his day. One of his fellow pupils was Hassan Ben Sabbath, the founder of the later dreaded and terrible sect of the Assassans, named after him, and from whose name comes our modern word assassin. Hassan was the terrible "old man of the mountains" so feared and dreaded by the Crusaders.

Omar's broad strong nature and intelligence made him rebellious and brought him into constant contact with the religious autocrats of his day. His protests against the formalism of the Pharisees and hypocrites of the age made them his enemies; they bitterly assailed him and are the cause of what by some has been assumed to be irreverence, but which I think was not so intended. These snatches of song which have immortalized his name, seem to have been relaxation from the strain of useful professional toil, now all but forgotten. In this he offers a striking resemblance to the two great European poets, Dante and Goethe, to whom the pursuit of knoweldge was the business of life, to sing of it their recreation. A passionate devotion to natural science is chraacteristic of all three and in each we see a yearning love of human sympathy and a capability of pure and lofty friendship.

In his Rubaiyat we are spectators of his great life drama, a master spirit's progress and development through the clash and conflict of the eternal. There seems in him three dominant but everchanging moods, the epicurean, the sceptical, and the mystic. He sings in various strains the praises of "roses and love and wine," but sings so mostly as the pessimist and fatalist to obscure and forget the blankness and despair of what he fears will be an eternal extinction. Sometimes but not often we see flash forth a hope of the eternal, but usually "It is eat, drink and be merry," for there is nothing other or better than to-day.

I invite your comparison at leisure of him with the writer of Job and the preacher in Ecclesiastics. With them more frequently the Hebrew faith rises uppermost and triumphs over despair. His is the Moslem pessimism that sees faintly if ever or at all, through the veil, but, ever strong and courageous, ever defiant in his declarations.

He was one of the first and best exponents of spiritual liberty and his satire cuts keenly the pretenders to divine knowledge. But Omar was a Persian and long since dead, for centuries almost forgotten. How and why should we be interested in him, his songs or his teachings.

His name is better known to-day in French, German and English literature than in the Persian. How, when and why did this come about? Why is his name a household word wherever the English tongue is is spoken or read. Why for the past quarter century throughout Britain and America have Omar Clubs been as one critic says, "as thick as blackberries?" Why was the Khayam Club the outstanding literary feature of the closing days of the Nineteenth Century and the opening of the Twentieth?

For all this rejuvenation, for this "old poem made new" we must look to and thank Edward Fitzgerald, whose poem or translation, or both, compelled the attention and admiration of all who love the strong, the true, and the beautiful in art and literature.

But before Fitzgerald there were others who paved the way and drew some attention to the indomitable Moslem, the splendid, undaunted old pagan-Omar of Naishapur. He was an unknown quantity to literary England till the seventeenth century, when Reverend Thomas Hyde, D.D., Professor of Arabic and Hebrew at Oxford, Secretary and interpreter to Charles II., published his monumental work "Veterum Persarum Religio: Religion of the Ancient Persians." In it he devoted some space to the life and works of Omar with other almost equally forgotten Eastern worthies. This work, together with the then aggressive policy of the East India Company, then laying the first foundation of England's Empire in the East, and the first translation into English of the "Arabian Nights," for the time being almost Orientalized Great Britain in thought and feeling. Slight reflections of this atmosphere may be seen in "Addison's Vision of Mirsa," and Johnson's "Rasselas."

In the next century Sir Gore Ouseley lived, flourished and studied; he became English Ambassador to the Shah of Persia and performed most valuable services as a diplomatist of

REBELLIONS

Shots to the Left of Them, Shells to the Right of Them

The Park Street auditorium was filled last night, and all who were rebelling against God listened to a sermon from the shoulder. Shot and shell fell right and left, and scores complimented Evangelist Pugsley at the close of the sermon, claiming it was the most helpful of the series. Rebellion is a sin God despises and for which he always punishes severely. The Evangelist gave many personal illustrations of the result of fighting against God. Two accepted Christ at the close of the sermon. The male quartette sang very acceptably to all. Rev. L. Clarry, of St. James, was on the platform, and offered the opening prayers. Rev. McLaren, of Gilman, was also present. Subject to-night, "We let her drive." All come and have a good time. Come to an old-time old-fashioned revival.

WANT MAIL SORTED AT POST OFFICE HERE

Stoney Lake Cottagers Association Hold Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association was held last evening in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, and was largely attended. President Henderson of Toronto, presided in the chair.

The matter of having the fishing season open on the 1st of July was discussed and a deputation appointed to communicate with the Ontario Government.

The matter of better railway facilities at Lakefield will also be looked into and will be reported on at a future meeting.

Arrangements will be also made to have the mail sorted at Peterborough, in order to save delay at Lakefield, thereby giving better mail service to the cottages on the lakes.

Mr. Robert Neill was elected President and Mr. Felix Brownscombe Secretary-Treasurer.

A vote of thanks was moved in favor of President Henderson and Secretary Sutherland of Toronto for their valuable services during the five years they have acted in the above capacity.

TRAMPS PROVIDE MERRIMENT FOR LARGE CROWD WHEN THEY HOLD RE-UNION AT Y.M.C.A. GYM

A large crowd witnessed the first night of the Grand Re-Union of Tramps at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. The entire proceedings afforded the means of one long laugh for the audience, good spicy jokes being in abundance.

Frank Pidgeon, the leading man, in the role of Sig. Pidgeone, with his usual talent for springing jokes, was certainly at his best last evening and his interpretation of tramp life was excellent. The opening spasm, that of the Grand Orchestra, consisting of a twelve piece band with blaring instruments, brought the crowd to their feet. The gymnastic work displayed showed careful and painstaking training by Physical Director J. J. Thompson. The Mandolin Club, consisting of Messrs. Quartermaine, Irvine, Foster, H. Cranfield, Bartlett and Cranfield, rendered numerous selections which were highly appreciated and delighted the gathering.

The dances, including the hesitation, tango, X-ray, and every popular dance of the Weary Willies, was worth five times the price of admission, and the gyratical evolutions of some were those of a ringside clown. The entire company presents one of the best and funniest shows that has ever been billed at the "Y."

The wrestling matches between Lees and Forbes for points, in which the latter won, afforded considerable interest. W. Scott won the fall in a bout with Mel. Turner. Turner displayed more than considerable ability despite that he was not even in the featherweight class. Scott, although the heaviest man, had his hands full.

A bumper crowd is expected tonight for the farewell performance, when some new stuff will be pulled off.

The affair was put on under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. City League hockey team, all the members of which owe much to Mr. Thompson, not only for his efforts to make the Re-union a success, but also in the interests of the team, which made such a good showing this winter. Mr. Thompson took an active interest in the team when the boys first took the ice and remained with them to the finish.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, APRIL 3, 1914.

THEY WILL LIKELY GET OFF.

THE FOUR GUNMEN who were sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison during the week of April 13th, for the killing of Herman Rosenthal, have been granted a respite by Governor Glynn until after the trial of Police-Lieutenant Charles Becker. Becker was also sentenced to die, but received an order for a new trial, and on this ground the Governor has granted the four gunmen a respite. As to the guilt of these criminals, there is no doubt. As to extenuating circumstances, there is little in their favor. The order for a new trial and respite is only another example of the travesty of justice that takes place in the American republic. There is a long list of criminals, clearly guilty of crime, the punishment for which is explicitly stated in the statutes, yet owing to the appeal to that unknown quantity, the unwritten law, or to what is called extenuating circumstances, they have evaded justice in many instances. Nan Patterson, Harry Thaw, Charles Becker, are only three cases where the course of justice has been perverted. On the other hand, when Dr. Crippen was brought to trial in England, justice took the course prescribed. When he was proved guilty of murder, he was hung without unreasonable delay, which afforded a striking contrast to criminal trials in the United States.

One is moved to ask why there should exist such a difference in two countries, that are both of the same race. Perhaps the two most potent causes for a perversion of justice in America, are the influence of politics and of wealth. In a great criminal trial in the United States, the lawyers on both sides get well paid. The lawyer who defended Harry Thaw, was reported to have received a fee of $100,000, while the man who prosecuted Thaw, District Attorney Jerome, received likewise a large salary. It was also rumored that the jurors received considerable pap. Judges as well, have been known to be susceptible to the talking of money, in giving their decisions. When the laywers of both sides are well paid, when the judge gets his "consideration," to say nothing of other advantages, when the jurors are "looked after," and a severe lesson is administered to the guilty, it may be said that justice is satisfied. From one point of view, it probably sometimes is, but the influence of such a state of affairs creates throughout the nation, a feeling that law and justice can be ignored and despised, provided there is the money to buy a right of way through the courts. The same feeling is cynically expresed in the humor of the press. Thus, an old roost robber defined a court as "a place where they dispenses wif justice." Up to the present time, Canada has kept her practice of law, free from despicable American influences. The Canadian people should congratulate themselves that they live under British fair play, and not American domination.

SAFETY FIRST.

THE ELECTRICAL NEWS contains a good article on the safety first movement. It is one of the most important developments in transportation in the past two years. Great transport companies are taking this movement up in the right spirit. They recognize the value of safety appliances of all sorts, but, while mechanical devices are a very important factor in securing safety on transportation lines, it must not be forgotten that educational work is very important, both for the employees and general public. Time and again, have we seen persons, mostly women, get off an electric car facing the rear, and carelessness of this kind is responsible for a great many accidents. Mr. A. F. Hardin, Vice-President of the New York Central, recently gave an address, in which he said:

> "The fourth and last element in this Safety analysis, and the most important of all, is the man element. Man, in some cases is the most certain, and in other cases the most uncertain element, with which we have to deal, and therefore involves the greatest hazard and the largest field for Safety work. This is true because we are dealing with human nature, with its many unknown racial and family traits. The railroad rank and file, as to-day constituted, probably has the best body of men of any commercial enterprise in the world. But men do not remain stationary. The service is constantly being depleted through natural causes, such as death and illness; through changes in occupation, and through many other causes. This makes it necessary to employ annually on the New York Central lines from 5,000 to 10,000 new men. The railroads can examine these young men to see that they have the proper physique to enter the service, and can make reasonable inquiry as to their antecedents, their character and the influences at home which may tend to control them in the future. The railroad can also instruct them in the several books of rules and regulations and can exercise to a limited extent only a general watchfulness over them in groups, after employment. But, as a rule, after they have passed the awkward squad, so to speak, and entered the ranks of the railroad army of 150,000 men, the identity of many of these young men at first becomes almost entirely lost. If then a young man has a good foundation for truthfulness, honesty and for the well-recognized traits which count for honor, and if he have somewhere in him that indefinable spark of conscience, which always points out his duty, and tells him to do it; or, even if he has not all of these with him at first, but has a good railroader with him on the engine, in the caboose, in the stations, or on the tracks, or elsewhere, he will soon make, and will probably remain, a good railroad man, and therefore the safest element in our wonderful transportation organism. If, on the other hand, a man have concealed in him bad traits of character and have bad instructors and bad associates, he is liable to become a bad man and then more dangerous than the rottenest rail that was ever rolled. We have among us thousands of men whose type illustrates what me wean by "Safe men." The best of them sometimes make a mistake, because it is human to err, but it is the high average of efficiency which counts. I need mention only a few specific cases to explain what I mean. The Empire State Express has run to date over six million miles, or around the world two hundred and fifty times. During that period I cannot find where an engineman or a conductor or one of their crews has been guilty of sufficient neglect of duty to have jeopardized the safety of the passengers who had entrusted themselves to their care."

Mr. Hardin's address shows another important fact besides the necessity of having safe men on railroads. It shows the necessity of careful home training, for without such a training, it would be next to impossible for a man to be of the standard required by a first class railroad. He speaks of the importance of such qualities as honesty, honor and thoroughness for a railroad man, as well as of the deterrent influence of bad associates. Not only railroads, but many other industries suffer from employing men who are deficient in qualities best learned in a good home. The proper home training should fit a man for whatever occupation he is called upon to enter.

SAVE UP FOR THE RAINY DAY.

CANADA IS considered a prosperous country, and while prosperity exists, the people should be thrifty and provide for the rainy day that is always a possibility. The Italian people are making great progress in the matter of providing for the future, particularly in recent years and are setting a worthy example to other people. In studying the methods of saving used in Italy, Simon W. Straus, president of the American Society for Thrift, was surprised to learn that in the last thirty years savings have more than quadrupled, having risen from $268,600,000 to $1,200,000,000. The chief means of inducing thrift are the ordinary savings banks, which number about 200, with nearly 3,000,000 depositors, whose deposits total $500,000,000, and the Post Office savings banks, with an average of 6,000,000 depositors, whose savings amount to $450,000,000. The remainder of savings are held by co-operative societies of credit and by the savings departments attached to the State pawnbrokers' establishments.

An Ingenious Rogue.

Christian Guardian.

Honest men may be ignorant, but it pays rogues to keep abreast of the times. Some ingenious sinner in Honolulu recently beat the gas company's quarter-in-the-slot meter by using ice discs instead of quarters. He froze the discs artificially as he needed them. Someone has calculated that the brains used in making roguery pay would yield a much better dividend if devoted to honest dealing.

Very True.

St. Thomas Times.

J. P. Morgan & Co. will have in their new bank building in New York an incinerator which will burn more than 500 pounds of old bonds and stock certificates an hour. Even at this rate it would take the machine a long time to burn up all the punk stock certificates in existence.

And Then Take Them For Granted.

Hamilton Herald.

Dawson, Y. T., citizens who sympathize with the Ulster Loyalists, sent a fat check to Carson; and other Dawson citizens who favor home rule, sent an equally fat check to Redmond. One check balanced the other. Would it not have been good business to have cancelled them both before they were sent?

Something New in Breweries.

Popular Magazine.

Victor Murdock, the floor leader of the Bull Moosers, in the House of Representatives, tells a story which he says he takes great pride in, although he admits he stole it from another man. It came up during a discussion of the old Roosevelt theory that everybody should have immense families.

"Once upon a time," said Murdock, "a Mr. and Mrs. Brewer, living in the middle west, had a family of 22 children. That appealed to me as the biggest brewery in the United States."

The Thieving Ear of Corn.

Breeder's Gazette.

Twelve ears of corn will plant an acre. If one of the planted ears happens to be "no good" there is a twelfth of an acre missing. An acre of corn may be worth $30 to $40, so to discover a thieving ear is worth from $2.50 to $3.50. One can pick out the ears of poor germination at slight cost, if he will test his corn before he becomes rushed with spring work. And while about it, reject the ears that although germinating do not send up strong, vigorous stalks. Lusty, vigorous young things grow surest into profit, whether they be pigs, lambs, colts or cornstalks.

Tenant Rights.

Vancouver Province.

The lure of the colonies has so slackened the demand for English farms that the tenant farmers are beginning to think themselves in a position to stipulate for better terms. At the recent South Bucks election, a landlord candidate was asked to support the inclusion of a clause in every farm lease, that the tenant could "vote as he liked, pray where he liked, and shoot what he liked." The candidate thought the clauses, especially the last one, too revolutionary, and refused.

SPRING REMEDIES

By Walt Mason

"This is the time," the doctors say, "when people need our bitters; the sunny, languid, vernal day is hard on human critters. They're always feeling tired and stale, their blood is thick and sluggish, and so they ought to blow their kale for pills and potions druggish." And, being told we're in a plight, we swallow dope like rivers, to get our kidneys acting right, and jack up rusty livers. We pour down tea of sassafras, as ordered by the sawbones, and chewing predigsted grass, we exercise our jawbones. We swallow pints of purple pills, and fool with costly drenches, to drive away imagined ills and pipe-dream aches and wrenches. And if we'd only take the spade, and dig the fertile gumbo, the ghost of sickness would be laid, and we'd be strong as Jumbo. Of perfect health, that precious boon, we'd have refreshing glimpses, if we would toil each afternoon out where the jimpson jimpses. There's medicine in azure skies, and sunshine is a wonder; more cures are wrought by exercise than by all bottled thunder. So let's forsake the closed up room, and hoe weeds cockle-burrish, where elderberry bushes bloom, and juniorberries flourish.

ACUTE APPENDICITIS.

It is Dangerous Only When There is Delay in Operating.

"Acute appendicitis calls for immediate surgery," says Dr. Wesley Grove Vincent, instructor in surgery at the New York Postgraduate Medical School and Hospital. Dr. Vincent insisted that there was no medical treatment for acute appendicitis and that the mortality following operation was always due to delay, the surgeon being called in when too late.

"The percentage of mortality in operations for acute appendicitis undertaken in the early stages of the inflammation is shown by hospital statistics to be very low. It is practically nil. * * * The mortality in medically treated cases that are allowed to go on to gangrene and rupture with general peritonitis is practically 100 per cent, while late surgery in such cases saves comparatively few."

Appendicitis is common among children between five and fifteen years of age. There is no particular food that can be singled out as especially liable to cause it unless possibly fruits having small pits or seeds. Delay is more dangerous in children than in adults. The symptoms described by Dr. J. B. Murphy come in definite order at approximately regular intervals. They are: First, pain in the abdomen, sudden and severe; second, nausea and vomiting within a few hours, most commonly within three or four hours after the onset of pain; third, general abdominal sensitiveness, most marked on the right side or, more particularly, over the appendix; fourth, rise of temperature two to twenty-four hours after onset of pain.—New York World.

Anonymous.

Birthdays of Note

FRIDAY, APRIL THIRD

MISS MARGARET ANGLIN, the actress, whose thirty-eighth birthday occurs to-day, has the peculiar distinction of having been born in the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa, her father, the late Hon. T. W. Anglin, being speaker of the House of Commons at the time. Miss Anglin, who by the way is in private life Mrs. Howard Hull, attained her greatest distinction as an actress when starring with Henry Miller in "The Great Divide." Of her connection with this play a good story is told. Its author, William Vaughan Moody, contracted with her to produce it in Chicago. She put it on in due course for a single trial performance but in the middle of the presentation of the piece discovered a flaw in the contract. She refused point blank to go on with the play until the playwright had altered the arrangements so that she would have exclusive rights in the production. The next year she and Henry Miller created a great sensation in the piece.

Eased His Mind.

Having suffered mental anguish, to say nothing of damage to my reputation as a poet, from typographical disarrangements, transpositions and other accidents incidental to the careless handling of verse, I submit herewith a form of stanza which I believe to be proof against such vicissitudes. It reads the same backward and forward, up and down and standing on your head:

WE SHOULD WORRY.
Should we all worry?
We should worry, all.
All worry, should we?
Worry all we should.

A Famous Old Paper.

It would be difficult to find a paper with a more romantic history than La Gazette de Hollande. In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries statesmen of the first rank were her contributors—Lord Chesterfield and Frederick the Great, king of Prussia, to name but two of an illustrious roll. During the war of independence Washington sought the sympathy of Europe through its columns. In 1810 it was temporarily suppressed by Napoleon. In its modern form La Gazette has accomplished good work in making the Netherlands and her colonies better known beyond their own boundaries.

Pompeii.

Pompeii was destroyed by an eruption of Vesuvius on the night of Aug. 24, A. D. 79. The ashes buried the whole city and covered the surrounding country. After a lapse of 1,500 years a countryman as he was turning up the ground found a bronze figure, and this discovery led to further search, which brought various objects to light, and at length the city was uncovered.

George Ade, discussing matrimony in an after dinner speech at the Chicago Athletic club, said:

HOT PASSAGE BETWEEN McQUEEN AND MACHIN CAUSES STIR IN HOUSE

Charge of Slack Enforcement of Liquor Laws in Kenora and Countercharge of Prescribing Illegal Dose for "Indian" Causes Excitement—Redistribution Bill Advances a Stage.

TORONTO, April 3.—There was an exciting passage of arms in the Legislature last evening between Dr. McQueen (Lib., N. Wentworth) and Capt. Machin (Con., Kenora), which brought the members on both sides to their feet and for a time threatened the equilibrium of the Assembly.

It arose over a statement by Dr. McQueen that the liquor laws in Kenora riding were not as well enforced as they might be, and that when excursions passed through the town the inspector was frequently absent.

Hon. W. J. Hanna briefly replied that all appointments had been made in order, and that the enforcement was good in all respects.

Capt. Machin then took the floor, and retaliated on Dr. McQueen to the effect that the member for N. Wentworth had no right to preach temperance when he himself had broken the laws by giving a man on the Indian list more than the legal six ounces of whisky. Capt. Machin produced the orders in question. Dr. McQueen rose to give the history of the affair, which he said had been fully canvassed by his political enemies in North Wentworth. The man had come to the office on a Sunday on the verge of delirium tremens and his priest had urged the prescription.

Finally the uproar calmed and the House returned to business. Z. Mageau's bill to permit local option in assessment in the New Ontario districts was discussed, and defeated on division.

The debate was confined chiefly to two northern members, both of whom represent ridings that would be interested in the proposal. Z. Magean championed his bill and Albert Grigg of Algoma, was a very vigorous opponent.

Hon Mr. Hanna said the principle of the bill was the same as that thrown out earlier, but that he had heard the case with interest, because of all places in the province the north would without doubt be the most favorable for such a scheme. Conditions in the west were partly experienced in the new parts of Ontario. He could not see, however, that it would relieve problems in the way hoped for.

The Ontario redistribution bill advanced another short stage in the Legislature yesterday. The whole matter now goes into the hands of a special committee of the House, which includes members from both parties, the second reading having been passed without dissent.

The members on the special committee which will guide it through the preliminary stages are as follows: Hon. Messrs. Hanna, Lucas and Preston, and Messrs. McDiarmid, Fraser, Hartt, Ross, Rowell, Clarke, Proudfoot and Bowman.

Three hundred square miles of fine timber land bearing great promise of future values will be added to the large preserve now known as Algonquin Park as the latest stroke of the Ontario Government in the conservation of this branch of natural resource. The price of this area is $185,000, and the compact received the sanction of the House yesterday afternoon after a long discussion. The present owners of the land in question are known as the Pembroke Lumber Co., and the matter arose in the House on the solicitation of Hon. W. H. Hearst, who has been negotiating for some time with a view to swelling the tangible assets of the province in the north land.

In criticizing Mr. Hearst's proposal Sam Clarke (W. Northumberland) felt that if they took the Minister's estimate of the situation as matter of fact, they were getting a marvelous bargain, but he advocated a still further report by other forestry experts in the employ of the Government.

A COMPROMISE is desirable only when the party of the second part does all the compromising.

It takes an optimist to enjoy being good.

While it is true that anything may happen, don't let it keep you awake nights.

If we could hypnotize our creditors as easily as we do ourselves regarding the money we owe, life would indeed be a long dream of bliss.

Most of us make mental reservations when we say that we try to love our enemies or like to work.

We all claim to be honest, but really does one of us have a medal, leathern or otherwise, to show for it?

Many a man was up in the air long before the flying machine was perfected and brought into daily life.

Better Snap.

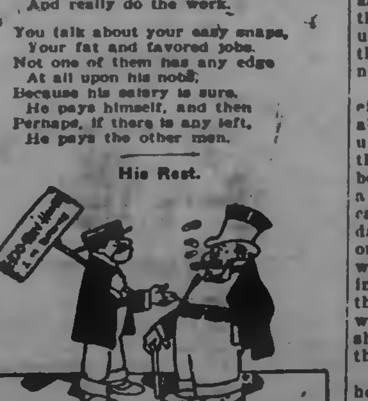
I used to think I'd like to be
A feature in the tent,
A frenzied freak who fed on glass
Or one whose legs were bent,
But I have changed my point of view
In thinking of it more.
Now I would be the man who takes
The money at the door.

The artist toys with the trapeze
Or on the flying steed
Goes gayly prancing round the ring
At death defying speed,
And on the rope the spangled miss
Trips lightly to and fro,
But it's the fellow making change
Who really runs the show.

When all the people come to view
The wonders from afar
He sits there raking in the coin
While puffing his cigar,
As cool as any one in sight,
As calm as any Turk,
While actor people draw the crowds
And really do the work.

You talk about your easy snaps,
Your fat and favored jobs.
Not one of them has any edge
At all upon his nobs,
Because his salary is sure.
He pays himself, and then
Perhaps, if there is any left,
He pays the other men.

His Rest.



"Have you had your vacation yet?"

"Oh, yes. My wife was away in June, you know."

Save What's Left.

This is all the doctors propose to do to the infant of the future to improve him after nature has done the best it could:

Snip off the appendix.

Cut out the big intestine.

Remove the stomach.

Clip out the tonsils.

After it is all over, if they put what is removed in one place and what is left in another, it may be hard to tell from the size which is which.

Just Because He Could Not Swim.

I went one night to a bathing beach
With a maiden passing fair
Whom I fondly hoped that night to teach
To love me then and there.

But alas for me and my fond hopes high
Of a sweetheart dear and true!
She was sweet, petite, but how should I
Her cruel scheme see through?

When I hinted to her of the love I gave
She laughed out blithe and gay,
And she ducked me under the blooming wave
And swiftly swam away.

OUR FOOT AND YARD

STANDARD FIXED AFTER CENTURIES OF CONTENTION.

The Latest Official Measure Was Decided on In 1855, But Prior to That Time Confusion Reigned—Hercules' Foot Was Traditional Greek Standard—In One Case the Measure Went Over 23 Inches.

Foot rules and yardsticks are so common nowadays that not one person in a thousand ever stops to think of their origin. Yet the length of these common articles was settled upon only after centuries of correction and contention, and after thousand of years of unsuccessful effort to find an unchangeable unit in nature.

The foot has been used in many nations, both ancient and modern, that scientists believe it was meant to be the length of the human foot. The Greek foot, for instance, was supposed to be the length of the foot of the hero Hercules. However, Hercules was a very large man; so their unit was measured 12.14 of our inches. The Macedonians probably took their unit, according to our authority, Mr. Fred Telford, whom we quote, from the foot of some giant leader, for it was 14.08 inches in length. In the middle ages the foot in Geneva became 19.21 inches, and one foot has been discovered actually 23.22 of our inches in length. On the other hand, the foot was 9.72 inches in Phytiha, and only 8.75 in Sicily.

The Germans, a few centuries ago, attempted to secure a better unit by taking the average of a number of feet. A surveyor of the sixteenth century prescribed this rule: "Stand at the door of a church on a Sunday, and bid sixteen men to stop, tall ones and small ones, as they happen to pass out when the service is finished; then make them put their left foot one behind the other, and the length thus obtained shall be the right and lawful rood to measure and survey the land with, and the sixteenth part of it shall be the right and lawful foot."

The foot thus selected, though undoubtedly capable of considerable variation, was less elastic than the inch of our early ancestors. It was provided by law in 1324 during the reign of Edward II., the inch should have length of "three barley corns, round and dry, laid end to end." Barley corns differ much in length, even if round and dry; therefore it must have been possible to vary the inch at will. Strangely enough, however, this old unit based on the barley corn persists to this day in some parts in the numbering of shoes. Number three shoes are a third of an inch—that is, one barley corn—larger than number twos; and so with sizes.

Our yard represents another unsuccessful attempt to find a satisfactory unit in nature. In the twelfth century, Henry I. decreed that the yard should be the distance from the end of his nose to the end of his thumb; we are not certain, however, in what position he held his arm and head when the measurements were taken. He went so far as to have a metal bar of the proper length made; and then copies were prepared, stamped, and declared to be royal measures.

The earliest yardstick now in existence was prepared near the end of the fifteenth century in the reign of Henry VII. This stick, made of bronze, measures 35.924 of our modern inches in length, and was used as the English standard until 1588.

The new British standard of 1588, was called the Winchester yard. It was made of brass, and remained the legal standard until 1826. The bar is in existence to-day, and offers ample evidence of the truth of the report made by a commissioner who examined it in 1742: "A kitchen poker, filled at both ends, would make as good a standard. It has been broken, and repaired so clumsily that the joint is nearly as loose as that of a pair of tongs." Nevertheless the officials worried with it until 1826, for the simple reason that they could not agree upon a new standard.

The belief became common in the eighteenth century that such perishable things as the king's arm made unsuitable standards; but it was thought that a unit in nature might be found in the pendulum. Therefore a committee of Parliament, in 1760, caused John Bird to prepare a standard of measure based upon the seconds' pendulum. This standard, which measured 36.00002 of our inches, was not adopted for more than sixty years. Finally, in 1824, it was provided that Bird's yard should become the legal standard on the first day of January, 1825.

The British had not yet learned, however, that accurate standards are hard to make, and that, once made, they are worth careful attention. In the great London fire of 1834 the newly adopted standard was so badly damaged that it seemed worthless. Moreover, it soon disappeared completely, and was not found until 1891. No copies had been made, and we were again without an accurate measurement of the yard.

Bird had left directions for replacing the standard, if it should ever be lost, but different scientists following these directions produced sticks varying widely in length. Therefore a new standard was prepared, as nearly like the old as possible. In 1855, Parliament adopted the standard yard that remains to this day in England. It is provided that "The straight line or distance between the centres of the transverse lines in the two gold plugs in the bronze bar deposited in the office of the Exchequer shall be the genuine standard yard of 62 degrees F." Accurate copies were deposited in widely separate buildings.

SAVED BY HIS WIT.

One Warrior Who Was Too Much for Frederick the Great.

Frederick the Great was very fond of hearing what the common soldiers thought of him and often frequented in disguise the taverns where his soldiers caroused. One day he went into a tavern and sat down at a table with an old soldier. The latter insisted on paying for everything and the king noticed that the fellow bad money, although it was not pay day.

"How is it, comrade," said the king, "that you can make your money last so long?"

"That's easy enough if you know the Prussian dodge," was the answer—sell or pawn everything that you don't need. To-day, for instance, I sold my sword and made myself a wooden one; that's good enough in times of peace," and the soldier drew his sword and showed the king a wooden one.

A few days later the king was reviewing his troops, and he recognized his old acquaintance with the wooden sword. He immediately dismounted, walked up to the man and said to him, "Draw your sword and cut off my head!"

"Your majesty," said the trembling soldier, "how can I commit such a crime?"

"Your first duty is obedience to your king!" shouted Frederick with an angry voice. "Draw your sword!"

Then the old fellow lifted his eyes to heaven and with a trembling voice exclaimed: "I obey! But may heaven change my steel sword into a wooden one when I draw it to strike my king." Thereupon he drew his sword, and it was a wooden one. With a hearty laugh the king mounted and rode on.

Male Brides.

It had rained all the long dreary day, and his golden curls were bedraggled and wet, and his nice collar hung limp down his slender shoulders when he came home at a quarter past four o'clock and threw his schoolbook at the cat, which lay beside the hearth.

"Grandpa," he said softly as he came to where the old man was quietly sitting, smoking and thinking, "I thought all brides were of the female sex."

"They are, child; they are. Why do you make such an odd remark?"

"Because, grandpa, in looking over my geography lesson I came upon the Hebrides. Are they females, too, and, if so, why are they called 'he'?"

Try a New Start.

"You are going to marry a lady with lots of money," said the fortune teller.

"Anything else?" he asked eagerly.

"Your salary will soon be raised."

"Go ahead. Do you see anything else that is encouraging?"

"You will in a short time start on a trip around the world."

"Fine! What else?"

"Your worst enemy will be ruined before the year is ended."

"Say, wait. You're getting things mixed. Just before I came in here a man in whose judgment I have a lot of confidence told me I was my own worst enemy. Let's go back to the trip around the world and start again."

The Feast of Dolls.

The feast of the dolls is the quaintest of all the little Japanese girls' festivals. In the storehouse, where are kept all the family treasures, there are boxes filled with dolls which have come down from the grandmothers and great-grandmothers. Each new bride takes her dolls when she goes to her father-in-law's house, and she keeps the feast each year till her eldest daughter is old enough to take it up.

BLIZZARD WAS FATAL FOR SEALERS

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE IN GALE OFF NEWFOUNDLAND

MANY OF CREW FAILED IN EFFORTS TO REGAIN SHIP

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 3.—This year's seal fishery on the Newfoundland coast threatens to be the most disastrous for nearly twenty years. Already one disaster has certainly occurred which resulted in the known death of 64 members of the crew and steamer Newfoundland, and some estimates place the dead at over 100. Fears that the Southern Cross, another sealing steamer with 173 men on board had been lost, were dispelled last night by a bulletin from Channel, Nfld., saying she is safe. The seal hunt is a specially hazardous occupation. The steamers carry unusually large crews of from 150 to 270 men, and when the ice on which the seals are found is located all these men are sent out each morning over the fields of ice to kill the seals and drag them back to the ship or pile them in huge heaps where the ship can get them as it threads its way through the fragments of ice behind them. On any normally favorable day probably 3,000 men are thus occupied in small or large groups over the fields of ice for maybe 50 or 100 miles.

Last Tuesday morning this practice was resumed, as every day before, but after the men had been on the ice some few hours the blizzard broke, and sent them scurrying back, while the ships were also moved to unusual activity to reach their men. The steamer Newfoundland, however, got caught and her men were lost. The ship is one of the old style wooden vessels with less power than the modern steel boats, was caught between some fragments of heavy ice, and could not move, and her men in the dense, blinding snowstorm, lost all senses of the direction, and wandered aimlessly over the ice floes, knowing from sad experience what fate confronted them. Not until yesterday morning, forty-eight hours later, did the weather improve sufficiently for help to be given. Then the Newfoundland signalled to the two nearest ships, the Bellaventure and the Stepheno, both powerful modern steamers, and these at once sent out parties of men to search over the snow-clad ice for the dead. Twenty-five bodies were found and thirty-five survivors, badly frostbitten. Most of these will be maimed for life.

The Perfect Day.

There is, perhaps, one such day in every one's life. It is seldom more—when the whole world seems to hang in a nebulous light, when nothing is quite real or quite certain, when the entire universe might be a bubble to break with touching, when one is beyond one's body, all pure soul, when everything — even the birds in their bursts of song and sudden silences, the flowers, the clouds—conspires for perfection. Such moments come only when one human spirit first touches another and vanish, or at least are transmuted, with the first kiss, the first spoken word of love.—From "Simpson," by Elinor Mordaunt.

JAPANESE THEATRES.

The Plays Are Long and the "Invisible" Characters Are Unique.

Although the Japanese have copied the best institutions in the world in remodeling their own, the theatre in Japan is essentially different from other countries, and some of the best ideas might well be copied by our houses of amusement. The revolving stage, for instance, which allows the scene to be changed without a long tiresome wait is one of them.

Other features can not be so much commended. Take for example the dressers to the chief actors, who flit hurriedly to and fro dressed in black, which gives them the appearance of black spectres. They are supposed to be invisible, and in addition to throwing around the actors with a marvelous dexterity the changes of costume they act as valets. It is amusing to see one of these "shades" giving the hero a cup of tea, a fan, a handkerchief, or, if the situation is a dramatic one, holding a taper at the end of a long stick, which lights up the actor's face.

In Japan the theatre goer starts out at 9.30 or 10 o'clock in the morning. It is not necessary that he should have made a visit to the box office, for Japan has no such institution. There is a sort of tea house or restaurant in front of each theatre, where the ticket can be arranged for; also refreshment or any sort of attention which may be needed during the lengthy play. During the play attendants go about constantly with small handless cups of delicious amber tea which perfumes the air.

When the scene opens there is no curtain to raise; neither do the actors appear at "right centre," nor are they discovered seated at "L.C." A character will appear not from the wings, but from a sidewalk. These walks are often decorated with a flower border. He will repeat some lines, which some other character will answer from the walk at the other side of the stage, and so by degrees they make their way to the stage proper in the most natural manner.

The Japanese have brought the pantomime to a high state of perfection, and this is one of the most popular forms of plays which are given.

Minute Marvels.

The rotifer is but an infinitesimal speck, about a thousandth part of an inch long. He is a water midge that needs a microscope to watch his movements. Ten thousand rotifers could sport in a tiny eggcup full of water without causing more commotion than would a single fish in any given bay. One would naturally suppose that such creatures were the most minute forms of animal life, but such is not the case. Wherever there is a "herd" of them they are accompanied by another species which are so small that in descriptions of the two they are likened to rats and horses. These tiny attendants on the rotifer vulgaris are only one one-hundred thousandth of an inch in length.

Preparing For the Worst.

Mme. Tetrazzini says that one of the most amusing experiences of her younger days occurred when she and her sister were touring together and were leaving some lodgings where they had been very comfortable.

"After thanking the landlady," Mme. Tetrazzini says, "she surprised us both by looking at us in the most kindly and condescending way."

"'That's all right, my dears,' she said. 'I'm always good to theatricals, for I always say to myself that I never know but what my own children may come to it!'"

DURING the cold weather when it is necessary to keep on extra fires, there is always increasing danger of accidents happening from defective chimneys, defective stovepipes, furnaces, explosion of coal gas, accumulation of dust near heating appliances and numerous other causes.

ALLEGES A BATH-TUB TRUST

Montreal Star Says Prices Were To Be Raised 15 Per Cent.

MONTREAL, April 3.—The Star yesterday announced the disclosure of an alleged "bath-tub trust" in Canada, whereby prices on all enamelled ware were to be raised 15 per cent. and kept there.

Thirty large jobbers, it is asserted, joined certain firms in a plan to increase the prices on bath-tubs, lavatory equipment, and similar goods in Canada 15 per cent.

The duty on imported goods of this character is 35 per cent., and it is alleged the jobbers agreed not to sell any imported article at a lower price than that agreed on for the Canadian make.

It is further alleged that the collected sums obtained from the increase in price was to be pooled and divided among those in the agreement.

Not many mnoths ago the American "bath-tub trust" was smashed by the courts.

Pump Anchors.

A pump is a queer sort of anchor, but it has been found to be the best kind of an anchor for a sandy bottom. The anchor consists of a heavy piece of metal with a hole down through the center and a tube from this hole to the ship, so that water can be pumped from the ship down through the tube and out of the bottom of the metal mass. When this anchor drops to the sandy bottom and the pump is started it makes quicksand of the material round it so that it sinks in deep. When the pumping stops the sand hardens and holds the anchor. To raise the anchor it is necessary only to start pumping again and loosen the sand.—Saturday Evening Post.

What Is Instinct?

Instinct is a generic term comprising all those faculties of mind which lead to the conscious performance of actions that are adoptive in character, but pursued without necessary knowledge of the relation between the means employed and the ends attained. It is hardly necessary to remark that sometimes "instinct" comes so close to "reason" that it is almost impossible to distinguish between them.—New York American.

ENGINEER AND FIREMEN WERE KILLED

C.P.R. Work Train Wrecked When Track Sank

TORONTO, April 3.—George Vincent, 484 Clendenan avenue, engineer, and A. Sinclair, St. John's road, Toronto, fireman, were instantly killed, and S. Shenstone, 1,472 Dundas street, Toronto, brakeman, injured, when the engine of a C.P.R. construction train plunged down a 50-foot embankment at Brock road, a mile and a quarter east of Cherrywood, which is 25 miles east from Toronto, at 10.15 a.m. yesterday.

The train had just reached one of the newly-constructed culverts when without warning the track sank beneath the weight of the engine, which broke away from the track and plunged down the embankment to the side of the track.

All three men were in the engine at the time. Sinclair and Shenstone jumped for their lives as the engine started on its downward course. Shenstone was fortunate enough to fall clear of the engine, but Sinclair fell under it and was crushed to death.

Vincent was at the throttle when the engine plunged and did not have time to get where he could jump from the engine.

He was instantly killed.

Shenstone was rushed to Toronto, where he was taken to the Western Hospital. He is suffering from scalp wounds, injured left leg and possible internal injuries.

Owing to the fact that the cars of the train stayed on the road bed the rest of the crew escaped injury.

The cause of the wreck was the collapse of a culvert, the earth around which had been loosened by the heavy rain.

An inquest will be opened in Toronto to-day.

Greeks From War Reach U. S.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Two thousand Greeks, most of them battle-scarred veterans of the Balkan wars, arrived here yesterday on the steamer Laconia. Many returned to resume in America careers which they had abandoned to fight the Turks and Bulgarians. One of them, Charalabos Stathis, gave up a prosperous real estate business in Winnipeg to serve in the Greek army as a private. He comes back with the rank of sergeant.

German Aviator Killed.

MUNICH, Bavaria, April 3.—Lieut. Lanpmeyer, a German army aviator, was killed and Lieut. Ruchti, whom he carried as a passenger, was seriously injured yesterday in an aeroplane accident. Their aeroplane propeller broke into fragments when they were flying at a low altitude over the aerodrome. Pieces of the propeller snapped the rigging and the machine collapsed and fell.

THIS GIRL WAS HAZED

INDIANA STUDENT CLAIMS DAMAGES FOR BRUTAL TREATMENT.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., April 3.—As a result of hazing in the girls' dormitory of Purdue University last January Mabel Rogers, of Shoals, Ind., yesterday filed suit against seven senior girls demanding $7,000. The plaintiff, who is a first year girl, alleges that, up to the time she was hazed, she was a healthy girl with normal eyes, but now her sight is impaired and her health destroyed.

Miss Rogers in her complaint, alleges that on a certain day in January, while she was preparing her lessons, seven girls dragged her from her room, tore off her clothing, painted her chest, back and neck with red ink, poured mucilage on her back and stuck her with pins in an effort to force her to kneel to her assailants. She further avers that she was ducked in a tub of water. She declares she was forced to go to a hospital for treatment following the hazing, and that she has been unable to do her work in the university.

FAVORS REORGANIZATION.

Judge Scores Toronto City Architect's Department.

TORONTO, April 3.—Judge Denton's report upon the investigation into the efficiency of the city architect's department, and into the charges preferred against the acting city architect and the department by Ald. Wanless, was handed to Mayor Hocken yesterday afternoon.

The reorganization of the department into a "department of buildings" is recommended.

Acting City Architect Price comes in for severe criticism; the Board of Control, the City Council and Chief Thompson also.

Judge Denton laconically states in regard to favoritism to builders: "If Mr. Price has shown favoritism and discrimination he does not stand alone in that connection. The Board of Control and City Council have also sinned. Many instances have been given of concessions asked and granted by the property committee or the Board of Control in the face of the opposition of the department."

ANOTHER WIDOW ROBBED.

Two Masked Robbers Near Quebec Loot Woman's Savings.

QUEBEC, April 3.—Masking the lower part of their faces with handkerchiefs and with caps pulled well down over their foreheads, two robbers broke into a house at Lauzon, across the river, about midnight Wednesday by making an entry through the coal shed. The house was the property of Madame Bourget, who keeps a grocery store, and only she and her little daughter were in it. Lighting a lamp the burglars awoke the two and roughly demanded money, holding a revolver to their heads.

She had in the house $75, and while she was getting it the child made an attempt to get away and warn the neighbors, but the men caught her and threatened to blow her brains out if she moved.

As soon as the intruders had gone, Madame Bourget went out and told some of her relatives, but their efforts to find the men were futile.

THE "MENACE"

Canadian Mails Are Closed to This Paper

OTTAWA, April 3. — "The Menace," a weekly paper published in the United States, has been barred by the Postomffice Department from transmission through the Canadian mails, and an authorization to establish a similar paper at Aurora, Ont., has been refused. The reason given is that the statements in the paper are found to be so "scurrilous, abusive and derogatory to a great many of the people of Canada that there was nothing for the Department to do but live up to the law and deny it the privilege of mail."

The main subject of the attacks is the Roman Catholic priesthood and the adherents of the Roman Catholic religion generally who are accused of the most obscene, immoral and indecent conduct, persistently carried on. The priesthood are accused of being a lecherous bunch of white slavers.

Youths Found Guilty.

PERTH, Ont., April 3. — At the criminal assizes for the County of Lanark, Sir Glenholme Falconbridge presiding, James Sutton, aged 18, formerly of Wexford, Ireland, and William Evans, aged 19, formerly of London, Eng., found guilty of having attempted to wreck a C.P.R. train on March 16 last, were remanded for sentence. They will probably be sent to Guelph prison farm.

FAMOUS DIAMONDS.

The Cullinan in the Rough Weighed One and One-third Pounds.

Until 1905 the largest diamond known was the Excelsior, found in 1893 at Jagersfontein by a native while loading a truck. It weighed 973 carats and was cut ultimately into ten stones weighing from thirteen to sixty-eight carats. All previous discoveries were surpassed in 1905 by the finding of a stone weighing 3,025¾ carats, or one and a third pounds, in the Premier mine in the Transvaal.

The Transvaal government bought this stone and presented it to King Edward, it having become known as the Cullinan diamond. In 1908 it was sent to Amsterdam and there cut into nine large stones and a number of small ones. The largest one weighed 516½ carats and is the largest brilliant in existence. All are of the finest quality and flawless.

The Kohinoor in its earliest known state weighed 186½ carats, but was later cut to 106.

Other famous diamonds, some from Brazil, some from India or Borneo, others from Kimberley, are the Star of the South, weighing 254½ carats; the Regent or Pitt diamond, weighing 136 carats after several cuttings; the Daryal-nur, weighing 186 carats, in the possession of the Shah of Persia; the Tiffany, weighing 125½ carats; the Victoria, weighing 180 carats and cut from a stone weighing 457 carats.—Exchange.

Escapes From Villa.

NEW ORLEANS, April 3. — Luis Terrazas, jr., the wealthy Mexican held a prisoner for ransom at Chihuahua by Gen. Francisco Villa for the past three months, has escaped and made his way south toward Mexico City, according to reports received by a newspaper here. Through the assistance of an old family servant and a traitor in Villa's camp, the story says, the political prisoner obtained his liberty and reached Saltillo, beyond the zone of Constitutionalist control.

NOT MADE BY SPOOKS.

House Noises at Night That Sound Like Ghostly Footfalls.

In old houses the boards and joists forming the floors are often in a somewhat unstable condition. Many floors are permanently bent with the traffic of generations. Others are still undergoing the warping process. It is easy to imagine a floor which is in a perfectly ripe condition for the production of ghostly sounds.

During the daytime the timbers get bent with the weight of the various inmates of the house walking to and fro, but the noise and bustle of the day drowns the starting and creaking which goes on until the floor has recovered its natural position, as it is bound to do in time, wood being of an elastic nature.

When, however, the stillness of night comes on, these little intermittent movements may become magnified into mysterious footsteps, according to the imagination of the hearer. I myself live in a house the landing of which exactly illustrates my argument. Some hours after all are in bed the sound as of one stealthily creeping along the landing is heard—loud enough to startle a light sleeper into wakefulness. "Who's that?" has often been the exclamation, but by good sense the natural explanation has as often been accepted.—London Times.

AN OLD POEM MADE NEW

tact and ability. He was the first who ever attempted translation of any of Omar's works into English.

In this same century some French and German scholars whom I need not stop to name, assisted in the revelation and restoration of this forgotten genius.

Dr. Edward Cowell.

But the John the Baptist of the Khayam cult was Dr. Edward Cowell, Professor of Sanskrit at Cambridge. He it was who lighted the torch, for he was the teacher of Edward Fitzgerald, and inspired him with love of Persian literature, and especially with an undying enthusiasm for Omar the old astronomer. The growth of this fad, cult or rage as it has been differently called by different persons, calling for edition after edition, almost without number, of the Rubaiyat, may be attributed almost wholly to the interpretation of Edward Fitzgerald. How much of his work is Omar and how much Fitzgerald? What part is translation and what is original, is and must be a moot question, but however that may be, he ingeniously wove into a life cycle a number of isolated quatrains blending them all with the unity of his own personality and the brilliance of his own peculiar genius. He took the Persian's thought and the Persan's manner, but made it his own with just such high-handed, modest, almost unconscious art of lordly rapine as Shakespeare displayed toward the predecessors, whom he robbed but to glorify and immortalize them.

There are few characters in modern literature who stand out with clearer individuality, or whose lives have been more transparent than Edward Fitzgerald.

Fitzgerald.

But who, what, and whence is Fitzgerald? He was the son of John Purcell, Woodbridge Suffolk, England; his mother's name was Fitzgerald, and her father at death left his very considerable property to the family on condition they took his name. Hence we see Edward Purcell from and after nine years of age, known as "Edward Fitzgerald." He was born March 31st, 1809. Mark the date, March 31st, 1809; the year 1809, indeed the "annus mirabilis" of the nineteenth century.

Fitzgerald numbered among his friends the Tennysons, Carlyle, Dickens, Spedding, and many others not unknown to fame. He lived the life of a modest, retiring, simple, courteous, well to do English gentleman. Literature was to him a relaxation and pleasure, an amusement rather than an avocation. His works were in no sense "pot boilers." He translated a number of Greek tragedies and evidently believed his fame, if any, would rest on them rather than on his less pretentious and as he thought, less worthy Rubaiyat. So do men, great men, err. His chief amusements were gardening and yachting. His favorite yacht he named "The Scandal," from as he said, the chief commodity of Woodbridge, his home town. Possibly some more modern and more pretentious towns or even cities, might emulate Woodbridge in such claims to immortality. Fitzgerald was consistently and conscientiously a vegetarian, rather to the discomfort and discomfiture of an occasional guest. Tennyson, for example. He sometimes called himself and was lovingly known by many of his friends as the "Laird of Little Grange," or more affectionately and familiarly still "Old Fitz." His Rubaiyat was first published anonymously in 1856, and for private circulation only, but his old friend and master Cowell, thought so well of it, that it was revised and republished in various guises till in the early eighties it came out in its present perfection. In the early Spring of 1883, Tennyson visited him at Woodbridge ; many were the pleasant hours they spent together exchanging reminiscent tales, and many more, perhaps more pleasant, they passed enshrouded in silence and tobacco smoke. Those of us old or growing older, know right well "the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts." The old friends parted—alas forever in this life.

Fitzgerald living then alone, went to pay a short visit to his old friend Crabbe at Bredfield vicarage. There it was that he died on the morning of June 14th, 1883. Mr. Crabbe found him "as if peacefully sleeping, but quite dead."

On hearing of Fitzgerald's death Tennyson wrote to their mutual friend, Sir Frederick Pollock, father of the present Sir Frederick, and like him an eminent lawyer, as follows:

"I had no truer friend; he was one of the kindest of men, and I have never known one of so fine and delicate a wit. I had written a poem to him the last week, a dedication which, alas, he will never see."

The circumstances of his death and the praise bestowed by Tennyson, then in the summit of his glory, no doubt attracted attention to the Rubaiyat, for it rapidly became and has ever since remained and deservedly so, one of the most popular poems in the English tongue during the past quarter century probably the most popular one.

Fitzgerald's English version he makes to follow largely the style of the Persian original. Each verse with him too is a quatrain—four lines only. Here too as in the Persian we find either all four in rhyme, or more frequently the first, second, and fourth in rhyme—the third blank—this being one distinguishing feature of the rubai. The succession of sounds too are said to imitate so far as possible those in the original Persian. The meter used is one common in English verse, the iambic pentameter, i.e., five iambic the iambus being two syllables, a short followed by a long one. This meter is frequently used by Tennyson (vide "In Memoriam"), Byron, Gray and many others. In all languages it is a favorite and effective medium for the expression of poetic thought and sound.

We, as a matter of fact, at all times must be very chary in our interpretation of Omar, or indeed any Oriental poet, the view-point and figures of speech being so essentially different. Taking Fitzgerald as our guide, we must, I think, adopt the middle course and take him as a strong, brave man, a genius as well, who laughed at fate, who smiled in the blackest despair of doubt, who did not, could not see clearly beyond the veil, who, buffeted, but not conquered, said today is all we have,—let us use it, but even when praising pleasure, led himself a sad, perhaps austere and ascetic life.

Rejecting dictation as to life and conduct from blind religious leaders who could not see and did not lead, whom he despised and who consequently hated him, his life and verses became one continued protest, protest of the thinker against bigotry, protest of the fair mind against hypocrisy, protest of the creature against the Creator, of the pot against the potter, of life against death. He refused wealth and position, choosing work and retirement, the dignified, thoughtful retirement of student and philosopher. This is Fitzgerald's picture; in it all there seems but one flaw, if it is a flaw, accepting the dicta of best Persian scholars. It is that his English poem is rather a work on Omar than Omar himself, to some extent an original poem, not an exact or literal translation. That I believe is true, but it is equally true that he has caught the spirit, the beauty and the splendid triumphant sentiment of old Omar, and that surely is more valuable and important than a simple literal transmission of the very words, the "ipsissima verba" of the Oriental sage. He gives us the happy meat, wine, it is true is the favorite theme, we may even weary of it, but through it all, while we may not see with those who claim it simply a figure for Divine Love, "the wine of the love of God," we do come to regard it as more than sensual pleasure.

Khayam is materialistic certainly, but not so much so as to regard pleasure the sole and only end of life. The influence of the work upon other and great men has been marvellous. Swinburne and Rossetti were profundly impressed by it, became enthusiastic students and admirers, even dipping into Persian and studying it hard for the occasional sidelight thus obtained. Of course the whole of Omar is not contained in the Fitzgerald poem. Omar wrote or left some five hundred or six hundred Rubaiyat. Fitzgerald gives us only slightly over one hundred of them. One the other hand he has combined and compressed, so we have in our possession vastly more than that in proportion.

Another Pilgrimage.

One more pilgrimage and a short one! we have in imagination visited Omar's grave, "on a spot where the North wind may strew roses upon it," these words being the foundation of inspiration of Theodore Watts' famous sonnet "Hear us, ye winds."

Let us now seek Fitzgerald's last resting place at Boulge, near his home and birthplace in his own Suffolk, in his dear native England. The grave is covered by a slab of rosy granite! at the head and foot are rose trees and infixed in the granite slab is a bronze plate containing this inscription:

"This rose tree, raised in Kew Gardens from seed brought by William Simpson, artist traveller, from the grave of Omar Khayam at Naishapur, was planted by a few admirers of Edward Fitzgerald in the name of the Omar Khayam Club, 7th October, 1893."

At this ceremony was read this verse written by a Canadian author, Grant Allen:

"Here on Fitzgerald's grave from Omar's tomb
To lay fit tribute pilgrim singers flock,
Long with a double fragrance let it bloom,
The rose of Iran on an English stock."

At the close of the lecture, a vote of thanks to the lecturer was moved by Mr. D. Walker and seconded by Sheriff Hall, who said it was the best lecture he had listened to in a long time.

The Association are looking forward to another interesting lecture, when Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate Institute, will discuss Modern Art.

LEADERS AT OTTAWA MEET IN FINAL BATTLE ON THE N.T.R. REPORT

Graham's Vote of Censure on Government for Probing Extravagance of Late Administration is Defeated by a Poll of 105 to 87—Government Cannot Repudiate Mr. Graham's Contracts, Says Premier.

OTTAWA, April 3.—By a vote of 105 to 87, the House of Commons last night voted down the resolution proposed by Hon. Geo. P. Graham, censoring the Government because of the Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton report upon the National Transcontinental Railway. Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke for nearly two hours, but added little, if anything, to the argument for the Liberals delivered by Mr. Graham ten days ago.

Mr. Borden in reply stated that Sir Wilfrid by his trade policy of 1911 had thought to destroy the National Transcontinental by transferring all its traffic to the railways of the United States.

Mr. Hugh Guthrie (Lib., S. Wellington) resumed the debate yesterday afternoon. He said there could have been no undue extravagance in building the road, because the Grand Trunk had tendered upon 17 of the 21 contracts for the express purpose of keeping down the cost of construction. He criticized the action of the present commission in introducing momentum grades in spite of the protests of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Evidently this had been done in order to give the Grand Trunk Pacific the opportunity to refuse to lease the Winnipeg-Moncton line for fifty years under its contract with the Government.

W. H. Bennett (Con., E. Simcoe) said the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme had been devised in order to make a lot of Liberal campaign followers rich. The Yukon had played out and the western lands had been exploited to the limit, so some new get-rich-quick scheme had to be invented. The Government had a complacent Minister of Railways in Mr. Graham, and a commission was quite ready to join hands with the contractors in making party favorites rich. At the head of the commission was placed the "precious Mr. Parent," who was discredited and discarded by the Liberal politicians of the Province of Quebec. It was this same Mr. Parent who, in behalf of the Government, promised a charter to the Banque Internationale upon condition that Sir Rodolphe Forget did not run against Mr. Geo. Parent in Montmorency in 1911.

Hon. H. R. Emerson asked whether the Government believed that $25,000,000 had been wasted in constructing a line between Levis and Moncton. If it did believe that why was it spending $50,000,000 more in terminal facilities at Halifax, and $30,000,000 more in improving the port of St. John, N.B.?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier received an ovation from his followers upon rising. Sir Wilfrid went over the careers of the two investigators to show that they were biased politically, and had not given the accused a fair trial.

"What is this report?" he asked. "It is an unblushing partizan libel, reeking with unfair inuendoes and untrue insinuations, but nowhere is there a direct open page of dishonesty or graft."

The charge against the late Government, Sir Wilfrid continued, was that they had built too good a road, that they had too much faith in Canada and to much hope for her future. For himself he was here to say that the National Transcontinental would realize the fondest hopes of the country unless the men now in charge of the road degraded its high standard.

Sir Wilfrid then dealt with the points in the report.

The commissioners well know that the 450,000 for the Transcona shops had not been illegally expended, and that the present Minister of Justice had so declared. They also knew that the present Government had expended $1,500,000 upon similar shops at Quebec, but that fact was not mentioned in their report. They also knew that the present Government had sent an impartial expert to examine the Transcontinental shops, who had reported that they were not too large.

As for the statement that the Moncton-Levis line was a sheer waste of money, that was only an echo of Lynch-Staunton's speeches in Ontario in 1904 and 1908. At that time Ontario Conservatives had favored breaking off the line at Quebec.

In conclusion, Sir Wilfrid said that it had been repeatedly charged during this debate that he was responsible for the construction of the National Transcontinental. If that was intended as a stigma, he accepted it as an honor. No greater service could be performed for the confederation than to connect Quebec and Winnipeg with a continuous chain of settlements. "It is our responsibility, the construction of this road; it is for the Government to accept the responsibility from degrading and destroying it," he said.

There was a great demonstration from the Government benches when the Prime Minister rose to reply. Sir Wilfrid's speech, he said, was an admirable though abbreviated edition of the speech delivered last week by Mr. Graham, with a few decorative flowery statements from the ex-Premier's speech in introducing the Grand Trunk Pacific legislation in 1903.

Referring to the attacks made upon the commissioners, Mr. Borden said that either Mr. Gutelius or Mr. Lynch-Staunton, or both, were equal in integrity, character, record and reputation to any member of the Opposition, from the highest down. It was said that these commissioners had not been sworn, but he challenged Sir Wilfrid Laurier to name one royal commission that had been sworn during his sixteen years of office.

Of Mr. George Lynch-Staunton, Mr. Borden said, that no breath of scandal had ever assailed his personal or professional reputation, and against Mr. Gutelius no more serious charge was brought than that he was born in the United States. Surely the Opposition's case must be a desperate one when such appeals were made to prejudice.

Mr. Borden then discussed the cost of the National Transcontinental, allowing for interest charges, the cost of the Quebec bridge and the money paid out on account of the construction of the western division between Winnipeg and Prince Rupert. It was not unfair to say that the road would cost Canada $303,000,000. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier had estimated the cost at $13,000,000 he was a trifle inaccurate, to say the least.

Mr. Borden, replying to C. M. Macdonald, said it was preposterous to hold the Borden Government responsible for living up to the contracts made by the former Government. Those contracts could not be repudiated.

It had been charged by Sir Wilfrid Laurier that the Government had printed and distributed 250,000 copies of the report. As a matter of fact, there had only been 14,000 copies printed all told, 10,000 in English and 4,000 in French. In conclusion, the Prime Minister said: "We have not one, but two transcontinental railways, which we must either see through to completion or leave them uncompleted. We are not afraid of the situation, nor are we unable to deal with it, but we will give to that situation which we did not create, our best efforts as trustees for the Canadian people."

The vote was then taken.

An Old Island.

There is an English parish, only forty-eight miles from London, where roads, shops, lamps, telephones, motor-cars, and postoffices are unknown. It is Elmley, and it is an island. The island has an area of two thousand acres, and is the property of Oxford University.

Some time ago the island was the home of thirty-five men, women and children. The inhabitants are mostly "lookers" or shepherds of large flocks of sheep. The oldest man of the village is in his seventieth year. He has never seen a motor-car.

The school and the church are the two chief landmarks on the island. The reason they were built in such a sparsely populated spot is that in winter it is almost impossible to leave the island. The mud is literally knee-deep, and the ferry that runs to and from the island is dangerous. A novel method of obtaining the services of the ferrymen, who live opposite the island, is by opening the white door of a hut facing the shore. The ferryman on the lookout know that the open door is a signal for the ferry. At night a lighted candle held aloft serves the purpose of the open door.

Mrs. Snowden's Husband.

"The cleverest woman in England," Mrs. Philip Snowden, who has charmed Canadian audiences with her militant pleas for woman's suffrage, is very proud of her husband, who is a Labor member of Parliament. Speaking the other day in Sheffield, England, on "Peeps at Parliament Through a Woman's Eyes," Mrs. Snowden talked for over an hour without the aid of a note, and her oratory and charming personality captivated the audience. Referring to nicknames in use in the House of Commons, Mrs. Snowden said that her "own particular private member" had one, which he scolded her for using; "then," she said, "I tell it again." It is "Philip the Incorruptible," and she added that she was very proud of the "Incorruptible." Although Mr. Snowden's name was sometimes coupled with that of Robespierre in an undeserved fashion, he was as meek as Moses and as gentle as a lamb.

Defined.

"Pa, what is a knocker?"

"A knocker, my boy, is a man who usually finds fault with another man who is doing something better than he could do it himself."

What the wisest of us say is of far less importance that what we leave unsaid.

The main division of the army, he said, will leave Massillon, Ohio, on April 16, and will be joined outside Washington by the eastern division.

THE HERO OF THE YEAR

COMMANDER TOMKINSON GETS THE STANHOPE MEDAL.

Gallant Attempt to Rescue Seaman Named Ball, Who Was Washed Overboard From Submarine, Has Won for Young Naval Officer the Most Coveted Prize In Britain—Narrowly Escaped Death.

The Stanhope gold medal for the bravest deed of gallantry during the past year has been gained by Commander Wilfred Tomkinson, R.N., third son of Mr. Michael Tomkinson, of Franche Hall, Kidderminster.

The medal was awarded to Commander Tomkinson recently at the annual meeting of the Royal Humane Society, held at the Royal United Service Institution, London, Lord Inverclyde presiding.

The deed of gallantry of which Tomkinson was the hero was recorded as follows:

COMMANDER WILFRED TOMKINSON, R.N.

At eleven a.m. on Nov. 20, 1913, an able seaman named Ball was washed overboard from Submarine B4 off Bigbury Bay, Devon, there being a heavy sea running at the time. In response to a signal from the submarine the destroyer Wolf raced at full speed to the place, and Commander Tomkinson, who was on board, at once plunged in and succeeded in bringing the man close to that vessel.

A lifebuoy was thrown, to which he held with a view to being pulled on board, but, unfortunately, the buoy broke, and both fell back into the seething water. On Commander Tomkinson coming to the surface he grasped a line which was thrown, but would not come on board until all hope of saving the man, who had been sucked down under the ship, was given up—a fate which he himself narrowly escaped.

Commander Tomkinson is now in command of H. M. S. Forth, the seagoing depot for submarines.

Billiards.

Billiards is a game the origin of which no one can with certainty tell. Like bowling, it is thought by many to have been derived from the ancient British game of bowls. When bowls could not be played out of doors because of the weather, a bowling green was set up indoors, and as there was no fun in hurling the balls in such close quarters, they were struck with a mace, and later with a cue.

Many men believe that billiards was not an invention, but a growth, while others maintain, most likely because of the name, that it was a French invention, and they contend that it was played by the Germans, Dutch, Italians and French long before it appeared in England. But on this matter there is room for doubt. A number of literary references to the game may be found in Elizabethan days.

Mary Queen of Scots was an enthusiastic billiard player and Shakespeare seems to make some covert references to this fact when in his "Antony and Cleopatra" he makes Cleopatra play at billiards. Ben Johnson uses the phrase "smooth as a billiard ball." Long after these men wrote, Byron makes the "harmless game of billiards" rhyme with "milliards."

Club For Working Men.

Club life for the workingman is to be developed on a large scale in London. A central labor palace is to be erected at a cost of more than $250,000, which in addition to providing meeting halls for the trades unions is to include a moving picture theatre for the display of labor scenes. A large organ and orchestra will play music written around the pictures. Arrangements have been made with unions in France, Belgium and Germany for the exchange of films, a pool of $350,000 having been formed for this purpose. They are also to be dining-rooms, where orchestras will play during meals, a smoking lounge and other comforts of a first rate club. One of the chief features will be stores where provisions of all kinds will be sold to members.

The promoters believe that the undertaking will pay its own way.

London's Gruesome Day.

January 30, 1661, was a gruesome day in London. It was on that day that the body of Cromwell, which had been disinterred from the Abbey two days before, was drawn on a sledge along with the remains of Ireton and Bradshaw, to Tyburn. There the bodies were taken out of their coffins and in their shrouds hanged by the neck till sunset. They were then cut down, their heads taken off, and the headless bodies buried in a pit at the foot of the scaffold. Cromwell's head was then conveyed to Westminster Hall, where it was set up on a pole. There it remained for 20 years till it was eventually blown down. — London Daily Chronicle.

THE SPORTING WORLD

Keen Contests Are Certain in the Bouts Billed for Next Week

Mr. S. W. Collings, wrestling instructor of the Central Y. M. C. A., Toronto, has definitely notified the local Y. M. C. A. that he will send a bunch of crack wrestlers to take part in the Championship Contests to be held in the local Y. M. C. A. on Thursday evening of next week. Physical Instructor Thompson has secured a permit from the Provincial Association to hold the contest for the city championships. Thus any wrestlers in Peterboro or vicinity who care to take part for the championships will have a chance to do so. They will need to obtain their amateur cards in advance. Entries will close Tuesday of next week.

Ever since it was announced that the Toronto champions might come to Peterboro, the wrestling quarters at the local Y. M. C. A. have been showing signs of unusual activity. The class of wrestlers has been working out every evening from 5.30 to 7 o'clock. Most of the local boys are rounding into shape. Lees, who will take part on the 115 pound class, will have to get off a few pounds to make his class, but expects to do so without trouble. Hartlaken, who will take part in the 125 pound class, is already all right on the weight limit, and promises to put up one of the best bouts of the night. Forbes, who will enter the 135 pounds class, is a few pounds over weight, but expects to make the weight without difficulty. Scott, the 145 pound man, has taken off three pounds within the last couple of days, and has to reduce only about five pounds more to be ready in his class. Mel Turner, who will enter the welter weight class, is light enough to take part in the 125 pound class, but will probably stick with the 145 pound wrestlers.

Mr. Collings writes that Oswald, the St. Andrew's College 105 pound wrestler, who has won distinction in a number of bouts in Toronto, would like to come to Peterboro. A bout is being arranged for him with Keegan.

It is also definitely known that Durnan, who won the 125 pound championship in Toronto two weeks ago, beating the local wrestler Hartlaken on points, is coming to Peterboro. Ever since returning to Peterboro Hartlaken has been practicing holds to counter the scissors hold of Durnan, and will be ready for him when they meet next Thursday. It is reported that Gibson, the 145 pound crack, and that Walsh, the former Ontario champion, and the Toronto city champion now at 135 pounds, will both be down.

All the members of the committee appointed on Wednesday evening at the lacrosse meeting are requested to be on hand on Monday night in St. Alphonsus Lyceum, when the organization meeting will be held. All enthusiasts in the city are likewise invited to be present.

A few of the gentlemen concerned are talking of holding the first practice on Good Friday afternoon, but more particulars of this will be announced later.

So popular has taffeta become in New York, that dealers are complaining that there will soon be a famine of it.

More Canadian Fords are now shipped in one day than in the entire first year of the Company's existence. That's a wonderful record of growth in ten years. But we must grow if the world insists on riding in Fords.

FLINT STONES WERE SCARCE.

Our War Office Had to Advertise For Them In 1776.

"The war office calls upon all persons who know where flint stones can be secured to notify congress."

Was there aught of prophecy in this brief appeal printed four days after the signing of the Declaration of Independence?

A copy of the Pennsylvania Packet contains the advertisement. The newspaper bears date of July 8, 1776, and in the same column explains that the flints are to be used for rifles. And without the old flintlock there would have been no American independence —at least not for many more years after the Boston tea party, if indeed, the colonials unarmed could have mustered up courage to dump the lead lined boxes into the bay.

Further perusal of the old newspaper shows Jamaica rum and sugar were offered for sale by the hogshead; a reward of $6 was offered for the return of a horse that had strayed away from the range, and a woman who had lost two cows rushed into print with the statement that the individual who would lead the bovines home again would be remunerated to the extent of $4.

Sheriff's sales occupy a column and a half and the Packet's publisher takes space to announce "advertisements are thankfully received," adding that "unless subscribers pay their back dues at 10 cents a copy it will be impossible to continue publication after another month."

EAST INDIAN MAGIC.

The Clever Dry Sand Trick and the Way It Is Performed.

A very clever trick often seen in India is the following, which is known as the "dry sand trick."

The fakir brings forward a pail, which he proceeds to fill with water. He then shows some ordinary sand, quite dry. To prove its dryness he takes up a handful and, blowing sharply upon it, scatters it in all directions. He then takes up another handful and drops it into the water. We can all see it lying in the bottom of the pail under the water. Next, showing his hands empty, he places one in the pail and brings out a handful of the sand. Blowing upon it, it still scatters in all directions, showing it to be as dry as ever. This is repeated several times until all the sand is again extracted.

This clever trick is performed in the following manner: Fine, clean sand is selected, washed carefully in hot water several times and dried in the sun. Some of this sand is then placed in a frying pan with a lump of fresh lard and is cooked until all the lard is burned away. The result is that every particle of sand is covered with a thin coating of grease, so that when this sand is dropped into the water it remains dry.—Scientific American.

Had to Be Careful.

Helen and Maida were at play when Maida was overheard saying:

"My mamma does not allow me to use a bit of slang. She says it is coarse and vulgar."

"That's just what my mamma says," replied Helen. "My, but I'd get it right in the neck if she heard me using slang like some little girls!"

Mean of Her.

"I am looking for an excuse," said the pretty girl.

"Then take me," replied the flippant young man.

"Not in this case it isn't," returned the p. g.

"What?"

"Better than none."

Rather Dusty.

"She made a sweeping assertion."

"Concerning suffrage?"

"Not at all."

"About what?"

"The condition she found her house in and what was to be done about it."

AN UGLY VISITOR.

His Unwelcome Call Brought About a Dramatic Situation.

The London representative of an East Indian firm was working late at the warehouse. A large consignment of goods, newly arrived, lay in the room that adjoined his office. The room was a simple affair of four chart covered walls. There was a desk in the middle, a few chairs, and a large fireproof safe. It was nearly midnight, when a sound from the next room induced the man to go to the door to investigate. Nothing seemed wrong and he returned to his work, but left the door ajar.

Presently a faint, harsh sound came from the next room. He sprang up to behold the head of a snake protruding through the doorway.

When the reptile saw him it stopped for a second, reared its head until it was almost on a level with the man's and began to dart its tongue angrily in and out of its mouth.

No novelist ever imagined a more desperate situation. The man was unarmed and apparently without means of escape. The moment he withdrew his eyes from those of the snake, it lowered its head and moved toward him.

But he had already determined on his course. The great safe stood open. He sprang into it and closed the door behind him, although he did not shut it completely. That would have meant slow but certain suffocation. He slipped a small cashbook into the aperture and held the ponderous door open about half an inch.

Meanwhile the python—for such it was—in a paroxysm of fury, had flung its coils twice round the safe, which stood some distance out from the wall. The creature drew its coils to the utmost tension in an angry effort to crush the iron safe.

By an effort the desperate prisoner collected his wits. He remembered that a case, slightly damaged and marked, "to be kept in a moderately warm place," had been put in the adjoining room, and doubtless accounted for his horrible visitor. But the explanation, although simple, offered no consolation. Something must be done. The captive racked his brain sorely until an idea struck him. Earlier in the evening he had put one of the ledgers in the safe with a long, black eraser inside to mark a special entry. Cramped and almost doubled as he was, he found it no easy matter to reach the slender weapon, the blade of which was as sharp as a razor. Taking his courage in both hands he plunged the knife again and again into the folds of the snake, where they crossed the small aperture. There followed a horrible, tearing sound, and the massive safe rocked ominously for some moments. Then suddenly the folds seemed to relax and go writhing to the floor.

Owing to the extreme tension of the coils the keen blade had almost severed the body in half. From head to tail it measured nearly forty feet.

Back Alley.

"See that man?"

"Yes."

"He walks in ways that are dark and mysterious."

"Mercy! Does he?"

"Yes."

"He looks honest. Is he a burglar?"

"No; a milkman."

Sure Way.

"How are you coming on with your literary work?"

"All right, but I can't get anything published."

"Try writing some mushy love letters to a girl and have her sue you for breach of promise. The papers will publish them."

Not Catching.

Jane's sister was coming home from normal school.

"Why is she coming home?" asked the neighbor. "Is she sick?"

"Yes, she is very, very sick," said Jane.

"What ails her?" asked the neighbor.

"Well, I don't know exactly. Mamma had a letter from the principal, and he said it was lack of mental ability. I don't know whether it is catching or not."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Humor and Philosophy

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

EVEN a person having an ax to grind may be tolerated if he is judicious in putting on the pressure.

Being glad that your vacation is over is an indication that you don't know how to vacate worth a cent.

It is a good thing to have lots of friends—if you are a person of executive ability and know how to work a good thing.

Those lovely and perfect people who can't do wrong can't do anything else either.

Sometimes good behavior simply spells lack of inclination.

Anyway, being good for revenue sometimes beats being bad for fun.

You can fool yourself a whole lot, but you can't work much of a flimflam off on your nervous system.

People who aren't fond of flattery themselves often administer the hugest doses of it to their friends.

All Depends.

The times, they say, are out of joint
And everything is wrong.
The weak get nothing more than shucks;
Rewards are for the strong.
To some it sounds like foolishness,
To others it is true,
But you may gamble it depends
Upon the point of view.

When everything is running smooth,
Just like a palace car,
And things are moving right along
Without a single jar,
Before your eyes the outlook stands
A very pleasant view,
With only roses in the path,
And it looks good to you.

But when your fortunes strike a snag
That wrecks your prospects fair
And leaves you partly in the ditch
And partly in the air
You listen to the pessimist
And get his point of view,
Take comfort in his mournful note
And think perhaps he knew.

It all depends on how things run.
With fortune at your beck
You take a brighter view than when
You get it in the neck.
You wonder when a time or two
Beneath the waves you're whirled
How any one can rise and say
That it's a good old world.

Distressing Kind.

"He has a very bard cough."

"I hadn't noticed it."

"Ever try to make him cough up?"

Solved.

The secret of true happiness
Is in a lady fair,
Sufficient wealth, your share of health,
Enough and some to spare,
A job that doesn't often jar—
And there you are!

To prove that our claims for the Bosch-Ford Magneto are not composed of Hot Air, we make the following offer: We will install a Bosch-Ford Magneto on any Ford car, and if the owner is not perfectly satisfied, we will remove it, and refund the money.

KNEW THE WORD "KIRK."

But Went Astray When He Followed It Into the Turkish.

To hold down successfully the job of governor of a state or vice president of the United States one does not have to be up on oriental languages. So the Honorable Thomas R. Marshall never hesitates to tell this on himself:

It was at a reception in Indianapolis which took place when the Bulgarian army was driving the Turks out of Thrace. The battle of Kirk Kelisseh had just been fought.

"Odd name that—Kirk Kelisseh," said the then governor of Indiana. "It means 'Forty Churches,' or, rather, mosques. Now, isn't it queer that the word 'kirk,' which, as we all know, stands for 'church' in the Scotch vernacular, and which appears in German and other languages of northern Europe, should have precisely the same meaning in Turkish! It makes us wonder whether all tongues may not have had a common source, and if that is so it would probably be found that that source was in the east."

There was murmured applause from every one except an unobtrusive little professor, who had been hovering near the group.

"Pardon me, governor," he piped up, "but your conclusions, while interesting, might be called—er, a little misleading. It is perfectly true that Kirk Kelisseh is the Turkish for 'Forty Churches,' but it is the word 'kelisseh' that means a place of worship, while 'kirk' means 'forty.'"

And the professor was right.—New York Sun.

Some people are so afflicted with presence of mind that their friends are really happiest when they are absent.

The sanest thing to do sometimes looks crazy.

A married man always says he is glad of it, and you can't prove he isn't.

There is a heap of difference between running chances and catching them.

No doubt the heated term is harder to bear today than next winter is.

Of course women dress to please the men, and they aren't to blame if men are so contrary as not to be pleased either.

If your favorite doesn't win cheer up and change favorites. This, of course, will not get you your money back, but it will give you heart to put some more in jeopardy.

A South Pole Hero.

Captain Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian who put the south pole on the map, was born in Sarpsburg, Norway, July 16, 1872. His youth was spent in Christiania and on board sealers and whalers commanded by his father, Captain Jens Amundsen. He was twenty-five when he entered on his first south polar trip as the first officer of the Belgica expedition. This journey lasted two years and filled the young sailor with aspirations for further explorations in the frozen regions. His parents wanted him to become a physician, and he spent a year in a medical college. Later he went to Germany to study sciences that would aid him as an explorer. His first notable feat was to take a ship through the northwest passage, and on this trip he twice wintered in the ice.—New York World.

She Was Careful.

Mistress—Now, Sarah, I want you to be careful about breaking this vase. It cost a great deal of money, and I would hate to have it carelessly broken the first thing.

Sarah (three days later)—There's your vase, ma'am, and I couldn't have broke it more carefully if I'd tried for a month.

Mother's Busy Day.

The monologue artist was moving his audience to tears. "Dear old mother," he was saying; "I will never forget how she used to rock all of us children to sleep. There were nineteen of us, and by the time she had us rocked to sleep the alarm clock rang, and she had to get dad's breakfast."

Miss Eva Desautels, youngest daughter of Mr. Z. Desautels, 30 George Street, nurse-in-training in St. John's Hospital, Long Island, is seriously ill with diphtheria. Word was received last evening to the effect that her condition was very precarious and her brother, Mr. Romeo Desautels, left for there immediately.

Mr. Art. Ward, who two years ago was employed in the C.G.E. Tool Room of this city, but has been working in St. Catharines for some time, left this city last night for Halifax, where he will embark on Saturday on the "Empress of Ireland" for his home in Liverpool, Eng. Mr. Ward has made several trips across the pond, but this time he intends staying in merry England for some time.

Mr. P. Falconbridge, of Leamington, is in the city.

Mr. Walter L. Adams, of Montreal, is registered at the Oriental.

Mr. E. M. Harris, of Toronto, is among the visitors in the city.

Mrs. Karl Simpson, Gilmour St., will not receive on Tuesday, nor again this season.

THEATRICAL

The management of the Grand Opera House are to be congratulated on bringing to Peterborough a distinctly fine show in the "Old Homestead" Company. The play is an old-timer, having had a run of about two years at the Union Square Theatre, New York, nearly thirty years ago. That was the time when Denman Thompson, who has since passed to his reward, made both himself and the play famous. Little did the composer think how enduring was his masterpiece—that his portrayal of rural life and its contrast with city existence would bear so close a relationship with the reality of life that it would be played and received with enthusiasm at this present time. The history of the play speaks for its worth.

As for the company, the parts are all well taken. Edward L. Snader as Joshua Whitcombe fits his role naturally, and leaves nothing to be desired. Mrs. Maggie Breyer is an unmistakeable Aunt Tildy, while Jane Evans makes a first-class Rickety Ann.

The Old Homestead double quartette is deserving of highest praise. The voices blend nicely and have sufficient range and clearness. The basso, Theodore Hoffmann, we believe, was a favorite in "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," while the red-headed tenor was an attraction in his voice as well as his make-up But to praise one is to praise all. The play was well performed, heartily enjoyed, the house was full.

NOVELTY DANCES AT ROYAL THEATRE

The "Dance of the Nations" is the big attraction presented to-day and to-morrow at the Royal Theatre by Maud Fox and Gene Mack. The vaudeville includes many novelty dances but the "Dance of the Nations" is the most prominent. Lubin's big masterpiece, "Partners in Crime" is the feature of the motion pictures.

From persons close to the White House comes a report that Miss Eleanor Wilson's wedding will be strictly private.

"A GIRL OF THE UNDERWORLD

"A Girl of the Underworld," a powerful and thrilling drama of New York life will be the atraction at The Grand next Wednesday, April 8. Never has this vital subject been so delicately, yet so forcefully presented, as in this play, by Jack Gorman, a clever and daring New York playwriter. There is nothing to offend in "A Girl of the Underworld;" it is a beautiful story of heart interest that stirs and grips the audience from start to finish of the four unbroken acts. The scenes are laid in New York and the story is one of to-day, showing how the threads of life may tangle and twist in our struggle for existence. There is an air of the underworld that will make the most blase theartregoer sit up and take notice. Throughout the action of the play many comedy scenes are introduced which relieve the situation without interfering with the interest in the story as it is unwoven. The story of Marion Thompson, a beautiful country girl, reveals a drama of every day life in the great cities that is remarkable for its truth. Misfortunes may come fast and furious to the very best of families, and Marion Thompson is no exception to the rule. Living as she does, the tiresome humdrum life of the average dweller in a furnished room in New York, and like Wilkins Micawber, always waiting for something to turn up, she is facing a problem that is hard to solve, and one that may face any one of us. A most capable cast has been selected by the producers, including such well known players as Bess Stafford, Summer Nichols, June Bridges, the fascinating soubrette who assumes the role of "Peggy," Victor Bouvier, Geo. W. Pierce, H. C. Whitehouse, Corinne Vivian, and Frank Larabee.

"Yes, I'll admit the automobile problem is bothering me a good deal."

"No; keeping myself alive."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

What sense is there to English, pray?

"HIS HOUR OF TRIUMPH"

A Splendid "Imp" Feature at "The Grand" To-night.

Local lovers of motion pictures should make it a point to see the splendid two reel feature film which will be shown at "The Grand" to-night, entitled "His Hour of Triumph." Wm. Shay and Jane Gail, who no doubt are very familiar to local patrons, have the leading roles in this interesting "Imp" production. It concerns a new theatrical play, and in the picture the scenes both in front and back of the main curtain are vividly shown. In addition to this there will be four other good reels of comedy and drama. For to-morrow (Saturday) the management have arranged for a good programme both for the matinee and evening performances. If you have not yet tried the Grand make it a point to do so either to-night or to-morrow, matinee or night. You can depend on getting one and a half hours' clean, bright amusement in a high airy theatre where the seats are roomy and comfortable. The prices are 10c. for adults and 5c. for children.

The Missing Window Pane.

"Every kitchen has a window with one pane out in the Brazilian town of Rio Grande do Sul," said a cook. "That town is a servants' paradise. Servants live in their own homes there, as they should everywhere. They come to work at 7 in the morning, and they quit at 7 at night, a twelve hour day. Quite long enough. The paneless window is for the milkman, the baker, the butcher, so that these traders can leave their supplies—they usually come early—in a safe place. The Rio Grande servant is, of course, not there to receive them. She is in bed at her own home."

Sizing Him Up.

An eminent Scotch astronomer tells this excellent story against himself. He once explained in a lecture that a certain star looked no bigger than a threepenny bit a hundred miles away. After the discourse one of the audience said to him:

"You must be a Scotsman, for no one but a Scotsman would trouble about a threepenny bit a hundred miles off."

Sign of the Times.

"Business is pretty slow here just now," confessed the Squam Corners merchant.

"I judged so," replied the baking powder drummer, "when I observed they had laid off one of the hands of the town clock."—Philadelphia Ledger.

For the Sake of Peace.

"That's what I call hush money," remarked a father as he put down the cash for a bottle of paregoric for the infantile members of his family.

CRITICISING A CRITIC.

Points For the Purist Who Found Flaws In Gray's "Elegy."

To look for and find in masterpieces little flaws, real or imagined, is an occupation that must have its mysterious joys, otherwise, as it brings no profit, the task would not command all the time and labor that are devoted to it, nor would every such discovery be so exultingly proclaimed. This condition is based, or, rather, its repetition, by the letter in which a correspondent confessed that, having heard verbal perfection ascribed to Gray's "Elegy," he was moved carefully to examine the verses on the chance of proving this praise undeserved. And he did, he thinks, having found no less than two errors in the lines:

Their name, their years, spelt by the unlettered muse
The place of fame and elegy supply,
And many a holy text around she strews
To teach the rustic moralist to die.

"Name" should be "names," this authority declares, for the reason that the stones bore not one but several names, and "many a holy text," being singular, demands "teaches" instead of "teach!"

Now, just why Gray put the word "name" in the singular and not in the plural might be made the subject of ingenious inquiry, with any one of half a dozen sufficient explanations as recompense and all inconclusive, but to see force in the diversity of village patronymics—that requires more than ingenuity; it demands perversity. As for "many a holy text," that does indeed, the grammarians say, insist that a verb in immediate sequence be singular. Even the grammarians admit, however, with innumerable writers of both verse and prose, that if the verb be in a later clause the plural idea involved in "many" can properly be allowed to govern. Would our correspondent insist that when the estimable W. Scott, quoted by Goold Brown in debating this very question, wrote

In Hawick twinkled many a light,
Behind him soon they set in night—the "they" should have been turned to "it?" The change would at least be amusing. That much can be said.

Critics of this sort never will learn that rules for linguistic usage are not applied to but are deduced from writers like Gray and Scott, that what such men do is right because they do it and that no further justification is needed.—New York Times.

COURSE OF A PITCHED BALL.

Why a Straight Fast One Jumps Sideways In the Air.

That a pitched baseball curves in the direction in which the nose of the ball is moving because of the spin—upward if the twist given by the pitcher is upward, toward the right if the twist is to the right, and so on—is a matter of experience that is quite comprehensible, but how a hard pitched ball should jump sidewise in a most irregular manner, although pitched straight without spinning is certainly puzzling. In the Journal of the Franklin Institute Professor W. S. Franklin of Lehigh university expounds the phenomenon as well as the philosophy of twisted balls. Multitudes of "fans" who have always supposed that the baffling qualities of a straight pitched ball were due simply to its swiftness never suspected this eccentricity. Professor Franklin states the case in this way:

Consider a very smooth ball which is moving through still water without spinning. There is certainly no more reason why the ball should jump to the right than to the left. Therefore it must continue to move straight forward. That is good logic. But such a ball is no more subject to logic than is a sharp stick. The fact is that the ball does jump sidewise and in a most irregular manner. This may be shown by dropping a smooth marble in a jar of still water. The marble goes nearly straight for several inches and then suddenly jumps sidewise. Similarly a smooth baseball jumps sidewise irregularly as it moves through the air if the ball is not spinning.

The explanation lies in the fact that a rapidly moving stream of air splits when it flows past a ball with unstable dividing lines or vortex sheets. The unstable sheet will spurt now upward, now downward. The condition is the same when the ball splits the air and is shunted in a glancing manner past the bat. The only requisite for this baffling effect is power in the pitcher's arm.

Strange Arabian Custom.

In a Tripoli cemetery the gravestones, with bowls or saucers sunken in the cement, indicate that the one who lies buried there was a person of wealth and importance. These receptacles, however, are not for flowers, as one might imagine, but to hold water for birds. The birds are said to bring good fortune, so the drinking basins are not provided wholly for love of them.

Helping Her.

"You loved her very much?"

"So much that when her first husband died I married her that I might share her grief and so lessen it."

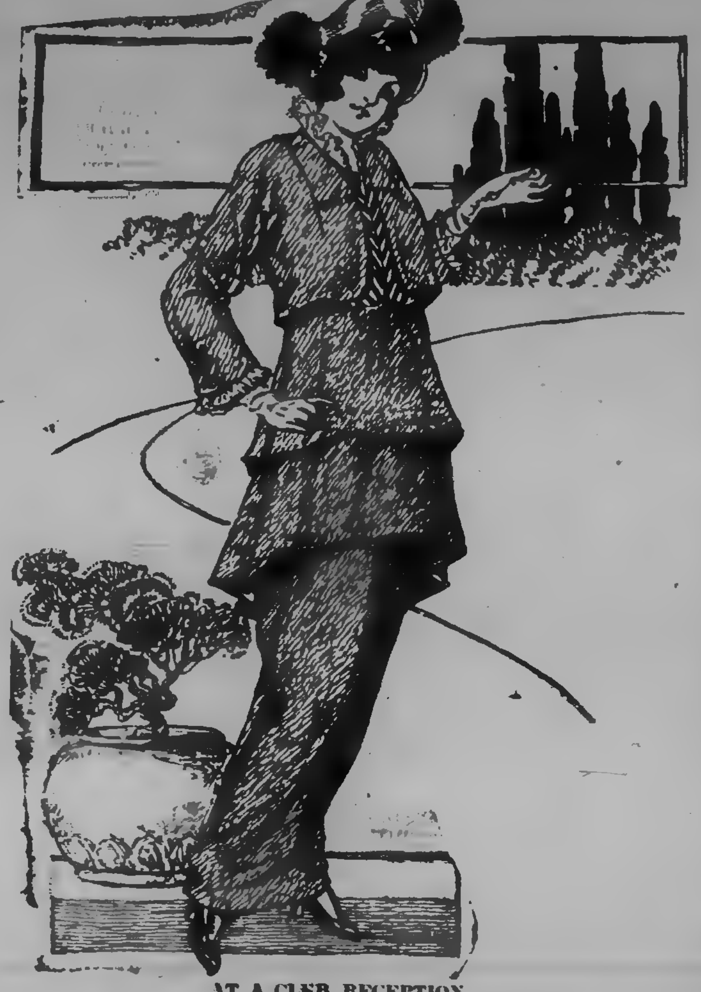
THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION



AT A CLUB RECEPTION.

At an afternoon reception of one of the smart New York clubs for women this suit was worn by a prominent member and was conspicuous for the elegant simplicity that marks the costume of the well-bred woman. It was in tobacco brown crepe mohair, with vest of brown and cream silk duvetine. Brown straw and pompons in the hat and brown cloth tops to the smart buttoned boots, completed an outfit that was as striking as it was plain.

SMART ACCESSORIES.

Trinkets of Various Kinds Accepted Features of Modish Toilets.

Trinkets of all sorts may be worn with the fashionable afternoon gown. The handsome dress illustrated is clasped about the waist by a chatelaine belt in old silver and semiprecious stones.

This costume is of cedar green chiffon taffeta and is designed for afternoon wear. This gown offers excellent style points. The skirt shows a long pannier drapery, the several folds of which are weighted in order to control their position.

Plaits in the back are kept in place by means of the backs.

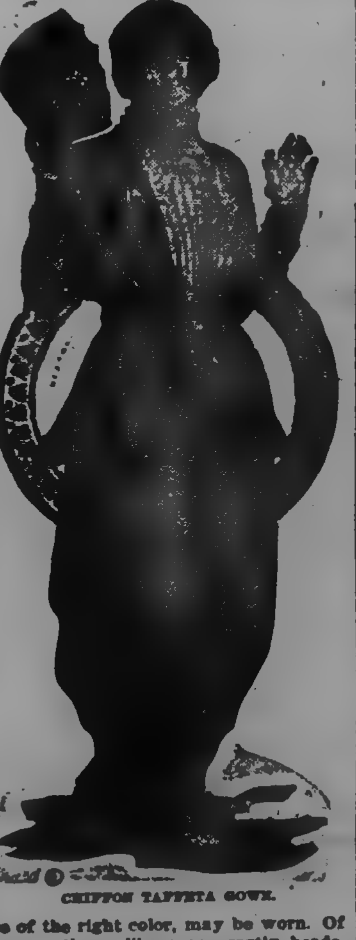
In the front the skirt folds are laced through green silk embroidered rings, with dark green cord, which ends in a heavy black and green beaded tassel.

An underskirt of dark green chiffon is worn with the gown.

The tunic opens over a plaited white net rest and is frilled with white net, picot edged.

Sleeves in two pieces are mousquetaire in effect and in one piece with the long waisted blouse.

Probably the cost of trying to make jewelry a part of the color scheme of the dress accounts to some extent for the fact that cheap beads, if only they be of the right color, may be worn. Of course, these, like more costly beads, must be worn with discretion.



CHIFFON TAFFETA GOWN.

Some interesting new chains of beads are shown now, made to wear with silk waists. The beads are strung on a string about thirty inches long, and where the two ends are fastened together a long silk tassel is attached. When the chain is put about the neck the tassel hangs in the front, forming a deep V line of the beads.

Any woman can make such a chain. For use with a plaid taffeta waist of blue, green and brown, a chain made up of blue and green beads of dark shades, about as big as a pea and of flat amber colored beads, each three-quarters of an inch long, would be handsome.

Three blue beads should be strung, then three green, then a yellow, then a green, then a yellow and then three blue again, and so on until the right length is made up. A little yellow silk tassel about four inches long is used.

FADS AND FRILLS.

Tango is the name of the new flame color.

Artificial silk will be much used with white voile.

White buckskin shoes have already appeared in the shops.

Nightgowns of pink and blue batiste are in favor.

Satins, it is promised, will retain their vogue for spring.

One of the great spring novelties is plaids in pastel shades.

Soft, sheer organdies are being taken up for embroidering.

Cashmere shawl designs are coming back with printed taffeta.

One popular new blouse has the back, sleeves and front yoke all cut in one.

Baroque pearls ornamented with jeweled wreaths make charming hatpins.

Checked skirts with solid colored coats will be much seen among spring suits.

The best tailored shirts for sports wear are those with an extra large armhole.

Short, loose jackets, which end in belts below the hip line, continue to be worn.

The frilly edge seems to be an indispensable detail in fashionable neck fixings.

Between the Acts.

"My love," said Diogenes to his wife as the curtain fell after the first act of the tragedy, "I am going out for a moment to see an honest man."

And although her beautiful eyes said plainly, "I am on to you!" he heeded not, but went.—Puck.

Might Help Some.

"What is the matter with father?"
"He hit his finger with a hammer."
"What is he doing for it?"
"Enriching the language."

There Are Many Like Him.

"Bindley is a great hustler."

"Yes, but he never has time to get started right."

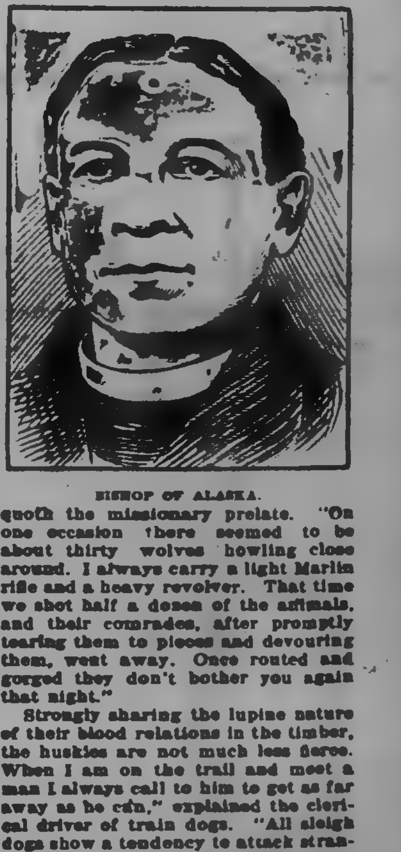
BISHOP OF THE ARCTIC

He Always Travels With a Companion to Secure Protection From Animals and Weather—Circle of Fire Is Made To Keep Off the Wolves, Which Have Attacked Him Several Times.

"While journeying through the Arctic wastes it is no uncommon thing for travelers to be attacked by wolves," says Rt. Rev. P. T. Rowe, D.D., Bishop of Alaska, who has been in Ontario recently visiting his old home. When "mushing it" by dog train through that part of his diocese which lies two hundred miles beyond the circle toward the shores of the Arctic Ocean, the bishop having to travel at night on account of the soft snow of springtime, was beset with this danger. However, he made the required one hundred and fifty-two miles in three nights and safely reached his destination.

"Only certain districts are dangerous on account of the wolves," said the bishop. "The animals, which live principally on rabbits, are migratory. When traveling through a wolf country we always stop to make camp in good time. My companion and I—for one never travels alone in winter—take our axes and slash down a lot of the small spruce trees that one always finds growing on the banks of streams in the far north. These trees we fell in a circle, piling up the mass still more with others until we have a species of barricade twelve feet wide, surrounding a large circle. Once that mass of wood is lighted it makes a fire that no wolf would ever dare to leap through, and the logs burn all night without attention. Travelers and dogs are safe inside it.

"Oh yes, I have been attacked several times when thus installed," quoth the missionary prelate. "On one occasion there seemed to be about thirty wolves howling close around. I always carry a light Marlin rifle and a heavy revolver. That time we shot half a dozen of the animals, and their comrades, after promptly tearing them to pieces and devouring them, went away. Once routed and gorged they don't bother you again that night."



BISHOP OF ALASKA.

Strongly sharing the lupine nature of their blood relations in the timber, the huskies are not much less fierce. When I am on the trail and meet a man I always call to him to get as far away as he can," explained the clerical driver of train dogs. "All sleigh dogs show a tendency to attack strangers, and if they ever got hold of one they would tear him to pieces in a minute. Even the owner must watch them. If he fell in the snow beside them they would jump on him like a flash. The driver has very little control with his one rein, and if a team of six or eight dogs started after a man the only thing for the driver to do would be to upset the sleigh and wedge it in the snow. The dogs are half wolf, are fed on fish, and are always hungry."

That the work in Alaska is no bed of roses may be gathered from the fact that the bishop must cover 10,000 miles every year to make the journey through his huge diocese. The immensity of the country may be conceived when one considers that from its southerly extremity to the most northerly post of the church is a pilgrimage of 3,000 miles. These vast distances are covered by dog train in winter, and canoe and boat when the ice is gone.

Brown as a berry from the winds and glaring snow, reflected sunshine of Alaska, the bishop, with his springy step and general air of alertness, looks the typical out-of-doors man. He is in constant training, walking his twenty-five miles day in and day out on the trail, and paddling distances that would tucker out far younger men untrained. Such is his life for many months of the year until he gets a chance for a rest and a run down to Seattle and visit his wife and family.

Up at Nome last year, Bishop Rowe met Stefansson and asked him his reasons for advising the Government to keep the missionaries and the white men away from the blonde Eskimo.

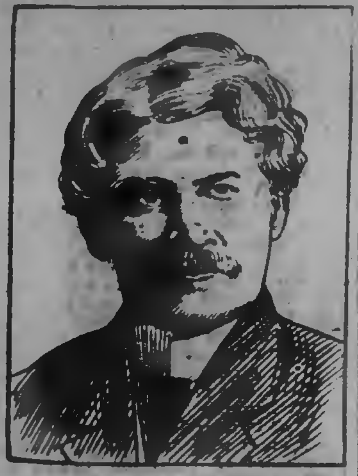
"The explorer had some weak excuse about them getting measles," declared the bishop, "but when I asked him what Eskimos he proposed taking with him on his expedition he confessed that he was getting fourteen of the men from our mission, who had benefitted by the very civilization which he professed to deplore. I was glad to have met him there on the borderland, where he could see the difference between the civilized and uncivilized Eskimos."

WOULD BAR PORTRAITS OF CRIMINALS FROM PAPERS

Sen. Choquette, Who Raised a Storm in the Senate Recently, Was Educated at Laval University and Has Been Engaged In Both Law and Journalism—Was Liberal Organiser In Quebec.

All Canada has been interested in the remarkable bill introduced in the Upper Chamber by Senator Choquette, which was aimed to forbid Canadian newspapers publishing portraits of criminals.

The bill provided a penalty for offences against the act of two years imprisonment and classified such criminal portrait publications under the head of obscene literature in the criminal code. These portraits were placed in the same class with obscene books, pamphlets, and newspapers or other publications of an obscene nature. Pictures, photographs, models and portraits of criminals were all put into a class as tending to corrupt morals.



SENATOR CHOQUETTE.

Senator P. A. Choquette is one of the cleverest men in the Upper House and a magnetic, eloquent public speaker. He was educated at St. Hyacinthe College and Laval University and studied law and practiced for some years, and he acted for a time as private secretary to the late Hon. Mr. Mercier. He was a journalist also for many years and founded La Sentinelle at Montmagny and Le Soir in Montreal. He sat in the House of Commons for Montmagny from 1888 to 1898, when he was appointed judge of the Supreme Court of the province of Quebec, but resigned in 1904 to become chief organiser of the Liberal party in Quebec province. He was called to the Senate in 1904 and is one of the most aggressive members of the Upper House.

English Bluebeards.

It was formerly no uncommon thing, when journeying through the Essex Marshes, to meet with fathers of families to whom the epithet "Bluebeard" might, without any impropriety, be applied. To have married half-a-dozen wives was no unusual experience with these men, many of whom, indeed, had gone through the marriage ceemony with thrice that number. Even that total had on occasion been exceeded, as in the case of a native of Candy Island, who had espoused twenty-five different women, while his son, who was but thirty-five, had already been wedded fourteen times.

Yet for the most part these excessively connubial men were very respectable fellows, whose sole mistake was in choosing wives from the neighboring uplands instead of wooing those who had become acclimatized from having been born and bred among the marshes. Consequently the newly-wedded brides, who had been accustomed to fresh and bracing air, on taking up their abode among the fogs and mists of the unhealthy flats, soon succumbed to ague or fever, which generally carried them off within the year, leaving their husbands to console themselves with fresh partners, who in their turn rapidly gave place to successors.

Crime Is Increasing.

Increase in crime, to an alarming extent, is noted in the Northwest Frontier Province of India. Raids and sniping are, it is true, everyday occurrences on and beyond the Frontier, but organized robbery had come to be regarded as a thing of the past in and around Peshawar. The recent railway outrage at Jhanjhira, however, showed that even years of good government had not changed the turbulent nature of the people. Barely a fortnight has elapsed after perhaps the most desperate railway outrage ever perpetrated in India when comes the news of the murder of a Hindu contractor under circumstances which leave no manner of doubt that there is a very crafty gang of dacoits at work in the country round about Peshawar. What makes the crime more serious is the fact that it took place in spite of the strict preventive measures taken by the authorities: The ordinary police measures seem to have had no effect, and it is therefore, advisable to resort to other methods of checking this new growth of lawlessness in the province.

Japanese Sell Children.

In selling their children the Japanese, in the famine stricken districts, have been following a custom that has not always been unknown in Europe. In the year 1017 King Canute found it necessary to issue an edict forbidding English parents to sell their children to the Irish as slaves, in accordance with habit. In ancient Egypt the unwanted child had only to be exposed on the banks of the Nile to be adopted and protected by the state.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

UNDESIRABLE.

I'D hate to have to live with him,
The man who always wears
His features knotted in a frown
And growls like forty bears.
Who seldom opens up his face
Except to sneer or scoff,
Who carries with him night and day
The grouch that won't come off,

Who has it in for every one,
Including foe and friend,
Including, too, himself as well—
On that you may depend—
As though for but a pleasant word
Or just a friendly sign
That the police would run him in
And make him pay a fine;

The man who has it figured out
That everything is wrong,
Who always has his hammer out,
Connecting with the gong;
Who thinks that happiness is not
A normal state of mind
And that the upper story leaks
If any one is kind.

I would not relish it to be
Tied up to him for life,
To be those poor unfortunates,
His children and his wife.
He ought to be the only man
Upon a desert isle
Where he could never see a face
That broke into a smile.

Made Her Read It.

"He played a mean trick on his wife."

"What was it?"

"Cut a piece out of the paper and then left the sheet lying around where she could find it. Of course she had to borrow a paper to find out what it said."

"And what was it?"

"An article telling wives that all husbands needed a night off at least once a week."

Useful.

"Nothing ever makes him mad."

"No?"

"Absolutely."

"What good is he, then?"

"Well, we get so everlastingly tired of his urbanity that we start a scrap among ourselves to relieve the monotony."

Provident Young Man.

"Why do you think you are able to marry?"

"I am certain that I have developed sufficient judgment."

"Judgment to what?"

"To select a wife able to support me."

Ran In the Family.

"Yes; I am a brave man."

"Are you?"

"Do you doubt it?"

"How can you prove it?"

"Prove it? Prove it? I have a cousin in the French army."

Had a Chance.

"Did you hear the news?"

"No. What is it?"

"There isn't any."

"Then how could I hear it?"

"I saw you talking awhile ago with Mrs. Brown."

Obvious.

"Editors have no aesthetic sense—no appreciation of the beautiful in life."

"Haven't they?"

"Not a bit."

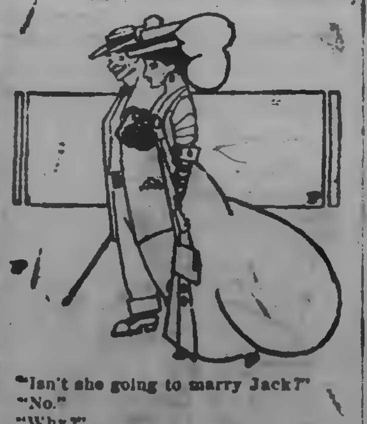
"Oh, I understand! You write poetry."

Married.

"Brown has such a habit of talking in his sleep."

"Poor man! It is the only chance he gets."

Untrained.



"Isn't she going to marry Jack?"

"No."

"Why?"

"Says he doesn't know anything but business—can't tell a bull terrier from an Angora cat."

Changes the Tune.

We hope, we resolve, we aspire, we trust,
When the morning calls to life and light,
But the cares come flying as thick as dust,
And we lose our sweetness and want to fight.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

The man who makes good can do all he says he can—and then some.

No lawyer would assent to the proposition that there is no money in trouble.

It is so easy to see what another should do that it is a marvel that our own way should look so vague and shadowy.

Now comes the time that a man is envied instead of grinned at when he is up in the air.

A narrow minded man can slip through a very small crack.

JUST CRANKS!

One Man Is Mad on Inquests and Another on Law Courts.

Punctually at ten o'clock every night, as the men from one of the largest Metropolitan Police stations march out on night duty, says a London, Eng., periodical, a mysterious looking man stands still and erect as a statue with his hand at the salute until the last blue-clad figure has passed. Then he goes home without speaking a word. He has carried out this strange program for years minus a break.

When he was questioned, all the satisfaction a representative could obtain was that he thought the Metropolitan Police the finest body of men in the world, and this was the manner he chose to show his admiration. His nightly vigil outside the police station is an obsession.

And in this he does not stand alone. For there are numerous instances which go to show that many other people are tarred with the brush of the crank.

What, for example, do you think of a man who, having a bitter feeling against railways, had his season ticket photographed on postcards which he supplied wholesale to the collectors? Such a man does exist. He has a rooted objection to showing his season ticket.

Having found that according to English law that for which a man has paid cannot be taken away from him, another eccentric individual, who used the South-Western Railway, refused to give up his ticket. Not only did he fight for his contention, but he proved it in a court of law. His victory resulted in a modification of the bylaw.

Whenever the King and Queen leaves Buckingham Palace two well-dressed elderly ladies are always to be found in the first row of spectators. Who they are and whence they come nobody seems to know. But the police and officials invariably treat them with the utmost consideration and courtesy, and a royal departure from the palace seems incomplete without their presence.

Then there is a popular publican carrying on business in Brentford who loves law courts. There is hardly a barrister practicing at the bar whose pedigree he does not know. Whenever he takes a half-day off he hurries to the law courts or one of the sessions houses and sits an interested spectator until the judge rises.

Of him the story is told that once when a famous K.C. shook hands and spoke to him in the corridor by mistake, he was so delighted that on returning home he refused to let any customer spend a single penny in the house all the evening. He stood the racket himself.

Few people outside coroners, reporters and police can boast of having attended over 500 inquests. And these, of course, do it from necessity rather than choice. Yet in one of the London suburbs there is an old man of seventy-four who can claim this record. He is quite cranky on inquests. By trade he is a baker and works at night. For years he has scarcely missed an inquest in the populous district in which he lives, and if by any chance his name is omitted he is quite angry.

He has helped to investigate every imaginable cause of death, from a brutal murder to the over-lying of a newly-born infant, and the coroner always has a kindly word and a hearty handshake for his "oldest retainer."

Rather pathetic is the story of a once famous figure at Clacton-on-Sea. Tall, thin, lean, gaunt, but cultured and of a refined nature, he regularly walked along the front clad in almost indescribably ragged garments tied together with string.

Years ago on his marriage morn, his bride-to-be failed to appear. The disappointed groom was so upset that he declared he would never wear any other suit than the wedding one which he had donned. He kept his vow, and the once immaculate wedding suit was for years held together by pieces of string.

BLACKSMITHS AS DENTISTS.

Men of the Forge Were the Usual Extraction Specialists.

The recent death of Mr. Edward Hewitt, of Hillmorton, near Rugby, at the age of ninety, recalls the fact that fifty years ago, when he was working as a blacksmith, and before dentistry had made such progress, he combined his labors at the forge with operations with the forceps. Mr. Hewitt used to oblige the young people round about by drawing their teeth when desired.

They would go to the forge, then at Long Lawford, and submit to a rough-and-ready operation with the most suitable blacksmith's tool available, though the "dentist" was always as careful as could be.

Years ago the blacksmith's forge was the recognized dentistry, and even now one often meets aged folk in out-of-the-way places who can recall having teeth extracted in the village smithy, says The Warwick (Eng.) Advertiser.

The idea may seem very quaint today, although many people daily submit themselves to tooth-pullers who have even fewer qualifications than the blacksmith had.

The law permits anybody to practice dentistry in England, practically the only limitation put upon them being that they shall not call themselves dentists.

The result is that many people who have failed in other directions feel they have a bent for dental surgery. Thus there is a case on record of a gentleman who had not thriven remarkably well as a bookmaker's clerk starting business as an unqualified dentist and doing well.

Then again, recently, a man living in a country district visiting a "dental parlor" in a neighboring town was surprised to find that the "dentist" was a former insurance agent who had canvassed him a few weeks before.

So that people of half a century ago who had to rely upon the blacksmith's skill with the forceps were not in much more evil case than many in England to-day.—Tit-Bits.

Tiny "Garden City" Church.

No one who has the interests of the humbler classes at heart will be sorry to learn that the first Garden City, Letchworth, in Hertfordshire, Eng., has been a great success. In fact, a new church has become a crying necessity.

Situated midway between Hitchin and Baldock, Letchworth remained until the last few years what it had always been, a small and obscure village. The late Professor Skeat, an authority on place-names, derived that of this parish from "Leech's-worth," the property of some physician whose name and fame have not come down to use from the Anglo-Saxon days in which he flourished.

In Norman times the manor belonged to the Montfichets, the earliest of whom in this country was one William, who bore the nickname of "als gernons," which means "with the whiskers," a whiskered knight among the usually clean-shaven companions of the Conqueror being the curiosity.

The manor afterwards passed to the famous Lyttons, whose ancient manor house, now an hotel, stands hard by. But the place itself always remained remote; and until 1904 the population was only 450. It is now considerably over 10,000.

The old church dates from the thirteenth century, and is one of the smallest in England, holding only sixty people. It stands in a secluded position closely overhung by noble elms.

Among the Abors.

The Commissioner of Assam, Sir Archdale Earle, accompanied by Lady Earle and party have returned to Shillong after a successful tour in Abor-land. Among the places visited was Yembung, further than which General Bowers did not go at the time of the expedition. Here, as in several other places, the people flocked in to stare at Lady Earle, the first European lady who had been further than Pasighat. The women were specially interested in her beautiful hair, which they were permitted to touch, and to a few of them she showed her room, her bed, and toilet table, which filled them with amazement. The Abors live on the Himalayan slopes, roughly speaking between Northern Assam and Southern Tibet. In 1911 a British expedition was sent to punish the Abors for the murders of Mr. Williamson and Dr. Gregorson. On a previous visit by Mr. Williamson with two companions, the production of a gramaphone caused great excitement, and when a magic lantern show was given some of the audience bolted.

Just Missed Troubles.

Good luck seems to have attended Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton and company throughout the tour of Australia and South Africa, for although there were various upheavals in the countries they visited, they always managed to avoid them in the nick of time. "We were," says Mr. Asche, "the last persons allowed to leave Sydney at the time of the smallpox scare; we got out of New Zealand before the strike; we had left England just before the railway strike; we reached South Africa after the first strike; and we left again just before the crisis through which the country is just passing."

AN UNWELCOME VISITOR.

Everybody Should Treat Him Just as This Sensible Man Did.

There was a light knock at the outer door, and the child who was playing on the floor with her grandfather suddenly looked up.

"Somebody's knocking, gran'pa," she said. "Shall I go?"

"I guess I know who it is," the grandfather replied. "I saw him looking in the window just now. Yes, you may go."

So the child opened the door and looked out and presently came back.

"It's an old, old man, gran'pa, an' he says his name is Old Age, an' he's got a lot of things in a basket for you."

The grandfather laughed.

"He's making a duty call, dearie," he said. "Did he mention what he had in the basket?"

"Some of th' things, gran'pa. He's got aches and pains and shakiness and weakness."

The grandfather laughed again

"A full supply, eh? Well, dearie, you go back and tell him I'm so busy playing with you that I haven't any time to bother with him. Just tell him there's nothing doing today."

"And if he won't go away, gran'pa?"

"Then you tell him there's an old boy in here who will come out and chase him down the highway. But I guess he's got sense enough to see he can't do business with us—we're much too young for him. But wait, sweetheart. Tell him that some time when he has a long, long sleep in his basket he can leave it at the door. But there's no hurry."

So the child went to the door and delivered her message and came back.

"It's your shot, gran'pa," she said. And their laughter mingled.

Courageous Duellist.

M. Colombey, in his history of duelling, tells an anecdote of a certain noted duellist of his time. One day this man, M. B——, was at Desenne's shooting-gallery watching the pistol practice. There was one man who was shooting very well, and Desenne was threatened with the loss of all his glass balls and swinging dolls.

Every shot was greeted by the spectators with exclamations of admiration. B—— looked on for a while, and finally, in a calm voice, made the remark: "He could not do as well on the field."

The object of the slighting remark turned around, and, in a loud and angry tone, cried: "Who are you to say that? Would you like to test the truth of your remark?"

"Willingly," replied the unrecognized duellist, as he led the way out to a secluded place.

After taking their respective positions, they drew lots, and it fell to B—— to shoot last. He waited in silence for his adversary's shot. The man fired—and missed. B—— lowered his pistol.

"What did I tell you?" he said, with a smile.

Then putting his pistol in his pocket he walked away whistling.

Fire Insurance.

There were no fire insurance companies in antiquity. There are traces, it is true, of contributions toward the relief of fire sufferers, but it was not until after the great fire in London, in 1666, that real fire insurance was known. It was not until the year 1681 that the first regular office for insuring against loss by fire was opened by a combination of persons near the Royal Exchange. This pioneer institution was soon followed by others of like nature all over Europe.

The Abecedarians.

The Abecedarians were a sect of German Anabaptists who arose in the sixteenth century. They despised all learning, regarding it as a hindrance to religion and looking even upon the "A B C" with contempt. Their design was the bringing of the world to the rule of righteousness by the gradual destruction of all then existent governments.

Not Qualified.

"I have tried to make a fashionable gentleman of you," said the reproachful father.

"I know it," replied the remorseful young man. "But the smell of a chrysanthemum disagrees with me, I look funny in a silk hat, and I always get a cane twisted up between my ankles. If it's all the same to you, I'd rather go to work."

Might Be Worse.

"Come, come, old man. Things are not as bad as they might be."

"I'd like to know how they could be worse."

"Well, suppose that you had, before the Panama canal was projected invested your money in Cape Horn building lots?"

Worst Stupidity.

There is no harm in being stupid, so long as a man does not think himself clever; no good in being clever if a man thinks himself so, for that is a short way to the worst stupidity.—Macdonald.

Just Like a Husband.

"My husband is one of the most stubborn men in the world."

"He can't be any more stubborn than mine."

"Oh, yes, I'm sure he must be. Yesterday I had an engagement to meet him at 3 o'clock."

"Yes?"

"Well, it was nearly 4.30 when I got there, and he won't admit yet that the rest he got while he was waiting did him any good."

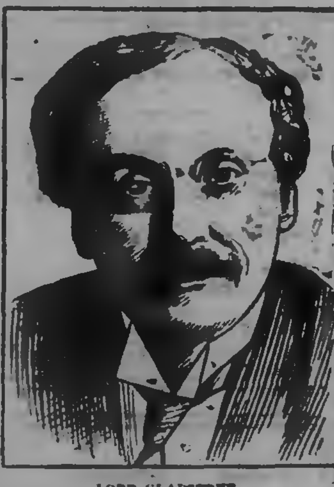
LATE GOVERNOR OF SOUTH AFRICA A KEEN SPORTSMAN

At Eton He Was the Fag of Sir Hubert Parry, the Musician, and Was Called Tuppence By the Other Boys — An Order to Get Food Meant a Raid on Some Senior Boy's Study—His Work.

It was Lord Randolph Churchill who bestowed on Lord Gladstone the name of "The Pocket Hercules." It arose through Lord Gladstone's passion for games, particularly football, when at Eton, and even as late as 1907 has lordship, in a letter which he wrote to a friend, showed that he still retains the keenest interest in the winter game and has many happy memories of the famous public school.

After describing his stay at Eton as "seven very happy years," he relates that his first fag-master was Sir Hubert Perry, the celebrated musician. "We small boys worshipped him," said his lordship, "for not only had he the best-deserved reputation for kindness, but he was a beautiful football player.

"During my seven years, perhaps the most memorable experiences were the House football matches. We were generally in the final, and I played for the House for four years. To this day I cannot forgive what we all thought the mistaken award of a rouge to Drury's. It was a bitter experience, and I am sure that all the surviving members of our eleven share my feelings. The umpire in question has long been a friend of mine, but I have never since ventured to mention the subject for fear of losing my temper."



LORD GLADSTONE.

Here is a little description of Lord Gladstone at play, by an eye-witness: "When a crisis came, and a dangerous man had passed the defence and was dribbling the ball near the goal, young Gladstone would be intent as a cat watching a mouse, and, seizing his opportunity, would suddenly snatch off his cap, dash from between the sticks, his big, dark eyes all ablaze, his crisp, dark, curly hair standing up on end."

It was at Eton that Lord Gladstone received his nickname of "Tuppence," or "Twodee," when he was a diminutive form boy. The name arose from the fact that his father, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, had taken 2d. off the income tax, and the Eton boys immediately dubbed Master Herbert "Tuppence"—a nickname still used by his intimates.

After fagging for Sir Hubert Parry, the Governor-General of South Africa fagged for Major-Gen. Kenyon-Slaney, Julian Sturgis, and Geo. Greenwood, all of whom were friends in after-life; "so that as a fag," he says, "I was very fortunate, though I still remember Greenwood's intricate coffee-pot, which gave me much trouble.

"When our fag-masters ordered us to get butter, bread, tea, and such things, there was nothing for it but to execute the order by a raid on somebody else's study. All food, except, perhaps, cooked food, was fair plunder, and also all school books or clothes, excepting caps or comforters. Only necessity was held to justify the seizure of hats or umbrellas. Pictures and ornaments were safe. The system worked quite well, though sometimes it was annoying to lose one's breakfast."

In these raids young Gladstone always showed much daring and resource. In an emergency, indeed, he could always be trusted to act with vigor, presence of mind, and pluck. Strenuous in athletics and school work, Lord Gladstone displayed the same characteristics when he entered the arena of politics. Here is a sketch by Mr. T. P. O'Connor of his lordship at work as Home Secretary.

"I had frequently to meet him on matters of business in those days," says T. P. "He was always in his room in the House of Commons, and I generally found him poring over some of the big collections of papers which are submitted to every Home Secretary from his vast Department. It must be admitted that you frequently found him solacing and perhaps facilitating his labor by his pipe.

"He is, perhaps, the first of the Gladstones who is a great smoker. His father, like Lord Salisbury, hated smoking, and they used to say that when Herbert Gladstone introduced this strange new vice into Hawarden Castle, he had to use great persuasion with his elders to allow him to rig up a smoke-room."

The Age of Cosmetics.

Lady Aberdeen, at a dinner recently uttered a neat epigram on the modern woman.

"The modern woman," she said, "rarely weeps. Her complexion won't stand it."

A Work of Supererogation.

Johnson had just recovered from one of the periodical sprees to which he was addicted. During the sobering off process he met the village good samaritan, who had often helped him over the rough places in his almost worthless life. Shamefaced and in a repentant mood, he confessed:

"Well, Miss Polly, I certainly have been making a fool of myself again. I found I didn't have to make many alterations to complete the job."

The Nature Lover.

Few adult persons can see nature. Most persons do not see the sun; at least, they have a very superficial seeing. The sun illuminates only the eye of the man, but shines into the eye and heart of the child. The lover of nature is he whose inward and outward senses are still truly adjusted to each other, who has retained the spirit of infancy even into the era of manhood.—Emerson.

Evasive.

"Would you love me just as much if I were a poor girl?"

"Every bit as much," he said, congratulating himself that she didn't ask him if he would still want to marry her.

Old Friends.

"She had three divorces."

"She must know the judge by this time?"

"She does. The last time she appeared in court she called him by his first name."

In the Dark.

Little Teddy—Well, what becomes of them when there isn't any moon?

EYES OF A PORTRAIT.

They Seem to Follow You, But That Is an Optical Illusion.

Why do the eyes of a painted portrait follow you? It is simply an optical illusion, easily explained.

To produce such an effect the eyes of the person represented in the portrait must be looking directly in front and not toward one side. So much for that. Now, under such circumstances the pupil of each eye is necessarily in the middle thereof, with as much "white" on one side as on the other.

Obviously this relation does not vary at all with the position assumed by the observer. The latter may stand far over on either side of the picture, and yet, from his point of view, there is as much "white" on one side of each eye as on the other, and the pupil is still in the middle. Such being the case, the painted image continues to look directly at him.

That is all there is to it. And exactly the same principle applies to the pictures often seen in advertising signs, which not only look but also point a steady finger directly at the observer, no matter where the latter may stand. Sometimes instead of a finger it is a pistol in the picture that is pointed.

This very curious optical phenomenon is exhibited most strikingly on the street cars. One enters, say, at the rear door and sees on a picture sign a man pointing a finger or a pistol at him. As the passenger goes forward the man actually seems to turn and follow him with eye and pistol, still pointing the latter at him when he has reached the front door of the car. It is a swing through an arc of ninety degrees or more.

You see, wherever the point of view may be (so long as the picture is in sight at all), the muzzle of the pistol or the finger tip is always optically central. The picture being a plane surface, the relation of finger tip or muzzle to the other parts of it is unaltered; hence wherever you stand the pistol or finger points at you.

In the palatial mansion of a New York multimillionaire there is a double staircase, the two flights joining at a landing above. On the wall is a huge painting of a flock of sheep coming downhill. The picture is a famous work of art and cost nobody knows how many thousands of dollars, but the thing about it that chiefly interests most people who see it is that, no matter which of the two flights (which are fifty feet apart) one ascends, the sheep seem to be running directly toward the observer. Here again the optical principle involved is exactly the same.

Emperor Cried Wolf.

In China such beacon fires as spread the alarm of the Spanish armada through England used to be the call to war. Many years ago, the story goes, the emperor sat with a beautiful woman looking toward the beacon hills. She would like to see those waiting piles lighted, and upon her insistence the thing was done. The greatest excitement prevailed throughout the provinces, and troops came hurrying in from all sides. When the leaders learned that no danger menaced, that the fires were lighted to satisfy the whim of a woman, their wrath fed on their lost confidence, and with the actual call to arms the response was slow and unenthusiastic.

Sweet Cane From a Far Country.

It has been supposed that sugar cane was the "sweet cane from a far country," mentioned in Jeremiah vi., 20, and in Isaiah xliii., 24. According to Strabo, Nearchus, admiral of Alexander the Great, describes a kind of "honey" from an Indian "reed" which was probably sugar cane. Europe seems to be indebted for the plant to the Saracens, who introduced it into Rhodes, Cyprus, Sicily, Crete and Spain in the ninth century. The crusaders of the twelfth century found it in Syria. The Spaniards and Portuguese carried it to Madeira and the Canaries in the fifteenth century, and on the discovery of America it was taken to the West Indies.

A Huge Kitchen.

It is believed that the largest kitchen in the world is that of the Bon Marche, in Paris. It provides food for all the employes of the house, 4,000 in number. The smallest kettle holds 75 quarts, the largest 375 quarts. There are fifty frying pans, each of which is capable of holding 300 cutlets at a time or frying 220 pounds of potatoes. When there are omelets for breakfast 7,800 eggs are used. The coffee machines make 750 quarts of coffee daily. There are sixty cooks and 100 kitchen boys employed.

Tactful Remark.

Mrs. Fatleigh, a lady who did not belie her name, got thirsty during a social entertainment and smilingly mentioned the fact to a group of young men standing near her chair. There was a rush to supply her want, and the young man who reached her first with a glass of water she complimented on his quickness.

"Oh, that's nothing," he replied lightly. "I'm used to it. I got into many circus and menagerie when I was [illegible] by carrying water to the elephant."

SAILORS' PETS.

British Bluejackets Keep an Amazing Variety of Mascots.

Sailors are well known for their love of animals, and the British bluejacket is no exception to the general rule, for there is hardly a moderate-sized creature in existence which has not, at on time or another, found a home on board a British man-o'-war.

Such common animals as cats and dogs are found in the greater number of vessels afloat, but monkeys, bears, deer, and even crocodiles are by no means unknown, though nowadays they are only usually found in ships abroad. The ship's company of one in the Mediterranean some years ago owned a remarkably fine bear, and on one occasion the ship in question was lying alongside the Mole at Gibraltar, just ahead of a cruiser which had lately arrived from England. Sunday afternoon, by a long established naval custom, is usually spent in sleep, and when everybody had settled down to his nap, the bear took the opportunity of breaking loose and leaving his own ship, ambled along the wharf, and went on board the cruiser astern. The petty officer and corporal of marines on watch did not like the look of their visitor, and promptly made themselves scarce, while Bruin walked unmolested over the gangway and proceeded on a tour of inspection by himself.

He presently came to a cabin door with a curtain drawn across it. Inside, one of the lieutenants lay on his bunk enjoying a snooze, but hearing a strange sound the officer woke up to see an enormous shaggy head, a long red tongue, and a pair of fierce eyes framed in the doorway. The gallant sailor lost no time in springing from his bunk and in looking round for a means of escape, for the ferocious look on the animal's face led him to believe that he was about to receive an affectionate hug. But escape through the door was most effectually barred by the bear's great bulk, and there was nothing for it but to clamber out through the porthole, which the officer proceeded to do without loss of time.

Diving into the sea he swam to the accommodation ladder, and clambered on board again, and searching out the marine sentry asked him to eject the unwelcome intruder, who meanwhile was amusing himself by destroying everything within his reach. The marine, naturally enough, did not see the force of being offered up as a sacrifice, and declined to enter, but after some parley the two of them succeeded in shutting and bolting the cabin door, thus making the bear a prisoner. Another man was then sent for the animal's keeper, and Bruin was led away in disgrace, but the unfortunate lieutenant never heard the last of the episode.

In another vessel on the China station there lived an ordinary white goat. There was nothing this creature would not eat. Old newspapers, fag-ends of cigarettes, tins of polishing paste, bits of canvas, and the contents of paint pots, all disappeared down his hungry throat.

In yet another ship there was an ibex, a species of large, shaggy-coated goat with long, curved horns, and when the bluejackets landed for drill the animal would march at their head with two packages of "First-aid" dressings strapped on his back. He, too, lived to a ripe old age, and when at length he did expire, he was accorded a proper naval funeral.

One Drink at a Time.

An article recently published about a well-known London public house called "Dirty Dick's," where it was the rule that only one drink could be served to customers at a single visit, brings to mind another licensed house in the City where not only is a similar rule enforced, but where smoking is strictly prohibited.

The proprietors of this licensed house, which is in Artillery Lane, Bishopsgate, frankly state that they reserve to themselves the right to conduct their business upon any system they may deem expedient, and they cannot permit their rules to be broken on any account with impunity. Furthermore, they "respectfully request all persons objecting to the regulations, and who are not willing to act in strict conformity therewith, to kindly transfer their patronage to some other establishment."

Grey Is a Stay-at-Home.

The announcement that Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, will accompany the King and Queen on their forthcoming visit to Paris recalls the oft-stated fact that Sir Edward has never set foot on foreign soil. It has been said that he visited Madrid in 1908 and Berlin last year. It is announced now that neither of these visits were made. A few years ago Sir Edward said in a speech:

"For twenty-eight years my life has been a continual struggle to live at home."

It is generally reported that Sir Edward speaks no German and very bad French. Mr. Venizelos, the Greek Premier, said some time ago that be had the greatest difficulty in understanding Sir Edward Grey's French.

Knitting In Arctics.

There have been many attempts at the soporific industry—the little mechanical activity which takes the brain from its usual occupation. Knitting is, perhaps, the best. Arctic explorers have averred that knitting gets you through an Arctic night better than patience. And it is quite usual for athletes, in the nervous hours before the university boat race, for example, to be set at knitting for the calming of their nerves.—London Chronicle.

The Persian Month.

The Persians give distinctive names to each day of the month, just as we name the day of the week.

Japan's Ancient Dynasty.

The oldest royal dynasty in the world is that of Japan, which goes back unbroken 2,600 years.

Often a woman's silence is more significant that a man's words.

CHILDREN'S BOOKS.

Good Literature Is a Powerful Moulder of Characater.

There are three stages in the literary career of a child. He must first have stories told to him. After a while he will enjoy having stories read to him; and, later still, he will take delight in reading for himself. It is a fine art, to be able to tell a children's story well, and one that every parent should practice and delight in.

The best stories never grow old, and they are just as interesting to a grown-up person as they are to a child—at least they are if you add to the natural charm of the story the glee that the child manifests in the fact of your sharing it with him. The parent who would master the fine art of story-telling for children should purchase Sara C. Bryant's little book, "How to Tell Stories to Children." In addition to a most valuable treatise on the story-telling art, this little volume contains a considerable number of excellent stories for small children, and also much information about juvenile classics.

Literature should be presented as art, and purely as art, whether in the home or in the school. Stories should not be put to service in order to convey otherwise unpleasant doses of instruction in history, biology, or what not. Art should be taught as art; history as history; science as science. Literature is a high and pure form of art, and art has its own function to perform. It is a shame to make a drudge of such a heaven-born creature as literature.

Its function is to give joy, to stimulate and feed the imagination, to broaden the sympathies, and to cultivate in the child a sense of beauty. The child whose mind has from infancy been fed on beautiful images and familiarized with the rhythms and melodies of good prose and good verse is thereby better fitted to enjoy life and appreciate beauty better than it could possibly have been without such training.

Good art is sure to touch and mould character, too. A child cannot continually breathe the air of gentle, generous, brave, and heroic characters without unconsciously becoming more or less like them. He grows like what he feeds on. In literature itself we have a classic and concrete putting of the matter in the story of "The Great Stone Face," by Hawthorne. One writer tells of a small boy who, early made familiar with the high conduct of mediaeval heroes and knights, knew no greater joy when he had done a worthy deed than to have his mother attach a bit of blue ribbon to a gilded wooden shield that hung on the wall of his playroom.

It is best to avoid books that are written specifically for children. They are usually written down to children, and in consequence lack sincerity, naturalness and simplicity. The fault of many of our modern books is that they are written down, thus, to the children. The great books, like "Robinson Crusoe, "Pilgrim's Progress," and the "Arabian Nights," were not written primarily for children, but were written for the human race. They are as fascinating to grown-up people as they are to children. There is a German saying that puts the matter in a nutshell: "If you propose to write especially for young people, you must not."

It is, too, a mistake to suppose that children must continually be supplied with new books. A good book never grows old to a child any more than a great painting or a great oratorio grows stale and wearisome to an adult. If we place in the hands of our children the true classic for childhood, and see that these classics come into their possession progressively at the age when they are sure to be most enjoyed, we need not trouble ourselves about buying for them the latest cheap, flashy, sentimental or sensational children's books.

Seventeenth Century Napkins.

About 1650 Pierre David published the "Maistre d'Hostel," "which teaches how to wait on the table properly and how to fold all kinds of table napkins in all kinds of shapes." The shapes were "square, twisted, folded in bands and in the forms of a double and twisted shell, single shell, double melon, single melon, cock, hen and chickens, two chickens, pigeon in a basket, partridge, pheasant, two capons in a pie, hare, two rabbits, sucking pig, dog with collar, pike, carp, turbot, miter turkey, tortoise and the Lorraine cross."

Mr. Taft's Double.

So much like Ex-president W. H. Taft is Mr. J. C. Judd, of Ottawa, that after the Canadian Club luncheon recently Sir William Mackenzie met Mr. Judd in the rotunda of the Chateau Laurier and mistaking him for Mr. Taft offered congratulations on delivering such a splendid address. When Sir William was notified of his mistake by Mr. Judd he declared that he had never seen two men look so much alike.

Later Mr. Taft and Mr. Judd met, and the former agreed that Mr. Judd was his double.—Ottawa Free Press.

HOLSTEIN COW WITH FINE RECORD

Belleville, April 2.—The fourth annual consignment sale of the Belleville District Holstein Breeders' Club was held in this city this afternoon, when 76 head of Holstein Friesian cattle were auctioned off. Prices ran fairly high. The high price cow was Princess Helene of Harlem, owned by G. A. Kingston, Editor of the Campbellford Herald, and sold to B. R. Leavens, of Bloomfield, for $1,050. In a seven-day test she gave 683 pounds of milk, in August, 1913. She also gave 103 pounds of milk in one day. In seven months she has given 14,200 pounds of milk.

It never strikes some people that some women are so busy holding down good jobs that they don't have time to look around for a husband.

Harmony.

Life was a dream of harmony,
In every way complete.
There wasn't a single phonograph in the Clever Woman.

"She always has her own way."

"But I thought you said that her husband is stubborn and won't give in."

"Oh, that sometimes happens."

"What does she do then?"

"Promptly adopts his way."

Unpleasant.

"What a fine looking man."

"Do you think so? I can't endure to look at him. The very sight of him sets all my teeth on edge."

"And I think he is so nice. Know him?"

"My dentist."

Mrs. Moneyburn—Because unfortunately that would be an end to the means.

Sure Reminder.

"I hadn't seen him for twenty years."

"Did you know him?"

"Right away."

"How much money did he owe you?"

Excellent Reason.

"You naughty boy, why did you fight Willie?"

"'Cause I can lick him."

"Why not?" was the query in astonishment.

SOCIETY CRAZE.

Many of Londons' Elite Are Not Above "Commissions."

Only those who actually move in high society in London can realise the manner in which many of its most prominent figures are enabled to maintain their position and to expend the amount of money that is necessary. A really smart society woman, however, contrives to add to her income very considerably year by year, even if she does not draw her entire source of livelihood from the means at her disposal by reason of her position.

It is now quite a common thing for a lady of birth to take one or two girls year by year, and not only to present them at Court, but to introduce them into circles into which they could not otherwise obtain entrance. Once a lady has herself appeared at Court, and her character is above reproach, she is entitled to present as many girls as she wishes, not more than two, however, being allowed for any one Court, save in especial circumstances.

A lady well placed in society has likewise many other means at her disposal to add to her income. That these are not always legitimately employed was plainly proved some time ago when a prosecution was instituted at Bow Street against one fairly well known in society for disposing of the "vouchers" she received in the ordinary course admitting her to the royal enclosure at Ascot. It is laid down that these shall be only available for those who have the entree at Court, and each voucher is plainly marked with the intimation that it is "not transferable." It would, however, puzzle many to be seen there, especially on the "Cup Day," to explain exactly how they gained admittance, and only two years ago an American lady paid for herself and her daughter the sum of $1,250 for two of these coveted tickets.

This is to be explained by reason of the fact that presence in the royal enclosure, which is readily published in all the society papers, implies a certain standing at Court, and brings one into more or less intimate contact with both the King and Queen. Therefore the lists of those whom it is proposed to invite are extremely carefully drawn up by the Lord Chamberlain, the Steward of Ascot (Viscount Churchill), and their subordinates, and is subjected to the closest scrutiny by both the King and Queen before the vouchers are permitted to be sent out. Thus the annoyance that is caused when these fall into hands for which they were not intended can be readily understood.

There are many women moving in society to-day who earn sums that are positively surprising by means of "recommendations" to tradesmen. In other words, these ladies are merely agents for certain firms, and in return for a handsome commission advertise them in every way possible. A few Court dressmakers, who charge high prices, owe almost their entire business to this system. A lady takes a young girl—married or unmarried as the case may be—under her wing, and at once decides that the costumier she patronizes is utterly out of the question, and insists that she shall try "just one little frock" from some firm in which she has a great interest.

Nine times out of ten the bait is only too eagerly risen at, and the fortunate dressmaker adds another customer to her list. Needless to say, the commission paid to the intermediary is added to the bill of the customer.

Humoring the Ego.

Did you ever chance to notice
When a fellow drives a nail,
Writes a book or paints a picture,
Breaks a horse or trims a sail,
Speaks a piece or carves a turkey,
On the platform does a dance,
How much better you could do it
If you only had a chance?

It is rather quite annoying
To observe the clumsy way
That the other fellow does it
While he calmly draws his pay.
If you on the job were working,
Holding for awhile his place,
You would do it so much defter
He would have to hide his face.

It is easy, oh, so easy,
To observe the class and kind
Of results you see around you
And improve them in your mind!
It's a cinch to be a critic,
In the work to find a flaw,
When you do not hold the hammer
Or the pencil or the saw.

But in telling how the others
Should make smooth each cranky kink
And turn out a better product
Did you ever stop to think
That your comrades and your neighbors
Might feel very free to say
They could do the work you're doing
In a much less bungling way?

An Auspicious Beginning.

The young man edged himself diffidently into the presence of the old man.

"What can I do for you, sir?" asked the elder.

"I shall come directly to the point," said the younger. "I wish to marry your daughter."

This was the old gentleman's cue to get out his handkerchief, and he did it.

"Alas!" he wept, "how shall I ever spare her? Her mother is dead, and she is all I have left. And I am an old man—not long for this world."

"You interest me strangely," put in the suitor cheerfully. "What other recommendations has she?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CRIPPEN OUT CRIPPENED

Remains of Missing Ticket Agent's Wife Found in Furnace---Chinamen is Arrested But Remains Silent in Spite of Third Degree

Canadian Press Despatch.

Vancouver, B.C., April 4.—A horrible murder has been discovered following the disappearance of Mrs. Millard, wife of Mr. C. J. Millard, chief ticket agent at the Canadian Pacific Station. Mr. Millard was on a trip to Victoria, and when he returned on Wednesday his wife was missing. Enquiries of relatives of hers were fruitless, and the husband called in the police. Through the use of bloodhounds inside the house, the scent was followed to the furnace, where remnants of flesh and traces of blood were found.

Jack King, Millard's chinese servant, was arrested and put under the third degree, but refused to speak. The police stated to-day that they had got enough evidence to justify the statement that Mrs. Millard was foully murdered.

The bloodhounds were put to work in the dining room, and when they sniffed the carpet and seemed to have found a trail, the police examined the carpet and found it saturated with soapy water. The carpet being removed, disclosed bloodstains on the floor beneath. Gradually the hounds, with the detectives on all fours, minutely examined the floor and went from the dining room to the hall and from the hall to the cellar.

A Ghastly Discovery in the Cellar.

In the cellar one dog picked up an object partly hidden in the ashes. He was forced to disgorge and a cursory examination showed it was a fragment of human remains. A horrible murder had been committeed, and in the words of one police official, "Crippen had been out-Crippened." The search proceeded to the furnace. Detectives opened the furnace door and a sickening sight was disclosed. The fire pot contained bones and flesh smoke-stained and partly consumed.

About two weeks ago, burglars ransacked the Millard house, taking two hundred dollars, and the Chinaman now under arrest is said to have stated that the burglars must have committed the murder. But the theory of the police is that the Chinaman was concerned in the theft, and on being discovered, killed Mrs. Millard either with a knife or a club.

ASSISTANCE TO TEMPLE BAND TOWARDS COST OF PETERBORO SOUVENIR

City Council Will Give $275 Above the Usual Grant of $225

The Temple Band will receive $275 towards the cost of the souvenir, which Adjutant McElheney is preparing and which will be distributed during the trip to England.

The band will also receive the usual grant of $225 for their concerts in Victoria Park.

The committee of the whole Council practically decided the question last night, as the recommendation is almost sure to pass Council Monday night.

Ald. Duncan moved that the band be given $275 above their grant for concerts and that the City purchase 400 copies of the souvenir at $100. There was no seconder.

Ald. Duncan—"I think we should give them a little more. When the curlers came here we gave them two or three hundred dollars to feed a few Scotchmen."

Ald. Anderson—"They were refused the last time.

Ald. Duncan—"But you went down in your pockets. They do more good in five minutes than the curlers did in twenty-four hours. They are certainly deserving of it."

Ald. Langford—"I'd be in favor of giving a grant of $500 including the usual grant, and leave the question of buying the books till later, when we would know how many we could use."

Ald. Duncan—"Give them $500 over their usual grant and then you are not doing any too much."

Ald. Gordon said the band was receiving subscriptions from the citizens.

Ald. Saunders—"They are not going to get out 14,000 books and pay for their trip unless somebody does something."

Mayor Buller remarked that the Council was putting itself in a position where other institutions could come and ask for aid.

"We have done it in the past," said Ald. Duncan.

"But not for anything like this," replied the Mayor.

Ald. Green—"These books will find their way into the class of people that will become good citizens when they come here. They are not going to give the souvenirs to lords, but they will find their way into places of business and others whom we may reasonably expect to come here. I feel that the people the Salvation Army has brought out here are not detrimental to Peterboro."

The motion that passel was moved by Ald. Green, seconded by Ald. Johnston.
